The residence of Mr. Wm. Davidson on Dickson-st., was the scene of a happy matrimonial event this afternoon, when Rev. E. F. Torrance tied the nuptial knot which united in marriage Mr. Samuel Munroe and Miss Emma Davidson. The interesting ceremony was solemnized unostentatiously, only the relatives and a few immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. The bridesmaids were Miss Annie Hall, cousin, and Miss Laura Davidson, sister of the bride. The ceremony over, the wedding party sat down to a most elaborate dejeuner, prior to the happy couple leaving on the evening train for the west, en route to New York and other eastern cities which they will visit before their return. The wedding has created some interest in the extended circle in which the bride moved, and numerous indeed will be the well-wishes and congratulations that will be extended on the happy occasion. The bride is a young lady of an amiable disposition and one who is a universal favorite among all with whom she mingled. As a valued member of St. Paul's church choir she will be greatly missed in the church, where she was also an active worker in the young people's societies. That her friends were many was attested by a most magnificent and large array of wedding gifts of which she was the recipient. The groom is a young man who is well-known in Peterborough having resided here for some length of time, and it will be welcome news to many to know that he and his bride will reside here or in this vicinity. The happy couple upon their return from their honeymoon will take up their residence at Harwood where they will reside during the summer months, returning to Peterborough for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Munroe embark upon the sea of matrimony with the best wishes of host of friends for a felicitous future in which it is hoped the bitter may never mingle with the sweet. To these congratulations the REVIEW extends its warmest well-wishes.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Adjourned Quarterly Meeting—Election of New Members.

The Board of Trade met at the Council Chamber for the adjourned quarterly meeting on Tuesday night, the members present being Mr. A. Hall, Vice-President, in the chair; and Messrs. Dumble, Manson, Lewis, Fair, Dobbin, Hay, Phelan, McFarlane Wilson, Innes, Macdonald and Fairweather.

The Secretary, Mr. J. H. Burnham, reported several matters of Board business for consideration.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS.

The following gentlemen were formally elected members of the Board of Trade:—Messrs. R. B. Rogers, G. W. Ranney, H. Calcutt, H. LeBrun, E. Peplow, E. Green and Rev. J. C. Davidson.

Mr. Dumble, Chairman of the special committee appointed to further the proposal to advertise the town, reported and detailed what had been done in connection with getting out matter already prepared in the shape of a folder.

RAILWAY FREIGHT RATES.

Mr. A. Hall brought up the matter of freight rates and mentioned some points on which an improvement would be beneficial to local manufacturers; who were handicapped by better rates being afforded Toronto men. Mr. Hall referred to the fact being called to the attention of Sir Joseph Hickson at the informal meeting held Saturday evening, and suggested that on the request of the Board that the present rates as modified be forwarded to the Grand Trunk authorities at Montreal. With this in view the following resolution was carried unanimously:—

"That the fact that through freight rates from England to Toronto are less than to Peterborough is a discrimination against Peterborough which handicaps our manufacturers and works against the manufacturing prospects of the town, That the two railway companies be requested to use their best efforts to remove this discrimination and make the rates to Peterborough not higher than to Toronto and other western points; That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Presidents and General Managers of the C. P. R. and G. T. R. Companies."

THE TOWN SEWERAGE.

The matter of sewerage for the town was brought up and discussed. Members were unanimous that the need was great. The financial prospect was discussed and the opinion expressed that the town was financially in a good position to undertake the work.

After appointing a committee to ask from the Town Council a grant to assist in advertising the town, the Board adjourned.

THE BABY.

Another little wave,
Upon the sea of life;
Another soul to save,
Amid its toil and strife.

Two more little feet,
To walk the dusty road;
To choose where two paths meet,
The narrow and the broad.

Two more little hands,
To work for good or ill;
Two more little eyes,
Another little will.

Another heart to love,
Receiving love again;
And so the baby came,
A thing of joy and pain.

How joyously the little soul is received in the household. Every possible precaution is taken regarding its comfort and welfare. Mother, father, brothers and sisters are united in one common effort—to make baby happy. Notwithstanding all these well directed efforts, mothers especially lose sight of one very important and vital question, viz the proper and healthful nourishment of the little body committed to their care and keeping. It may be, that mother is feverish, from sickness and knows she is not in a condition to nurse her loved one. Then arises the question as to what food will be best for baby. Some will resort to cow's milk, as the best substitute for the mother's milk. In large cities and towns during the warm months, it is almost impossible to procure cow's milk of proper quality for the weak digestive organs of the baby. In these emergencies, "Lactated Food" comes to the rescue as the great substitute for the mother's milk. The great disideratum is found in "Lactated Food," as climatic changes cannot effect its wonderful properties. It causes the baby to grow in bone, muscle and fat; allays peevishness and unrest, and fits it for the struggle of youth.

Mothers, try it; your physicians will recommend it as the best.

DIED IN IOWA.

Obituary of Mr. Wm. Weir, Brother of Mr. J. G. Weir, of Otonabee—Born in Peterborough.

The Monticello Express, of Jones County, Iowa, contains the following reference to the death at Cherokee, of Mr. Wm. Weir, a brother of Mr. J. G. Weir, of Otonabee, and a former resident of Peterborough:—

WEIR—At Cherokee, Iowa, June 1st, 1890, WM. WEIR, aged 61 years, 1 month, of typhoid fever.

Last week we announced the serious illness of Mr. Wm. Weir at Cherokee. After learning of his illness his wife hurried to his bed side. She arrived in time to find him in possession of his full mental faculties and to receive his dying requests. After a severe struggle with typhoid fever he breathed his last on the afternoon of June 1st, in the presence of his wife and his two eldest sons. The body was embalmed and the sorrowing widow and her sons started as soon as they could for Monticello with the remains. They reached here Tuesday morning. The afternoon of that day the funeral was held at the residence of the deceased on First-st. A large number of old friends and acquaintances testified their respect and sympathy by their attendance.

Although necessarily away from home a great deal during the past few years attending to his business affairs, Mr. Weir was one of our best known citizens. He was a man of pronounced individuality, industrious always, and persistent to any unusual degree. In early life he amassed a comfortable fortune. He came to Monticello and began anew the battle of life. He was enthusiastic over the subject of artisian wells, and it was mainly through his determined efforts that so many of these wells were sunk in northern Iowa. Among those he put down as a contractor was the famous spouter at Belle Plain which acquired a nation wide notoriety. He was engaged in the prosecution of this business when he was prostrated with his fatal illness at Cherokee.

Wm. Weir was born in Peterborough, Ontario, May 1st 1829, and died in Cherokee, Iowa June 1st 1890, at the age of 61 years, 1 month. He was married to Miss Melissa A. Young, March 26th, 1856 and to them were born seven children, one of these a boy died in infancy and and the six remaining children, three boys and three girls, are here to-day to mourn with a sorrowing for a fond father and husband. There are left three brothers and three sisters to mourn a brother departed, but none of these could reach us for this solemn occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Weir passed their early married life in Ontario. They were members of the Methodist church and were so circumstanced as to be able to give liberally of their means to its support. About 24 years ago they came to Monticello and took up their residence and here have remained. Mr. Weir has been a hard worker, an affectionate father and everybody's friend.

We understand that Mr. Weir has never given up his trust in Christ, in all these years and in his last sickness he expressed himself as ready to die and chose these words as a text for this funeral occasion: Heb. 4: 9. —"There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God."

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N Y.

FARM AND GARDEN.

INTERESTING ITEMS FOR FARMERS AND HORTICULTURISTS.

How to Grow Melons—Points on Cultivation of Strawberries and Other Fruits—Useful Hints on Manures—Waging War on Weeds—Stable Talk—The Care of Blooded Horses.

Soapsuds do good service when used on celery and asparagus.

Young turkeys should be given full liberty now that the weather is warm.

It may not be known to some that mutton hams may be cured and smoked for winter use.

It is claimed that timber endures better when the tree is cut during full leaf and the bark removed at once.

Where clover has not made a good stand it should be plowed in as green manure and the land put in late potatoes.

Some darymen get 365 pounds of butter per cow annually, which is a good big precentage more than the average.

All classes of stock will need a plentiful supply of water on warm days, and shade, also, is needed by some animals.

If weeds are in the grass intended to be cut do not wait for the grass to mature, but mow it, in order to cut down the weeds.

"Use plenty of manure and cultivate well," should be the rule for young raspberry canes. The first year is the time to push them.

The Indian game fowl is now having a "boom" among poultry men, it being considered superior to all others for the table.

Florists generally agree that single dahlias surpass the double forms, and bring about excellent results when treated as annuals.

A California exchange tells that the manufacture of sugar from watermelons at Lodi now amounts to several car loads per year.

If you do not want the sills of your barns and sheds to decay keep the dirt away from them so that they will remain constantly dry.

On warm, still days, when honey is coming in, bees are as gentle as house flies; but as there are times when they might sting, a smoker is a necessity.

Pop-corn is profitable, as the grain and cobs are sold together by weight. A New York farmer raised 100 bushels per acre last season, which he sold at $1 per bushel.

The fence corners must now be looked after as they are the harboring places for weeds and insects, being seedbeds from which the whole farm may be stocked with pests.

Let the sows have what nice hay they will eat each morning before going to pasture, and keep up the grain feed. This will help to supply the nourishment the grass lacks.

Lice will destroy the young chicks during the warm weather unless their quarters are kept very clean. The large lice that prey on the heads and necks are the most destructive.

Purslain will now be a persistent weed to fight. It is very difficult to kill, and the proper time to hoe it is on a very warm, dry day. It should never be allowed to grow high enough to seed.

Professor Maynard entertains a favorable opinion of the practice of girdling vines, to increase the size of the fruit as well as its earliness, a practice which other cultivators have regarded with disfavor.

It is not too late for a garden yet. In fact the warm weather is very favorable to some crops that may be planted now, such as beans and turnips. Late cabbage may be set out as soon as the plants are large enough.

If absorbent material cannot be had place the solid manure where the liquids can flow into it. Dry dirt, however, is excellent for absorbing the liquids of the stable, and assists in preventing loss of ammonia.

If you want to save on your thrashing bill this year cut up from the bundle all the oats that you mean to feed your milk cows. Doing this you can store the oats without having mice or rats work in them.

Hogs will find quite an amount of food on fields that are covered with weeds. If too busy to plow in the weeds keep the hogs at work on them; but the safer method is to keep the weeds down with implements.

According to California fruit-growers rhubarb may be forced by placing kegs or half-barrels over the plants and surrounding the same with heating manure. The tops of the barrels or kegs can be covered with boards or sacks.

If a farmer has a good grass farm, let him make a specialty of hay; if he has a taste for raising corn and roots, let him make them a specialty; if a love for raising horses or cows or making butter, let him put his brain and muscle into these.

Whether the cow will prove unprofitable or not by being given exercise is a question sometimes discussed, but that she will keep in better health and produce milk more wholesome by being allowed to have exercise cannot be denied.

Fruit growing fails largely through lack of intelligence and care. Timely work is of vast importance, and many fruit growers hate exactness and careful study of details. The very questions some fruit growers ask show their ignorance. Adherence to old quack remedies is another sign of ignorance.

Plaster has been found to be an excellent fertilizer for nearly all kinds of crops, and the best results have been obtained when the plaster is mixed with stable manure. It not only preserves the manure while it is in the heap but serves to provide the plants with lime in a soluble form as well as attracting moisture.

Abolish the filthy and wasteful barnyard (except for temporary use) and have in place of it good and regular shelter for stock, with manure cellars and sheds for protecting manure until spread on the field, and that would be another step to relieve farm depression. Careless and wasteful farming is responsible for much of this depression.

Every healthy vine, tree or shrub has a tendency to produce more wood with fruit buds than the roots can properly nourish. Cut back carefully and liberally. A general rule is to shorten new shoots about one-third of the years growth, and to cut out all dead wood. Trim also for shape, and aim to produce round, symmetrical bushes.

The hills of beans, tomatoes and melons will be crusted on the surface unless there are frequent rains, and a hard crust radiates heat instead of permitting it to enter the ground. By working the hills over so as not to disturb the plants the soil will become warmer and plants grow more rapidly.

The lice that infest peach trees in some sections have been found to be very tenacious of life, and growers should not cease work on the trees, with the object of ridding the trees of the pests, by a single application of the remedy, but apply it frequently. Strong soapsuds well sprayed on the trees, is recommended as an excellent remedy.

To renew an old bed of strawberries plow between the rows as soon as the crop is picked, and then level the ground with a cultivator, following with the harrow. The runners will soon cover the space. When well set plow under the old plants and hoe frequently, so as to keep the weeds out. In this manner a crop can be secured on the bed next season.

CARE OF BLOODED HORSES.

Much has been written on this subject, and much more will have to be written before it can be passed as not needing further consideration. To understand why and wherefore a thing should be done or left undone, will result, with kind and well-meaning people, in more rational treatment of the horse in the stable than is the general rule.

Pure air is as essential to the blood as sound food is to the sustenance of the body. Consumed air is vitiated air, the volume of oxygen is reduced, carbonic acid is in excess. The stable is full of organic impurities given off by the skin and lungs. Ventilation is found in all well regulated stables, and draughts are unknown, or ought to be. But these are matters for individual consideration, and are best settled by the builder.

Horses drink once or twice a day, and the horse may be trusted to gauge his thirst, except on occasions of extreme exertion, such as a hunting morning. That all horses are better for being watered before being fed is an admitted fact with all veterinary surgeons and intelligent grooms. Colic and gripes are thus avoided. The explanation given is this: When the stomach is full, water passing rapidly through the stomach, on the way is very apt to carry with it, into the small intestines, undigested corn, and this produces local irritation. There is less danger in watering a horse actively warm than when the system is somewhat lowered. In the latter case there is not sufficient vitality to raise any considerable quantity of cold water up to the temperature of the body: hence so many chills supervene, bowels are deranged, and the coats of such horses look unthrifty, or, as we call it, "stares." Soft water is better for all stock, and on no account let horses drink dirty water; it is most objectionable.

Horses have small stomachs. We divide the corn into three daily portions, the hay into two. We never give hay just prior to work; it distends the stomach and causes the horse inconveniences.

Delicate feeders must be tempted to take their rations, and such should never be fed too strongly at one time. A little linseed boiled to a jelly and mixed with the corn is seductive. Hay damped and salted will tempt others.

Tick beans, a double handful, are a relish in weakly subjects; pale malt for the convalescent or indisposed; damp bran oats are engaging for others. Some feeders give carrots and tares in small quantities. Carrots superinduce diabetes if given in excessive quantities. The peculiar habits of horses demand the attention of all horseowners and grooms. A sufficiency of flesh is all that is required, and not "hog fat," or "beastly fat," as some phrase it.

Clover, vetches and trifolium are laxative and cooling, and excellent for the invalid horse or the youngster. They should be given sparingly, at the early part of the season. Green forage should never be given to horses in fast work except on Saturday nights.

Good grooming is demanded under stable management and in fast work. The brush, as a rule, should follow the direction of the hair except when dirt and sweat are caked into the coat; then you require to go against the lie of the coat—the set of the coat. Good grooming shortens the coat, gives a good gloss and develops physical force. When a good gloss is present we know the effects of the body—dirt, stall sweat—have been removed by friction and that the sweat and oil glands have been stimulated. Of course warmth shortens a coat, and moderate warmth in a stable, say 60 degrees, is desirable. A hot stable is contrary to all sound practice and renders bronchial attacks imminent. Horses should always be groomed after exercise, and, if washed, should be thoroughly dried. Washing horses, except as a refresher in very hot weather, is bad; it makes the coat harsh. Of course mud is usually removed, for the sake of expedition, by water, but unless well dried after it, grease, cracked heels, mud fever, etc., are sure to set up.

After washing feet and legs, and drying them, the legs should be neatly bandaged. Nostrils are, of course, sponged out twice a day, the dock likewise. White legs must be treated to soap and water. Good grooming, feeding and exercise—i. e., stable management—will put any horse into working condition and keep him there, with the occasional use of an aperient or diuretic ball, as occasion may demand.—Ex.

Fatal Accident at Blyth.

BLYTH, June 17.—An accident occurred here this evening by which Mr. Donald Calder was almost instantly killed. Nobody knows how it happened exactly. He was seen going towards one of the hotel sheds in which he had his team and in about five minutes afterwards the team came out running away and he was found a few minutes later lying unconscious with his skull fractured.

London Lancet strongly recommends "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice as an absolutely pure and delicious hot weather drink.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

WILL RENEW THE SYSTEM SARSAPARILLA

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

Dry Goods News at
TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5¼ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

An Englishman Offers Louisiana 1¼ Millions Annually for Lottery Privileges.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 18.—When the House met to-day the Speaker received from Isidore Newman, president of the New Orleans Stock Exchange, a proposition from Benjamin Newgass of London, Eng., offering $1,250,000 yearly for the same lottery privilege applied for by John A. Morris (Louisiana State Lottery), with the additional tender of security for the payment of the amount annually to the state.

FIRED BY LIGHTNING.

A Ton of Powder and Dualine Exploded at Black Lake, Que.

SHERBROOKE, June 18.—At Black Lake, Que., this afternoon the lightning struck the powder building of the Ango-Canadian asbestos mine, set fire to it, resulting in the explosion of about 1800 pounds of powder and about 30 cases of dualine. The shock was very severe and heavy and caused more or less damage to about 50 buildings by shattering windows and doors. Loss estimated at $40,000. One man was injured.

HALIFAX, June 18.—The American Hotel at Wolfville was struck by lightning this forenoon and partly wrecked. The house was crowded with guests, but no one was injured though the lightning entered every room in the house.

Sunol's 2.04 4-5 Gait.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 18.—Robert Bonner and party visited the race track this morning and Mr. Bonner's last great acquisition, Sunol, was driven out by Marvin and put through a speeding. The mare trotted a quarter in 31 1-5, which is a 2.04 4-5 gait. This wonderful flight of speed greatly delighted Mr. Bonner, who has not seen his mare since he purchased her last fall in California.

The Last of the St. George Cases.

TORONTO, June 19.—The last of the suits arising out of the St. George accident, that of Bricklayer J. C. Hyslop of Goderich, was settled yesterday and Grand Trunk Railway solicitors Bell and Pope returned to Belleville last night. Hyslop sued for $15,000 and the company offered $2300. A compromise was effected at $3500.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

A VARIETY OF OPINIONS ON THE AFRICAN AGREEMENT.

Gen. Wolseley's Probable Successor—His Lordship May B turn as a Chief of Staff—The Newfoundland Difficulty—More Cholera Victims.

LONDON, June 18.—Various reports are in circulation as to Lord Wolseley's successor in the post of Adjutant-General. It is most probable the appointment will be that of Gen. George Harman, who shortly vacates the Militia Secretaryship. He was a little the senior of Sir Redvers Buller in service and considerably so in years, and Sir Redverse can very well wait for Harman's shoes. There may be a surprise in store for the service with regard to Wolseley, whose present withdrawal from the Horse Guards may be his return in an entirely new character, a chief of staff.

It is not improbable that Newfoundland's difficulty may be arranged by the cession of a small and unhealthy settlement on the west coast of Africa to France, in exchange for the surrender of all French rights in Newfoundland.

After all the persuasive Pond has succeeded in inducing Sir Morell Mackenzie to lecture next October in some of the principal cities in America. Colonel Pond offered £100 a lecture for as many lectures as Sir Morrell liked to give up to thirty, but the eminent specialist consented to give fifteen, and these are to be at the rate of £130 a lecture. In other words he will receive about £2000 for fifteen lectures. I believe this is the highest remuneration which has ever been given for lectures. Canon Farrar, who has been considered to be very successful, received £40 a lecture. Stanley, who will follow Sir Morell in the middle of November, will, I suppose, cap the doctor as regards fees.

The East African Settlement.

LONDON, June 18.—The St. James Gazette says: The agreement is a bad bargain. It will be the duty of Parliament to reject the bill providing for the surrender of Heligoland to Germany.

The Globe says England gains far more than she gives away.

Salisbury's Surrender.

PARIS, June 18.—The Temps says: "Lord Salisbury has carried his desire to please Germany to the utmost limit. When we think of all the glorious memories connecting equatorial Africa with the history of English explorers and when we consider how recent are Germany's claims there and the danger in cutting in two the English possessions, we can only conclude that Lord Salisbury has very powerful reasons for making such large concessions. We vainly seek to discover what concessions Germany has made which could explain Lord Salisbury's generosity.

German Opinion.

BERLIN, June 18.—The Deutsches Tagblatt, commenting on the East African agreement says it could not have believed that Germany would relinquish its claim to such a vast territory.

The Berlin Post thinks the Government has only renounced claims of a doubtful nature. It says: "The principal point of the agreement is that the respective possessions of England and Germany are now clearly defined."

No Complaints Received.

PARIS, June 18.—It is officially announced that the agreement relative to the Newfoundland lobster fisheries is being loyally observed by the French fishermen and that no complaints have been received.

The Paris Bourse Depressed.

PARIS, June 18.—The bourse was depressed to-day owing to fears that the cholera will spread and doubt as to the amount of the French loan.

The Radicals Furious.

LONDON, June 18.—Mr. Morley to-day said that the agreement with Germany was equitable and the front bench of the Opposition would not oppose it. The Radicals are furious.

Cholera's Victims.

MADRID, June 18.—There have been five more deaths from cholera at Pueblo de Rugata. The disease is generally decreasing in Valencia.

The Governess Loses.

LONDON, June 18.—The jury in the case of Miss Weldemann against Robert Horace Walpole for breach of promise of marriage to-day disagreed. This was the second trial.

Germany's Insufficient Income.

BERLIN, June 18.—In the Reichstag to-day Baron Maltzahn, Secretary of the Treasury, pointed out the necessity for creating fresh sources of revenue. He said it was impossible to reduce the duties on grain. The customs duties increased 45,000,000 marks would help to cover the 60,000,000 marks of increased expenditures which the session's credits demanded.

A SILVER BOOM.

Port Arthur Prospectors Excited by a Big Strike of Ore.

PORT ARTHUR, June 18.—A wonderful bonanza has been struck at the celebrated Badger mine, owned by Milwaukee people, and situated near Port Arthur. It was from this property that over $250,000 in silver was shipped during the last 12 months. Superintendent Shear, feeling satisfied that the vein on which they were working was not the only one on the location, commenced prospecting, and two weeks ago struck a new run, some 330 feet north of the other. This has been traced for nearly 2000 feet. A shaft was commenced, and on Saturday last, after sinking 14 feet, a vein 4 feet wide was struck with an 18-inch pay-streak of native silver, sulphide of silver, argentiferous galena and zinc blende, which averaged 1757 ounces of silver per ton. The Badger people are jubilant over their prospects, and have purchased the adjoining property, known as section 96 T, 160 acres, or Porcupine mine, for $60,000 cash.

An Unnatural Father.

ST. CATHARINES, June 18.—Alfred Lossing of North Grimsby is charged with unnatural conduct toward his three daughters aged respectively 18, 16 and 13. The eldest girl says that the inception of the crime dates back to her thirteenth year and that when she was 16 her father used a sharp instrument to prevent her condition from revealing his guilt. The details of the case are revolting and unfit for publication in any decent paper. Lossing's arrest was ordered by the Attorney-General although it is doubtful if he can be punished, as the offence of which he is guilty did not become a crime until after the passage at last session of Sir John Thompson's criminal law amendment.

A $10,000 Blaze at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 18.—Fire in the Howard pulp factory at 191 Wellington-street this afternoon caused a loss of $10,000, covered by insurance. James Gibbon jumped from a window and fractured a leg.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

A Deliverance on the Equal Rights Question—Church Statistics.

OTTAWA, June 18.—First of all at the General Assembly this morning attention was given to the loyal addresses to be submitted to the Queen and Governor-General.

Leave was granted to Rev. Messrs. Christie, Johnson, Crombie, A. Currie, D. Gordon, George Bremner, R. Wallace, A. W. Waddell, A. A. McLelland, William Meikle and Drummond to retire from the active duties of the ministry with permission to become participants in the aged and infirm ministers' fund. The application of Rev. Alex. Ross for retirement was granted, but his name was not allowed on the fund. That of Rev. Wm. Millican was not granted. Rev. Andrew Wilson was permitted to retire and his case was remitted for consideration to the Committee on the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund as to his becoming an annuitant, with instructions to report to the next assembly. This last finding in Mr. Wilson's case was arrived at by vote, but a great many members recorded their dissent.

The Assembly has been desirous of appointing a salaried secretary to aid in the growing department of the church's work in the foreign field and to-day instructed the Foreign Mission Committees to correspond with one of the Trinidad missionaries, Rev. Mr. Morton, hoping that he may be induced to accept the new appointment a year from this date.

The statistics of the church were submitted to the Assembly to-day by Dr. Torrance and ratified. The Presbyterian Church in Canada has 1920 churches with 454,207 sittings. The number of pastoral charges is 795 with 385 mission stations. The church pays stipends amounting to $777,199. Presbyterians paid last year for all purposes on an average of $34.72 per family and $13 per communicant.

The deceased wife's sister question was very nearly allowed to engage the excited attention of the Assembly again on a resolution of interpretation upon last year's finding being submitted to the house. Fortunately, however, this subject along with an application from a minister who married the sister of his deceased wife to be received into the Presbyterian Church, were thrown over for a year.

A lengthy discussion was held upon a general deliverance submitted by the Committee on Temperance on the temperance question. Objection was taken to this deliverance by Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and Justice Taylor, in the form of an amendment, which was voted down by 128 to 84.

Principal Grant proposed the omission of the deliverance, but was overborne by an adverse vote of 27 to 149.

Again Mr. Macdonnell, seconded by Dr. Macdonald of Hamilton, moved the striking out of a sentence which declared that the traffic in liquor was contrary to the Word of God. By a vote of 42 to 156 this was denied.

The subject of equal rights was brought before the Assembly by a committee appointed in Toronto last year on the defence of civil and religious rights. The committee suggested the following as some of the objects the church ought to aim at furthering:

1. The complete separation of church and state each to be independent in its own sphere—a free church in a free state—the mutual rights of each to be respected, but neither to invade the prerogative of the other.

2. The abolition of all grants from the public exchequer for ecclesiastical or sectarian purposes.

3. The abolition of compulsory tithes and other ecclesiastical dues.

4. The providing of elementary education by the state, and while recognizing the propriety of giving instruction in the truths held in common by Christians, in no case shall money, raised by taxation, be devoted to the propagation of peculiar religious dogmas or denominational views.

5. The reorganization of the Council of Public Instruction in the Province of Quebec in such a manner as to secure the educational rights of the minority.

6. The abrogation of the offensive clauses in the order of precedence for the Dominion which recognize certain ecclesiastics and utterly ignore the great Protestant churches which represent the majority of the people of Canada.

The Assembly endorsed the first three and was discussing No. 4 when interrupted by the hour of adjournment.

HIS LAST GIFT.

Henry Smith's Present and Parting Injunction to His Son.

LONDON, Ont., June 18.—Accompanying a small book of a religious character, Henry Smith sent this letter to his son shortly before his execution:

LONDON, Ont., June 18, 1890.

William Henry Smith:

DEAR SON: This is from your father who is soon to pass from this vale of tears, and who presents you this little book as a memento of his love for you. I pray you will keep it for my sake, and my prayer to God is to give you all needed grace by the Holy Spirit to lead such a life as you may wish you had done when you come to die, and that you will be prepared to meet me in heaven. Remember your dear mother. Always remember that life is very uncertain and that none of us know the day nor the hour when God shall call us home. The injunction to us all is, "Be ye also ready." My dear son pray for me. Be a good boy and God will bless you and give you all needed grace. I am much pleased to tell you that I have found grace and peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, who shed His blood on Calvary for us poor sinners. He invites us all to come to Him without money and without price. Finally, my heart's desire and prayer to God is that you will meet me in heaven.

N.B.—Your mother, Lucy Jackson, was born on March 20, 1850, at Budden-Wood, Nottinghamshire, Eng., and I was born on March 25, 1854, at Bass Church, Shropshire, Eng.

A CAROLINA WRECK.

Brakes and Steam Couldn't Hold This Train Back—Three Men Killed.

ASHEVILLE, N.C., June 18.—Perhaps the most destructive wreck in the history of the Western North Carolina Railroad occurred at Melrose station at the southern side of Saluda Mountain, about 32 miles from this city, on the Asheville & Spartanburg division last night.

Engineers Smyra and Turnstall and Fireman Taylor were killed. The injured were: Flagman G. Bocock and Conductor Ricketts, two colored brakemen named Foster and Greenlee; painful but not dangerous wounds.

From the apex of Saluda Mountain to Melrose, the scene of the accident, a distance of more than three miles, there is a fall of fully 600 feet. This fact has made the railroad authorities especially careful at this point and an engine is kept constantly there to help all trains up and down the mountain. The track was very wet last night when a coal train started down, and soon after beginning the descent it became evident that the twelve loaded cars were too much for both engines to hold with all brakes down. The speed gradually quickened under the heavy pressure until a speed of 75 miles an hour was reached, when the tracks spread and the entire train plunged headlong down the mountain with a terrible crash, burying beneath the broken cars, cross ties and earth the brave fellows who had stood to their posts.

The loss to the company in engines and cars alone will reach $75,000.

The increase of duty on imported pork produce justifies greater attention being paid to the hog. Raise more porkers and get the quality as good as possible.

THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

REPORT OF THE U.S. SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Many Proposed Changes, Chiefly Reductions—The Sawn Lumber Duty Lessened to $1 per M.—How the Measure Affects Some Canadian Natural Products.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In the Senate today Mr. Morrill, from the Committee on Finance, reported back the House Tariff bill with the proposed amendments. He said it was not expected that it would be brought up for consideration earlier than a week from next Monday. Following are the principal changes made by the Senate Committee in the bill:

The glassware classifications are changed and there is a large general reduction.

Steel rails are reduced from $13.44 to $11.20 per ton.

Mica and crude nickel are put on the free list.

Sawed boards $1 per 1000 feet instead of $1.50.

No bounty is to be given for less than 500 pounds of sugar annually and sugar between 13 and 16 Dutch standard must pay a duty of 3-10 cents per pound. Sugars above 16 pay 6-10 instead of 4-10 per pound.

Slight reductions are made in many items in the agricultural schedule and exporters of meats are not allowed rebate on salt used in curing meats.

Natural effervescing mineral waters are made free.

The duties on cotton manufactures are reduced all through the schedule; also in the flax, hemp and jute schedule.

Only slight changes are made in wool, the principal one being to correct a typographical error that the House refused to correct.

The bounty for silk and silk cocoons raised and reeled in the United States is stricken out.

All buttons except agate, pearl and shell are made dutiable as manufactures of the material of which they are composed—a large reduction.

Works of art are taken from the free list and made dutiable at 30 per cent. ad valorem.

The limitation of $500 as the value of wearing apparel a person may bring into the United States is stricken out.

There are a number of reductions in the chemical schedules and a few increases.

The duty on opium is increased from $10 per pound to $12.

In the earthenware and glassware schedule the following changes were made: Decorated china 55 per cent. ad valorem, reduced from 60 per cent. Plain white china 50 per cent. ad valorem, reduced from 55 per cent. Earthen stone and crockeryware, not specially enumerated or provided for in this act, 50 per cent. ad valorem, reduced from 55 per cent. and 60 per cent. according to class. Glass and glassware, not otherwise enumerated, which in the House bill are covered by six separate paragraphs, are consolidated into one paragraph and include mirrors (small) and lenses wholly or partly manufactured and are made to pay a duty of 45 per cent. ad val. This is in the nature of a large general reduction. Unpolished cylinder, crown and common window glass is reduced ¼ of a cent per pound.

HARRISON PUTS OUT A FEELER.

BROOKLYN, June 18.—A Washington special to The Standard-Union says: A positive declaration was made to-day by President Harrison that he will not be a candidate for renomination under any circumstances. The President, it appears, made up his mind some time ago not to seek the presidential nomination again. He did not think it necessary to announce the fact, although it was assumed by thousands of party men that in the natural course of things he would be a candidate for a second term. Indeed the announcement was made to-day in the most casual way.

The President was in conversation with an intimate friend at the White House and the talk turned on the Silver Bill. Incidentally national politics was mentioned, and the President expressed himself quite freely. He said, among other things, that he had made up his mind not to be a candidate for renomination, and that at the end of his present term he intended to settle in Indianapolis again and resume the practice of the law.

The President's declaration, made as it was without reserve, was soon in wide circulation, and afforded a topic for discussion that in interest subordinated all other topics for the time.

ELECTION RECOUNTS.

Mr. George's (Con.) Majority in North Bruce Found to be 17.

WALKERTON, June 18.—A recount in the North Bruce election concluded here to-day before Judge Kingsmill makes the majority of Mr. John George (Con.) 17 instead of 19, as given by the returning officer.

Hudson's Narrow Majority.

BELLEVILLE, June 18.—Hudson's (Con.) majority in East Hastings has been reduced to 9 with one poll to recount, which will be completed to-morrow.

Grand Trunk Earnings.

MONTREAL, June 18.—The earnings of the Grand Trunk Railway for the week ending June 14 were:

A Farcical Fine.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Jay Gould has been fined $100 by Judge Fitzgerald for not answering to a summons to act as a petit juror.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." —J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." —E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier." —W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's medicines continue to be the standard remedies in spite of all competition." —T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1890.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE PRESIDENT.

At the annual meeting of the Bank of Commerce at Toronto on Tuesday Mr. Geo. A. Cox was elected to the honorable and responsible position of President, upon the retirement of Mr. H. W. Darling. Mr. Cox was long a resident of Peterborough and still has important business connections with this town, and this striking evidence of the position to which he has attained in the confidence and respect of the business community of Toronto was learned of here with pleasure. Mr. Cox first became a director of the Bank of Commerce in 1882, and in 1887 he was elected Vice-President, while now, four years after becoming a director, he has been selected for the highest office in this institution, one of the great banking institutions of the country. Such a record is in keeping with his record in connection with other business enterprises, for it is very seldom that such uniform and great success attends any man as Mr. Cox has achieved in railway, insurance, real estate and other businesses, owing to his keen perception, energy and business tact. No doubt he will be as successful in the responsible position to which he has been elected as he has been in other capacities and the affairs of the bank will prosper in his hands.

YOUNGS' POINT.

Reported Discovery of Silver—A Ministerial Call—Drives of Logs—Fishing.

Correspondence of the Review.

Got a Call.—The many friends of the Rev. N. Clarke, late of Lakefield Presbyterian church, will be glad to learn that he has received a call from a town in the State of Iowa, U.S. His admirers in this section wish him every success, and long may he be spared to preach the Gospel in the country he has gone to.

Silver Mine.—There is considerable talk going on here of late about a silver mine being found about two miles north from here. If so, then up springs Youngs' Point to be a town not to be sneezed at. Will give more particulars later on.

Fishing.—On Monday last was the advent for the bass and maskinonge fishing; consequently great numbers from Peterborough and elsewhere found their way as far as this place and had some very enjoyable sport. Some trolled and others took the rod and line. Mr. McFarlane, hotelkeeper, had a good share of the anglers as guests, and so had our old friend James E. Kearney, of the Lakeview house. Both he and Mac. know all the good fishing grounds around these waters. A party of six gents from Peterborough took home in their rig on Monday night 83 fine bass. This is the place for sport and we have two good hotels to accommodate the travelling public and tourists.

The Steamers.—The steamer Mary Ellen is now running her regular trips for the season, also the Cruiser. Both steamers are in excellent trim for a good summer's work, and from what your correspondent can pick up they will have a good season's work.

The Sawlog Drives.—The Lakefield Lumber Co. have had four large drives pass through here within the last ten days to their mills at Lakefield. The foremen are to be congratulated for the quiet and orderly way the men under their charge conducted themselves when here; also the hotelkeepers deserve praise by doing their best to keep things orderly.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

When Does Old Age Begin?

"It is at three score years and ten," says one. "No, it is when one grows tired of life," says another. "It is when the faculties begin to fail," says a third. It is certainly true that old age begins sooner in some than in others, and it shows itself first where ill-health and bodily infirmities have made life a burden grievous to be borne. Lord Byron was a melancholy example of those who become old almost in youth. When thirty-six years of age, he wrote.

"My days are in the yellow leaf.
The flowers and fruits of love have gone;
The worm and canker of the grave
Are mine alone."

This odd feeling comes oftenest from a weakened nervous system. The various pains, rheumatic or otherwise, which aged people complain of and which materially disturb their comfort, result from disordered nerves. Old people, and many who are not old, are beset with constipation, flatulence, dizziness, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia. They grow weaker as the months go by. But one thing as yet has been discovered which cures the ills of old age, and that is Paine's Celery Compound. It renews vitality, aids digestion, gives restful sleep, drives out aches and pains, and in many instances has proved a veritable fountain of youth. It has added years of peace, free from the infirmities of old age, to thousands of lives.

During this changeable weather which causes so much sickness, all will find health and comfort in Paine's Celery Compound.

There are many, both in Canada and the United States, who know the need of this medicine in the spring, and who by its use renew the health and strength of youth. But there are others who have not used it, and if you are one of those, we most earnestly recommend a trial. It will soon prove its great worth.

A Nasal Injector free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. For sale by Geo. A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

AN ABUNDANT HARVEST.

What is the Present Outlook for the Farmers of Canada.

Ontario has every prospect of an abundant harvest. The crop reports from every section of the province are most encouraging. With the exception of fall wheat, which has been injured to some extent, especially in low grounds, and in a few sections was winter-killed and plowed in, all grains promise a good yield, and many localities report that never before at this season of the year was the outlook for the farmers so encouraging. Spring wheat, barley, oats and peas are above the average in acreage and condition. Hay will be an exceptionally large yield. Roots of all kinds are in fine shape. Corn planting is backward in some counties, but the acreage will be large when it is all in. Fruit of all kinds in the western peninsula will be abundant. In the Niagara peninsula plums and cherries will be a light crop, peaches fair and apples a large crop. Despite the damage done in some counties by violent storms the outlook is on the whole for a year of great agricultural prosperity.

Quebec sends out reports also of an encouraging nature. The spring has been somewhat backward, but the outlook in general is hopeful.

Manitoba correspondents can hardly find words to express the magnificent hopes of the Prairie Province. Unless some unexpected contingency occurs the Northwest has in store for it a year of unexampled prosperity.

Such in brief is the agricultural prospect summarized from several hundred special reports by telegraph yesterday. Unless all signs fail it will be a prosperous year for the Canadian farmer and therefore for the merchant, the manufacturer, the professional man and the artisan.

Current Farm Notes.

When flies swarm around the stable or hog-pen it is a sure sign that cleaning is necessary.

It is a mistake to suppose that peas, beans and corn should be covered heavily. A slight covering is better.

Keep the land intended for turnips well stirred with the cultivator so as to kill the weeds before the seed goes in.

Many animals appear sick and refuse food, when the cause may be due to the toothache. They often suffer in that respect.

Until farmers discard the feeding of their hogs with sour, rotten swill, and resort to clover and more wholesome food, their herds will be affected with disease.

A Rhode Island farmer raises veal calves to weigh 120 pounds when four weeks old by allowing them warmed skim-milk and oatmeal gruel. Such calves should pay well.

One way to save transportation is to raise everything needed than can be grown on a farm. There are many kinds of fruit and vegetables that are seldom grown by farmers.

The more frequently the grass is cut the the greater the tax on the land. Use plenty of manure on all land intended for grass next season. First kill out the weeds by cultivating the land with a crop requiring the use of the cultivator.

Manure often contains seeds that sprout. When spreading manure work it into the soil well, and allow time for the seeds to germinate. Then go over the field with a harrow from time to time until ready to seed in the crop desired.

Sweet potatoes brought good prices last year, the wet wether being unfavorable to such a crop. This season has been excellent for setting out plants, and a large crop will be the result, unless very dry weather or disease prevents later in the season.

Of the new varieties of cantaloupe the Emerald gem is one of the best. It is of medium size, and drops away from the vine as soon as ripe. Though not as attractive in appearance as some varieties, it is unexcelled for uniformity of fruit and quality of flesh.

Breeding from immature stock every year will sooner or later tend to deterioration. It is better to use animals in their prime than to replace them with young stock. If a change is desired reserve the younger stock until each is matured and fully developed.

Old strawberry beds that have borne well soon begin to give place to weeds, and the ground should be plowed as soon as the crop is harvested, and planted to late potatoes or Hungarian grass, which destroys the weeds and cleans the ground for next season.

Melons should be well hoed and cultivated until they begin to run. The very young plants may be hoed with advantage, but after that time all cultivation should be done without disturbing the hills. Melon-growers hoe in front of the vines, not among them, as they soon cover the ground.

The milk from cows fed on wholesome grain and good pasturage is of better quality for food than that from stall-fed animals that are permitted to eat refuse from granaries and factories without regard to breed. Choice breeds to produce a choice article must be provided with food of the best quality for that purpose.

The bush lima bean that has been introduced quite extensively is of the Sieva family and is rather small in size. It requires a longer season than we have in this latitude to permit it to fully mature its crop, though it will afford a supply for use. A large bush lima is now being introduced, but the seed is scarce as yet. Next season it will be given a trial in many sections.

Lime on the Pastures.

In a letter from a subscriber he says: "My pastures need fertilizing. I must do something or keep less stock. What do you think of lime as a top dressing?" It is often used as a top dressing, we would say, and is usually one of the cheapest and best. It aids the decomposition of vegetable and mineral matters in the soil. It increases the temperature of cold, wet lands. It is destructive of coarse herbage that may be in the pastures, and the common result of its application is to cause clover and other grasses to come in thicker. Mr. Flint, in his work on grasses, says that lime produces a more marked effect on the grasses than on any other crop. It seems, very frequently, to increase the nutritive quality of the grasses, as well as to increase their quantity, by assisting them to elaborate the juices, the albuminous substances, and the sugar in which their value as food for stock largely consists. But he wisely suggests that lime can never supply the place of other manures. There are properties which it cannot supply, which plaster can; others which it cannot supply bones can; and others which it cannot supply, like ashes, and manures that contain salts. There are situations, however, in which it is invaluable. On reclaimed meadow lands, after thorough draining, and a covering of three or four inches of gravel, a top dressing of lime has a beneficial effect. Crops of grass of two or three tons to the acre have been taken after such a dressing of lime. In many cases the first crop will repay the expense of bringing such land into cultivation. In these situations, then, as well as on many pastures, it may be called one of the most useful applications that can be made. Such lands will bear an abundant supply of lime without exhaustion. But on poor sandy soil it should never be used. It will soon exhaust and may render them completely barren. When it meets with clay in lands to which it is applied, it forms a kind of marl, and greatly improves the texture of the soil; but, when it comes in contact with sand, it forms rather a sort of mortar. Hence it is thought to be injurious on sandy soils.

Revenge Is Sweet.

A CANADIAN MILLIONAIRE.

George A. Cox's Steady Climb to Position and Affluence.

TORONTO, June 19.—Mr. George A. Cox, the newly elected president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was born in Colborne, Northumberland County, Ontario, just 50 years ago. His career is full of encouragement to every Canadian youth. At the age of 18 he went to Peterboro as a telegraph and express agent, at 21 he began to act as agent for the Canada Life and gradually assumed control of the entire business east and north of Toronto. At 31 he became mayor of Peterboro to which office he was thrice elected. In 1878 Mr. Cox assumed the Presidency of the Midland Railway and raised its first mortgage bonds from 17 to par. In 1883 he organized the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company. Mr. Cox came to this city in 1888. Besides being president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, he is vice-president of the Western Assurance Company and the Toronto Real Estate and Investment Company and a director and member of the investment committee of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation. He is also a member of the Senate of the University of Toronto and bursar of Victoria University. Mr. Cox, whose career has been an uninterrupted series of successes, has amassed a fortune estimated at a million and a half of dollars.

Another Sketch of his Successes.

The Toronto Mail of Wednesday contains the following:—Mr. George A. Cox, who was yesterday elected president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was born of English parents in Colborne, Northumberland county, Ontario, in 1840. He is just 50 years of age. At the age of eighteen he went to Peterborough as agent for the Montreal Telegraph Company and the American Express Company. In 1861 he began to act as agent for the Canada Life Assurance Company, at first merely as agent for the town of Peterborough, but his great executive ability and capacity for organization being recognized, he gradually controlled the entire business of Ontario east and north of Toronto, and, it is universally admitted, contributed very largely indeed to the splendid success of that company. From this time on his business career was one series of successes. His exceptional executive qualities made him eminently fitted to assume the various positions of responsibility and management entrusted to him from time to time.

Nor was he qualified only to hold offices requiring exceptional business tact and application, but was possessed of those special qualities that marked him as a civic administrator and led to his election as Mayor of Peterborough in 1871. This office he held with great success, and was re-elected in 1872 3.

In 1878, when the Midland railway was in desperate financial straits, its first mortgage bonds selling at only 17 to 18 cents on the dollar, Mr. Cox was induced to assume the presidency and general management of the road, and for four or five years devoted his energies to the extrication of the road from its difficulties, with such creditable manipulation that in 1883 he succeeded in leasing the road to the Grand Trunk at a rental equal to 5 per cent. on the bonds, which are now worth about 112.

In 1883 he organized the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, which company last year purchased the assets of the Peterborough Real Estate and Investment Company, and now has a subscribed capital of $2,000,000, with a paid up capital and surplus of over $1,000,000. His large financial connections caused him to come to Toronto to reside in 1887, and he is already well-known as one of Toronto's prominent citizens.

Besides being president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, he is vice-president of the Western Assurance Company and the Toronto Real Estate and Investment Company and a director and member of the investment committee of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation. He is also a member of the Senate of the University of Toronto and bursar of Victoria University.

While a shrewd, far-seeing business man, who has by his own skill and exertion amassed a fortune of a million and a half of dollars, Mr. Cox is broad and liberal minded, and one of the most highly esteemed citizens. In 1886 Mr. Cox became a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and in 1887 was elected to the vice-presidency, from which he has risen to the foremost position in the management of that institution.

By Special Request.

Dr. Jebb, the optical specialist, who lately visited Peterborough, will again be at W. A. Sanderson's jewelery store from Tuesday, 24th June, till 28th only. Free examination of the eyes and sight tested free. 1d143-1w25

Taken While Working.

Mr. R. M. Roy attended the Oddfellows picnic at Jacob's Island on Tuesday and had his camera along with him. As a result he succeeded in securing several good views during the day, which are of a very interesting character. He snatched, by the instantaneous process, views of the tug of war teams, both before they began their best of strength and while they were in the throes of the struggle. The views are ideals of the photographic art and are worth seeing, especially by those who were interested in the struggle. A camping scene which he secured is also a good one.

The Peterborough Rangers in Toronto.

The commanding officer of the 57th Battalion will, probably this evening, bring the question of the trip to Toronto before the men once more, as many of them have expressed a desire to remain in the city for two days. If the men are willing to run the risk of being satisfied with the catering provided, and will sleep in the Exhibition buildings, covered only with glory and a military overcoat, the chances are the battalion will stay two days. There is no reason why this should not be done with comfort, as the nights in July are generally hot enough to make heavy blankets an unwished for luxury.

Shiloh's Cure will immediately relieve Croups Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. For sale by Geo. A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

A Tea Table Talk.

The W.C.T.U. is to make a move this evening in the direction of agitating for scientific temperance instruction in the schools. The teachers of the different schools and the members of the Board of Education have been invited to meet in the rooms this evening at six o'clock and discuss the question over a cup of tea.

Our Schools.

Mr. J. H. Long, M.A., Principal of the Collegiate Institute, has sent in his resignation. We understand Mr. Long has been appointed to the pastorate of a Unitarian church at Spokane Falls, Dakota. Five of the teachers in the junior departments of the public schools are resigning to attend the Model Schools and thus secure the required legal qualification for teaching.

Awaiting Sentence.

At Napanee the three tramps who were arrested for carrying burglars tools and upon whom was found a portion of the stolen jewellery from Paterson's store at Lakefield, came up for trial yesterday. Two of them, Ed. Burritt and Ed. Malvern pleaded guilty, but the third, George Bermett, pleaded not guilty. The latter was convicted, however, and the three remanded to receive sentence on Monday next.

Coming to Peterborough.

Peterborough will presently have an accession to the ranks of business men in Mr. Rich. T. Winch, of Cobourg, who has decided to come here at an early date. It is understood that Mr. Winch will enter into business with his brother, Mr. H. Winch, and that the premises about completed in the new market house will be occupied as soon as ready. The firm propose to enlarge the borders—so to speak—of the trade in meats and the butchering business. Mr. Winch will be welcomed heartily and his well known personal qualities will find appreciation.

Clean Your Premises.

Mrs. J. Morancy, Mrs. D. Bussette, Mr. Aaron Cox (as agent of the Canada Central Real Est. Co.) and Mrs G. Clarke were summoned before the Magistrate this morning charged with keeping unclean premises, contrary to the provisions of the health Act. The uncleanliness complained of consisted of an unclean closet in a terrace which is owned by the Real Estate Co. Three of the houses are occupied and one is vacant and there seems to have been some difficulty among the three tenants and the company as to who should clean the closet. The Magistrate gave the parties a week in which to come to some agreement and remove the nuisance.

Summer Tours.

Those puzzling over the important question of where to go for their summer holiday, will find the little volume "Summer Tours," issued by the General Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a most useful adviser. It describes a delightful variety of tours by rail, lake and river, to popular island and sea-coast resorts, to the Rocky Mountains, the Pacific Coast, Alaska, &c., &c., from which attractive long or short trips may be selected to suit the wishes of all tourists. The book is published in pocket form, neatly gotten up and adorned with many handsome illustrations, and may be obtained free upon application to W. R. Callaway, District Passenger Agent, 118 King St. West Toronto, D. McNicoll, General Passenger Agent, Montreal, or T. E. Boddy, Peterborough.

Around the World.

"Messrs. M. J. Mackay, S. G. Ketchum, Ed. E. Hook and Fred S. Crosain, four energetic and adventurous young men of New Westminster, propose to make a tour of the world on bicycles. The trip will be entirely out of the ordinary on account of the new and novel route the party will take. They go from New Westminster to Alaska, thence via the Aleutian Islands, down through Siberia, Russia, Germany, France, Italy, Austria and Greece, across the Mediterranean to Egypt, the Holy Land, China, Japan, Sandwich Islands and South America. They anticipate the tour will take over two or three years, and it is the intention to publish a book of travels on their return. The party will start shortly. Two of the young men mentioned in the above paragraph, which we clipped from an exchange, were formerly employed in the Tribune office."—Calgary, N.W.T., Tribune. Mr. Ketchum is a young man who lived in Peterborough for some time, having been employed on one of the local newspapers.

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

Not only a strong but a pleasing contrast to the too frequent style of play is that of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." There are no heavy villains in it, no murders, no forged wills and no firing of guns. It is simply a pleasing story, full of pathos and sentiment, of a little fellow who becomes a lord and who goes to the home of his grandfather, a cross old earl, to be taken care of and wins his way to his heart. To all who have read Mrs. Burnett's tale the play will come as a pleasant epitome, or like the strains of a half-forgotten melody, while those who have not read the story, if there be any such, will see in the play one of the tenderest little performances ever produced, the story loses nothing in its outlines by being dramatized, and here and there are to be seen touches of tender sentiment and childish simplicity that old theatre goers will find truly refreshing. There could be no pleasanter diversion for those who are wearied of the plays that fill our stage nowadays than to see "Little Lord Fauntleroy." It is as great a treat on the stage as was Mrs. Burnett's novel from the ordinary run of works of fiction—clean and tender and bright. This beautiful play will be presented to us for the first time under the auspices of Mr. T. H. French of the Broadway Theatre and Grand Opera House, New York, on Monday next and is sure to be a distinguished occasion.

The Transient Traders.

A case of some interest to merchants was brought before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning, when Chief Roszel charged Mr. J. W. Dunnett, of Belleville, with being a transient trader and selling goods in Peterborough without a license as required by-law. Mr. Dunnett, who by the way, is an old resident of Peterborough, a few weeks ago purchased the bankrupt stock of M. Sullivan & Co. The statute governing transient traders makes an exception of persons who may be selling out a stock of an insolvent, but it was alleged in this case that Mr. Dunnett had brought in other goods to stock up with and therefore the information was laid against him. At the Police Court this morning Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, of Belleville, appeared for Mr. Dunnett. Evidence was given showing that Mr. Dunnett was not assessed in the town. The defence admitted that new staple goods had been brought in to stock up with, but held that more goods had been sent away than had been brought in. This stocking up, it was held, was customary and necessary in order to run off a bankrupt stock. Mr. O'Flynn's objections were that Mr. Dunnett did not come under the statute as a transient trader but rather came within the exception, that it was not proven that he was a transient trader and that the by-law was ultra vires, because no exceptions were made in it. Mr. R. B. Edwards, town solicitor, met these objections and the Magistrate reserved judgment in the case until Monday morning.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

An Increase of Population—Coming Picnics—A White Robin—Other news.

Correspondence of the Review.

BIRTHS.—We record with pleasure the arrival of baby strangers in the families of Messrs. John Manague, Benjamin Bird and Duncan McPherson. Over thirty births have taken place in this municipality in the past nine months, and the clerk wants to know why they are not registered. Parties neglecting to do this are liable to a heavy fine, and the clerk has departmental instructions to see that every birth is properly registered with him.

'CYCLES.—Good practice is being put in on the new two wheeler—but then is it not inconvenient for Sunday travel.

SYNOD.—Owing to the absence of Rev. Canon Harding, who is attending a meeting of the Synod in Toronto, the services in St. George's were conducted by Dr. Grant on Sunday.

P. S. INSPECTION.—Mr. James C. Brown, I.P.S., is on a tour of inspection of the schools in this district. He gives a good report of the schools he has visited thus far.

NEW TRUSTEE.—At the meeting of ratepayers for S.S. No. 1, Anstruther, on Saturday, 14th inst., Mr. Robert Edgar was unanimously chosen trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. George A. Bullied.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—Reeve Elmhurst is attending his duties at the County Council this week.

PICNICS.—The Presbyterians at Caldwell's purpose having a picnic in their neighborhood in aid of the Sunday school on Wednesday, 25th inst., and extend a cordial invitation to all.

DOMINION DAY.—The Apsley football club intend celebrating the glorious 1st July by a picnic on the grounds. Races, dancing, a match and fun in general are features of the programme.

REMOVAL.—Mr. George Nickel, the Methodist missionary student, has been removed by conference to Picton. We regret for our own sakes that this is so, but trust that the same zealous conscientious discharge of duty and kindly, genial manner that has won for him the respect and esteem of all, will do so for him in his new field of labor. His successor is not yet known to us, the appointee having decided to take a call go torm.

RETURN.—Rumor says that Mr. William Defries has returned from Moosejaw.

RARE AVIS.—Mr. Robt. Hawkes, of Cean-dos, discovered a curious freak of nature in a nest of young robins, one of the nestlings being pure white in color. The eggs were in no way different from other robin eggs and the young one presented all the other appearances of a robin. The curiosity was watched carefully until fully feathered and after leaving the nest was captured and caged, but unfortunately it died. The wings alone were preserved and are before us as we write.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE CLAREMONT DISASTER

DEATH LURKED IN GREEN RIVER'S SWOLLEN WATERS.

Five Men Drowned in What Was Previous to the Recent Floods a Puny Stream—Mr. John Wanless, jr., Inspector of Bridges, One of the Victims.

TORONTO, June 19.—A few miles west of the little village of Claremont was the scene of a terrible railway disaster on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway just before midnight of Tuesday. The accident is to be ascribed only to the late heavy rains, for the extra and conscientious precautions were taken by the officials of the road in looking after the safety of the traveling public. Three miles east of Locust Hill, the station formerly known as Green River, at mileage 24½ east of Toronto, is a culvert crossing Green River and erected at a height of about 30 feet from the water. This Green River is little more than a creek, except when swollen, as it has been of late, by very heavy downpours of rain. The culvert which crosses it is a solid piece of masonry and no suspicion as to its perfect soundness and safety was ever entertained. The foundations, however, were undermined by the heavy rains and the tragedy resulted.

On Tuesday evening it was reported that a culvert some distance below that which gave way was in an unsafe condition. Inspector of Bridges John Wanless, jr., decided to visit this culvert and detailed locomotive No. 198 to visit the place. There were then on board: Mr. Wanless; James Atton, engineer; George Oliver, fireman, J. Moriarty, section foreman; Hiram Lott and David Nighwender, section men.

The engine arrived at the first culvert, which is some distance above the one which the men had intended to inspect, shortly before 11½ p.m. Precisely at 11.26 this culvert must have collapsed, for when the body of the engineer was found his watch was found to have stopped at the minute. All the occupants of the cab perished excepting Nighwender, who escaped unscathed.

Trains and workmen were despatched from Toronto, and during the whole of yesterday work went on without interruption. At an early hour yesterday Inspector Wanless' body was recovered some distance down the creek. At 2½ Engineer Atton's body was recovered. The surroundings at night presented a wild and novel appearance. The trunk of a large tree was set on fire and served to light the workmen in endeavoring to recover the bodies and in the transmission of the passengers from the express train to the special provided to convey them to Toronto.

The only survivor, David Nighwender, seems to be somewhat confused as to the manner of his escape. In one interview he says that he jumped from the engine into the water, and in another statement says that he simply fell from the engine and thus escaped.

Inspector Wanless, whose body was brought to Parkdale yesterday, had been with the company since his boyhood and was regarded as one of their most trustworthy officials. His home was at 36 Melbourne-avenue, this city. He was a married man, as were also Engineer Atton and Fireman Oliver, both of West Toronto. Mr. Wanless' father is still with the company engaged as tie and timber inspector.

The section men live near Locust Hill.

The Montreal express, due to leave the city at 8½ last evening, did not get away until 10½. It went out over the Grand Trunk tracks to Peterboro, where it will take the C.P. line. A Grand Trunk engine drew the train, which was manned by a Grand Trunk crew.

No interruption in traffic is anticipated to-day.

THE RATE WAR.

Chicago & Grand Trunk Slashing Away at the Lake Shore People.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Chicago & Grand Trunk has not given up the fight on dressed beef rates. Private advices from Washington to-day stated that this company had given notice of its intention to adopt a rate of 36 cents per 100 pounds, Chicago to Boston via Montreal, beginning June 20. This is the date on which the 39-cent rate of the other roads becomes effective. As soon as the Lake Shore people received this intelligence they called a special meeting of the Chicago Committee of the Central Traffic Association and announced that they would meet the 36 cent rate of the Chicago & Grand Trunk, taking effect June 26. Immediately after the meeting the Grand Trunk sent a notice to the Inter-state Commerce Association announcing a further reduction in the dressed beef rate to 33 cents, taking effect June 23.

Peter Davis' Last Day.

BELLEVILLE, June 18—Preparations for the execution of Peter Davis are nearly completed. The scaffold has been erected in the jail yard and the sentence will be carried out at about 8 o'clock Friday morning. The prisoner's father visited him last week and his two sisters and brother-in-law took their last farewell of him this morning.

FELL UNDER THE WHEELS.

A Former Torontonian Killed at Hamilton—The Grimes Inquest.

HAMILTON June 18.—William Thompson, a young man who came here from Toronto three or four years ago, had both his legs frightfully mangled last night while trying to board a Grand Trunk train. He died at the hospital at 3½ this morning. Thompson was well known in sporting circles and was the most expert pool player in the city.

The evidence at the Grimes inquest last night showed that the old man's heart was unnaturally enlarged and that any excitement would be likely to prove fatal. The jury will render their verdict Friday night.

A lunatic named Thomas Wilson, a jeweler by trade, escaped from the asylum yesterday afternoon. He is a short, thick-set man about 30 years of age.

The young man Roland who tried to kill himself at Waterdown the other day is still [illegible] in a precarious condition.

Electric Railway as a Sanitary Measure.

Joseph Wetzler, in Scribner's magazine for April says: The rapid extension of the electric street car system which has taken place (especially in this country), naturally leads to the question of the cause thereof. To have gained such pre-eminence it must be able to do not only what other systems can do, but, still more, it must be able to do it at a decreased cost. Again, removal of thousands of horses from the streets of a city, involving, as it does, the doing away with the noise and dirt, is another distinct gain to its residents. But if one goes still further, and contemplates the difference between a stable housing thousands of horses, and an electric-car station of sufficient size to operate a road with the same efficiency, one is at once struck with the advantages on the side of the electric system, which, indeed, are incontrovertible. Instead of a large, ill-smelling building whose odors are wafted for many blocks (making the tenancy of houses within half a mile almost unbearable, and involving a large depreciation of property in the neighborhood), there is a neat substantial building equipped with a steam plant and dynamos, and occupying hardly one-tenth the space required for an equivalent number of horses. Therefore, not only only is there effected a removal of the nuisance attached to a stable, but a large saving in the cost of real estate, and the far greater amount involved in the known depreciation of the surrounding property. Besides this, the stables are of necessity required to be in close proximity to the track, whereas the electric power station, which furnishes current to the car, may be situated a mile from the track in some suitable place, as for instance, beside a river, where, with condensing engines, power may be generated at a minimum of cost.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5¼ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock or hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

THE KINGSTON DRY DOCK.

THE FIRST STONE LAID BY SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

An Immense Crowd Witness the Ceremony—The Minister of Public Works Accompanies the Premier—An Osculatory Episode—A Brilliant Banquet.

KINGSTON, June 19.—To-day the first stone of the dry dock here, the first to be built on the inland lakes, was laid by Sir John A. Macdonald. He was accompanied by Sir Hector Langevin and Lady Macdonald. The gathering numbered about 10,000 persons.

A handsome silver trowel was given to the Premier, bearing this inscription:

> Presented to > RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD, G.C.B.,
> Premier of Canada
> And Member for the City of Kingston,
> On the occasion of > Laying the First Stone of > the Kingston Dry Dock
> June 19, A.D. 1890.
> N. K. & M. Connolly, Contractors.

Sir John laid the keel stone, tapping it and saying: "I declare this stone well and soundly laid." It was a huge block of limestone weighing 6 tons and was laid in a huge excavation 30 feet below the surface of Lake Ontario.

Afterwards addresses were presented to the ministers by the civic authorities and Sir John was the recipient of one from William Kelly, who spoke in behalf of the peoples' political party. Sir John was thanked for the aid given the workingmen, and for the new bureau of industries. Sir John made a happy reply, recalling his work on behalf of Kingston.

Sir Hector claimed to be a Kingstonian. He lived here 50 years ago, and his grandfather fought the Americans here in the revolutionary war. He lauded the work under construction here.

During the afternoon Mrs. Grimason reached the platform, and was embraced and kissed by Sir John amid applause.

The dimensions of the new dock are 280 feet on the floor, 40 feet wide on the floor and 80 feet wide at the coping. In connection with the dock will be a rudder well, the entrance 24 feet long, 2½ feet wide and 12 feet deep.

Over 100 gentlemen were present at the banquet tendered in the Hotel Frontenac by the citizens to the two Cabinet Ministers. It was a magnificent affair. A Battery band was in the corridor and gave fine music. There were ten events on the toast list. After the loyal toasts, Col. Twitchell, United States Consul, made an admirable speech for "The President of the United States." J. H. Metcalfe, M.L.A., proposed "The Army and Navy;" Maj.-Gen. Cameron and other military men responded. J. L. Whiting, President of the Reform Association, toasted Sir John and J. McIntyre, Q.C., honored Sir Hector. The replies were pleasing. The remaining toasts were purely local.

IT WAS JOHN MONTGOMERY.

Who Was Killed in the Michigan Central Yards at St. Thomas.

ST. THOMAS, June 19.—In The Journal of last evening it was stated that James Jamieson of Lynden had seen a photograph of the unknown man killed in the M. C. R. yards a week ago Monday night. Mr. Jamieson thought that he was a man named John Montgomery, a shoemaker by trade, and who turned his hand to anything, who had left Lynden about three weeks ago, but owing to the fact that he had a full beard when he left Lynden, Mr. Jamieson did not like to be too positive in his identification. Mr. George Armstrong, who knew John Montgomery well when he lived in Plattsburg, was shown the photograph of the dead man this afternoon, and at once recognized it as that of John Montgomery. Montgomery has a wife and two children living in Lynden. His wife will be at once communicated with.

A Montreal Advocate's Confidential Clerk Skips With $800.

MONTREAL, June 19.—Henry Bryant, confidential clerk for H. C. Levy, advocate and real estate agent, has absconded with $800 of his employer's money, which he had been sent to deposit in a bank. He comes of a good family in Brighton, Eng., and arrived here from the Southern States. He figured largely in the Mulcahey mystery, in which a young girl claims to have been married to a corpse. He was prominent in temperance circles here and had many friends.

HIS HOUR HAD NOT COME.

BUT IT WAS A CLOSE CALL FOR LORD SALISBURY.

In a House of 452 Members the Government Was Sustained on the First Clause of the Licensing Bill by Only 4 Majority—Tory Explanations of the Vote.

LONDON, June 19.—In a division in the House of Commons this afternoon on the first clause of the Licensing Bill the Government won by only four majority, the vote being 228 to 224. The announcement of the vote was greeted with prolonged cheering by the Opposition.

William Henry Smith, the Government leader, stated that notwithstanding the smallness of the majority the Government would proceed with the bill.

The Government's narrow escape from defeat is explained by the Conservatives by the absence of a number of Tory members through their attendance at the Ascot races. While this explanation partly accounts for the slender majority by which the clause was carried it cannot be accepted as final, since it is known that several of the absent Tories would have voted with the Opposition on the question. The fact places the absentees in the position of dodging the question, which they undoubtedly did, and the Government's realization of its perilous position is evidenced in the censure which has been administered to the Tory whips for allowing a division to be taken under the circumstances. It is certain, however, that the ministry will rally its forces sufficiently to avert a similar exhibition of weakness, but the passage of the bill in its present shape is now regarded as extremely unlikely.

In later divisions on the questions of closure and reporting progress the Government had majorities of 53 and 42 respectively.

That Shameful Surrender.

LONDON, June 19.—The explosions of the English press over the cession of Heligoland to Germany seem slightly comic, they are so disproportionate to the subject. According to one journalist Lord Salisbury "has fixed upon the brow of the Imperial-Unionist party an indelible brand of ignominy." In point of fact Heligoland is a little island, consisting mainly of an English governor and a summer hotel resorted to by Germans. It has no associations such as those that make the rock of Gibraltar an object of national pride. It belongs, naturally and geographically, to Germany, and if England has really got an equivalent for it in Africa there is no reason, sentimental or practical, why Germany should not have Heligoland. But perhaps, after all, the British journalists do not mean all they say, and will have forgotten all about this shameful surrender by the day after to-morrow. The 1912 Heligolanders will remember it longer, but there is no reason to suppose that they will be inconsolable for the loss of the British Governor, seeing that the German hotel will remain.

Stanley Africanus Pleased.

LONDON, June 19.—Henry M. Stanley in receiving the freedom of Newcastle repeated his laudations of Lord Salisbury. He declared that if Germany had acquired some territory, which England would have liked to retain, England was amply compensated elsewhere and the granting of free transit in the German regions was as good for the English as the possession of the territory. Dwelling with enthusiasm upon the prospects in Africa, he said that the date of the agreement would be a red-letter day in the African calendar. Germany would join England in demanding the freedom of the Zambesi and thus the Portuguese difficulty would be settled.

Cholera Reported in Paris.

LONDON, June 19.—It is reported there are two cases of cholera in Paris. The report lacks confirmation and is not supported by other advices received from Paris to-day.

The Spanish Government's commissioner found 80 cases of Asiatic cholera at Puebla de Rugat, 40 of which are serious.

Russian Duties Raised.

LONDON, June 19.—The Standard publishes a despatch from Moscow stating that the customs have received instructions to raise the duties on imports into Russia. It is said the duties on English hardware and cotton yarn will be raised from 20 to 40 per cent.

THE JOHN ROSS CASE.

Basis of Settlement of This Big Lawsuit—Interesting Correspondence.

MONTREAL, June 19.—About ten days ago an article appeared in several Canadian newspapers to the effect that the case of Ross v. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company had been settled, and the nature of Mr. Ross' claim, as well as the basis of settlement, was mentioned. It appears now that the final arrangement was only reached within the last three or four days, and that in many particulars the statement published was erroneous.

Mr. Ross had been employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway as manager of construction and in other capacities during the years 1882 to 1885. Upon the completion of his work the company disputed his claim for compensation upon the grounds that under any circumstances the amount which he claimed was excessive, and that in his case it would be particularly excessive because of the unsatisfactory manner in which his work had been conducted. About two years ago Mr. Ross entered an action against the company for the amount of his claim, $150,000, and the company filed a counterclaim for damages amounting to a very large sum.

After the case had been before Judge Davidson for about six weeks a settlement was arrived at, the company agreeing to pay Mr. Ross $50,000 in full of all claims, interest and costs, and the following letters, which are interesting as affecting that part of the case relating to alleged neglectful management, were passed between the parties:

C.P.R. OFFICES, June 2, 1890.

Dear Sir: After full investigation of the facts and circumstances connected with your duties as manager of construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Lake Superior section, in reference to the allegation in the plea and incidental demand fyled in your case with the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was established that you were not guilty of any dishonesty in the execution of your duties and that you were not personally cognizant of the misconduct and irregularities alleged or proved in this cause against some of your subordinates. I am, yours truly, G. SHAUGHNESSY, Assistant President.

In answer to which Mr. Ross wrote as follows:

MONTREAL, June 2, 1890.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company: Dear Sirs,—I have your letter of this date and I take the opportunity to say that during the progress of the lawsuit growing out of the construction of the Lake Superior division, of which I was manager of construction from 1882 to 1885, I see with regret that there is evidence of irregularities in the way of partnership and other arrangements between contractors and some of my subordinates. Although the facts were absolutely unknown to me, I admit that they were of a nature to arouse suspicions on the part of the company's officers. I remain, truly,

JOHN ROSS.

Another Seat for Mercier.

MONTREAL, June 19.—The election for the Assembly in Lake St. John county to-day resulted in the return of Marcotte by 80 majority over Dumais. Both candidates were Nationalists.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Bon Marche Fire [illegible] by the Trial of a Peculiar Suit.

TORONTO, June 19.—Judge Falconbridge and a jury are trying the case of the [illegible] Fire Insurance Company v. F. X. Cousineau, proprietor of the Bon Marche. This suit arises out of the fire at the Bon Marche on Jan. 17, 1889. The companies paid Mr. Cousineau $17,000 and now ask to recover the money on the ground that the defendant deceived them as to the extent of the loss. The defendant denies any fraud or deceit.

On the night of June 11 a jewelry store at Lindsay was burglarized, the nocturnal visitors carrying off a number of watches, charms and rings. The Toronto detectives were apprised of the robbery and requested to keep a sharp lookout for the thieves. Yesterday afternoon Detective Alf Cuddy arrested two brothers named Keefe, living at 134 Ontario-street, as the parties, and lodged them in police headquarters.

The remains of Section Foreman Moriarity, Fireman Oliver and Brakeman Lott were recovered from the wreck near Claremont yesterday. The report that Foreman Roche had disappeared is utterly without foundation. Supt. Tiffin held an investigation into the causes of the accident in the city yesterday and Roche was present. Fireman Oliver's body was brought to West Toronto Junction.

The funeral of Mr. Wanless takes place this afternoon from his late residence in Melbourne-avenue at 3½.

The express trains to and from the east yesterday were but slightly delayed by the mishap.

PAN-AMERICAN RECIPROCITY.

Secretary Blaine's Plan—Senator Hale Presents a Measure.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—President Harrison to-day transmitted to Congress a letter from Secretary Blaine upon the subject of a customs union and the recommendations in respect thereof by the Pan-American Conference. Secretary Blaine suggests an amendment to the tariff bill authorizing the President to declare the ports of the United States free to the products of any American nation upon which no export dues are charged, so long as such nation shall admit free to its ports the manufactures and products of the United States.

In connection with the President's message Mr. Hale in the Senate presented an amendment to be offered to the tariff bill in these words:

And the President of the United States is hereby authorized without further legislation to declare the ports of the United States free and open to all the products of any nation of the American hemisphere, upon which no export duties are imposed, whenever and so long as such nation shall admit to its ports, free of all national, provincial, state, municipal and other taxes, flour, cornmeal and other breadstuffs, preserved meats, fish, vegetables and fruits, cotton-seed oil, rice and other provisions, including all articles of food, lumber, furniture and all other articles of wood, agricultural implements and machinery, mining and mechanical machinery, structural steel and iron steel, rails, locomotives, railway cars and supplies, street cars, refined petroleum or such other products of the United States as may be agreed upon.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS ARRESTED.

Brought from Minneapolis to St. Paul, Charged with "Padding" Returns.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 19.—The excitement which has existed over the census in the Twin Cities the last few days culminated tonight in the arrest of eight Minneapolis enumerators on the charge of making fictitious entries in their returns. The United States Marshal has warrants for three more, whom he was not able to find. The men were arrested in Minneapolis and brought to St. Paul at 10 o'clock this evening. They were released on bail of $500 each, William Henry Eustis and F. P. Hart of Minneapolis furnishing the bonds. The arrests resulted from affidavits made by William Pitt Murray, the well-known St. Paul lawyer, who filed them at Washington a week ago. Detectives were at once sent to Minneapolis by Superintendent Porter, and it is claimed sufficient evidence of crooked work has been discovered to convict all those arrested. Nothing developed at the examination to connect Supervisor Davenport with the alleged "padding."

ORIGINAL PACKAGES IN IOWA.

An Important Ruling by District Judge Kavanagh.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 19.—District Judge Marcus Kavanagh, jr., to-day rendered a decision in the original package case of the State v. Terry Chambers, in which he holds that an original package is the package as prepared by the consignee for shipment and not the parcels contained therein. The decision derives its greatest interest from the fact that Judge Kavanagh disregards the opinion delivered by Chief Justice Reed of the Iowa Supreme Court in the case of the State v. Collins.

Trouble for Chicago Boss Carpenters.

CHICAGO, June 19.—It is announced that 260 carpenters who came here from Canada in response to the advertisement of the Carpenters' and Builders' Exchange have expressed a willingness to testify against the boss carpenters. About 80 distinct cases of violation of the contract labor law are being prepared by the Special Treasury Agents and it is expected that instructions will soon arrive from Washington to begin the prosecution of the alleged violators of the law. Secretary Windom is taking an active interest in the matter and the boss carpenters will undoubtedly be given an opportunity of proving their position—that advertising for workmen in a foreign country and giving them work when they come in response to the advertisement is not a violation of the law.

The Daily Smash.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 19.—A head collision between the pay train and a freight train occurred this morning on the Kansas City, St. Joe & Council Bluffs Railroad three miles east of Atchison. Engineer Sloman of the pay train was killed. The injured are: Conductor Pritchard of the pay train, badly hurt; Joseph Hayward, seriously injured; Dana Bartlett, assistant road master, several ribs broken. Eighteen horses were killed.

A Puzzle for Partner Miller.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Windom has applied to the Attorney-General for an opinion as to whether he has authority to place a premium on gold bars withdrawn from the New York assay office for export.

Prohibition in Quebec Politics.

MONTREAL, June 19.—The managers of the Dominion Alliance issued a pronouncement in favor of Auge, in the St. James division; Beaugrand, in St. Louis division; Taillon, in Jacques Cartier; Aylmer, in Richmond; Ackhurst, in Stanstead; Hearn, in Quebec West, and England, in Missisquoi. They are all among the beaten.

The Minneapolis flour output last week was 88,480 barrels, a slight increase. The market is unimproved.

Rochester census charge estimate 140,000 population, an increase of 30,000 in ten years.

The railway telegraphers have decided to expel members who foment strikes.

St. Louis census population is only 460,000. Sleepytown's citizens are furious.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

EQUAL RIGHTS HANDED ON TO THE NEXT COURT.

Proposed Chinese Mission—The Lambeth Resolutions—Report of the Committee on Union With Other Churches—The Historic Episcopate.

OTTAWA, June 19.—This morning the General Assembly resumed consideration of the Equal Rights resolutions. On motion of Prof. McLaren, seconded by Mr. Chrysler of Ottawa, further pronouncement upon the subject was stayed for the present and the whole subject sent back to the committee with instructions to bring forward the matter more clearly defined for another Assembly.

In the meantime, however, the General Assembly were quite unanimous in placing upon record, which was done to-day, its disapproval of the offensive clause in the order of precedence for the Dominion, which recognizes certain ecclesiastics and utterly ignores the great Protestant churches which represent the majority of the people of Canada. It was further agreed to-day that the Assembly should memorialize the proper authorities for the abrogation of these clauses.

An overture was presented to the Assembly asking for the establishment of a new mission to the Chinese of British Columbia, where over 6000 of the Celestials are to be found. The court looked favorably upon the proposition and gave instructions to its Foreign Mission Committee to formulate such arrangements as may be judged expedient. Two additional overtures from the Presbytery of Indore in Central India were remitted to the same committee.

The name of Hamilton Cassels of Toronto was substituted for that of the late Hon. Alex. Morris on the list of trustees for the church's property at Prince Albert, and certain new arrangements were made in order to the better management of the property there.

The Children's Record was handed over by Rev. E. Scott of New Glasgow to the church, and the Assembly to-day expresses its gratification at Mr. Scott's generous offer, giving instructions at the same time to the committee on The Presbyterian Record to conduct the paper as a monthly connected with the church, commencing January, 1891.

Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and Dr. Warden were appointed visitors to Prince Albert, N.W.T., with a view to the adjustment of complications that have arisen through the loss by fire of Nesbitt Academy.

Rev. K. F. Junor, now of New York, formerly Presbyterian missionary in Formosa, being in the house, was invited by the moderator to a seat on the platform.

The matter of greatest public interest that came up to-day was in connection with a report presented by Dr. Caven on union with other churches. Dr. Caven narrated the negotiations during the year with the Methodists and Episcopalians.

At the conference held by the committee in April of last year with the committees of the other churches, the several topics hereafter enumerated were under consideration, except the last—the historic episcopate. This subject was introduced by a paper setting forth the views of the committee of the Church of England, but the conference closed before there was time for comparison of views.

The part of the Lambeth resolutions which sets forth the necessary basis of negotiations for union is as follows:

> In the opinion of this conference the following articles supply a basis on which approach may by God's blessing be made towards reunion:
> [A.] The Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as "containing all things necessary to salvation" and as being the rule and ultimate standard of faith.
> [B.] The Apostles' creed as the baptismal symbol and the Nicene creed as the sufficient statement of the Christian faith.
> [C.] The two sacraments ordained by Christ himself—baptism and the supper of the Lord—ministered with unfailing use of Christ's words of institution and of the elements ordained by him.
> [D.] The historic episcopate, locally adapted in the methods of its administration to the varying needs of the nations and people called of God unto the unity of his church.

The committee submitted to the General Assembly that the following points are of capital importance in any further negotiations which may be held:

> [A.] The adequacy or inadequacy of the doctrinal basis proposed in the Lambeth resolutions.
> [B.] The necessity, in order to acceptance of the fourth article in the proposed basis, of such definition of the historic episcopate as shall be in harmony with the teachings of the New Testament regarding the constitution of the Christian church and the identity of the New Testament bishop and presbyter.

The General Assembly expressed a desire, in the resolution recorded on the books by the clerk, for closer relations with other Christian Protestant denominations. The Nicene Creed, the Assembly maintained, was admirable in so far as it goes, but it is an incomplete compilation of the articles of the Christian faith. Moreover the Presbyterian Church, it was declared, believed in the historic episcopate, but the episcopate that extended not only to the 17th century but to the days of the apostles.

The Assembly appointed a committee with instructions to hold itself in readiness to confer with like committees from other churches having closer relations in view.

DAVIS' DOOMSDAY.

William Emory's Murderer to Be Hanged To-day—He Asserts Innocence.

BELLEVILLE, June 19.—Peter Davis will be hanged at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning for the murder of William Emory of Marmora. The hangman who officiated last Saturday at the execution of Henry Smith in London is here, and to-day tested the instrument of death in the presence of a number of spectators. Everything was found to work satisfactorily.

The prisoner fully realized his condition today. He acknowledged criminal intimacy with Mrs. Emory, but denied that he murdered her husband. The woman, he said, intimated to him an interview shortly after his arrest that her brother, David McGarvey, was the guilty party. Rev. S. Daw, rector of Christ Church, will pass the night with the prisoner, who has not so far shown much appreciation of spiritual ministrations.

He Don't Mind It.

QUEBEC, June 19.—Dubois, who is to be hanged to-morrow, eats, drinks and sleeps as though there was nothing to trouble him.

Commencement Exercises at Demill.

OSHAWA, June 19.—The commencement exercises of the Demill Ladies' College began in the college on Friday last and closed this evening. Rev. Prof. Wallace of Victoria University preached the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday evening. The art department of the college was opened to the public on Monday afternoon. The exhibition was highly creditable. All the public entertainments went off with eclat and the fifteenth and most successful year in the history of the institution was brought to a close.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." — J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." — E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier." — W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

THE BOYS IN RED.

The Battalion to Remain in Toronto for Two Days—Tuesday Night's Parade.

The 57th Battalion paraded for drill at the drill shed last night. There was not a large turnout, some of the companies being rather small and slow in falling in. The men were not marched to Ashburnham, the movements being practiced in Central Park.

A vote was again taken as to whether the battalion should remain one or two days in Toronto on the first of July. It was explained that the men would have to sleep at the Exhibition grounds and that their reposing couch might not be of the most elegant. However, the men voted almost unanimously to remain the two days, and so it was decided. Lt.-Col. J. Z Rogers is to go to Toronto to make the necessary arrangements.

The church parade which was on the order book for next Sunday has been cancelled, a postponement being made for one week.

On Tuesday night a march out will take place headed by the two battalion bands. This will be a parade which every man should attend, as the names of all the men who intend going to Toronto are to be handed in on that night, and if any of the men should find it impossible to be on parade they will be expected, if they desire to go to Toronto, to obtain a leave of absence from their captain from the drill and that officer will hand in their names. This is being done as it is necessary for the officers to know exactly how many men are going to take the trip and will have to be provided for. Remember then men, turn out on Tuesday night or obtain a leave of absence.

Down the River.

The employees of the Lock Works will have an outing on July 4th. They will hold a picnic at Jubilee Point, and will go down the river on the steamer Golden Eye. They are preparing for a good time.

Two maskinonge were caught this week, one at the mouth of the river and the other at Idyl Wild, weighing 24 lbs. each.

The Otonabee Foresters of Zion had a pleasant excursion yesterday on the Golden Eye, taking in Idyl Wild, Gore's Landing and other points on the lake.

Mr. Hamilton's Answers.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR—In your issue of the 18th, there is an anonymous letter referring to my letter of the 14th in which I am asked to answer a number of questions.

It is not customary to reply to anonymous scribblers. I think before any man would accuse me of not acting straight forward in this matter he should at least have courage enough to write over his own signature.

However to satisfy those concerned in this matter I can answer those questions straight forward and over my own signature.

To your 1st question I would say that I was not aware that such a letter was in existence until the evening before the election when I immediately offered my written statement to have it contradicted. To your 2nd I would immediately say that if such a letter was used with my name attached it was never put there by me and must be a forgery.

To your 3rd question I would say that I never signed a blank sheet to permit any person to write over my signature. To your 4th question I would say that I did so in the strongest possible language (verbally), and would have done so in the press, but Mr. Carnegie suggested to me to wait a few days, saying that if the letter was genuine it would certainly turn up.

Now, sir, I think I have answered all your questions clearly and straightforward, and would say that in future I will pay no attention to cowardly, anonymous writers.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space,

I remain, yours truly,
ALEX. HAMILTON,
Nassau Mills.

Joy for Mothers!

Mothers weary and full of grief,
  We come to you with sweet relief;
Tidings of hope to you we bring,
  As you beside the cradle sing.

Baby is fretful, peevish, cross,
  You see your darling wildly toss
From side to side; you cannot tell,
  Why baby is to-day unwell.

Dear mothers, have you ever thought,
  Some foods they are with danger fraught?
That to your darling one you give
  A food on which it cannot live.

Cow's milk, quite often so impure,
  Cannot to sleep your dear one lure;
Colic it brings and other ills,
  And pain your loved one's body fills.

Again, you think you'll try with care
  Some other relish to prepare,
With which to nourish and relieve
  The little one for whom you grieve.

You find its useless, and despair;
  You sit down with a load of care,
And see dear baby waste away,
  From pain and crying day by day.

Dear Mothers, there is now a balm
  To nourish baby, and to calm
Its restless feelings, weary frame,—
  Lactated Food's the joyful name.

'Twill strength impart, sweet rest will give;
  Your darling baby then will live,
And like a vine will cherish—grow,
  And you will joy and comfort know.

"Lactated Food" the mothers joy,—
  "Lactated Food" will soon destroy
The troubles, cares, and burdens great,
  Which often mar the married state.

"Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice is the standard summer drink throughout England, and is delightfully cool and refreshing.

Only An Editor.

"Only an editor" dead, did you say,
  As the grim hearse rattled past!
And you turned aside with scarce a thought
  On the ended life-work cast,
Unmindful of the boundless task
  He toiled at to the last.

It was to help the world along
  Its pathway toward the sun,
To rightly paint the glittering prize
  For which life's race is run,
To cheer the noble and the true
  Until the goal they've won.

To curb the growing power of Wrong,
  And aid the struggling Right,
To cast the glare of earnest thought
  Far into passion's night,
To save the burdened public weal
  From rude Ambition's flight.

To see men's shame, and all the time
  Their tiny virtues praise,
To sift the strains of truth from out,
  To roar the rabble raise,
To carry secrets big with power
  Through dreary nights and days.

To bravely speak when critics cry
  That speaking is in vain,
To lead the van, though all exposed
  To fierce contention's rain,
To fail, retreat, gain courage, and
  Then, make the charge again.

To wield a boundless power that
  Often tries the strength to guide,
To stoop to menial deeds for bread,
  Regardless of one's pride,
To be the oar on which to throne
  The aspiring leaders ride.

To make the brain in chains perform
  The service of a slave,
To sow fair seed, and never see
  The dappled harvest wave,
To long and sigh for honor's crown,
  And find naught but a grave.

But then, when at the last he comes
  The Judgment bar to greet,
And his long list of deeds well done
  The Judge's eye shall greet,
Perchance his great reward he'll find
  In Heaven's highest seat.

DUELING IN GERMANY.

Steps Being Taken to Put a Stop to the Practice.

Two deplorable cases of death by dueling have recently occurred at medical schools in Germany, says the London Lancet. To one of these attention has already been drawn—that of the "candidatus medicus" of Wurzburg, Paul Fleurer, who fell at the third interchange of pistol-shots, after twice holding out the hand of reconciliation to his implacable adversary. What action the local authorities, academic or civil, have taken or mean to take to bring to justice the homicide or the "court of honor" who aided and abetted him we have yet to learn; but we shall indeed be surprised if the Wurzburg, or for that matter the German, public rest satisfied with the condemnation of the proceeding delivered by the chief orator, if not the chief mourner, at poor Fleurer's funeral, that he was the victim of an "unfortunate prevailing prejudice!"

Meanwhile, we are glad to see that a similar tragedy at Freiburg has evoked something like wholesome retribution from a German law court. According to the Algemeine Zeitung of Munich the duel in which the "candidatus medicus" Solomon lost his life has had the consequence that the "hero" of the encounter, "the student Bering, has been condemned to two years and three months' imprisonment, while the members of the court of honor have also been sent to jail for a period of six months each." We hope that similar sentences on the part of the legally constituted tribunals of Germany will put an end to a practice which is virtually a satire on their own efficiency. For what purpose do law courts exist if not to consider and to settle such differences as those so recently referred to the arbitrament of sword or pistol? The Emperor William has adopted measures to abolish dueling in the German army. Are the universities, in which the fatherland takes an even greater pride, to lag behind the military service, and to cherish a tradition handed down from times when reason and right had no better arbiter than force? Were the results less lamentable the more civilized world would find something ludicrous in a practice which makes the legal and medical schools of Germany the theatre of encounters in which law is ignored or defied by its students and in which medicine assists—though often too late—in healing the wounds inflicted by its future professors on each other.

Pretty and Fantastic Hats.

"Madge," writing in London Truth, says: The enormous hats are the principal feature of this year's fashion. They are nearly the size of cart wheels, and the milliners all say that in Paris they are simply huge, and that they dared not bring over any of the largest, because their customers would never venture to wear them. But, large as they are, they are most delicately aerial, light and fantastic. I saw a delicious one. It is called the bridesmaid's, and has, of course, a very wide brim in fancy straw. There is no crown, only a band of velvet in its stead, with a few very real-looking pansies on it made of velvet, and in the beautiful shades of mauve and yellow that this dainty flower affects. Another big black fancy straw hat was trimmed with ribbon-velvet of a peculiarly bright shade of blue, and yet a very soft tone of color. Corn-flowers were grouped upon the crown, and two quills made of fine black lace, wired to stiffness, stood erect among them.

Quite the prettiest hat was all brim, which was in black lace cut out in tabs of a leaf-shape, wired so that they could be bent in any direction that might suit the wearer. The floral trimming consisted of marsh marigolds in velvet, with narrow velvet ribbon in the same shade of yellow as the flowers, depending from the back. The brims were nearly all lined with pleated black net. A black chip had a roll of willow-green velvet round the crown, and a coque of black ostrich tips resting upon it. A garland of feathers rested upon the brim all round. Another rather similar, had a garland of shaded roses in curious tones of old pink deepening to petunia, with a velvet bow in a deep, rich tone of the latter color.

To Keep a Nosegay Fresh.

"I can tell you how to cross the Atlantic with a fresh carnation in your buttonhole," said an experienced traveler to me the other day. His recipe was to start the voyage with two carnations and a raw potato. The carnations are to be worn on alternate days, and each when not ornamenting the buttonhole is to be firmly thrust into a hole in the potato. At the end of the week at least one of them will still be fresh enough to excite the surprise of fellow-passengers.—N. Y. Star.

Elevators Which Rest.

A New York reporter made a day's trip among the tall buildings and found forty-three elevators out of 119 which were placarded: "Elevator not running." He heard over 300 express their disgust by oaths, and at least 100 made use of from three to five profane exclamations. The average religion in a public building stops running with the elevator.

Enlarging Their Borders.

Noticing that a corps of workmen were busy in the large plate glass front store on the Snowden block on Simcoe-st., it was learned that owing to the want of room and fitness for the work of the premises now occupied by the Persian Laundry on Aylmer-st., it has been decided to remove to the Snowden block. The basement and the two floors above will be occupied by the plant and appliances in use. A car load of new and improved machinery has been secured this week from Troy, N. Y., which will afford the very best facilities for handling the large and rapidly increasing trade already established. It is expected that the removal will take place in the course of 10 days. Men are now at work setting up the machinery and fitting up the premises. Messrs. Graham & Co. will now have at hand one of the best laundry plants in the province and in keeping with the importance of the town.

The benefits of vacation season may be greatly enhanced, if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A good appetite, fresh vigor, and buoyant spirits attend the use of this wonderful medicine.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Annual Meeting of the Baptist Association at Norwood.

NORWOOD, June 19.—The Peterborough Association of the Baptist churches met at Norwood yesterday at 11 a. m. There were about 75 delegates present, the following being from Peterborough:—Rev. P. Clifton Parker, Messrs. S. Curtis, R. Matthews, R. J. Kidd, R. Elcombe, W. Aldridge and Miss Mann. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. T. Dowling. The following officers were then elected:—

Rev. T. C. Sowter, Cramahe, Moderator.

Rev. J. T. Dowling, Haldimand, Clerk.

Committee on Arrangements, Rev. Messrs. Pear, Kendall and Mibell.

On resolutions, Rev. Messrs. Reddick, Parker and Ainsworth.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was commenced at 2 30, the annual sermon being preached by Rev. T. C. Sowter, on Matt., xi.-29., after which Mr. Piatt Kinman, of Wicklow, read the circular on "The [illegible] Boundaries of the Peterborough Association."

The following new ministers were then introduced to the convention:—Rev. R. Baldwin, of Bailieboro; Rev. James Kendall, of Campbellford; Rev. R. W. Roughby, of Cardiff; J. M. Mordwick, of Westwood; W. H. Stevens, of Stirling, and W. H. Norman (student), of Lakefield.

Rev. Messrs. A. McLeod and G. Barrow, missionaries elect to India, were introduced and gave the reasons of their devoting themselves to the mission work.

Prof. Newman, of Toronto, then introduced the question of introducing the Canadian Baptist newspaper.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session of the Peterborough Association opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mr. Russel Baldwin, pastor of the Bailieboro church. After this the meeting was taken in charge by Rev. D. Reddick, B.A., of Port Hope. The Chairman then called upon the Rev. Jas. Grant, of Parliament-st., Toronto, to present the cause of Foreign Missions. The speaker began by stating that he was equally interested in Home and Foreign Mission work. While presenting the one cause he did not forget the value and importance of the other. The first part of the address dealt largely with our responsibility to give the Gospel to the world. He did not believe that there was limitation upon either the Divine or human side, inasmuch as to the people of God was given the assurance of Christ's continual presence to whom was committed "all power both in heaven and earth." It is true little seems to have been accomplished during the nearly 1900 years since Christ's sacrifice, but when one becomes better acquainted with the results of Foreign Missions they discover that all the labor and means bestowed has not been in vain. Here the speaker quoted facts in support of his statement. If there has been failure it is not in the Gospel, but rather with us who have the Gospel for we do not give it a fair chance. We need to be impressed with the magnitude of the work, to do as Cary, study the question until it shall possess our whole being, then we shall give and work and pray as we ought. To overtake the work we need men and money and for these God must look to His people to whom He has entrusted the work.

After singing a hymn we were favored with an address from Mrs. Lillie, of Toronto, a report of which has already appeared in your columns.

Then came an address from Rev. Dr. Newman, of Toronto, Baptist College, which set forth in a forcible, vigorous way the excellent institutions which, as a Baptist denomination, we possess, viz., Toronto Baptist College, Woodstock College, and Moulton Ladies College.

This closed a most successful and enjoyable meeting.

The report of Thursday's proceedings is held over.

Personal.

Dr. E. A. Spilsbury, of Toronto, will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, on Saturday, June 28th, from 8 a.m., to 11.30 a.m. for consultation. See card. 2w24-2d144

Temperance in the Schools.

The gentlemen who were invited to be present at the W.C.T.U. hall last evening to discuss over a cup of tea the question of introducing scientific temperance instruction into the schools did not respond to the invitation in large numbers. All the teachers and trustees in the town received an invitation to attend, but only about fifteen of the lady teachers accepted the invitation. However, the ladies discussed the question in a most intelligent and detailed manner, Mrs. Patton, President of the W.C.T.U. presiding meanwhile. The unanimous opinion of those present was that scientific temperance instruction was desirable, and a deputation will be appointed to wait on Inspector Tilley and Inspector Brown to ask that the subject be placed on the examination papers.

THE BRIDGES AND FERRY.

A TOUR OF INSPECTION THROUGH THE NORTHERN WATERS.

The County Council Views the New Iron Bridge at Burleigh—The Ferry at Gannon's Narrows—Other Bridges—A Fine Trip and Several Speeches.

Yesterday the Warden and members of the County Council, accompanied by the County Engineer and other officers, by Messrs. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., and T. Blezard, M.P.P., and also by four Town Councillors who had accepted the invitation of the County extended to the Town Council, took a trip through the northern waters to inspect the county works. As the County Council was unable to accept Mr. H. Calcutt's invitation to go down the river on the Golden Eye, he accepted the Council's invitation to be its guest and made one of the party. The weather was excellent and the trip was invigorating as well as useful.

The company went to Lakefield on the morning train, and at Lakefield wharf the trim steamer Cruiser was waiting to take them on. Soon all were on board and a pleasant sail through Katchewanooka, Clear and Stony Lakes was enjoyed. At Young's Point the Councillors left the boat while she was being locked through and took a view of the county bridge at this point. In Stony Lake a drive of the Dickson company's logs was met, which caused a little delay, but with the assistance of the men on the drive the Cruiser made her way through easily and Burleigh Falls was reached about noon. Here the was inspected. This bridge is a magnificent iron structure, of 140 feet span. It crosses the large channel and replaced the old wooden structure, which had done good service but had outlived its usefulness. The bridge was from the Central Bridge Works, of Peterborough, and it is a credit to Mr. W. H. Law's establishment and to the county. The mason work of the bridge was done by Mr. M. Hayes, of Peterborough, and is substantial and well erected. Altogether the bridge is a very satisfactory one, and reflects credit on all concerned, including the County Engineer. The approaches to the bridge need now to be attended to, as they are out of repair. They were examined by the County Councillors and the piers and stringers found to be in very good condition, and there was conversation among them as to whether a portion of the approach on the Smith side should be partly reconstructed of stone or the whole work done by repairing the approach on the present foundations. The fruits of the inspection will be seen in the action of the Council in finishing the work. At this point the magnificent work on the Government locks was a sight worth seeing to those who had not seen them before.

In order to economize time the party dined on board the steamer, and the dinner provided through the thoughtfulness of the County Clerk, Mr. Pearce, showed that in this matter, as in the performance of his duties as Clerk, he attended to all details with forethought and thoroughness.

In Deer Bay two more large drives of logs were passed, one belonging to the Dickson company and the other said to be Gilmour's. A little delay was caused by this, but very little, as the Cruiser was ably handled by Capt. Reynolds and Capt. Eden, and soon got around the logs.

At Buckhorn it was found that the lower gates were out of good working order, owing to the chains being broken, but Commodore Calcutt's motto, "where there's a will there's a way," was carried out with his valuable assistance, and with the Cruiser's line the gates were closed and the steamer was able to go on her way. Here another bridge was inspected, and the Council viewed the excellent work done under the supervision of the Reeve of Smith on the approach to the bridge on the Smith side which had been greatly needed, and also the grading on the road between the swing and county bridges.

From Buckhorn the party steamed through Buckhorn lake, one of the most beautiful of the chain of lakes, and up to the place that was to many one of the most interesting points on the trip—Gannon's Narrows. Here that crosses from Harvey to Ennismore was inspected. This ferry, which was constructed from the plans of Mr. Belcher, County Engineer, and under his supervision, is a great convenience to many of the residents of Harvey. The ferry is a large and substantially constructed scow. It will carry a large load, as four teams and seventeen people have crossed on it together. It will carry four or five loaded teams easily. The channel at this point is 1,700 feet wide, and the ferry is taken across by means of a cable, which is fastened at each shore and stretches across the water. The cable is wound over a wheel, and a crank that turns the wheel (or the man power that turns the crank) is the propelling power. In from ten to fifteen minutes time the loaded scow can be taken across from one side to the other. The benefit that this ferry is to Harvey can easily be seen when it is known that some of the residents of the township had previously to travel thirty-one miles to reach Peterborough, while by crossing on the ferry the distance is shortened to sixteen. A further benefit would be obtained by an expenditure on the road leading from the wharf to town through Ennismore. The Cruiser's company got on the scow and crossed the water, to obtain a practical knowledge of the ferry and its power of locomotion. This ferry cost something over $1,000 and costs $100 a year for maintenance, that is, Mr. Chase receives $100 a year for attending to it. It is money well expended.

SOME SPEAKING.

On the way from Gannon's Narrows through Buckhorn and Chemong lakes to Chemong, which is a very pleasing sail, some speaking took place.

Mr. Blezard proposed the toast of the County Council. In doing so he spoke of the practical value of the information obtained by such a trip.

Warden Casement acknowledged the compliment to the County Council in a neat speech.

Mr. John Burnham proposed the health of the County Clerk, which was honored, and Mr. Edg. Pearce responded.

The Town Council was also toasted, and Messrs. Cahill and Davidson responded.

Mr. Cahill referred to the good feeling which existed between the Councils of the Town and County, which would be increased by such meetings as these, and the Town Council would be pleased to reciprocate the kindness shown by the county. He pointed out that the interests of the town and county were largely interwoven, and that when one prospered the other would prosper. The united action of the Councils would place both county and town in the position they should occupy and greatly help the prosperity of both. A project that should receive their united attention was that of securing a railway from Peterborough to Sault Ste. Marie. The Sault was only 285 miles from the town. It would be the gateway of the great trade of the western States and through Peterborough would be a direct route to the seaboard. He also referred to the works seen on this trip.

Mr. Davidson, in his remarks, referred to the advantages derived from the ferry at Gannon's Narrows, and said that a similar ferry across the Otonabee at Rose's Point would be of great benefit to another section of the county.

Mr. Stratton was called on and made reference to the county works they had seen. He also referred to the Trent Valley canal and the good work done on the completed portions of it. This work had enabled them to take this trip and had established water communication with a long stretch of country. He also mentioned the connection of the late Thos. Belcher with the canal scheme.

The health of Mr. J. E. Belcher, County Engineer, was also toasted and Mr. Belcher briefly responded.

The wharf at Chemong was reached in good time to catch the train, and a quick run brought the party back to Peterborough station.

PRAISE WHERE PRAISE IS DUE.

The acknowledgment of all who were of the party are due to Warden Casement and Mr. Edg. Pearce for the complete arrangements made.

The Grand Trunk railway deserves special mention for the courtesies extended through Mr. Brundrett, the company's station agent here. The County Council thoroughly appreciated the courtesy of the company and its capable representative.

Capt. S. Reynolds, the genial master of the steamer Cruiser, was most careful and attentive, and he and all on the steamer did all they could to make the party comfortable and succeeded admirably.

NOTES.

The cottages on the Stony lake islands are beginning to fill up for the season.

At Young's Point, Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn fishing parties from town were met with.

Mr. Holmes' hotel at Burleigh Falls, and Mr. Eastwood's, at Buckhorn, each have a number of guests who are partial to the sport of fishing.

TWO EXECUTIONS.

Davis Hanged at Belleville—Dubois Suffers on the Scaffold in Quebec.

By Telegraph to the Review,

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 20.—Peter Davis, who murdered Wm. Emory in Marmora in September last, was hanged at the county buildings here this morning. Davis walked to the scaffold unsupported and his nerve and courage never faltered. He was steady as a rock. As the drop fell the body shot into the air and settled back, the neck was not broken and considerable struggling ensued, convulsive heavings of chest and swaying of the body, and life was not pronounced extinct for 21 minutes. The body was cut down in just 23 minutes from the time the weight fell. His last words were uttered asserting his innocence, which he has steadily maintained since the date of his arrest. The hanging was strictly private, but few members of the press and a physician being allowed to witness it.

Hanged in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Que., June 20.—The murderer Dubois suffered the extreme penalty of the law at 8 o'clock this morning for the murder of his wife and children. At 7 55 Dubois was supported by some of the gaol guards and accompanied by the Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Bland. On the scaffold he said:—"Well, gentlemen, I am very sorry for the deed I have done, I hope I will meet my wife and children in heaven. That's all." Then Rev. Mr. Bland, who has been more than a zealous adviser to the criminal, began the Lord's prayer, Dubois repeating the words after him. The hangman had previously arranged the rope around his neck and had adjusted the cap over his head and face during which process Dubois did not show the least signs of weakness. On Rev. Mr. Bland giving the "Amen" of the Lord's prayer the hangman started the drop and Dubois fell into eternity. Dubois was dead seven minutes after the opening of the trap which occurred at 8 o'clock sharp.

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

"Please the ladies and the children. Score these two points and you are sure of success." That was the advice given by a veteran dramatist to a youngster who, as a seeker after fame and fortune, had come to him for advice. Excellent advice it is. Some writers please one class, some another, a few both; but those who can please women, children and men also are few and far between. One of these, and a notable one, is the wonderful clever woman, who created "Little Lord Fauntleroy." What is there to say of Mrs. Burnett's beautiful story that has not already been said time and time again? Easily the most popular book that has been written for the children of this day and generation, it is just as highly enjoyed by the children of a larger growth. There are few men who have not read it, fewer women, and it is safe to say not one child to whom the opportunity to do so has come. And every one has enjoyed it—has felt better for the reading of it. All that has been said of the tale can be said of the play. It loses little by its dramatization. The story is there with all the most interesting incidents and almost all the delightful dialogue. The interest, of course, centres in the child who wins every heart just as he wins that of the old earl; but all the other characters are well drawn, making a perfect play.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision met last night to consider the appeals that have been made against the assessment of this year. All the appeals, with the exception of the insurance companies and a few others, were disposed of. None of the appeals were of an important character, the majority being against dog tax.

DECEIVING THE EYES.

OPTICAL ILLUSIONS THAT STARTLE THE BEHOLDER.

The Looming Mirage and Fata Morgana—Often Reproduced in the Heavens with Great Distinctness—Vessels Sailing Apparently up and Down—Remarkable Occurrences.

This wonderful phenomenon, says J. K. Bloomfield in the New York Observer, takes several forms, according to the state of the atmosphere, but those most generally seen are the looming mirages of the Fata Morgana.

In looming mirages distant objects show an extravagant increase in vertical height without alteration in breadth. Distant hummocks of ice are thus magnified into immense towers and pinnacles, and a ship is sometimes abnormally drawn out until it appears twelve or thirteen times as high as it is long. Rocks are seen drawn up to ten or twelve times their proper height. Houses, as well as human beings and animals, appear in like exaggerated shape.

Another form of mirage is when a ship, or some other object near the water, seems greatly elongated, and a second inverted image meets it from above. Sometimes the proper image of the object is elevated far above the lake or sea, while the second image strangely appears inverted beneath it—the whole surrounded by a sheet of sky, which is mirrored and repeated within it.

In 1822, in the Arctic region, Capt. Scoresby recognized, by its inverted image in the air, the ship Fame, which afterward proved to be seventeen miles beyond the visible horizon of his observation.

Dr. Vince, Aug. 7, 1806, at 6 p. m., saw from Ramsgate, at which place only the tops of Dover castle towers are usually visible, the whole of the castle. It appeared as though lifted up and bodily placed on the near side of the intervening hill. So perfect was this illusion that the hill itself actually could not be seen through the figure.

Some forms of mirage are lateral as well as vertical, arising from unequal density of two contiguous vertical bodies of air. Thus, on Lake Geneva, a boat has been seen double, the two images some distance apart. Persons have been duplicated in the same way. Any one on a hot day, by placing his eye near to a heated wall, may see lateral mirages of objects at a distance, and nearly on a line with the wall.

Here on the shores of Lake Ontario many beautiful and wonderful mirages are witnessed. The lake is so wide the opposite side is not at all visible. And yet during some peculiar states of the atmosphere it is clearly outlined. A gentleman witnessed a most perfect mirage from Sheldon's point, Oswego. It was about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, when a splendid view of the Canada shore was given. It extended from a point nearly opposite Oswego city to Cape Vincent, at points on the Jefferson county shore. Whole blocks of the city of Kingston were visible and localities distinctly defined. From Sackett's Harbor to Point Peninsula, ten miles distant, has appeared not more than two or three miles away, and so plainly in view that the limbs of trees were visible. Stoney island stood out plainly in view, and far beyond it could be seen Galloo and Duck island. Even the Canada shore in the vicinity of Long point and Prince Edward's bay was at times plainly in sight.

A vessel has been seen sailing along the horizon with the hull uppermost, visible at Lake Bluff. Accompanying the appearance of the ship was that of mountains and hills as though the Canadian shore was coming into view. A puff of wind apparently caused the whole phantasmagoria to melt away as if by magic.

In Syracuse, a distant city, a remarkable mirage was witnessed by many persons. It lasted two hours, and was best observed from University hill looking northwest over Onondaga lake. Lake Ontario was plainly visible, and, stretching out at an angle of twenty-five degrees of the horizon, it looked like an ocean. Prof. Comfort says that a few years previous a similar mirage occurred, and it was so distinct that by means of a glass he could discern a town, probably Kingston.

Portions of Rochester and sections of the country lying south of it have been seen out in the lake six and ten miles distant, as though the city was standing erect in the air. Trains of moving cars and other objects were clearly defined, the aerial phenomena continuing for nearly an hour.

A well-known lake captain has also witnessed a wonderful mirage out on Lake Ontario. While on his way from the St. Lawrence up the lake and near the islands known as the False Ducks, and while standing at the wheel, there suddenly burst into view the city of Oswego, thirty-two miles distant, with the gas-lights in the streets and all the appearances a town lighted up would present from a hill in the immediate vicinity at night. The light-house at Oswego, as well as others on the lake shore below as far as Sackett's Harbor, were distinctly seen. It was a sort of night mirage, and a rare sight indeed. It lasted for several minutes, then slowly faded away into darkness.

At Rochester, which is about twenty miles inland from Lake Ontario, a mirage of a most surpassing character was witnessed by many. The entire northern sky as far as the angle of bison was lighted above the landmark with the blue waters of Lake Ontario, while reflecting from her bosom could be seen the mountains, hills, valleys, bays, and rivers of the Canada shore inland for miles. The coast could be plainly seen mirrored over a stretch of fifty miles, and so perfect at one time that the forests could readily be distinguished. The reader can form some idea of its grandeur by knowing that a country separated from Rochester by a lake seventy miles in width was, as if suddenly by the hand of its creator, painted upon the heavens so plain as to be seen from a standpoint of near 100 miles distant.

Gentlemen in Rochester who were familiar with the Canada shore could easily distinguish Rice Lake, Belvidere, and other prominent points in Canada. The lake looked as though it had by a great tidal wave rolled upon Rochester and covered one-half of the city, as no buildings could be seen north of Main street, or any land between the city and the lake.

Upon land, mirages are best seen over desert plains in hot climates. The intense heat of the sands greatly rarifies the air in contact with them, and rays of light coming from the distant objects are gradually bent by approaching the rare stratum until they strike at an angle greater than the limiting angle. Total reflection then occurs, the air near the sand acting as a mirror, or a body of water in which inverted images are seen. Thus is presented to the inexperienced traveler over the desert plains the appearance of tranquil lakes, and, parched with thirst, he is sadly deluded by them.

Many thrilling incidents are given where whole parties in crossing the sandy desert, overcome with the heat and parched with thirst, have reached a place whence far in the horizon they saw, or thought they saw, a beautiful lake with bounding palm trees near it. Longing for the water and the cooling shade, they have disobeyed the warning voice of their guide, deviated from their true course to almost frantically hasten forward towards a more alluring delusion—a mirage that has led them far astray—until, utterly exhausted, they have sunk down to perish on the desert sands.

Lighting a Cigar in the Wind.

"It is quite a trick to light a cigar in the wind," said an old smoker to a Detroit Free Press man. "It was a long while before I learned how the thing was done. The average man generally finds when he is out driving and wants to light his cigar he has only one match way down in the corner of his pocket. He pulls it out and snaps away; the flame sputters feebly, blazes a moment against the stiff breeze, and suddenly, just as the smoker is straining his neck and puffing away for dear life the match goes out. Isn't that vexatious!

"On the other hand, there are men who can light a cigar in a hurricane, miles from civilization, with only the stub-end of a damp match, too. The trick belongs particularly to the Irishman, although why I am at a loss to state. Your real Irishman can light a cigar under any circumstances, wind or no wind. I have often seen an Irish brakeman on a freight train perch himself jauntily on the top of the last car, pull out his stub clay pipe, fill it with tobacco, clutch the pipe firmly in his teeth, bring out his broken splinter of a match, and then, while the train dashed around curves at the rate of thirty miles an hour, a tremendous breeze roaring in the very teeth of the solitary smoker, the little flame would flash merrily, and puff, puff, puff, the smoker would have accomplished his feat in triumph! Oh, yes, there's nothing like knowing how to do these things," said the old boaster, proudly, "and by the way," he added, have you a match?"

The old smoker struck a light, pulled out his cigar, bit off the end, brought up his hand to shade the flame—and right then and there, in the midst of his teachings, not a breath of air stirring, the match fluttered feebly and went out!

Senator Palmer's Contribution.

There is a good story told about Senator Palmer when he was living in Washington, says the New York Press. It was his custom to go to church every Sunday morning and also his custom to put a single dollar on the plate. As he passed into church one Sunday morning, accompanied by his private secretary, he began to search through his pocket with a dismayed look on his face. Turning to his companion he asked for the loan of a dollar, explaining that he had nothing but a $2 bill. The secretary could not accommodate the senator, but a bright thought suddenly seemed to strike the latter, and he exclaimed:

"Oh, well, I can fix it."

"You wouldn't make change off the plate, would you?" asked the secretary, horrified at the thought.

"Never mind how I will do it," replied the senator; you will see it done."

When the plate came round the senator gravely took out his $2 bill tore it in two pieces in the middle, and laid one piece on the plate. After the service was over he walked forward to where the stewards were counting the collection money and asked the one who had come down his aisle if a mutilated $2 bill had been found on the plate.

"Yes, and we don't know what to do with it," was the man's reply.

"Well," said the senator, "here's the other half, and you can have it for $1. That will make your half worth $1 to you, and $1 is all I ever give."

He got the dollar.

Simply for His Digestion.

"Pardon me, sir, may I ask if you notice the slightest traces of whisky about my breath or person?" said a seedy looking individual to a New York Star man suddenly the other day, upon one of the elevated cars up-town.

The truth should at all times be spoken. For several blocks I had been aware of an intense, penetrating odor, as if I were in the immediate neighborhood of a distillery or adjacent to some peculiarly aggressive recipe for the popular "brandy punch." I glanced over the details of my questioner's attire—at his threadbare dark clothes, his black cotton gloves and his well-inked "beaver." Every one has seen the type.

"Now you speak of it," I replied, "I think I do detect something of that kind."

"You don't tell me so, sir?" exclaimed the man, in apparent consternation. "You don't really mean to say that is a fact! Well, now, that is dreadfully unfortunate. You see, my business is a very exacting one. I am distributing tracts on the 'Evils of Intemperance.' I am an officer of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and am working under a small salary for the good of a great cause; but"—here he became confidential—"like everybody else I take an occasional 'horn,' just for my digestion, you know. No one can really get through the day without it, and if this thing is going to attract the attention of my patrons"—he paused and looked at me disconsolately—"why, what is going to become of my business?"

Overcertification of Checks.

During the Fell trial in New York a bank cashier testified that the banks of the city, every one of them, were in the habit of overcertifying checks, whose daily aggregate amounted to millions. The judge of the criminal court was so amazed at this disclosure that he asked the witness to repeat it, and with emphasis. Although the United States statutes forbid national banks to certify checks when the maker of them has no funds in the bank, yet the statute is universally avoided. The checks are not technically overcertified, because the cashiers write across them the word "accepted," instead of the customary certification. Bankers say, however, that it would be impossible to carry on the business of Wall street unless this thing is done. One banker declares that for years no bank has lost a dollar from such overcertification, although they have nothing but the honor of their customers to depend upon to make the certification good.

Didn't Follow the Example.

"When I was a b-b-boy," old stuttering, lying John Skelly used to say, "I read the st-st-story of G-G-George Washington and the l-l-little h-hatchet, and I l-l-liked it so well that I th-thought I'd p-play it on my f-f-father. So I w-went out and ch-chopped d-down an apple t-t-tree th-that he'd taken lots of p-pains with. And when he c-c-came home and asked about it I said: 'I c-c-cannot t-tell a l-lie, father; I d-d-did it w-w-ith my ax,' and he gave me such a h-h-h—l of a l-lammin' that I h-h-havent told the t-truth since."—Cincinnati Times.

Boastful Mankind.

A man at Sidney, Australia, issued a challenge to any man in the world to jump with him. Seven men living within two miles of him came forward and six beat him so badly that he sat down and cried in his sorrow. There are but few world's champions who can't be laid out right in their own ward.

Where the Profits Go.

A New York burglar stole a diamond breastpin worth $700 and a sealskin dolman worth $600, and all the money he got from the "fence" who bought the goods was $130. The burglar added that he once stole eleven gold watches, each valued by the jeweler at $250, and all he got for the lot was $.25.

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out, for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

THE NEW CHIEF OF THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

Sir Edward Bradford Succeeds Commissioner Monro—Proposed British Retaliation Against United States Products—The Sultan of Turkey Alarmed. The Three-Quarter Mile Record Broken.

LONDON, June 20.—Home Secretary Matthews announced in the House of Commons to-day that Col. Sir Edward Ridley Colbourne Bradford, K.C.S.I., political under secretary for the India Office, had been appointed chief of the metropolitan police force, vice James Monro, C.B., resigned.

The metropolitan police force numbers 14,257 men. There are 30 superintendents, 838 inspectors, 1389 sergeants and 12,030 constables. Horses 360. Parliamentary vote £583,530. The commissioner's salary is £1500, which will be an advance of £300 for Col. Bradford, and it will probably be worth all of that to get along with the Home Secretary.

Vincent Proposes Tariff Retaliation.

LONDON, June 20.—In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Howard Vincent, Conservative M.P. for Sheffield, gave notice of a motion that, as the American tariff will inflict great injury upon the trade of Sheffield and upon British traders and artisans generally, the House consider whether a free market ought to be longer given to the competing products of a foreign state which puts a prohibitory tariff on British goods. [Conservative cheers.]

Abdul Hamid Alarmed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 20.—The leading Ulmas and Softas are agitating against the course of the Sultan in entertaining foreigners with banquets and fetes and ignoring the intense misery in the country and the sufferings of the Moslems. At a meeting of Softas it was declared that the time had arrived to restore the old regime as alone conducive to the greatness and prosperity of the Empire. The Sultan is alarmed and suspects that the movement was prompted by persons in his entourage. Since Tuesday the gates of the Yildiz Kiosk have been closely guarded and ingress and egress have been prohibited. Several civil and military officials have been arrested.

A Berlin correspondent says the Franco-Russian alliance has assumed a concrete form since the announcement of the Anglo-German agreement.

The anti slavery conference has assented to the views of the American delegates on imports and they will be incorporated under a separate art allowing the United States to negotiate independently with the Congo State on the subject.

A French police official has stated that the recently discovered Nihilist conspiracy was fostered by German agents and that the explosives were made in the northern part of London and sent to Paris. It is expected that arrests will be made immediately.

WAS DAVIS INNOCENT?

HE DENIES HIS GUILT WITH HIS LAST UTTERANCE.

His Neck Broken by the Fall—Dubois Expresses Penitence for His Crime—Husband and Wife Hanged in Nevada—An Affecting Scene.

BELLEVILLE, June 20.—The execution of Peter Edward Davis for the murder of William Emory of Marmora township, on Sept. 19 last, took place at 8 o'clock this morning. Rev. S. Daw, rector of Christ Church, and Rev. D. F. Bogart of St. Johns were with him during the night. He accepted their ministrations in a satisfactory way, but declared his innocence of the crime, saying he was probably several miles away when it was committed. Rev. Mr. Daw and Deathwatch McGrath both believe that Davis was innocent.

At 7.55 the melancholy procession to the gallows passed down the stairs to the place of execution. Standing on the scaffold, without a tremor the prisoner exclaimed, "I am innocent, so help me God!" Prayer was then engaged in, the culprit repeating the responses in a loud voice. The weight was sprung and Peter Davis dangled in the air. His legs twitched for a few moments, his neck being apparently broken.

Davis' body was buried in the cemetery this afternoon. He left no written message beyond a few lines requesting that his watch, pantaloons and two homemade shirts be given to his sister, Mrs. Charles Emory.

The crime for which Davis forfeited his life was of a particularly atrocious character. Some four years ago he was employed by Emory as a farm laborer, and in a short time succeeded in debauching his employer's wife, who is a rather good looking woman of about 30 years of age, and the mother of three children. This intimacy was observed by the husband, and a bad feeling sprang up between the men, which resulted in Davis' dismissal, following which Davis vowed vengeance against Emory and continued to meet the woman and visit her at her husband's house when opportunity offered. On Sept. 19 last Emory left home to cut hay in a marsh four miles distant and on the next day he was there found lying dead with a bullet wound in his breast, his gun, the muzzle of which was stuck in the ground, standing upright about six feet from the body. Davis was seen in the vicinity the day before and the day after. He was tried at the spring assizes and was convicted, the evidence being purely circumstantial. The woman, who was also tried, was found by the jury to have had knowledge of the crime previous to its commission, but that she was not guilty of having desired it. She was therefore acquitted. Davis was 27 years of age.

Twenty-eight years have elapsed since the last hanging took place in the county of Hastings, in 1862. William Aylsworth and his wife suffered the extreme penalty for the murder of a neighbor with whom they were having a dispute over some chickens. Three men were previously hung here.

Dubois Hanged at Quebec.

QUEBEC, June 20.—The murderer Dubois suffered the extreme penalty of the law at 8 o'clock this morning. At 7.55 Dubois, supported by some of the jail guards, and accompanied by the Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Bland, made his appearance at the jail door. His face showed symptoms of insomnia, and slowly he climbed the scaffold steps. Arrived on top he eagerly looked upon the reporters and addressed them thus:

"Well, gentlemen, I am very sorry for the deed I have done, I hope I will meet my wife and children in heaven; that's all."

On Rev. Mr. Bland uttering the Amen of the Lord's Prayer, the hangman sprung the drop. After a few spasmodic movements of the body it swung round and round at the end of the rope, the blood oozing from under the mask as if it was coming from the nose. The hangman was a Toronto man, well known in criminal circles. This was his ninth execution. Dubois was dead seven minutes after the opening of the trap, which occurred at 8 a. m. sharp.

The crime was perpetrated on Sunday morning, Feb. 23, in the small parish of St. Albans, Portneuf county. Dubois had a quarrel with his wife and his mother-in-law. Enraged at their remarks of his being a lazy man and of depending on the scanty means of his father-in-law for the support of his family and of himself, he seized an axe and attacked his wife, her mother and two of his children, whom he butchered in a way too hideous to describe.

Husband and Wife Worked Off.

ELKO, Nev., June 20.—Josiah Potts and his wife Elizabeth were hanged at 10.43 this morning.

After the death warrant had been read Mrs. Potts earnestly ejaculated: "I am innocent, and God knows it." And her husband reiterated: "God knows we are innocent."

With bravery unexpected by the spectators the prisoners seated themselves on the stools provided on the scaffold while deputies proceeded to bind them. Mrs. Potts helped to adjust the straps herself and Potts sat in stolidity. They were then directed to rise. As they stood after shaking hands with the attendants Potts made several endeavors to clasp the hand of his wife without accomplishing it. Finally a touch on her wrist caused her to turn her eyes towards his and the mute appeal of love caused their lips to meet for a brief moment.

As the rope was stretched around Mrs. Potts' neck she clasped her hands together and lifting her eyes towards the sky exclaimed: "God help me! I am innocent." Her husband reiterated in a hollow tone: "God knows we are both innocent."

As the black caps were drawn over their the heads words of the clergyman broke the silence: 'Put your trust in God and He will see you righted,' and then the drop fell. Mrs. Potts was at once a corpse owing to her heavy weight. Potts' vitality, despite his emaciated condition, was very great, it being over 14 minutes before life was pronounced extinct. Mrs. Potts' weight almost severed the head from the trunk.

The crime of which Potts and his wife were convicted was the murder of Miles Fawcett at Carlin on Jan. 1, 1888. Fawcett, who was about 70 years of age, lived on a ranch a few miles from Carlin, where he had some stock and several hundred dollars in money. Mrs. Potts did his washing and baking and Fawcett lent the Pottses several hundred dollars, which they subsequently refused to repay. On Jan. 1 Fawcett, with one Limeberger, went to Potts's house to demand the money. Limeberger, after accepting a glass of liquor, left the house, leaving Fawcett there to transact his business.

That was the last ever seen of Fawcett until his body was found in the following year. Potts's family stated that Fawcett had settled up all his business, had given Mrs. Potts a bill of sale for all his property and had left for parts unknown. In September, 1888, the Potts family sold their property and that formerly belonging to Fawcett and removed to Rock Springs, Wy.

The body of Fawcett, partly burned, with the limbs severed from the trunk and the skull crushed in, was found in January, 1889, by the caving-in of the roof of a dug-out cellar attached to the house formerly occupied by the Pottses. The family were brought back to Elko for trial. Circumstantial evidence went to show that Mrs. Potts [illegible] Fawcett on the back of the head with an axe as he was lying in bed, and also fully implicated Potts in the crime. The jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, and the Supreme Court affirmed the decision.

THE WILY CHINEE.

How he Seeks to Circumvent the Customs Laws—New Hats.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 20.—By Wednesday night's steamer Islander forty-six Chinese arrived on steamer Parthia from China. Of this lot, fifteen were holders of fraudulent certificates, and fourteen of them paid the necessary $50 tax, all of them admitting that they had never been here before. One of the lot could not raise the cash necessary, and he has been held awaiting its production by some sympathetic friend.

Among the lot were several Mongolians who in some degree resembled the description on their tickets of return, but close questioning on the part of the customs officers showed that the claimants to free admission were frauds. One of them, a young fellow of about 16 years, was so neatly gotten up that it required a deal of finessing to prove that he was a fraud. His return certificate described a man of about the same age, with a large scar over the left temple, two deep pits on the right temple, a smaller scar on the head, etc. The claimant had all these, was exactly the same height, and by description tallied exactly. A series of questions disclosed the fact, however, that the man had never been here before, and when accused of it admitted that he had been "got up" so that the return certificate of some one else could be used and the $50 tax saved.

Another smart trick noticed was the fact that the 46 Chinese all wore new Chinese straw hats, each of which would be valued at about 50 cents. Everyone had on a new straw head covering when they landed, but some of them seen to-day had on the regulation Chinese hat, and a certain store in Chinatown displayed in its window for sale to-day three dozen odd of the latest style of straw hats from China. 'Tis thus the wily Mongolian gets ahead of the average Caucasian, and the old adage of vain tricks and dark ways becomes more and more forcible.

HELM GOES BACK TO CHICAGO.

The Deal Between the T., H. & B. and the B., W. & L. E. Not Completed.

HAMILTON, June 20.—Yesterday, says The Spectator, the deal between the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo and the Brantford, Waterloo & Lake Erie companies, by which the latter railway was to come into the hands of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo company, was to have been completed. But the deal was not completed. Mr. Henry, president of the Brantford, Waterloo & Lake Erie road, telephoned yesterday that Mr. Helm had been in Brantford during the day, and had gone to Chicago. He had conferred with the Brantford, Waterloo & Lake Erie directors, and, Mr. Henry said, the conference was quite satisfactory. The present arrangements between the two roads will continue. That means that the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo company has not found it convenient, just at present, to pay the purchase money for the Brantford, Waterloo & Lake Erie road.

LICENSE FEES LOWERED.

The Newfoundland Government Issues a New Bait Regulation.

HALIFAX, June 20.—Consul-General Frye to-day received a cable dispatch from Consul Molloy of St. John's, Newfoundland, announcing a change of policy in regard to license fees for bait. Hitherto all Canadian and American vessels were taxed $1 per ton every time they visited a Newfoundland port for bait, besides the cost of the bait. This was equal to a tax of $150 and was practically prohibitive. The new regulations provide that licenses shall be issued at $1 per barrel for bait and no vessel is to exceed 40 barrels at a baiting.

A Third Amputation.

CHATHAM, June 20.—On Sunday Mr. W. W. Mitchell had his leg re-amputated by Dr. McKeough, assisted by Dr. Holmes and Dr. Hall. Mr. Mitchell was one of the victims of the Baptiste Creek disaster of 1854, 36 years ago, when a boy of 6. He had the limb amputated then above the ankle. Twenty years ago a second operation was performed and the leg cut off below the knee. On account of great inconvenience and suffering he decided some time ago to have the third operation, which was eminently successful, and Mr. Mitchell is doing well and is in excellent spirits. He expects to be "hirplin'" around in a month or so.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

A TOUCHING TRIPLE FUNERAL OF THE CLAREMONT VICTIMS.

Some Sensational Evidence in the Cousineau Insurance Case—The Farmers' Choice for the Ontario Cabinet—Drowned in a Tub of Soapsuds.

TORONTO, June 21.—The funerals of John Wanless, jr., Joseph Attan and George Oliver, three of the victims of the Claremont tragedy, took place yesterday, that of the first named to Mount Pleasant and of the two others to St. James' Cemetery. All the expenses of the triple funeral were borne by the Canadian Pacific Railway and several of the officials were present, including Messrs. Tait, Jamieson, Wilson, McMurchy and Callaway. There were 20 cars crowded with friends and acquaintances of the deceased in the funeral train.

There was a crowded court-room at the Assizes yesterday to hear the evidence in the case of the Lancashire Insurance Company v. Cousineau. The deposition of Harry Wilkinson, at one time a clerk at the Bon Marche but now living in the United States, was read to the jury. The witness stated that certain invoices were forged to deceive the insurance people, that he damped them and scorched them at the furnace so as to make them appear as if they had been through the fire and then put them on the file. Witness retained the originals and was subsequently offered $50 each for them. Subsequently witness said a proposition was made by Cousineau to give witness $600 to $700 if he would go to Europe but he refused. William Blackley of D. McCall & Co. testified that false invoices to the extent of $697 had been found against his firm. The plaintiff's evidence was not finished when the court rose.

Mr. Nicholas Awrey, M.L.A., President of the Central Farmers' Institute, was requested to withdraw from the meeting while the members of the Executive Board debated a matter in which his name was likely to be introduced. The meeting was held in Toronto on Thursday. The subject of debate was the representation of the farming community in the Ontario Cabinet, and a memorial was drafted to the Government asking that two farmers be appointed to fill the vacancies now existing, and the names of Messrs. Awrey and Dryden were favorably mentioned by the board.

Later in the day the members of the Executive, minus their president, waited on Mr. Hardy at the Parliament Buildings and presented him with a memorial embodying the views of the Board. Among the deputation was Mr. Lloyd-Jones, Mr. Hardy's opponent in the late contest, and the meeting between the two was most effusive. Mr. Hardy listened courteously to the reading of the memorial and to the speeches which accompanied, eulogized the gentlemen named as well worthy of the honor, promised to bring the matter to the attention of Mr. Mowat and said it would receive the most careful consideration of the Government.

The rest of the business of the meeting was of a routine nature, consisting for the most part of selecting subjects for discussion at the next general meeting of the Central Farmers' Institute, to be held on the first Tuesday of February next.

The Premier, owing to his absence from the city, could not be seen by the deputation on Thursday evening. A meeting of the cabinet was held yesterday and the vacancies were discussed. The memorial in question was also considered. It is understood no decision was arrived at.

The 14-months-old daughter of Mrs. Fox, 25 Sackville-street, toddled out the back door yesterday afternoon and was not missed for half an hour. When her mother went to search for the child she was horrified to discover it in a tub nearly filled with soapsuds. The babe was unconscious, but alive. Dr. Wallace was summoned and worked until midnight endeavoring to restore the child, but it is feared that the effects of the lye impregnating the lungs will prove fatal and slight hopes are entertained of its recovery.

A number of unsavory details were woven into a statement of claim that was read to the Master-in-Chambers yesterday in support of a motion for interim alimony. But as the statement was uncorroborated by affidavit the motion was enlarged for a week.

The parties are Margaret and Frederick Mackenzie. The plaintiff, who is now living with her mother at Brighton, in Oxford county, was married on Oct. 24, 1870, to the defendant, who is a farmer near Whitby. It is alleged that shortly after their marriage his harsh and cruel treatment commenced. It is further alleged that on the occasion of the birth of her first child and afterwards at the birth of her second and third children he refused her proper medical attendance. She left him several times, but was induced again and again to return on his promises of better behavior. She left him for the last time in April, 1887. The statement is that he has a farm of 140 acres worth $10,000 and that he has a regular income of $1000 a year. Interim alimony amounting to $5 a week is asked.

The statement of defence is that the woman left her husband's home without any provocation.

At the Police Court yesterday Frank Heber pleaded guilty to the charge of selling liquor on the Island, and was fined $50 and costs. All the other cases were adjourned till the 26th. There were also a number of cases up for breaches of the Lord's Day Act. W. J. Yielding, E. J. Alberti, Ed. Smith and H. E. Hughes were charged with selling cigars at the Island on Sunday. Hughes was fined $1 and costs. All the others were adjourned till the 26th. The case of Bert Appleby, charged with photographing on Sunday, and Joe Lettore for shaving people on Lombard-street on Sunday, were adjourned till the same day.

A Singular Fatality.

NEW YORK, June 20.—John Miller, aged 40, met a strange death to-day in the planing mill in Eleventh-avenue where he was employed. He was near a circular saw and a sliver of wood was whirled off the saw. It had a sharp point and the wood passed through Miller's neck like an arrow, completely severing the jugular vein. Miller lived only a few minutes.

The Royal Clan at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, June 20.—The annual meeting of the Royal Clan of the Order of Scottish Clans, which opened here Tuesday, was brought to a close to-day. James Sutherland, M.P., was elected Royal Chief. The other officers are from the States. The next meeting will be held in Buffalo.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." —J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." —E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

LIVING TOO FAST.

Canadians Carry too much Steam, and then tie down the Safety Valve—As a Consequence there are Explosions Everywhere and we are a Short Lived Race.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Canadians glory in being fast workers. They are not only fast in work, but in eating, playing, dancing, everything. Everywhere it is one continual rush. What is the result?

What is always the result when there is too much steam and the safety valve is tied down? An explosion that wrecks and destroys. And this is just the result of the overwork and over-worry so prevalent in Canada and in the United States to-day. The annual report of the New York Board of Charities shows this in a most alarming and convincing manner, for it makes the statement that "The number of insane persons in the state has increased 62 per cent. during the past nine years, and there is now one insane person to every three hundred inhabitants."

No disease of the body should cause as much alarm as that which destroys the reason but allows the body to live on. And this is the sad end towards which that head-ache, dizziness, weak stomach, loss of appetite, and poor sleep inevitably tend. Our hard working men and women exhaust too quickly, grow old too fast, die too soon. It is for such as these, and indeed for all weak, nervous, and exhausted people that Paine's Celery Compound comes as a positive rescuer. It is a scientific medicine, the providential discovery of an eminent physician, and has tissue building, nerve strengthening, and brain renewing properties that are possessed by no other medicine. At this season of the year nearly everybody will be greatly benefited by its use. Brain workers will think quicker, reason deeper, and devise more brilliant plans; mechanics will find their muscles stronger, their hands and nerves steadier, and their step brisker; and to all it will impart that vitality which successfully resists spring disease and insures health and happiness.

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

NO ONE WILL EVER KNOW.

What Became of Whelan's $10,000—Harry Phillips in the Toils.

MONTREAL, June 20.—The counsel employed by the Mercier Government to oppose the writ of prohibition preventing the Royal Commission from asking the three chief witnesses in the Pacaud-Whelan boodle scandal what they did with the $10,000 paid by Whelan to Pacaud has filed his answer to the writ. The answer asserts the power of the commission to put the question demurred to and maintains that the statute under which the power is given to the commissioners is constitutional. The other side have four days to reply to this. The argument, however, will not likely be heard before September next, as the vacations are at hand, which means that no one will ever know who got the boodle.

Last winter a daring bank robber Pete Murphy, was captured by a newsboy, but when the case came up last week the only witness, Willie Carton, was missing. Murphy was arrested for spiriting the boy away, and the probability of spending the summer in prison has induced him to squeal and warrants have been issued for Harry Phillips, the former backer of John L. Sullivan, F. McDermid, the former Law and Order League detective, and R. A. Parker of New York.

Jack Laird, Frank Brady, Nellie Leslie and Aggie Ashton were acquitted this afternoon of the charge of stealing $5000 from the defaulting express messenger Walton of Dallas, Tex.

Chicago's Population 1,250,000.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The Journal says Census Supervisor Gilbert unwittingly gave its reporter the approximate number of people living in this city and it states this number at 1,250,000.

When Doctors Disagree.

HALIFAX, July 19.—A writ of mandamus nisi has been issued to compel the provincial medical board to register the name of George A. Bagnes. The board refused on the ground that Bagnes had been guilty of scandalous professional conduct by associating with a Dr. Kergan and now advertises "Consultations free." The court will decide whether advertising is scandalous.

Death of Dr. De St. Georges, M.P.

OTTAWA, June 19.—Dr. Joseph Esdras Alfred De St. Georges, Liberal M.P. for Portneuf, died at the residence of Mr. J. E. Richard in Ottawa this morning. Deceased was ill when Parliament was prorogued and remained in Ottawa until his death.

FEMININE WISHES.

What Ten Women Desired Above All Other Things.

Are women mercenary? asks the New York Evening Sun. Are they ambitious? Are they shut in to a narrower range of ambition and purpose than men? Read this testimony and discover if you can. Ten women—some famous, some clever, all women of thought and action—were dining on Saturday night. From the head of the table started the question: "If you could have one wish granted—but one in all the world—what would you wish for?"

"To be president of a railroad," came promptly from a woman at her right.

"And I would wish for fame," said the low-voiced woman next.

"And I for plenty of money."

"I should wish to know what protoplasm is," said the little student beyond.

"I think" came in tones of soft perplexity from the foot of the table, "I think if I were to wish for anything it would be a wish to want something so much that I would be glad to work hard for it."

And out of the momentary quiet that followed this reply, came the voice of the next speaker in positive tones: "One hundred thousand dollars."

"I should like to be able to write something so good that all the world would love me," said the sweet-faced woman next.

Her neighbor drew a long breath. "I should wish for health. Given that, I could have all those other things," she said.

"Only one wish! Well, 'a house full of books and a garden of flowers,' which fine sentiment is cribbed from Andrew Lang," quoth her neighbor; and the last woman lifted her beautiful eyes and said in earnest tones: "I know you won't feel shocked, but really I should only wish for total annihilation."

Snobbery in Gotham.

Some of the numerous armorial bearings on the carriages of New Yorkers are worth illustrating in comic papers; no such elaborate splendid trappings are visible on the broughams of the exalted nobility of England as may be seen any day on Fifth avenue or Broadway. Crests, mottoes, and coats of arms are emblazoned on plates almost as big as a porous plaster on the carriage doors, and there is enough gold and glitter about it to suggest an amateur circus. Some of the designs are carried out on the blankets, of the horses, and even on the buttons of the coachmen. It is an expensive fad when pushed to excess. Naturally such a delirium of armorial ornamentation exists only in a republic. —New York Sun.

Sam Wellerisms.

"What a crying shame it is," as the old bachelor complained when his neighbor's infant yelled for five hours at a stretch.

"This is a busy spot," as Capt. Ross remarked when he was in the Arctic regions.

"He's got his father's instincts," as Mrs. Clumberbump observed when the doctor's son took up the old business.

"The liberty of the press," as our editor murmured when his sweetheart told him he might squeeze her hand.

"I'm the latest thing out," as the young man exclaimed when he was going home at three o'clock in the morning.—Judy.

When flies swarm around the manure or hog-pen it is a sure sign that cleaning is necessary.

It is a mistake to suppose that peas, beans and corn should be covered heavily. A slight covering is better.

Keep the land intended for turnips well stirred with the cultivator so as to kill the weeds before the seed goes in.

Many animals appear sick and refuse food, when the cause may be due to the toothache. They often suffer in that respect.

A Correction.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The editorial in the Examiner of to-day (12th) referring to the statement that in West Peterborough the success of the Liberal candidate was "due alone to Hierarchical influence says: "There were enough liberal-minded Conservatives, Protestants and Orangemen, who gave him their support to have secured the election."

The fact is that if the Roman Catholic vote is struck out, Mr. Carnegie, the Equal Rights candidate, would be elected by not less than 500 majority.

In the above quotation Mr. Stratton does not consider liberal-minded conservatives, Protestants—I conclude they are in his opinion Cleary-Strattonites.

Yours, &c.,
EQUAL RIGHTER.

An Ornament and Credit.

The Baillieboro correspondent of the Millbrook Reporter writes:—Mr. A. Rutherford, of Peterborough, who secured the contract for the new English church, is here with several men digging out the foundation. A large lot of stone for the basement has already been on the ground, and it is intended to have a "bee" on Thursday. The building will be pushed on with all speed, and when completed will be not only an honor and credit to the congregation, but an ornament to the village.

Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

A Masonic Portrait Gallery.

Some time ago the surviving Past Masters of the local Masonic lodges decided that they would present their portraits to the lodges and that the same would grace the walls of the Masonic Hall. The idea was a capital one and very cordially received. Mr. Geo. Sproule, photographer, received an order to prepare some thirty portraits and have them suitably framed. In the window of his studio on Charlotte-st. is shown the portrait of W. Bro. James Alexander, of Peterborough Lodge, the first of the number finished. It is very handsome and lifelike and a remarkably good likeness. Mr. Sproule intends to have a sort of general review when all are finished and will invite the public to inspect the work, an opportunity that will no doubt be largely availed of.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.

The Peterborough Norwood Lacrosse Match—Really a Draw Game.

The lacrosse team which went to Norwood yesterday returned home last evening defeated but by no means discouraged. Their defeat was not due to the superior playing of their opponents in the field, but to the partiality of the referee and the lack of good sight or something else on the part of the Norwood umpire. The game was by no means a satisfactory one, Mr. J. Haper was the referee, while the umpire's name is not known. The team that went from here were all young players, while the Norwood had on their usual men, but, nevertheless the boys played all around them and forced them to play a defence game almost all the time. The teams were composed as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH		NORWOOD
J. Phelan	Goal	S. Hendron
F. Packenham	Point	F. Stevenson
C. Brennan	C. Point	Jory
T. Cronin	1st Defence	Hill
Hicky	2nd "	M. Hill
Paterson	3rd "	Middleton
Larose	Centre	McGuire
Lipsett	1st Home	McKelvie
J. McCabe	2nd "	Pearce
H. Welsh	Outside Home	Fraser
W. Phelan	Inside Home	Eaton

The first game was taken by Norwood. The second game scored was for Peterborough. The ball was passed between the flags by Joe Phelan, but the umpire after a delay called it no game. This raised a dispute, but play was resumed when the Norwoods scored a second game and Peterborough got another. The referee gave the match to the Norwood team by a score of two goals to one, the first goal the Peterborough boys scored not being counted.

A game here may end with a different result, as the boys will get a fair show.

A Fatal Accident.

The Minden Echo contains the following regarding a very sad accident which resulted fatally:—On Wednesday of last week Mr. James Wilson, Kinmount, Reeve of Galway, and Mr. Morris Hartnett, Clerk of the same township, while attending a meeting of the County Court at Peterborough, were delayed so as to miss the train and hired a rig to drive to Bobcaygeon. When within 10 miles of that place Mr. Hartnett was thrown out of the rig, becoming insensible. Mr. Wilson had his own team to meet him at Bobcaygeon and when they got there, finding Mr. Hartnett unfit to move, left him, as he had to be home that night. Although Mr. Hartnett became conscious later, he never recovered from the effects of the fall, and died on Saturday, June 14th. He was buried on Sunday at the Catholic cemetery, Galway. The funeral was largely attended and much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

"Fishing and Shooting."

The General Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific railway has issued for 1890 a book, "Fishing and Shooting," of which lovers of rod, gun or canoe should not fail to get copies. It is bound in convenient form and contains a vast amount of reliable information concerning the best localities for game and fish in the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and British Columbia, and the states of Maine, Michigan and Wisconsin, the whole embellished with numerous handsome illustrations. It should prove invaluable to the followers of Nimrod and Walton. There is, however, one omission to which we would call the attention of the Passenger Department. Close to Peterborough there are several fishing and hunting resorts that are not mentioned. Even the Otonabee river, within a few rods of the C. P. R. station here, and Rice Lake, so easily accessible, are omitted, and no mention is made of the chain of lakes north of here. The Trent river, however, receives notice, and the excellent fishing waters in Belmont and Methuen reached from Havelock. Copies of this book will be furnished free upon application to D. McNicoll, General Passenger Agent, Montreal, or T. E. Boddy, Peterborough.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Annual Meeting of the Baptist Association at Norwood.

Thursday's Proceeding.

NORWOOD, June 19.—The morning session of the Association was taken by having the reports from the churches.

REPORTS AND RESOLUTIONS.

By an unfortunate accident the tabulated statistics were lost in transmission and the Association had to depend on verbal reports. The reports however, showed so far as membership is concerned, an increase all along the line.

The Association then by a standing vote gave a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. P. Clifton Parker, of Peterborough, for the unselfish and hearty way in which he had discharged the duties of clerk for two years.

During the afternoon session various resolutions were endorsed by the Association in relation to "Sabbath Observance" and "Prohibition," the various denominational objects—such as "McGregor Memorial," "McMaster University," "Canadian Baptist."

The Obituary Committee read resolutions concerning Rev. Principal McGregor, Dr. Castle Joel Reddick and Mr. Lacy, who had all died during the year.

The Nomination Committee appointed Rev. P. C. Parker as Chairman of Association Mission Board with Revs. T. Bowter, D. M. Mihell, Messrs. Platt, Hinman and Wm. Graham as members.

Rev. J. T. Dowling was appointed to preach the association sermon next year with Rev. D. M. Mihell, Ph. B., as alternate.

Campbellford was chosen as next place of meeting, Wm. Craig, jr., of Port Hope, to read "Circular Letters."

EVENING SESSION.

Pastor Stevens conducted devotional exercises at the opening of the evening session, after which Rev. P. C. Parker presided over the meeting.

Rev. D. M. Mihell addressed the meeting on the necessities of Manitoba and the Northwest. He spoke about the greatness of the territory, of the few self-sustaining churches we had, of the many places without Baptist preaching. He showed how the Presbyterians were spending $20,000 more in the country than we were and urged that as there was not a family in the convention who had not relations settled there, who ought to go in with greater help. In the great Northwest there was an opening for us as a church, because as we believed in the absolute separation of the church from State patronage and control, and as the government there were working on this principle, they ought to go in and uphold their hands because it was in accordance with the Word of God.

A telegram of Christian greeting was read from the Whitby and Lindsay Associations meeting at Port Perry.

Rev. Ira Smith, of Toronto, the Secretary of Home Missions, addressed the meeting on Home Mission. The rev. gentleman said the word "Apostle" described the functions of Christ's ministers and not the office. Those who "go forth" to do God's work are in the "Apostolic Succession." Christ especially, though often described as a Foreign Missionary, was yet a Home Missionary for he came to his own. Home Missions are the base of our Foreign.

Miss Caswell, of Belleville, rendered a solo most beautifully. The choir were very profuse in their pieces which were well received.

Votes of thanks were tendered the friends for entertainment.

The meeting was closed with singing of "Blest be the tie that Binds."

This was one of the grandest meetings of the association.

THE MISSION WORK.

The Ladies Missionary Society held a meeting in the town hall in the evening which was well attended and of a most interesting character.

Kidd the shoe man says to you,
Doff that worn out shabby shoe,
Dress your feet in new attire,
Fit for pavement, park or mire.
Kidd will sell you what you choose,
Sells the very best of shoes,
Shoes that style and comfort bring,
Fairly make the wearer sing.
Why delay when Kidd will fill
Your order, and receipt the bill. d144

About Advertising.

A long and extensive apprenticeship is generally necessary to achieve success at advertising. You may have an "invention" that will revolutionize things, or a wonderful "remedy" which will cure everything but a broken heart, but don't imagine the long-suffering public is yearning for either, or that a little advertising will cause the ducats to flow in with a steady stream. It is keeping steadily at it, selling a good article, giving full value, prompt and attentive brings custom, just as it does customers for Hawley Bros. teas, the finest, best in quality and price the town affords. Try. Hawley Bros., George-st., for teas. d144

A Welcome Home.

Last evening the Reception Committee of the Y. M. C. A. tendered Mr. R. J. Colville, General Secretary, a welcome home from his visit to St. Louis, where he has been attending the International Convention of Christian Endeavor. A choice programme of instrumental and vocal music was given by Miss Moyse, the Misses Smart, and the Y.M.C.A. band, which was greatly enjoyed. Mr. R. J. Colville gave an account of his visit to the Associations in St. Louis, Chicago and other cities, after which the Y.W.C.T.U. dispensed an abundant supply of cake and lemonade. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the "Y" for their kindness in providing such a generous treat, to which Miss Sanderson made an eloquent reply. Dr. Scott occupied the chair in an efficient manner.

A TERRIBLE TORNADO.

Great Damage and Loss of Life in Illinois State.

By Telegraph to the Review.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21.—A terrible tornado or cyclone swept over a portion of this state yesterday afternoon destroying an enormous amount of property, including crops, stocks and buildings, and killing a large number of people. In Vermillion county, in the neighborhood of Bloomington, great damage was done to crops and it is said that though this cannot be confirmed. The little town of Powhan in Lee county was completely destroyed and 13 of its inhabitants killed. A despatch from Earlville says that terrible was caused five miles north of that city, no less than 15 persons being killed. The cyclone passed through the Village of Sublette, tearing down many buildings, killing four persons and wounding many more. A school house in Brooklyn township was entirely wrecked and 18 children injured.

MANY LIVES WERE LOST,

LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

J. J. Turner, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—The twenty-one tents and seven awnings which we ordered from you some time ago came to hand in good order, and we have much pleasure in communicating to you the fact that every tent and awning has given us and our customers perfect satisfaction. We might make special mention of the 14x24 tent, as it answered the purpose for which it was intended admirably, and we hope in a short time to be able to place a much larger order with you. Little Lord Fauntleroy.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's beautiful story, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," about which so much has been written in praise, will be presented in our town next week. This play is perhaps more in the air now than any production of recent years, and there seems to be one mind as regards its charm. In New York, London and Melbourne it is equally well received, and in South, West and North of our own country it has done a wonderful business, which conveys an idea of its singular merits. Every shade and grade of humanity appears to enjoy with even heartiness the pretty story. By its gifted spell the world is made kin, and the best in human nature is brought out to brighten and better all who see it These experiences are not often met, and it is given to few men or their works to bring them into conscious being. "Fauntleroy," some one has said, is like sunshine to the flowers. It softens the hardest lines in ones life and nature. It proves the tender regard for home, mother and children, and through these visible emotions, that poor, abused human nature is all right after all. Who will find fault with the reading of a book or the witnessing of a play that can accomplish this? The play is now the admiring talk of the world, and no one can afford to miss it. The company is under the management of Mr. T. H. French, of the Broadway Theatre, Grand Opera House and Madison Square Garden, New York, and is commended in the most positive terms by the critics everywhere. This ought to be, and no doubt will be, the most brilliant engagement of the season. The company play at Peterborough one night only, Monday, June 23. Prices 75c, 50c, and 25c. Plan of the house at Greatrix's drug store. 1d145

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

LADIES, THIS CONCERNS YOU.

Besides being good looking, you like to be considered, and generally are, wise in all things that you do. But in purchasing, you sometimes make a mistake, and go for Quantity, instead of Quality. Now, if you will buy "Sunlight" Soap you will find that while it may cost a trifle more than ordinary Soaps, it is worth a great deal more because it is made of different materials; because you can use it for every purpose of the household with perfect safety; because it requires no washing Powders; because it will go further; do what no other Soap can do; give better results and please you more.

Just try it (we don't care how), and you will agree that while every Soap is called the best, "Sunlight" is the best of them all.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1890.

The Fair Theosophist.

She cares not for the worldly things
That entertain the rest of us;
She soars, on spiritual wings,
Far, far above the best of us.
She smiles, but yet declines to mix,
With diffident apology,
In mothers' meetings, politics,
Lawn tennis, or theology.

Complacent, self-possessed, and cool,
Though curates come soliciting,
She will not teach the Sunday School,
Nor venture district visiting.
On church bazaars she sets no store,
Nor tickles our hilarity
By singing "Ask a p'liceman!" for
The sacred cause of charity.

So elevated is her mind,
This life is far too rough for her,
And orthodoxy cannot find
A heaven good enough for her.
She asks, and we forgive the sin
In charming feminity,
She asks to be a Chela in Thibet, or the vicinity.

Severe the task! Yet she has found
The proper means of learning it;
She sits beside a table round
And tries her hand at turning it.
Severe the task! But who shall mock
The skill she soon will get in it,
Who sees her take a cuckoo clock,
And find a cigarette in it!

How fair the vision when she plies
Her search by hook or crook for it!
What depth of meaning in those eyes,
That wander round to look for it!
Such quests, I well can understand,
May rob the time of tedium;
So let her hold me by the hand,
And I will be her medium.

—Pall Mall Gazette

THE LIMITED EXPRESS.

There was general astonishment in our little circle of friends when we heard of the approaching marriage of Valentin Hanovre. What! He—the confirmed old bachelor, the skeptic of the boulevards, the scoffer at marriage, the gayest of the men about town, he who had sworn a hundred times that he would have none of it—Valentin, in short, going over to the enemy! And who is he going to marry? A widow! And, what's more, from the country! We couldn't make it out.

So the first time I met him I grabbed him by the collar and demanded an explanation.

"I haven't a minute," he said; "such a lot of things to do. I have just come from the Mairie, and am going to Stern's, the engraver, Passage des Panoramas, for the announcement cards. Come along, won't you?"

"Of course I will," said I.

We were just in front of the Madeleine, and we walked down the boulevards arm in arm.

"It's a short story," said Valentin, "and commonplace to a degree, but since you are bent on knowing it, the fact is I am going to take the fatal plunge."

In February I was on my way to Nice for the carnival. I hate to travel at night so I took the 8.45 train in the morning, arriving at Marseilles at five minutes after midnight. I was to spend the day at Marseilles with my friends, the Rombauds, who were expecting me to luncheon, and the next morning I was to leave for Nice, to arrive there about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the station at Lyons there was a terrific crush. Thanks to the well-known politeness of M. Fregnol, the stationmaster, I got a carriage facing the engine. I found myself alone except for one other traveler who had a severe executive manner, a decoration and a portfolio. He had no baggage except this same portfolio, and of course he couldn't be going far, so I should soon be left to myself—alone; the only condition which makes a railway journey endurable.

Everybody was on board and the train was on the point of departure. There was a noise of vehement discussion just outside our door.

"No, monsieur! No!" Said a woman's voice, very sweet and fresh, with an almost imperceptible Southern accent.

"I ordered a coupelet, and a coupelet I must have."

"But, madame, if we haven't any!"

"Why didn't you pay some attention to my letter?"

"We didn't receive any letter, madame!"

"Put on another carriage, then!"

"Impossible! We have already put on all we are allowed. Come, come, hurry—the train is going!"

"I must have a place, at least!"

"But I have just offered you two in the carriage."

"There?"

"Yes, there."

A little dark head peeped in at the door and immediately disappeared—as in fright.

"But there are two men there."

"Well, madame, I can't give you a carriage all to yourself."

"Very well, then, I won't go."

"As you please—the train is going. I must give the signal."

"Stop, sir, stop. I absolutely must go—and as there is only the carriage will they give me a coupelet at the next station?"

"Yes madame! Yes, madame!"

"You promise me?"

"Certainly."

"You are sure?"

"Yes. Yes. Yes."

The door opened, the little brown head tumbled in, surrounded by a halo of packages and rugs, a whistle shrieked, and we were off.

The executive gentleman politely seated himself next me, so as to leave all one side free for the new arrival. She was flushed and excited, and did not deign to give us a glance, but set to work to arrange her packages in the net above and in the seats about her with the haste that people usually manifest when they have hours before them in a railway carriage. There was one bag—two bags—three bags and a number of rugs.

I watched her arrangements from the corner of my eye and came to the decided conclusion that she was charming. In fact, it is always pleasanter to travel with a pretty woman than with an old Englishman with spectacles. It was bitterly cold. The country, covered with snow and illuminated with a pale, pale sunlight, seemed to flee away rapidly on either side of the carriage.

Our little traveler wrapped to her chin in her rugs set herself obstinately to looking out of the window on her left. The executive gentleman drew from his portfolio great linen papers with seals in all colors of the rainbow—yellow, green, blue and purple—which he read with considerable attention.

As for me, comfortably seated with my feet on the heater, I looked over the pile of papers I had bought at the station to pass away the time.

Twenty-one minutes after eleven. "Laroche!" The train stopped. The executive gentleman arranged his papers, got up, took off his hat, and left the carriage. He had hardly reached the platform before he was received by the Station Master, who addressed him as Monsieur l'Inspecteur in a tone of deep respect. Our little passenger rushed to the door.

"Is this the station master?"

"Yes, madame."

"You have received a telegram from Paris for a coupelet?"

"I have, madame, and have sent on the despatch."

"What, sent it on! I am not to have the coupelet immediately?"

"Impossible, madame, we have no carriages here. You can only get one at Lyons."

"At Lyons—at what time?"

"At 5.45 madame."

"All day, then. But I can't stay in this carriage until that time. It is impossible. I don't wish to——"

"Take care, madame, the train is leaving!"

And off the train went.

She buried herself in her corner again, in a perfect rage, and did not deign to cast the smallest glance at me.

As for me I set myself to reading assiduously my tenth newspaper.

Shall I confess it? It took me longer to read that tenth paper than it had to read the nine others. I read the same line over twenty times. I believe that half the time I held the paper upside down. . . . But then after all, a Frenchman's a Frenchman, and you can't expect a man to take a long journey with a distractingly pretty woman and not feel some kind of interest in her. I was dying to talk to her, but I could not find or invent any pretext to begin a conversation.

On account of the cold the old-time expedient of raising or lowering the window was of no avail. What was to be done? Make some idiotic remark, apropos of nothing! No, a hundred times rather keep still. I had immediately discovered, with the instinct of the old Parisian, that my companion was a woman of position. To suddenly address her, without an introduction, in any such fashion would have set me down in her eyes as the most contemptible of commercial travelers.

The only way to manage it was to find something magnificently original to say to her. But what! What! I searched in vain.

THE ASSEMBLY'S LAST DAY.

A Lot of Routine Rushed Through—To Meet in Kingston Next Year.

OTTAWA, June 20.—The General Assembly held its last session this forenoon. There was a slaughtering of subjects. It was expected that Thursday night would see the proceedings finished, but the time lost in discussion of points of order and in cross firing over other points of no consequence whatever caused a new day to be broken upon. The attendance to-day was very small.

Matters relating to widows and orphans, book of forms, church architecture, overtures and memorials on several subjects were disposed of in a hurried manner.

The assembly considered correspondence from the Presbyterian Church of the United States, which invited the co-operation of the Canadian Presbyterians' Supreme Court in approaching the Christian Governments of the world with a view to the settlement of international disputes by arbitration rather than by war. A conference on the subject is proposed for July, 1891, in some European city. The moderator of the Assembly together with the clerks and Principals Caven and Grant were appointed to confer with the American representatives on this matter.

A special vote of thanks in conformity to a custom was passed before the final part was taken with an address from the moderator and religious exercises of praise and prayer.

The present General Assembly, after having decided to meet next June in Kingston, was brought to a close with the apostolic benediction.

Sir John Thompson's Mission.

OTTAWA, June 20.—The coming departure of Sir John Thompson for England was not known here until last evening. The object of his visit is undoubtedly to confer with Downing-street on the Atlantic and Behring Sea fisheries negotiations and the Canadian Copyright Act which was returned to Canada some time ago by the imperial authorities as being somewhat outside our powers of legislation. To this the Minister of Justice sent a strong reply, setting out that the Dominion had a perfect right to legislate on such matters. He will also confer with Sir Charles on immigration matters, with a view to the expenditure of the $150,000 passed last session. Sir John H. will be absent until some time in August.

A Chicago Bank Closed.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Comptroller of the Currency said this afternoon his action in closing the Park National Bank of Chicago was based on the report of the bank examiner, who has been investigating its affairs for the past two weeks and who is altogether dissatisfied with the character of its assets. The bank has made large loans on doubtful securities and some of the officers of the bank have been heavy borrowers. A receiver will be appointed unless there is a change of management and a liberal contribution of new capital to put the bank on a sound financial basis.

Weather in the West.

CORNELL, Ill., June 20.—A tornado passed west of here this afternoon in a path 80 rods wide and about four miles long. Everything in its path was totally wrecked or badly damaged. Four people were probably fatally injured and several others slightly hurt.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 20.—The city's loss by the flood is probably about $50,000, and the loss to the merchants and railroads $100,000. Every railroad leading to the city, with the exception of the Hannibal & St. Joe, is damaged. Trains on all the roads are moving, but transfers of about five miles are necessary.

The Salvator-Tenny Match.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The match race between Tenny and Salvator, the suburban handicap winner, has been consummated. The conditions are as follows: The match is to be for $5000 a side, half forfeit; the racing association to add $5000 provided both horses start; the race to be run on Wednesday, June 25, if the steward decides that the track is good; each to carry 122 lbs.; distance 1 1-4 miles.

A Valuable Trotter Drops Dead.

FLEETWOOD PARK, June 20.—In the second heat of the 2.27 class race here to-day Gumbo, one of the most promising geldings on the turf, burst a blood vessel and dropped dead a dozen lengths from the wire. He was owned by Theodore Palmer of Stonington, Conn., and was valued at $8000.

Pitcher Knouse Goes to Columbus.

BUFFALO, June 20.—The Detroit International management began to-day the work of reducing expenses, and the first move was to dispose of Frank Knouse, its star pitcher to Columbus. The Columbus people it is said put up $2000 cash bonus to Detroit and have given Knouse a two years' contract and an advance over his Detroit salary, which was the largest paid to any International League player.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.
MRS. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

A HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT.

BATTLE BETWEEN FRENCH AND BRITISH FISHERMEN.

The Newfoundlanders Victorious—The Row all About Catching Bait—Americans Fishermen Said to Have Taken a Hand in the Fray.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The Herald's special from Bay St. George, Nfld., gives an account of a disturbance which occurred Wednesday last at Bread Cove, Port au Port, between French and Newfoundland fishermen.

Twenty schooners had put into the cove for the purpose of catching bait to be used in Grand Banks codfishing. Seven of the schooners were French, three or four American, and the others Newfoundlanders. They were all in a hurry to get their bait and get out to the banks. The Newfoundlanders and Americans got into the cove first and their nets took up about all of the choice places for catching small bait fish.

When the French schooners came in their masters ordered the Newfoundlanders to take up their nets immediately, resting their order on the treaty which gives the French prior rights to shore fishing. The Newfoundland men refused to obey, and the French made an attack on their dories and endeavored to drive them away.

After a lively fight, in which clubs, oars, boathooks and similar weapons were freely used, the French were compelled to retreat. No one was killed or fatally wounded; but there were many broken bones and a number of badly beaten sailors. After their defeat the French retreated up the shore a short distance.

Later, the Newfoundlanders having secured all the bait they wanted, took their nets and on Thursday the French were fishing where their enemies had been.

When the news reached Bay St. George two French men-of-war and one British cruiser sailed for Port au Port, and it is thought there will be no further trouble.

The fishermen who brought the news differ as to whether the Americans took part in the row. One says that they helped the British to beat the French, and another says that they took no part in the fight.

Denouncing Gov. O'Brien.

HALIFAX, June 21.—Newfoundland papers continue to publish violent articles denouncing the conduct of Governor O'Brien and demanding his removal.

HIS LAST SLEEP.

John Young Shockingly Mangled by a Train at Burlington Beach.

HAMILTON, June 21.—Yesterday afternoon John Young of Rymal, aged 82, went to Burlington Beach. Having finished his business he lay down on the platform at the church crossing and indulged in a nap while waiting for his train. The express which left Hamilton at 4.30 does not stop at the crossing. The engineer noticed the man on the platform, but thought he would move before the train reached the place. The whistle was sounded and brakes put on. But it was too late. Just as the train was passing the station Young arose to a sitting posture and was struck by the iron step of the locomotive. His body seemed to be drawn in beneath the wheels and was then thrown aside a bruised and mangled mass. The skull was smashed, his brains were strewn along the platform and the bones of his legs protruded through holes in his pantaloons. It was a shocking sight. The deceased was one of the best known men in the southern portion of Wentworth. For a great many years he kept a public house at Hannon (or Rymal) and all who have traveled in that section will remember him. Of late years, since he gave up the tavern, he has spent his time in making money. He possessed a good deal of property and a large amount of hard cash—some say the latter amounts to nearly $100,000.

Zachariah Shields, the young colored man, held to await the result of the coroner's inquiry into the death of old man Grimes, alleged to have been murdered on Sunday last, was again remanded until Tuesday morning, pending County Crown Attorney Crerar's opinion on the case. Chief McKinnon thought that the verdict of the coroner's jury implied a charge of manslaughter.

W. M. Souter, one of the Hamilton contingent of the China inland mission, died at Shanghai on May 26. Only a short time ago was chronicled the death of J. Hamilton Macey, one of his co-workers.

THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

A DANGEROUS IF NOT AN INFAMOUS MEASURE.

The Washington Administration Declares War on the Bill—There Can Be no Retreat on Either Side—An Evident Split in the Republican Majority.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Mr. Blaine said of the McKinley Tariff Bill last week: "It is the most dangerous, if not the most infamous measure that was ever concocted by any party. The men who vote for this bill will wreck the Republican party. If I were in the Senate I would rather have my right arm torn out of its socket than vote for this bill."

Of course when Mr. Blaine says this he speaks the President's view as well as his own, and it may therefore be understood that the Administration has lost faith in the Republican Congressional leaders and intends to lead itself. One thing is evident: the bill either as it left the House or as patched by the Senate Finance Committee can never become law. Neither can McKinley retreat.

The McKinley Bill is built upon a free sugar foundation and the Administration will not tolerate free sugar. Butterworth is happy and says two-thirds of the party are with the Administration. Butterworth himself spoke against the McKinley Bill in the House, and then the party lash whipped him into line when the time for voting came.

Nobody knows exactly how the thing will end, whether in a compromise bill built on a new foundation or open war, but the prediction of The World several weeks ago, that there would be no tariff legislation this season, is more than ever likely to be fulfilled.

Whatever the final outcome in Congress the fight will undoubtedly be carried into the next Republican national convention. The presidential bee is buzzing loudly in Major McKinley's bonnet, but the Blaine-Harrison combination intend to control the nomination—their choice may be Blaine, Harrison or another, but this utterance of the Premier's is good and sufficient notice that they intend to flatten the Ohio congressman's boom.

THAT ILLINOIS CYCLONE.

The Killing of Miss McBride and Eight of Her School Children.

PAW PAW, Ill., June 21.—A number of people were killed in Wyoming Township, Lee County, in the terrible cyclone that passed over this section last night. Paw Paw was not injured, nor was Earlville, the storm passing in a northeasterly direction from Sublette, near this town. Taylor Searcy and his mother of Sublette were badly hurt, but will recover. His young wife saved herself from harm by wrapping herself in a feather bed.

The list of killed is as follows: Maggie McBride, teacher of the Field school, five miles south of Paw Paw; Carrie White, Winnie Berry, Jennie Bradley, Lena Prentice, Robbie O. Derkirk, Edna Hunt, Ada Rudolph and Peter Reams, killed near the school house; George Politsch, wife and two children; Mrs. Littler of Sublette.

The storm began in the outskirts of Sublette on the Illinois Central Railroad, where it struck the house of Mrs. Littler and killed her instantly. From this point the storm passed north by northeast and came in south of Compton, where it carried away the home of George Politsch and killed the whole family. Changing direction at this point the terrible destroyer swooped down toward the east, and when within three miles of Paw Paw struck the Field school. School was out and all the children had gone home excepting the seven who were killed with their teacher. These were waiting for the heavy rain to cease.

A large number of the citizens of Paw Paw and the surrounding country visited the scene within half an hour, among them the parents of the children who had been in the building. All the children were found at points around the school, some of them being picked up a mile away.

One Killed, Ten Injured.

WEST BROOKLYN, Ill., June 21.—At 4.15 p. m. yesterday a cyclone passed about three miles south of here. Trees were leveled and a number of farm houses and buildings were blown down. About 10 persons were injured, but only one killed. Many horses and cattle were killed.

A False Rumor.

EARLVILLE, Ill., June 21.—The rumor that Pawpaw was completely demolished and 17 people killed is false, no injury being done to person or property there. The storm came from the southwest, striking near Sublette and doing considerable damage, passing just south of Pawpaw, where it rose above the ground and did no further damage.

The Hoosier Capital Visited.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 21.—This afternoon while thousands of people were at Fairview Park a rain and wind storm sprung up. As many as could sought shelter in the depot which is being erected by the electric street railroad. It was blown down and a dozen people injured, the following seriously: Mrs. McCoy, bruised about the loins; Noah Fisher, colored; Mrs. Jennie Miller, Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Magee, Nellie Carr, colored, fatally.

Reports from the suburbs show that many buildings were unroofed and much damage done to orchards, etc.

About 5 o'clock Sunday morning Daniel Hurdle, aged 24, was drowned while bathing in White River.

At noon Michael Flynn was thrown beneath an electric car and had both legs and an arm broken. He will die.

NIAGARA TRAGEDIES.

A Boat, Thought to Contain a Human Being, Goes Over the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 21.—It is thought that still another human life has been lost by passing over Niagara Falls. At 6.05 this morning an object was noticed floating down the river, about midway between the American and Canadian shores, and as it neared Port Day man whose attention had been directed to it discovered that it was a small boat. From the distance it was impossible to see if the craft had an occupant. It floated down calmly enough until the line of rapids of the Horseshoe fall was reached, when it was tossed in all directions. Jesse Shoebridge, a boat-builder who lives at Port Day, procured a pair of marine glasses and says that when about opposite the Three Sister Islands it lurched to one side and a dark object was visible in the bottom of the boat, but whether it was a human form or not he was unable to determine. The boat soon passed out of sight. Mr. Shoebridge says that this is the second boat which has gone over the falls this week, as one went down the river Tuesday morning. The latter, however, he is positive did not contain anything.

A body of a man was found in the river June 19 by John Wagner. Coroner Robinson of Lewiston was notified and held an inquest over the remains the afternoon of that day. The man was about six feet high, and one peculiarity about him was that the first finger of the left hand was contracted. The top of his head was gone, one shoulder and knee were dislocated. The probability is that the body came over the Falls. Another floater was found on the lake shore June 20. From the description of the clothing, etc., it is supposed to be young Glancey of Queenston, Ont. It had not been in the water a very long time.

The body of Mrs. John Reagan of Niagara Falls, who committed suicide about three weeks ago by jumping into Niagara River from Prospect Park Point, above the American Falls, was found to-day at Olcott, on Lake Ontario. She attempted suicide two years ago, but was prevented by a policeman.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Street Railway Bylaw Carried by an Overwhelming Majority.

TORONTO, June 23.—The street railway bylaw carried by a sweeping majority on Saturday. In all there were 5881 votes polled and 5470 of these were in favor of the city being empowered to borrow money to acquire the railway. The bylaw thus is sustained by a majority of 5059. In no ward was there a majority against the bylaw.

A peculiar and distressing accident occurred on Saturday evening in Church-street, which resulted in the death of Mr. Edwin T. Coates, a promising young musician living at 75 Huntley-street. About 5 o'clock Mr. Coates was on horseback and riding up Church-street, when he attempted to pass between a street car and a load of hay, which at that moment was passing along Queen-street in an easterly direction. Unfortunately for Mr. Coates, a pole, which protruded from the rear end of the wagon, caught him by the right leg and threw him to the ground with terrible force. He alighted on his head, fracturing the base of the skull. He was immediately carried into the drug store at the corner, where restoratives were applied, but to no avail, as he never recovered consciousness. The ambulance was summoned and bore the injured man to his former boarding house at 16 Earle-street. He lingered until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, when he died.

Mr. Corby, M.P., had an interview with the Minister of Justice yesterday morning, with a view to getting two prisoners now in the Penitentiary either liberated or their sentences shortened. On Sept. 28, 1886, Herman Lloyd and Geo. Lloyd of Hastings County were both sentenced to seven years in the Penitentiary for criminally assaulting a woman. They pleaded not guilty, their counsel setting forth that it was a case of blackmail. The same woman previous to this brought a similar charge against Albert Lloyd, but the judge dismissed it. Sir John Thompson promised Mr. Corby to look into the matter.

An Original Package Decision.

OTTAWA, Kan., June 22.—The Kansas Chautauqua Assembly has been in session here for two or three days. No sooner had it got in good running order than a Kansas City liquor dealer opened an original package saloon. This incensed the temperance people of Ottawa and last night they met and formed a defence league. Three thousand dollars was subscribed to pay the league's expenses, and a resolution was passed unanimously providing that a committee should capture each original package dealer, tar and feather him and ship him back to Missouri, labelled "An original package from Kansas for Missouri."

THE KEY TO AFRICA.

SAID TO BE NOW IN THE KEEPING OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Salisbury's Great Bargain—England's Lot Cast With Germany—Why the French Object to the Settlement—Stanley's Enthusiastic Visions.

LONDON, June 21.—The first news of Lord Salisbury's German treaty was both a surprise and a shock. England relinquishes and Germany acquires Heligoland as one part of a large bargain. On both sides a price is paid for all that is ceded or gained. The question is whether the price is adequate.

Lord Salisbury is far too able a Foreign Minister not to take into account the gain of German goodwill. Having to elect between France and Germany, and knowing, as every European statesman knows, that no beneficial understanding for general European purposes can possibly be had with both together, he has cast the lot of England with Germany. Had Mr. Gladstone been in power, he would have chosen, not Germany but France. The cession of Heligoland is, in fact, a part of a much larger policy than appears on the surface. It is meant to strengthen and perpetuate the existing Anglo-German amity. That is equivalent to saying that it is ill-received in France. Italy and Austria are as content as France is bitter.

A question has been asked in both Houses about Heligoland, but the Gladstonians seem not quite clear what line they may finally take on the whole question. Lord Rosebery's question to Lord Salisbury, whether the consent of the people of Heligoland had been obtained, sounds like an echo from the Midlothian speeches of his leader. Lord Salisbury answered dryly that he had not thought it necessary to take a plebiscite. The cession depends on the authorization of Parliament, but though there will be debate there is no probability that Parliament will refuse to sanction Lord Salisbury's act. To refuse would be to throw out the Ministry.

So far as the African part of this Anglo-German agreement is concerned, Mr. Stanley's approval has satisfied the British public that the bargain is a good one for England. He feared that England meditated surrendering 150,000 square miles in Africa. She keeps all these and gets another half million miles beside. The great explorer has a vision of British civilization advancing in Darkest Africa and improving the nations of Uganda and Unyoro—6,000,000 of the finest people in Africa. It is the day of days which has come for Africa. Christianity is to reign, with the Union Jack waving over the pulpit. Not less is he delighted by the recovery of Zanzibar. The Germans had actually got their big, powerful paw on Zanzibar; now they have taken it off. And it is an island which does $10,000,000 annual trade with England. In this, as in other passages of Mr. Stanley's fine Newcastle speech, you hear the clink of the dollar curiously mingled with hallelujahs.

Major Wissmann's dislike of the treaty will content the English not less than Mr. Stanley's approval of it. That rather blustering warrior has not yet been heard from directly, but his second in command, Lieutenant von Gravenreuth, declares himself painfully surprised by the agreement, especially by the surrender of Zanzibar, which he regards as the key of Africa. Others than he also regard it as the key. G.W.S.

Britain's Zanzibar Protectorate.

PARIS, June 21.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Deloncle put an interpellation regarding the British protectorate in Zanzibar. He contended that the Anglo-French declaration of 1862, which contained a pledge of mutual non-interference in Zanzibar and assured the independence of the Sultan, had not fallen into abeyance, and Great Britain before establishing a protectorate in Zanzibar must ask the consent of France.

M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replied that the act of the Berlin conference rendered it obligatory upon every nation desirous of establishing a protectorate in Africa to communicate its intentions to the other powers. Great Britain would not fail to fulfil her obligation, especially in view of the fact that in 1862 she signed a convention binding her to respect the independence of Zanzibar. She could not interfere or take any action without a previous understanding with France. In conclusion he said:

"The Government has received no communication from Great Britain on the subject. While respecting our own rights we desire to preserve the best relations with that country, in any case it is not by declarations from the tribune that one can enter into communication with other nations." [Cheers.]

M. Deloncle thanked M. Ribot for his statement.

France's South American Hopes.

PARIS, June 21.—The reception of Senhor Itajuba, the representative of Brazil, by President Carnot yesterday completed the first official recognition which the Brazilian Republic has received in Europe. M. Deloncle, a member of the French Chamber of Deputies, states that France has only recognized the Brazilian Republic now on condition that the Brazilian Government make a prompt settlement of its old territorial dispute with France respecting the boundaries of French Guiana. M. Deloncle claims that no settlement can be made which will not double the territory of French Guiana, and there is a possibility of France's getting territory five or six times as great as is now included in the French colony. In any case, he insists, France cannot fail to secure the left bank of the Amazon between Macapa and the sea. Macapa will thus become a French port and France will be the only European power established on the Amazon and will have the privilege of navigating and trading on that river, the wealth of which in the future Deloncle thinks will surpass that of the Nile or the Congo.

Justin McCarthy Censured.

DUBLIN, June 21.—At a meeting of the Nationalist electors of Newry to-day resolutions were adopted censuring Justin Huntley McCarthy for persistent neglect of his Parliamentary duties and declaring that at the next election a candidate will be elected in his stead.

LONDON, June 23.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught landed at Liverpool this morning and proceeded to Windsor. The Queen, Princess Beatrice and Prince Henry of Battenburg, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge and the children of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught were at the station to greet the travelers and there was a general embracing. A family dinner was given at the castle to-night.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, JUNE 23, 1890.

HOW IS THIS?

THE last issue of the Lindsay Post, the Liberal organ of that town, contains the following:—

"Mr. Thos. Walters, superintendent of public works, accompanied by Messrs. Anell Mills and Wm. Walters, left town Tuesday morning for Mississauga lake (better known as Gull lake) in Cavendish township, to inspect a dam that is being constructed on that stream to admit of the timber cut during the past season by Rathbun & Co., of Deseronto, on Scott's old limits, being floated into Little Bald lake. The building of the dam will raise the water in Gold, Ketchecum, Beaver and several other connecting lakes, and will be of great advantage to the lumbermen. Mr. Sam Britton conveyed the party to Scott's mills in the 'Jules Lapiante,' from which point a ten-mile portage had to be made by wagon. The party returned yesterday (Thursday)."

Does not the Post know that this dam will be of no use to the lumberman, that the Examiner has said so, and that "the first practical result" of the building of the dam was to be the placing of a steamer on Gull lake to gather milk for a cheese factory?

And does not the Post also know that Gull lake is to be "a popular summer resort?" If it does, what does it mean by talking of a ten-mile portage in a waggon to reach there? The Examiner should send its Lindsay confrere its own peculiar copy of the geography of the Gull lake neighborhood and not permit it to remain in such ignorance of the reasons why the Government is building this dam.

How would it do for the Globe to republish its articles regarding Mr. Ed. Farrer's mission to Washington on the day that he assumes his duties as its principal editorial writer?

IT would have been a fortunate thing if this common sense opinion had been urged upon the Republican sub committee at Washington instead of the sinister advice to the effect that a hostile tariff would scare Canada into annexation.—Lindsay Post.

The Post might go a little further and explain who gave the sinister advice and also what position he will hold after July 1st.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Important Notice.

It is a well known fact that there is a certain waste and decay that takes place continually in the human body, and it therefore follows that if the body is to be sustained and nourished—if provision is to be made for its growth and increase—new material must be as constantly furnished as the old [redacted]

It is to [redacted] new material to supply the place of the destroyed structures that food is taken into the body.

With infants the tissues waste as well as with older people, and the infant body requires a properly prepared, and easily digested food for its growth and nourishment.

It is generally conceded by the medical profession that the mothers' milk, when pure and healthy, is the safest and most nourishing food; but unfortunately circumstances frequently occur, which prevents the mother nursing her child; and at times, even where the mothers' milk is all that could be desired as an element of nutriment it happens that the digestive organism of the child is in such a condition, that the giving of nature's food is a positive injury.

To obviate these grave troubles, "Lactated Food" was prepared, and is acknowledged by physicians to be the only properly prepared food for weak and impaired digestion, and for general infantile nutrition.

It is now well known that "Lactated Food" is of great value and benefit not only to the infant, but to the young and old generally who have weak stomachs, and whose organs of digestion are at times unable to digest strong foods and meals.

The best medical authorities have freely given an opinion to the effect—that it would be impossible to devise a food more nourishing and strengthening, and at the same time so well adapted for defective assimilation.

Disinfectants.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR [redacted] to inquiries as to the best [redacted] for use during summer I would again say that one of the safest, cheapest, and most effective is ordinary bluestone (sulphate of copper) dissolved in the proportion of two pounds to a pailful of water. This should be freely sprinkled every three or four weeks in places requiring it. A liberal use of this around yards and premises will keep down many of those minor varieties of disease which are distinctly due to zymotic influence as well as those more severe forms which prostrate the system and endanger life.

Yours, &c.,
J. CLARKE, M.D.

The benefits of vacation season may be greatly enhanced, if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A good appetite, fresh vigor, and buoyant spirits attend the use of this wonderful medicine.

THE SUMMER BALL DRESS

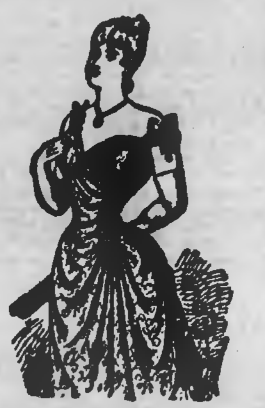
TOILETS FOR SEASIDE HOPS AND GAIETIES.

The Smart Dancing Dress and How it is Made—Airy Robes That Might be Worn by Fairies in the "Midsummer Night's Dream"—Lace Net and Tulles.

Five out of every ten smart ball dresses this summer are white. Two out of the remaining five are a light mauve. Red has vanished from evening wear. Pale pink gauzes, greens and many shades of lilac are seen. Next to these comes a silver gray. Pale blue and green blue are noted, and black tulle flowered with splendid gold embroidery.

The summer ball dress touches the ground. Though the empire body, at least in literal, short-waisted rendering, has disappeared from daylight toilets, it is still noted, with sash through which is threaded a bunch of flowers, for evening. The skirt of a ball gown is never less than two yards and a half wide, often it is fuller. To make the flimsy tulle stand out well in the absence of dress steels a silk petticoat is resorted to. This is fulled up the back with narrow plaited flounces, each flounce edged with lace. Lest this should not be sufficient, the hem of the foundation skirt has a ruche on the outside of the edge all around, and is lined half a yard up with stiffening. Sometimes this ruche at the foot is of pink silk, sometimes it has flowers nestling in it. Over this the lime or tulle falls full, but the number of veils is less than formerly.

The modern maiden doesn't call for more than three layers above the silk or satin foundation—satin, I believe, is preferred—and of these the innermost is quite likely to be not carefully matching the gauze but a trifle less cobweb-like and fragile. This skirt is straight and plain in the back; in front it may be draped slightly. Some of the quaint empire gowns allow only one straight veil of tulle over the foundation in front, but in this case it is well to have the tulle embroidered and the foundation slip very pretty. Neo-Greek draperies are charming over slips of China silk, the shade of the nets and gauzes. The slip is cut often as a princess dress, and over this the lace, tulle or net hangs in classic folds. Sometimes the tulle hangs like a straight Greek apron, but is caught up on one side with flowers.



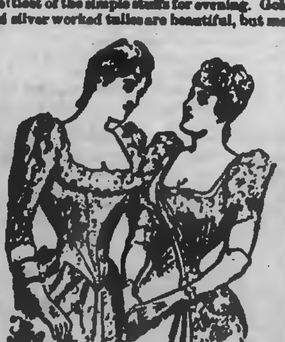
GREEK DRAPERIES.

Airy Skirts, Tight Bodice.

By what seems to be a generally recognized law of contrast, the airier and more floating the skirt the tighter and more trig the bodice, as if a small-waisted nereid were rising from the foamy waves. Soft-ribbed silks are chosen for bodices, or satin, striped silk, velvet or armure royal. When the gown is green, green velvet is almost invariable. Pointed bodices are noted in the Paris importations, laced in the back and edged with flowers about the decolletage, or draped with tulle. The lace tucker, which was banished last season, is not re-established, though it is often seen. The empire bodices still fold over, crossing front and back and ending in a sash belt, which, however, is no longer wide enough to mount to the bust, but contents itself with more modest proportions. Recamier folds or tulle boas or dainty scarfs of silk gauze trim the low-necked corsages.

As for sleeves, the short puff is in evidence, but newer are short, draped sleeves that wrinkle loosely but do not stand up on the shoulders. Sometimes these are gathered to a point above and fixed with a flat bow, not an upstanding one, or a knot of flowers.

The plain tulles of last season are not liked in many shades. In white and in lilac they are fashionable. Dotted stripes in white are newer or stripes alternating with plain surfaces embroidered with vines and tiny flowers and leaves. Figured foulards in white are the prettiest of the simple stuffs for evening. Gold and silver worked tulles are beautiful, but metal spangled tulles are considered good in black only. Beaded gauzes with hanging pendants are pretty and frail, but as highly favored as any fabric is the diaphanous mousseline de soie, an exquisite texture often shown figured with passion flowers or pomegranate blossoms.



NEW SLEEVES.

Styles in Artificial Flowers.

The wearing of natural flowers cannot be depended on to last after the really hot weather comes on, though one modiste says she expects to see natural daisies used to garland young girls' dancing toilets the whole season. In artificial flowers the velvet bloom are best liked. They go best with the now popular velvet ribbons. For bodice trimmings white roses edge the decolletage, or the bertha may be entirely of pink roses. Triple sprays are sometimes allowed to come from the shoulders and cross on the bosom. For the skirt, fringes of roses are used at the bottom, or a long garland may start on one side, just below the waist, and be caught across the front or hang straight to the hem. Natural green leaves are often tied in with artificial blooms.

A dress designed for the wife of an English officer who is to spend the summer at the seaside is of pale blue satin. The front and the train are embroidered with pink poppies and jet wheat. The bodice is sleeveless, there being simply a strip of black velvet ribbon to hold it up over the shoulders.

For a young woman, who will summer at the seaside, was finished a fortnight ago a gown of transparent yellow Indian crepe with a Cleopatra bodice of yellow surah and eastern girdle and trimmings of golden passementerie. The prettiest feature about this toilet is the loose, gauzy, but not too voluminous crepe sleeves.

A couple of costumes received by an important house are significant of the drift of summer fashions. One is made of creamy mousseline de soie figured with sweet peas. It is made up over a princess slip of cream-colored surah and there is a low bodice of the silk, while transparent folds of the muslin are drawn from the shoulders across the bosom and banded with ribbons coming from under the arms. The bands are pinned by antique gold buckles. The sleeves are light folds of the muslin very short and high. The second toilet is a pale mauve corded silk—the worst of this mauve is that it spoils the effect of most of the white gowns which it approaches—with a scarf of gauze of the same color fastened at the edge of the open bodice and carried down the front in bretelles. Gauze dotted with amethyst pendants covers the front and sides of the skirt, and the straight folds are caught up on the left with wistaria blossoms.

For a blonde girl is a pretty silk toilet in white and rosy lilac striped silk with short sleeves, half low bodice and lavish garniture of white roses and foliage. The fates are good to young girls who dance. The cloudlike fabrics meant to float mistlike in summer ballrooms grow in beauty and multiply on every hand. And even for the maid who sighs for such "dear delights and sighs in vain" there is comfort, for can she not take an old silk skirt left from last season and cover it with white organdie, with ballet skirts and baby waist and lace edgings! Gowns to be worn under gaslight will always admit of greater makeshifts than those which appear by day.

The Care of the Hair.

A woman who has been for many years at the head of a large hair dressing establishment expresses the opinion that the average woman drowns the life of her hair by frequent washings. For cleaning the heads of customers whom she visits twice a week she uses not a drop of water, but pins her faith to a good brush, a short bristled, narrow brush, backed with wood, rather than one of the elaborate articles in silver or ivory, and the way she operates is as follows:

"The first thing to do when the hair is unpinned is to loosen it by lightly tossing it about. The operation need not tangle it, and as the tresses are being aired they fall into natural lengths. Instead of beginning at the scalp the first combing should start at the end of the hair. In other words, comb upwards to avoid tangling, breaking and tearing the hair out. This raking of the hair will remove considerable dust. The scalp should be cleaned in spots and sections, and a fine tooth comb is indispensable. It is not necessary to draw the comb down through the hair. Dandruff can be removed by combing the surface where it has accumulated, and by slanting the fine comb it may be brought from the scalp without having to go the whole length of the hair. As I said before, when the head skin has been loosened, a thorough brushing is all that is required to remove it. By thorough I mean to spend a full hour, first brushing the head and then the hair to free it from the scurf and eruptions of skin. Frequently this can be accomplished by shaking out or fanning the hair, and subsequent brushing will give the hair the glossy, silky finish for which so much pomade is used."

Summer Gowns.

It will be the fashion to show a great deal of neck this summer, writes Miss Mantisini, in Pall Mall Budget. All the summer dresses are cut remarkably low. Some are cut in a quaint fashion with a lace or muslin ruffle; others are shaped like a V in front. This is a pretty style for girls, but it is utterly unsuited for a woman out of the twenties. I have seen some charming frocks in spotted or sprigged muslin for youthful wearers. An example was of white muslin with a pink flower. The bodice was made with a few folds, and a yoke run into tiny tucks. It fitted inside the skirt. This dress was cut very low at the neck and ornamented with a linen ruffle. The blown sleeves had ruffles at the wrists.

Summer Scarfs.

The gauzy scarfs that may be wound round the head and shoulders are not likely to be omitted from the summer wraps very soon. They are far too advantageous at times. When fan and parasol are laid aside and the cool breeze sweeps over the moonlit piazza, what so piquantly useful or picturesque as this gypsyish drapery? The black lace scarfs, somewhat too sombre for evening, but the handiest things in the world for day, can be bought now in very pretty patterns, fair quality and size for $5.—N. Y. Times.

The Connemara Wraps.

The great Connemaras of black lace are to those with Spanish tastes the most beautiful and effective of the summer wraps. Although one leading house says: "We are not making them this year; they pull and sag, and are altogether unsatisfactory," yet very elegant ones are offered and purchased. There are variations of the Connemara in the full-length silk coats with Spanish sleeves of lace falling to the bottom, but the genuine peasant is the handsomest.—New York Times.

THEY TOOK THE TOWN.

A Negro Dance in an Indiana Village Winds Up With a Murder.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 22.—Last night the negroes had a big dance at Haughville, and all got drunk. About midnight one of them, named Pete Carpenter, got into a row with Patrick Horn, an Irishman, and Horn was cut with a razor. This victory made the negroes hilarious and early this morning they started out to take the town. Marshal Dillon was called and with Andy Moore attempted to quell the disturbance. They arrested one man and one woman and started with them to the station when they were attacked by the whole mob, the negroes brandishing knives and razors.

They soon began firing revolvers. About 15 shots were fired, one of them taking effect in the marshal's back, passing through his body and lodging under the skin of his abdomen. It passed through the spleen and intestines and is necessarily fatal. Dillon is dying to-night. Pete Carpenter has been arrested for cutting Horne, and Allen Ross for shooting Dillon. They were brought to this city to avoid danger of mob violence.

A Run on a Chicago Bank.

CHICAGO, June 21.—As a result of the closing up of the Park National Bank yesterday, there was a run to-day on the Thirty-first Street Bank. This was due to the fact that the president is also vice-president of the Park National. All calls, however, were promptly met, and some heavy depositors increased [redacted] The officers of the bank [redacted] meet all demands.

John L. Ready For Trial.

PURVIS, Miss., June 22.—John L. Sullivan, accompanied by Duncan B. Harrison, the actor, arrived here this morning. It is understood Muldoon, Cleary and Donovan will be in Richburg to-night and to-morrow. The party will return to Purvis and stand trial, which will begin Tuesday, for aiding and abetting the Sullivan-Kilrain fight at Richburg.

They Came Handy.

A Mobile sailor paid seventy-five cents for a pair of suspenders made of 'possum skin and for a time he felt that he had been cheated. The other day, however, as he sailed away for Mexico the schooner capsized and he drifted about for five days, and it was only by eating those suspenders that he saved his life.

About the "Y."

The young women's hall, 426½ George-st, will be open every Sunday afternoon during the summer. This will be found a cool, quiet spot, with abundance of interesting literature, Sunday Magazine, Sunday at Home and other interesting periodicals. Young women who have no definite plans for spending the hours of Sabbath afternoon are cordially invited to drop in and enjoy the privileges of the institution.

Saturday evening "open hall" will be discontinued during the hot weather.

The members of the "Y" are working away quietly on plans for their "Trade Carnival," which they hope to present in a few weeks.

A prominent citizen of Hamilton says of the undertaking: "The enterprise of the Young Women's Union is deserving of the success which I trust it will meet."

The young ladies of the "Y" hope that our Peterborough citizens will not be behind those of Hamilton in recognizing their enterprising spirit, and that the effort will receive practical sympathy from all.

Flower Mission Committee begins duty next Wednesday. Contributions of flowers will be gratefully received at the hall.

To strengthen the hair, thicken the growth, stop it blanching and falling out, and where it is gray to restore the youthful color, use Hall's Hair Renewer.

TWO VICTORIES IN ONE DAY.

The Peterborough Cricketers Win Two Matches at Lindsay on Saturday.

The Peterborough's played two matches with the Lindsay Collegiate Institute team on Saturday, and defeated them in both. The first game was chiefly remarkable for low scoring, Lindsay getting 29 and 21 and Peterborough 44 and 8 for no wickets. Hamilton and Grubbe did most of the run-getting for Peterborough with 13 to 16 not out. Attewell's bowling was most destructive. He got 14 wickets for 19 runs in this match, while Turnbull also bowled well.

As the first match was finished so early (3 o'clock), a return was immediately begun. Peterborough batted first and scored 104, Burnham getting a fine 25, Turnbull (who had a rattling finer) and Long 20 each, and McGill, who showed most promising form for a colt, 16. Lindsay could only muster 29 (Montgomery 15.)

The play of the two Peterborough colts, McGill and Grubbe, was worthy of all praise. They were both heartily applauded for their work.

The scores of the two games were as follows:—

Among the Churches.

Rev. Dr. Parsons, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit at St. Paul's church yesterday at both the morning and evening services. On both occasions the eloquent divine delivered forcible and able discourses to large congregations. Rev. Mr. Torrance was preaching in Knox church, Toronto, yesterday, the two rev. gentlemen having exchanged.

Rev. Mr. Peer, of Norwood, preached at both services in the Murray-st. Baptist church yesterday.

A meeting of the Endeavor Union will be held in the Murray-st. Baptist church this evening. The meeting will be an interesting one, as the delegates to the St. Louis international convention will present their reports.

Next Sunday will be Children's Day at St. Paul's church, and special sermons will be delivered to the children of the Sunday school.

Rev. M. L. Pearson, pastor of the George-st. Church, who goes to Orangeville, preached his last sermons as pastor of the George-st. Church yesterday. At the close of the sermon last night he thanked the congregation heartily for the kindness they had shown him. He asked them to give a royal reception to his successor, Rev. Joseph Locke, and to stand loyally by him, as he knew they would. He had told Mr. Locke that he would find this congregation to be as kind a people as he had ever known, and they would find Mr. Locke to be an earnest and devoted man, under whose ministrations a great religious revival would take place. Mr. Pearson, through his removal to Orangeville, becomes a member of the Toronto Conference, and at a meeting of the Conference in Toronto he was unanimously elected to the same position in it as he had held in the Bay of Quinte Conference, namely, Chairman of a district. This was an unusual courtesy and honor to a new member of a Conference, but it was one that Mr. Pearson's colaborers in this Conference will learn of with pleasure.

The fine anthem rendered by the George-st. church choir under Mr. Seward's direction at Sunday evening service was well received, and elicited favorable comment. While the lady singers sang admirably—as they invariably do—the increased volume of tone and facility of execution given by the bass singers was noticeable and showed a marked improvement. The choir is rapidly progressing under Mr. Seward's mastership.

Returning to India.

Rev. James Smith, B.A., wife and child, of Mariposa, brother-in-law of Mr. John Nugent, of town, with a friend, Miss Gordon, will sail for India on the 28th inst., in the interest of the Presbyterian missionary society. Their station will be Ahmednagar, in Bombay Presidency, where Mr. Smith and wife have already spent ten years, one result of their labours being the establishment of a college with some three hundred pupils and is practically self-supporting so far as church aid is concerned.

A Writ for Slander.

The Empire to-day says:—A writ was issued on Saturday morning at Osgoode hall by Messrs. Murdock and Tytler, acting on behalf of Gilbert Vanderpool, a piano agent, of Peterborough, against George Logan, for slander, the damages being placed at $2,000. Vanderpool claims that Logan, with whom he was formerly, had stated to a number of people in Forest that he was a confidence man, a swindler, a three-card monte man and a scoundrel.

Liquor Cases Dismissed.

Three enlarged liquor cases were called at the police court this morning. Jos. Brault, charged with selling on Sunday, 15th June, W. Kenneally was up on a similar charge and Mr. J. Carew it was alleged had sold liquor on Sunday, May 18th. A young man, who it is said told certain parties that he got liquor in these places, was called as the witness for the prosecution, but in each case he denied having received any liquor. The cases were therefore all dismissed.

Personal

A Denver, Col., paper of June 19th says: —"Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, Principal of St. John's College, accompanied by Mrs. Bradshaw, leaves for Peterborough, Ontario, tomorrow evening, where he intends spending his vacation. Mr. Bradshaw is an example of what Colorado air will do for a man with weak lungs who seeks it in time." The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw will be pleased to learn that their vacation will be spent here.

About Advertising.

A long and extensive apprenticeship is generally necessary to achieve success at advertising. You may have an "invention" that will revolutionize things, or a wonderful "remedy" which will cure everything but a broken heart, but don't imagine the long-suffering public is yearning for either, or that a little advertising will cause the ducats to flow in with a steady stream. It is keeping steadily at it, selling a good article, giving full value, prompt and attentive brings custom, just as it does customers for Hawley Bros. teas, the finest, best in quality and price the town affords. Try Hawley Bros., George-st., for teas. d144

Flower Thieves.

On Saturday night or early Sunday morning sneak thieves paid a visit to several residences in the upper part of the town and carried away valuable house plants which had been left standing on the verandahs. On Water-st. north, several houses were visited and plants taken, while similar visits were made, probably by the same parties, on Downie-st. In every instance the choicest plants were selected. One lady who was awakened by the noise of a waggon and looking out saw a man and two women in a democrat waggon to which was attached a white horse. The waggon was well filled with flowers. If caught these sneaking thieves should be severely dealt with.

THE TRANSIENT TRADERS' BY-LAW.

Police Magistrate Dumble's Judgment in the Dunnett Case—The Charge Dismissed.

At the Police Court this morning Police Magistrate Dumble delivered judgment in the case of Rossel vs. Dunnett, the case that was heard on Thursday last, in which Mr. J. W. Dunnett was charged with being a transient trader and selling goods without a license. The Magistrate's judgment was as follows:—

The information charges that J. W. Dunnett being a transient trader did sell goods without a license as provided by by-law of the town of Peterborough.

The evidence and admissions disclose that J. W. Dunnett, a merchant of Belleville, purchased the bankrupt stock of one M. Sullivan, a merchant of Peterborough, and that Mr. Dunnett is selling that stock of dry goods at Peterborough in the shop recently occupied by Sullivan, advertising and offering it as a bankrupt stock, having secured from the assignee the right to occupy the shop until the end of the month. The advertisements put in state that the stock must be sold within 30 days. The arrangement for a continuous occupancy of the shop has not yet been made. Mr. Dunnett is not assessed for income or for personal property. Mr. Sullivan is assessed for the shop and stock for 1890.

Some of the stock was shipped away by Mr. Dunnett and some new stock consisting of staples has been added in order to assist in the sale of the bankrupt stock.

The ground of complaint urged is that by reason of the introduction of the new stock Mr. Dunnett loses the benefit of the saving clause in the Municipal Act, in favor of persons selling the stock of an insolvent estate in the municipality where the insolvent carried on business at the time of the execution of the assignment.

The evidence shows that it is customary for persons selling bankrupt stocks to introduce some staples in order to draw trade and work off the bankrupt.

I am of opinion that the reason transient traders are not allowed to sell without paying for the privilege to the municipality is that assigned in the 9th subsection of sec. 489, of the Municipal Act as amended by 51 vic. cap. 28, sec. 22. That is, because they have not been in that municipality assessed for income on personal property.

But when it is a bankrupt stock that is being sold and it is sold in the municipality were the insolvent carried on business, then this license is not imposed evidently because the former owner of that stock was not an occupant of the premises for a temporary period, but was a permanent resident who was subject to the ordinary municipal assessments. That stock then which got all the benefit of municipal government and protection, having been in the municipality some time, is supposed to have paid its way, and when transferred to a buyer who offers it for sale in its own home, that buyer is not called upon to pay a special license as is required to be done by persons bringing a stock into the municipality, occupying for a temporary period, selling the goods and going away without paying any municipal tax.

If Mr. Sullivan had continued on in business he could have introduced all the staples he pleased and he could have sold for a song and yet he would not have been called upon to pay a license. Having been assessed in the ordinary way he would pay his ordinary taxes. The taxes on the shop which was assessed at $4,000 will be paid, as it can be made out of the land. The assessment of $1,600 for stock and income would perhaps give the town $15 at the usual rates of taxation in Peterborough, but he would not have to pay the license fee which the by-law in question imposes on transient traders, to wit $50.

I do not think the introduction of a few staples, the better to enable the sale of the bankrupt stock, should operate to deprive Mr. Dunnett of the benefit of the provision of the Act which declares that "no such by-law shall affect, apply to or restrict the sale of the stock of an insolvent estate which is being sold or disposed of within the county in which the insolvent carried on business at the time of the execution of an assignment." I think a fair interpretation of the Act will not justify an enquiry as to whether a few staples have been introduced into the bankrupt stock to facilitate the sale, and if so found, the imposition of this heavy license. I am aware that merchants in the regular trade object to the sale of bankrupt stocks in competition with their sales of goods which cost them 100 cents on the dollar, but the municipal law does not seek to interfere with trade, but simply to protect the municipality from being imposed on by a class of people who do not contribute to the support of the municipal governments for the benefits they enjoy. In this case the sale of the stock in question effects the municipality in no way more prejudicially than if sold by the insolvent and, as it is not the policy of the law to impose burdens of taxation where there is not the clearest intention to do so, and as no precedent has been quoted to justify my doing so, I must hold that Mr. Dunnett is not liable to pay license as a transient trader.

It was objected that the by-law of the town was not framed in harmony with sec. 28 of chap. 26 of 51 vic., Ontario Statutes, in that it does not provide for the crediting on account of taxes such sum as may be paid for a license or for the exception in case of the sale of a bankrupt stock. I do not adjudge on this point as I think the other reasons given sustain my judgment.

The complaint is dismissed without costs.

Police Magistrate.

SHE HAD REHEARSED HERSELF.

A Plucky Little Woman Who Got Her Name on the Bill.

There is a little actress now playing modest parts, who is not well known and who will never be known to the public, says the New York Tribune, but she is an example of the plucky American girl who has to make her living, and perseveres in her work. The writer was told of her case by a theatrical manager, who was telling of the rough paths a company has often to tread when on the road. It was in a town out west where the company was to play only three nights that three of the actresses fell ill. One of them played the leading part, and while the troupe was on the road there was only one understudy—the one for the leading lady. The leading lady had been ill for several days, but she hoped to appear that night as usual. Toward evening, however, she sent a message that her physician had insisted on her going to bed. This threw her part to her understudy. The manager was thrown into a panic a few minutes later by getting word that two more of his actresses were severely ill, as this left the three principal parts without those who regularly played them, and there was only one understudy.

But a theatrical manager is accustomed to facing hard tasks at short notice, and he at once set to work to reconstruct for one night his company. A woman who took a minor part was hastily rehearsed for the second role in point of importance. She did not make a success of it, but the manager breathed a sigh of relief when he had satisfied himself that she could stumble through her lines in a fairly decent fashion.

"Now," he said, having deposed of this knotty problem, "I must make some arrangement for this third part."

A little woman who was standing on the stage came forward and said firmly: "I would like to play that part."

She was one of those women who are to be found in every play, one who is a lady in waiting in one scene, a part of the mob in another, and perhaps one of a garden party in another—one who walks a great deal, changes her gowns many times, but never says anything. When she volunteered to try the part the manager was vexed.

"Why," said he curtly, "you have never had a line, have you?"

"Not many," she answered simply.

"You haven't two hours to learn the lines."

"Oh, I know them very well. Won't you rehearse me?"

"Well," said the manager, doubtfully, "I suppose I must. We have got to do something. Come, let's try it."

As the quiet little woman with the serious eyes went over the lines a pleased smile spread over the manager's face. He nodded his head approvingly as she continued, and she, encouraged by his friendliness, lost her first shyness and ended with a fire and spirit which called forth from the worried manager a hearty cry of applause.

"Good!" he cried. "You do better than Miss M——, who is going to take the second part. Ah," he added, a shade of disappointment darkening his face, "if you only knew those lines."

"But I do," she said, delightedly.

"You do! Then rattle them off just as fast as your tongue can wag."

So they went through those lines, the manager becoming more and more cheerful. Miss M——, glad to be relieved of her responsibility, was rehearsed in the lines of the third part. The curtain was a few minutes late in rising that night, but it was a smiling and grateful manager who watched a little woman, whose name he had not thought to ask, save the company in so graceful a fashion. When the curtain came down on the last scene he asked her how she happened to know the lines.

"I learned them," was the happy reply. "I know all the lines in the play."

"But you rehearsed them so well?"

"Oh, I used to rehearse myself in my room after the play. I thought I could do it," she said, with a proud smile on her face.

The actress whose place she had assumed did not appear on the next night. She had been sent home seriously ill. When the play opened in the next town there was a new name on the program—a name which had never before been seen on any program, and the little woman whose pluck and intelligence had saved the company played that part for the rest of the season.

And So Was He.

A New Haven girl who married a Chinaman lived with him for two weeks and then applied for a divorce, alleged that she was greatly disappointed in his habits. On the other hand he says he'll be only too glad to get rid of her, as she insisted on using a knife and fork and doing other things which killed his love stone dead.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, JUNE 23, 1890.

THE LIMITED EXPRESS.

I was still searching when the train suddenly stopped with that new patented brake so good for accident, and so bad for passengers.

"Tonnerre. Twenty-five minutes for refreshments," sang out the conductor as he opened the door.

My neighbor got up, freed herself from her rugs, which she left in the carriage with her three little bags, and got out. It was noon. She was beginning to get hungry. She took her way to the buffet at the left on the other side of the track.

I followed her, admiring at my ease her charming figure, well set off in a long cloak which fitted her to perfection. I noticed also the pretty little dark curls under the knot of hair at the back, a hat of gray felt, and a pair of very little feet.

The proprietor of the restaurant arrayed in a velvet cap, and who bore a wonderful resemblance to Napoleon III., stood at the door and pointed out with much dignity and a wave of his napkin the long table which the travelers were to take by assault.

I was hustled along with a throng of disheveled and bundled-up passengers—the typical crowd of a fast express, essentially grotesque and utterly impossible from the standpoint of beauty—rushing to be fed.

I sat down and hastily devoured the succession of courses which were put before me. As for my fellow-traveler she took a cup of bouillon at a table by herself.

I was one of the first to finish, and went out to smoke a cigarette on the platform. The twenty-five minutes, reduced to twenty as usual, would soon be up. The travelers in groups were leaving the restaurant and taking their places in the train. I had resettled myself in mine. My little traveler had not appeared. I could see her at the little book stand, on the other side of the track, looking at the books spread out in a row. Her hair seemed a little lighter to me than before, but that was doubtless the effect of the distance. Everybody was on board; the guards were slamming the doors.

"Is she going to stay here?" I thought, "she is mad."

"Madame! Madame!" I called, out of the door. A shriek of a whistle—the train was going!

What was to be done! A thought struck my brain like a flash of lightning. She was going to be left behind in this frightfully cold weather, without her baggage or her raps. She might at least have her own belongings, the poor little thing.

I took up in one armful her three bags and her rugs, and, throwing them at a baggage man who happened to be standing on the track next the train.

"To that lady over there," I cried.

The baggage man took the things and started off toward the lady at the book stand.

At the same instant in the other end of the carriage, the side next the platform, the door opened and my fellow traveler appeared—frightened and hustled along by a cross conductor, threw herself into the seat, and the train departed. Horrors! I had mistaken the woman! The lady of the book stand was not she, after all—same cloak, same hat, same way of holding her head—but it was not she.

It was a traveler who was not traveling. How absurd that two women should look so alike. I had made a fine mess of it.

She hardly entered the carriage before she uttered a cry—"My bags—my bags have been stolen." And for the first time she looked at me, but, good heavens, with what a look! I'll never forget that look, you may be sure.

"No, madame," I stammered, "your bags are not stolen—they are—they are left at Tonnerre!"

"At Tonnerre! How——"

I explained it all to her. Lord! I won't attempt to describe the second look she gave me, but I think I shall remember that longer than the first.

"I am in despair, madame!" I exclaimed, "absolutely in despair, but my motive was a good one, I assure you. I thought you were going to miss the train, that you would catch cold and I did not want you to catch cold. In fact, if you will pardon my saying so, you need not worry about your bags they are in safe hands—a baggageman—at the next station you will telegraph—I will telegraph—we will telegraph—they will be sent on immediately. Oh! you will surely have them, I swear, if I have to return to Tonnerre myself to recover them."

"Enough, sir," she said, "I know perfectly what to do." And she sank into her corner again, angrily twisting her gloves.

But alas! poor little woman, she had not thought about the cold, and she no longer had her good, warm rugs. Before ten minutes were out she began to shiver. In vain she changed her position and drew her cloak closer about her pretty figure; she was positively chattering.

"Madame," I said, "I beg you on my knees take my rug. You will catch cold, which will be my fault, and I shall never forgive myself as long as I live."

"I wish to have nothing to say to you, sir," she said, dryly.

I was nervous and much excited. In the first place I thought her perfectly charming. In the next place I was furious at my idiotic mistake. In short I was ready for the most desperate steps.

"Madame," I said, "take my rug or I swear I will throw myself out on the track," and casting the rug between us I lifted the window and took hold of the outside handle of the door.

Was I really in earnest! Entre nous, not really, I suppose, but it seems I must have looked so for she cried out:

"But you are crazy, monsieur, you are crazy!"

"The rug or I jump." She took the rug and in a softened tone:

"But you, monsieur, you will die of cold."

"Don't disturb yourself about me, madame. I am not delicate—and even if I do take cold it will only be the just reward of my unpardonable stupidity."

"Say, rather your haste, for of course, as you say, your motive was good—but how could you have taken that other woman for me?"

"Because she was so pretty." She smiled, the ice was broken—the ice of conversation, I mean, for otherwise I was chattering with the cold. But how soon I forgot the cold, the journey—everything. She was delicious, exquisite, adorable, a clever mind, bright, gay, original. She was fond of traveling like myself—like myself she had been in Italy, in Spain. She dreamed of going to Egypt just as I did. In literature, music, in everything, in fact, the same tastes as mine. And then, only think, a host of mutual friends. . . . She was intimate with the Saint Chamas, with the Savoys, particularly with the Molle-Villes. And to think that I might have seen her twenty times at those houses, and that I had not noticed her. . . . Where were my eyes—I should like to know—where were my eyes!

She spoke freely, pleasantly, with that distinguished simplicity which I always so much admire, with a little, a very little, Southern accent—almost imperceptible, rather a lisp—giving a little bird-like sound to her voice. It was entrancing.

But, although I did everything to keep from showing it, heavens, how cold I was! At Dijon (3.10 p. m.) my right hand was seized with a cramp. We telegraphed to Tonnerre for the bags. At Macon (4.25 p. m.) the left foot went the same way. A dispatch from Tonnerre saying that the baggage would reach Marseilles the next day. At Lyon-Perrache (5.46 p. m.) my left hand became insensible. She forgot to claim her coupe-lit. At Valence (9.59 p. m.) my right hand followed the example of the left. I learned she was a widow without incumbrances. My nose turned a brilliant purple. I was given to understand that she had never loved her first husband. At Marseilles, finally (five minutes after midnight), I sneezed three times violently. She handed me my rug and said, graciously, "Au revoir."

"Au revoir!" I was in the seventh heaven!!! I passed the night at the hotel at Noailles. A restless night, filled with thoughts of her. The next day when I awoke I had the most terrific cold in the head that you could imagine. Did I dare present myself at the Rombauds' in such a state! Unfortunate, of course, but they knew I was on a journey—they will have to take me as I am and tomorrow I shall be cured in the sunshine of Nice!

But, my friend, what a surprise awaited me! That good fellow, Rombaud, had asked several friends to meet me and among these friends was she, my traveling companion, my enchantress.

When I was presented to her an imperceptible smile fluttered over her lips. I bowed.

"And Tonnerre!" I asked very low.

"I have them," she replied in the same tone.

We went into luncheon.

"What a cold you have, old fellow," said my friend Rombaud; "where the devil did you catch it? Traveling, perhaps."

"Perhaps," I replied, "but I really don't regret it." No one understood this curious reply, of course, but my fair fellow-traveler sent me a tender and sympathetic glance from across the fragrant fumes of the magnificent ragout which adorned the table and I was content.

What more shall I say, my dear fellow? I did not go to Nice next day, and I am to be married in a fortnight.—Jacques Normand.

THE BERTIE GAS WELLS.

St. Kitts and Other Towns to Have Cheap Light and Fuel Speedily.

BUFFALO, June 22.—A large contract for pipe has been secured by a Buffalo firm from the Provincial Natural Gas and Fuel Company of Toronto, which propose to begin at once the work of conveying the product of the Bertie wells to St. Catharines, Thorold, Merritton, Welland, Niagara Falls and villages of the Niagara district. The 8 wells of the company have a producing power of 12,783,000 cubic feet daily.

It is believed a company will be formed in this city to secure a supply of gas from the Bertie fields although they are in Canadian territory. The Buffalo firm which has secured the contract for pipe says that $250,000 will be spent on the St. Catharines plant and that inside of three months that city will be connected with the gas territory.

THE AMERICAN DERBY.

Won by Mr. George Hankin's Uncle Bob on a Slow Track.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Forty thousand persons saw George Hankins' Uncle Bob win the seventh American Derby of 1½ miles today, after one of the prettiest races that has ever been run on the Washington Park course. Owing to the heavy track the time was slow, 2.55¼. The winner was a heavy favorite in the betting, the best odds obtainable being 4 to 5. With ridiculous ease the noble Belle Meade beauty plunged forward down the long stretch of spongy mud and jumped past the judges the winner of $18,000 cash stakes and the first honors of the American Derby.

Seven horses faced the starter, the mare Mt. Lebanon, Ben Kingsbury, Uncle Bob, Santiago, Good-Bye, Jed and Sunny-Brook. They got away at the first trial—all in a bunch. At the first quarter Good-bye was a neck ahead of Ben Kingsbury, who was only a nose in front of Uncle Bob; Santiago was fourth. Passing the stand there was no change, but as the horses swung around the club house turn Sunny-Brook, who had been running in the rear, took the lead, Santiago took second place and Uncle Bob was held a good third by Kiley. Jed and Good-Bye were hopelessly beaten. As the horses went down the back stretch the pace became faster. Good-bye fell back twenty lengths and Jed was distanced. Santiago and Uncle Bob moved up jump by jump, Sunny-Brook falling back to fourth place, Kingsbury, after a terrific brush of speed, taking third place. This was the order in the stretch, and it was not changed to the finish, Uncle Bob winning by two lengths without urging. Santiago beat Kingsbury a half length for the place.

The winner, Uncle Bob, was bred in Nashville, Tenn., and was named for the famous old darky hostler at Belle Meade, Uncle Bob. The colt was so poorly thought of at the Belle Meade sale in the spring of '88 that the venerable black hostler bought him for $225 rather than see him "go for nothing." A few days afterwards Uncle Bob sold his now celebrated equine namesake to Sam Bryant, the owner of Proctor Knott, for $400. The next sale of the Derby winner was by Bryant to George Hankins of Chicago for $15,000 scarcely three days ago. The conditions were that should Uncle Bob land the Derby $3000 additional should be paid by Hankins to Bryant. The result shows that Bryant, while making sure beforehand of the equivalent of the Derby stakes, has given away as a present his magnificent steed to Hankins.

BROOKLYN, June 22.—The continuous pool match in Brooklyn between Albert Powers of Chicago and Charles Manning of Brooklyn for the championship of America was ended last night; Manning won by a score of 600 to 489.

Yacht Racing in New York.

NEW YORK, June 22.—The 20th annual races of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club took place yesterday. Each boat was manned entirely by amateurs. The winners were the sloops Shamrock and Kathleen and the cutters Clara and Minerva. The Minerva made the fastest actual time over the course, but was beaten on time allowance.

The Important Item of Sleeves.

Sleeves are the most serious item in dress this season. Beside sleeves, every other point connected with dress is dwindling into insignificance. They are of a contrast to the rest of the dress in color and material. The big velvet and plush sleeves of the spring now look uncomfortably hot and heavy. The sleeves of the summer dresses are made of silk, satin, brocade and lace. Silk sleeves are very pretty. On summer gowns they are frequently veiled with lace or covered with embroidery.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

CALLS POWDERLY AN INCUBUS.

President Gompers Says the Master Workman is a Labor Agent.

NEW YORK, June 23.—General Master Workman Powderly's attack on President Gompers and the American Federation of Labor at the Knights of Labor Cooper Union mass-meeting is generally considered as the forerunner of a struggle between the two organizations that is likely to result to the disadvantage of both. Conservative men on both sides deplore the controversy and hope that the dispute may yet be amicably settled. President Gompers, however, is up in arms, and, if anything, is even more aggressive than Mr. Powderly. President Gompers was seen at the headquarters of the American Federation to-day. He enumerated a number of instances where the officers of the Knights of Labor had filled the places of striking cigarmakers, printers and iron and steel workers with "scabs."

President Gompers said: "I charge the officers of the Knights of Labor with being cheap and servile labor agents, and that they have made the Knights of Labor organization the same to the labor movement in general that the Printers' Protective Fraternity, which is organized to furnish scab labor, is to the International Typographical Union. General Master Workman Powderly insinuates that I am a cur and a coward. If he believed that why did he make it impossible for me to meet him last night, or why does he not accept my proposition to meet him in the future? I will meet him on or off the platform in any way that will satisfy his overweening conceit and stamp him once for all as a charlatan and an incubus upon the labor movement."

OVER THE FALLS IN AN AIRSHIP.

Prof. Campbell Preparing For a Dangerous Trip in a Craft of His Own Make.

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 23.—The much-talked-of trip over the Niagara cataract to be attempted by the latest one of Prof. Campbell's airships after a number of postponements, is at last likely to become an accomplished fact. Prof. Campbell arrived in town about a week ago, and for the last three days he has been busily engaged in making the final preparations for the initial trip of the Flyer.

The fastidious inventor and aeronaut has contrived to make his craft as attractive as possible. When it makes its debut by Wednesday of this week the professor calculates the machine will be ready for its trial trip, which is to take place at Humberstone, Ont., a small village one mile distant from Port Colborne. At Humberstone the balloon that is to float the ship will be inflated with natural gas from a well located there. Prof Campbell further calculates that everything will be in readiness for the voyage over the falls within two weeks from to-day.

A MONTREAL FAILING.

Departure of Another Bookkeeper With His Employer's Money.

MONTREAL, June 23.—On Saturday night a young man named Frank Thorpe, bookkeeper for Oliver & Co., commission merchants, Commissioner-street, absconded taking with him $100 in cash, which was all he could lay his hands on. An audit of his books has been commenced, but as yet no estimate can be made of his peculations. Thorpe is an Englishman and came from Swansea last September. He is supposed to be in New York. He is known to have been in the constant company of a woman of questionable character, and she is supposed to have absorbed a large part of the money.

DEATH OF MRS. STUART ROBSON.

Prostrated Without Warning by the Bursting of a Blood Vessel.

COHASSET, Mass., June 23.—Mrs. Stuart Robson, wife of the comedian, died very suddenly Saturday afternoon at their summer residence at Cohasset Harbor. She had been in her usual health during the day and had been amusing her little grandchild upon the lawn. Returning to the house she was immediately prostrated, dying within an hour. Mr. Robson and his daughter, Mrs. Creshore, were in Boston at the time and upon their return home were greatly overcome by their bereavement. The cause of death is believed to be the bursting of a blood vessel near the heart.

Alleged Discrimination.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The case of the Michigan Central Railway officials who have been on trial in the United States court for alleged violation of the Interstate Commerce Law closed this afternoon. Judge Blodgett discharged McKay, general freight agent, there being no evidence to show he had guilty knowledge of the violation of the law. In the cases of Nicholas and Somers the matter was taken under advisement.

The New London Regatta.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 23.—Arrangements are completed for the two-mile race between Yale, Columbia and Cornell freshmen at 6½ to-morrow evening. The three crews are in prime condition and what little betting there is is even and based purely on friendship. It is expected to be a close contest.

A FATAL SMASHUP.

TWO GRAND TRUNK SLEEPERS GO OVER AN EMBANKMENT.

One of the Passengers Loses His Life—The Accident Caused by Spreading Rails—The Cars Dashed to the Bottom of a 30-Foot Ravine.

COPETOWN, Ont., June 23.—A frightful accident occurred a short distance from Copetown this afternoon. No. 6 Atlantic express from the west, due in Hamilton at 1.55, was the fated train. Just west of the bridge over the mill-pond the rails spread and three of the cars were derailed, the Wagner sleepers New York and Kinderhook were thrown down a steep embankment, and are now lying at the bottom smashed to pieces.

E. J. McDonnell, Hyde Park, Chicago, was killed. He and his wife were in the sleeper Kinderhook. McDonnell was killed outright. His body was crushed in between the seats and was frightfully mangled. Willing hands were soon at work, and in a short time McDonnell's body was taken from the wreck. The injured are:

Conductor Larmour, of the Wagner Car Company, 304 West Jackson-street, Chicago, scalp wound and arm crushed.

Mrs. J. A. Smith, Chicago, scalp wound and injured internally.

Mrs. E. J. McDonnell, Hyde Park, Chicago, wife of the passenger who was killed, scalp wound and contusion on the head.

The train was in charge of Conductor Stewart. It consisted of five passenger coaches, the dining-car and the Wagner sleepers New Mexico and Kinderhook. All the cars except the dining-room coaches and the two sleepers got across the small bridge safely. The embankment is about 30 feet, and it is fortunate that there were so few passengers in the sleeper, which was dashed to the bottom of the ravine. It is likely that the injured passengers will recover, as their wounds are not serious.

Shortly after the accident occurred a special arrived from Hamilton with Drs. Ridley, Mackelcan, Griffin, Husband and Olmstead; Joseph Wallace, chief clerk of Superintendent Stiff's office; John Hall and Track Inspector Nelson. The injured passengers were carried to the switch house, where their wounds were dressed. There were a number of Hamilton passengers on board. The injured people will be taken to the Hamilton hospital.

Immediately east of Copetown the railway line runs through a cutting having a quicksand bottom. This opens out on a gulley, where the descent into the Dundas valley begins. It is crossed by a small stream. For some distance the line is cut into the hillside. Then there is a considerable filling of clay, about twenty-five or thirty feet above the bottom of the ravine. Fairly level land is regained before the site of the old Flamboro station is reached.

The wounded are all doing well, and it is not likely that the injuries of any of them will result fatally.

RAN AWAY FROM A CONVENT.

A Pretty Canadian Heiress Sick in the House of the Good Shepherd, Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, June 23.—A pretty young woman of some twenty summers, who gives her name as Marsalee Bushong, is sick with fever at the House of the Good Shepherd in this city, having been sent to that institution by Superintendent of the Poor Grimes, whose attention was called to the case by Dr. Heath of Onondaga Valley. The young woman's home is said to be in Toronto, Canada. According to the story as it has been told to the Superintendent, she ran away from a convent or a convent school a month or so ago and went to Rochester, where she obtained employment as a domestic. A woman whose acquaintance she made in that city came here soon afterward and went to work at Charles Wadsworth's house, a mile south of Onondaga Valley.

About two days ago Miss Bushong, having lost her situation in Rochester, came to this city, and ascertaining through one of the employment agencies where her friend was at work, went to the Wadsworth place to visit her. She was to return to the city in the evening, but when the time for her departure came she had such an appearance of intense fatigue that the Wadsworths pressed her to stay until morning, and she accepted the kind invitation.

During the night she was taken ill, but not wishing to disturb the family she held out until morning, when her condition was such that one of the hired men was despatched in haste for Dr. Heath. The physician found her in a high fever and suffering excruciating pain. After a few days he communicated with Superintendent Grimes, and the result was the girl's removal to the House of the Good Shepherd. While Miss Bushong was at Onondaga Valley she received a letter from J. V. A. Bray of 625 Queen-street, Toronto, to whom she said that she was engaged to be married. In the letter the young man rebuked her for leaving Canada. The girl told the doctor that her father died a short time ago and left property to the amount of $150,000, she being the only heir.

Cheese Markets.

Buffalo reports: Sales of cheese were 5650 boxes and comprised the entire offerings, 2300 boxes Cloverfield and 1800 Marshfield at 8¼c, 1150 boxes Springville and 400 Neff at 8¼c.

Utica reports: The cheese market recorded a decline of ⅝c. The ruling price went down to 8c and several factories sold under this figure. The best factories, however, had no difficulty in obtaining 8¼c, and in one or two instances buyers bought at 8⅜c and 8½c. The offerings were large and but few of the factories remained unsold at the close. Transactions totalled 161 lots, 17,107 boxes, ruling price 8c. Transactions for the same date last year aggregated 19,546 boxes, ruling price 8¼c.

Little Falls reports: Monday shows the largest sale of the season thus far, but the business was overdone by some of the buyers last week and the figures are not sustained. The decline in price is fully ½c, and even at those figures none too much confidence in the outcome is felt by those best informed. Sales of butter were 58 packages; creamery at 15c.

Sullivan Indicted.

PURVIS, Miss., June 23.—At 4½ the grand jury returned an indictment charging John Lawrence Sullivan with prize fighting. The indictment was placed on the appearance docket and will be called up to-morrow morning and a day set for trial. A petition is in circulation to Judge Terrell which is being numerously signed by leading citizens praying that the court be lenient and impose a fine without imprisonment. The petition will be presented in open court.

INGERSOLL ON VIVISECTION.

He Calls It the Hell of Science and Scores Vivisectionists.

BOSTON, June 23.—Robert G. Ingersoll has addressed the following letter to a Boston philanthropist on the evils of vivisection:

MY DEAR FRIEND: Vivisection is the inquisition—the hell—of science. All the cruelty which the human, or rather the inhuman heart, is capable of inflicting is in this one word. Below this there is no depth; this word lies like a coiled serpent at the bottom of the abyss. We can excuse, in part, the crimes of passion. We take into consideration the fact that man is liable to be caught by the whirlwind, and that from a brain on fire the soul rushes to a crime; but what excuse can ingenuity form for a man who deliberately and with an unaccelerated pulse, with the calmness of John Calvin at the murder of Servetus, seeks with curious and cunning knives in the living, quivering flesh of a dog, for all the throbbing nerves of pain? The wretches who commit these infamous crimes pretend that they are working for the good of man, that they are actuated by philanthropy, and that their pity for the sufferings of the human race drives out all pity for the animals. They slowly torture them to death, but those who are incapable of pitying animals are, as a matter of fact, incapable of pitying men. A physician who would cut a living rabbit in pieces—laying bare the nerves, denuding them with knives, pulling them out with forceps—would not hesitate to try experiments with men and women for the gratification of his curiosity. To settle some theory he would trifle with the life of any patient in his power. By the same reasoning he will justify the vivisection of animals and patients. He will say that it is better that a few animals should suffer than that one human being should die and that it is far better that one patient should die if, through sacrifice of that one, several may be saved. Brains without a heart is far more dangerous than heart without brains.

Have these scientific assassins discovered anything of value? They may have settled some disputes as to the action of some organ, but have they added to the useful knowledge of the race? It is not necessary for a man to be a specialist in order to have and express his opinion as to the right or wrong of vivisection. It is not necessary to be a scientist or a naturalist to detest cruelty and to love mercy. Above all the discoveries of the thinkers above all the inventions of the ingenious, above all the victories won on fields of intellectual conflict, rise human sympathy and a sense of justice. I know that good for the human race can never be accomplished by torture. I also know that all that has been ascertained by vivisection could have been done by the dissection of the dead, or, at least, of animals completely and perfectly under the merciful influence of ether. I know that all the torture has been useless. All the agony inflicted has simply hardened the hearts of the criminals without enlightening their minds.

It may be that the human race might be physically improved if all the sickly and deformed babes were killed and if all the paupers, liars, drunkards, thieves, villains and vivisectionists were murdered. All this might, in a few ages, result in the production of a generation of physically perfect men and women, healthy and heartless, muscular and cruel—that is to say, intelligent wild beasts. Never can I be the friend of one who vivisects his fellow creatures. I do not wish to touch his hand. When the angel of pity is driven from the heart, when the fountain of tears is dry, the soul becomes a serpent crawling in the dust of the desert. Thanking you for the good you are doing, and wishing you the greatest success, I remain, yours always,

R. G. INGERSOLL.

LOSSES CAUSED BY FLAMES.

A Big Blaze in the Kings County (N.Y.) Penitentiary—No Lives Lost.

NEW YORK, June 23.—By strenuous efforts the firemen confined the flames in the Kings County penitentiary to the workshop wing, which was completely gutted. The fire raged for an hour. There were employed in the workshops 465 prisoners, of whom 20 were women. Two other convicts were in the cells in the main prison. Great excitement prevailed, but a panic was averted. It is estimated that the loss to property will foot up $600,000.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—A cable message was received at the Navy Department to-day from Consul Garesche at Martinique as follows: "Half Fort De France burned. Martinique demands aid. Five thousand homeless people need lumber, beef, pork, flour and other provisions. Cable quickly what States will do."

Charges Against a Purchasing Agent.

OMAHA, Neb., June 23.—The attorney of the Union Pacific Railroad has instituted suit against C. H. McKibben, late general purchasing agent of the road, for $60,000, that being the sum he is charged with having stolen during his official career.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE DUKE OF CLARENCE TAKES HIS SEAT IN THE LORDS.

A Backdown on the Part of the Government—Mr. Smith Abandons Part of the Licensing Bill—Bismarck Talks—Britain and Africa.

LONDON, June 23.—The House of Lords was filled with peers and privileged persons this evening on the occasion of the administration of the peer's oath to the newly created Duke of Clarence, Prince Albert Victor of Wales. The Queen's message to the lords formally announcing the bestowal of the ducal rank upon the Prince and establishing his status in the order of precedence was read, by which it is ordered that he take precedence after the Duke of Connaught but before the Duke of Albany. The procession then entered, headed by Admiral Sir James Drummond, gentleman usher of the black rod, followed by the Duke of Clarence with his sponsors, the Prince of Wales, his father, and the Duke of Edinburgh, his uncle, in ducal robes. After the usual formalities the Duke of Clarence took the peers' oath and signed the rolls. He was then conducted to the bar, where he bowed thrice to the throne, the Lord High Chancellor acknowledging the salute. He was next conducted to the chair of state and shook hands with the Lord Chancellor, soon after which he withdrew.

A Back Down.

LONDON, June 23.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Smith said the Government had concluded it would be impossible to pass the licenses clause in its entirety. [Prolonged Opposition cheers.] The Government would ask the House to allow money for the extinction of licenses to accumulate until Parliament should direct otherwise. [Opposition cheers.] Mr. Gladstone and others opposed the principle of purchase of licenses entirely.

There is a consensus of opinion irrespective of party that the Government's new license scheme will not shorten the session of Parliament. The Liberal leaders to-night decided to continue their opposition on the ground that the measure is reactionary and unconstitutional. Mr. Caine, member for Barrow-on-Furness, with a view of testing the feeling of the electorate on the subject, resigned his seat to-night and will seek re-election on an anti-compensation program.

The temperance leaders to-night adopted a manifesto declaring the Government's scheme worse than worthless and asserting the principle of compensation is left untouched.

Their Lot Is Not a Happy One.

LONDON, June 23.—Col. Bradford, the new chief of police, has ordered that members of the force shall not hold meetings to agitate their grievances.

A South American Revolution.

LONDON, June 23.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says revolutionary agitation in Entre Rios, a province of the Argentine Republic, is increasing.

Bismarck Talks.

BERLIN, June 23.—Prince Bismarck to-day received a deputation of the citizens of Berlin. Speaking to his visitors he maintained it was his right and duty to express freely his opinions regarding public events, and declared he would not give way even if he stood alone. He stated also that he always spoke in the interests of the dynasty and of peace. He declined to criticise the Anglo-German treaty in regard to East African territory.

The North German Gazette says Lord Salisbury and Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador at London, will sign the basis of the African agreement to-morrow.

The Australian Mails.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., June 23.—The Government subsidy to the San Francisco Mail Line will cease after November next unless the American Government subscribes toward the expense of maintaining the service.

An Insane Cricketer.

MELBOURNE, June 23.—Midwinter, the cricketer, is insane and his condition is hopeless.

France Consulted.

PARIS, June 23.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, said nothing had been done with reference to Zanzibar without an understanding with France.

Red Hats.

ROME, June 23.—The Pope bestowed cardinals' hats upon Mgr. Vanutelli, Papal Nuncio at Lisbon; Archbishop Galerti of Ravenna; Bishop Mermillod of Lausanne and Bishop Dunajewski of Cracow.

BRAZIL'S NEW CONSTITUTION.

Based Upon That of the United States—Some Peculiar Provisions.

RIO JANEIRO, June 23.—The new constitution was promulgated to-day. It recognises a federal system based upon that of the United States. The President alone is responsible to the nation. The ministers are replaced by secretaries of state who are answerable to the President alone.

Parliament will consist of a House of Representatives and a Senate. The powers of these two bodies will be of a purely legislative character and an adverse vote by either chamber will not entail a change of ministry. A new House of Representatives will be elected triennially and a new Senate every nine years.

The President's term of office will be six years. The first presidential election will be by Congress and has been fixed for November next.

The new constitution is a source of much relief to the people, as it gives them more confidence in the government than when under a dictatorial control. There is great rejoicing throughout Brazil.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Cousineau Insurance Case Settled Out of Court.

TORONTO, June 24.—The Cousineau insurance case was settled yesterday, the defendant paying back to the companies $4629.

Fritz Strittmatter, a piano finisher, committed suicide yesterday by shooting while temporarily insane.

The Rate War.

CHICAGO, June 23.—At the meeting of the representatives of the Chicago east bound railways to-day the Lake Shore gave notice that it would meet the Chicago & Grand Trunk's rate of 23 cents per 100 pounds on dressed beef, Chicago to the seaboard, to take effect June 26. The other roads decided to follow suit. A proportionate reduction in cattle rates was agreed upon, which will bring the rate on cattle down to 19½ cents from Chicago to New York.

Resisting Reductions.

YONKERS, N.Y., June 23.—In response to an order of the executive committee of the Central Labor Union of West Chester the operators in the Copcutt Mills struck to-day. They are resisting reductions of 15 to 25 per cent.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood; modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." – J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." – E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier." – W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

THE BANK OF TORONTO.

In another place in this issue will be found the annual report of the Bank of Toronto, one of the most prosperous and solid of our Canadian banking institutions. The capital of the bank is $2,000,000, and its standing can be recognized at a glance when it is added that its rest fund or surplus amounts to the large sum of $1,500,000. With a surplus amounting to 75 per cent of the capital the security to depositors is unimpeachable, and the credit of the bank is second to none in the Dominion.

The business of this bank has increased all over the country, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. Under the capable management of Mr. J. L. Gower the Peterborough branch has done a large and increasing business, and its relations with customers have been of the most pleasant and agreeable character.

THE PREMIER AT KINGSTON.

THERE are those who seem to think that a difference of opinion on political matters should end all friendship between public men and that nothing but personal hatred should exist between members of different political parties. Happily this idea is not held by all Canadian public men. At Kingston Sir John Macdonald's health was proposed at a banquet by a strong Liberal, who spoke in complimentary terms of the veteran Premier, although he will in all probability oppose him at the next election. Sir John in reply made a friendly reference to the Premier of Ontario, and an attempt is being made by some to give his remarks some deep and dark political significance. Referring to such an attempt the Toronto Empire says:—"This is the season when, in the absence of parliamentary and electoral realities, plausible and interesting theories are started to fill the void. There is nothing to justify the idea which has been put forth that, when Sir John Macdonald referred personally to Mr. Mowat at the Kingston celebration in kindly and complimentary terms, the slightest political significance lay beneath the remark. The occasion was a public and official one, and party politics were absolutely debarred. The citizens of Kingston on this understanding threw aside all differences, and united to give the proceedings the character of a general and harmonious celebration in honor of an event vitally important to the material interest of the city. So well was this understanding carried out, that at the banquet in the evening a prominent Reformer proposed the Premier's health in flattering terms, such as any gentleman might in good taste employ without sacrifice of opinion, and he alluded to Kingston as having been the early home of two other eminent men beside Sir John Macdonald, namely, Sir Alexander Campbell and Hon. Oliver Mowat. In replying to this allusion made by a follower of Mr. Mowat and in the presence of other followers of the same gentleman, Sir John Macdonald made a friendly reference to the terms of mutual friendship existing between himself and the Ontario Premier, both now advancing in years. It is impossible to imagine Sir John Macdonald, with his noted kindness of heart and his tact and knowledge of the world, omitting to reciprocate the compliment which had been paid him by a Reformer on an occasion like the one in question. Not even the most ingenious mind can place a political construction upon such a trival incident, except, as we have said, in the exercise of the undoubted right of creating a supply of political material in the dead season."

Alliance Meeting.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—As we are again called upon to attend "Christian Alliance" meeting and listen to wonderful testimonies of miraculous healings in our midst, would it be too much to ask you to publish the following extracts taken from the paper called the "Christian Alliance" giving an account of a meeting held this month in New York and presided over by Mr. Simpson? It shows what testimony is worth.

Yours etc.,

J. J. W.

One of the speakers says: "Is not this true, dear child of God? Does not the devil trip you up many times by telling you to wait until you see the thing accomplished? Are you trusting for your body and waiting to feel well before you step out upon the bare promises of God, calling the 'things which be not as though they were?'—Romans 4 17."

"A lady said, a year ago she had accepted Christ as her Healer and had many testings and trials through the year to which she had somewhat yielded. All at once it had occurred to her that she was dishonoring the Lord by not appearing to be well after Christ had healed her. Light had come to her in reference to Paul's thorn in the flesh for which Christ's grace was sufficient, and she was ceasing to ask herself now if she was well."

A gentleman says "For six years I prayed and tried to believe for the healing of the goitre on my neck. I found that as I testified to being healed by faith I gained in health, so I claimed it, seen or unseen."

"Another said, it was a blessed thing to die and stay dead, for often we come to life again after having died." This without any explanation.

AT WHITBY COLLEGE.

Closing Exercises—Diplomas Granted—Medalists and Prize Winners.

WHITBY, June 23.—For the fair students of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, today was the fitting climax of a successful term and the equally appropriate prelude of a well earned holiday. Yet withal there is a tinge of sadness in the fact that the halls of learning no longer resound with merry laughter or the music of fairy feet. Teachers and students are gone; some never to return.

The commencement exercises were concluded to-day and a special train from Toronto conveyed over 200 visitors to the college grounds. When the Torontonians arrived there were already a large number of people present from all over Canada and even from the United States. The afternoon concert consisted of a charming representation of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," in which Misses Kenny, Brouse and C. Foster took leading parts. To make special mention of the young ladies excelling in the histrionic art would be impossible, for all deserve a share of praise. Suffice it to say that the audience were delighted. The proceedings were interspersed with instrumental music by Misses McKee, Sparling, G. Taylor and Decker and vocal music by Misses Wood and McKee and the choral class.

Then followed refreshments and a pleasant hour of promenading around the beautiful grounds and in inspecting the pupils' work in the art gallery.

In the evening the building was again crowded to the doors. The principal, Rev. J. J. Hare, presided, and after a chorus certificates from the Ontario School of Art were presented to Misses Brown, Browning and Gorman. The degree of M.L.A. (Mistress of Liberal Arts) was conferred upon Miss Kenny, Ottawa, and Miss Somerset, Winnipeg. Miss McCraney, Oakville, was granted the degree of M.E.L. (Mistress of English Literature). Chancellor Burwash addressed the these young ladies, while bouquets of roses were showered from all parts of the hall. Instrumental music by Misses McKee and Sparling and vocal music by Misses McKee and Wood followed, after which Rev. Dr. Johnston of Toronto gave a short address.

These diplomas were then granted: Fine arts, Misses Brown and Browning; commercial, Misses Davidson, L. Davidson, Gurd, Hare, L. McCraney; elocution, Misses Brouse, Brown, Foster, Kenny, Kline and McCraney.

After an address from Rev. Dr. Hunter, Misses Rambridge and McKee gave a vocal duett and these medals and prizes were presented: Gold medal in M.L.A. course, Miss Somerset, Winnipeg; silver medal in M.L.A. course, Miss Kenny, Ottawa; silver medal in M.E.L. course, Miss McCraney, Oakville; gold medal in instrumental music, Miss McKee, Coaticooke; silver medal in instrumental music, Miss Sparling, Wingham; silver medal in vocal music, Miss Wood, Whitby; silver medal in fine arts, Miss Brown, Iroquois; silver medal for general proficiency, Miss Gorman, Parkdale; silver medal in elocution, Miss Kenny, Ottawa; prize in elocution, Miss Brouse, Ottawa; silver medal in commercial, Miss L. McCraney, Oakville; prize in commercial, Miss Gurd, Toronto.

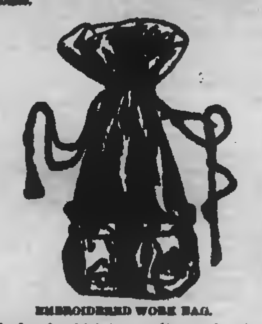
A violin solo by Miss W. Wilson, an essay by Miss Kenny, a chorus, addresses by Dr. J. A. McLellan, Toronto, and John Dryden, M.L.A., and solos by H. M. Blight concluded the evening's entertainment.

Among those present were: A. T. Wood, Hamilton; W. D. Matthews and Warring Kennedy, Toronto; J. S. Larke, Oshawa, and a large number of prominent Methodist ministers.

It is worthy of note that fully one-fourth of the students are from Toronto.

A Handsome Work Bag.

The attractive bag here depicted has its base formed of two squares of card board, the corners of which are rounded off; each piece is lined with satin on one side only, and round one is sewn a band of oriental embroidery measuring 25½ inches by 11½ inches, the extra fullness allowed for the turning of the corners being caught in a few plaits under a mixed cord placed 2 inches from the edge, which is also bound with cord, and likewise the base.



EMBROIDERED WORK BAG.

The band, which is usually made with the borders of Turkish towels, is lined with sateen or soft silk, and inside is inserted the second square of cardboard, with lining uppermost; it is intended to give more firmness to the foundation and more neatness to the inside. A strip of plush, cretonne, or cashmere is added to the top and drawn at the mouth with two mixed cords with tassels at each end; the frilling produced by the drawing of the strings is jauntily lined with silk of a contrasting color.

Fashion's Echoes.

Some of the new ribbons have double edges, or, rather, double lines of satin at the edge.

Sprigged and spotted net over shot silk promises to rival in favor the black lace dresses.

Large buckles measuring six inches long are worn but chiefly with empire bodices and their broad bands.

A late freak in evening gloves is to have the Christian name of the wearer worked out in silk across the elbow.

The close fitting, roll over collar that can be turned up at will is a sensible feature of some of the latest English coats and jackets.

There is an improvement on the double box plaits at the back of tailor made gowns. The plaits still exist, but between them there is a fully gathered back breadth which gives a flow to the skirt and takes away from the undue skimpiness into which we seem now to be sinking.

Beauty Spot Veils.

"Beauty Spot" veils, with sparsely powdered velvet spots; the patch ones, with the large velvet wafers so cunningly placed that they appear on one cheek, the chin and brow, and the Russian net falls, in two or more degrees of fineness, are the fashionable face protectors of the day, all worn below the mouth and generally drawn up from below the chin. As yet they have been only worn in black, but the Russian nets are beginning to appear in light colors.

Odd London Millinery.

Next to heliotrope, gray and "old pink" appeared to be the favorite colors. Reseda ran these a good fourth. Green made up with black was plentiful. Bonnets are not quite so small as they threatened to be, though some of them were more than eccentric. One was a miniature edition of a North American Indian's head-dress, with two feathers standing out at the back at right angles to the bonnet itself.—Madge, in London Truth.

Woodstock Bylaw Defeated.

WOODSTOCK, June 23.—A bylaw for $16,000 to build a firehall, extend the market square and establish a new fire alarm system was defeated by about 4 to 1. The waterworks bylaw is to be voted upon in August.

Buffalo's Population.

BUFFALO, June 23.—The census here has not yet been completed, but estimates made by Supervisor Douglas show that the population of Buffalo will be less than was expected —about 255,000.

THE OPIUM HABIT.

A Remarkable Number of Prominent Men Who have Been Victims to this Pernicious Habit.

A prominent druggist of this city, in a conversation a short time since, said that it would be a terrible shock to society if the names in this city of those who are addicted to the opium habit were published * * * * is not alone in this respect, for druggists everywhere lament the terrible increase in the use of opium. It is not so very long ago that the death of Wilkie Collins brought to public knowledge the fact that he was a habitual user of opium. De Quincey, Coleridge, Bulwer-Lytton, and other men of world-wide reputation, stand out as warnings against the folly of overtaxation of mental powers, and the oft resulting indulgence in opium.

Brain power has its limitations as much as muscular power. Overwork produces exhaustion in both cases, and far too often is the fearfully perilous use of opium commenced for the purpose of stimulating the brain and steadying the nerves. A sombre, joyless, melancholy state of servitude to this ruinous drug is the sure end. There is but one thing known that will "stimulate the brain and steady the nerves" in a natural and harmless way. That is Paine's Celery Compound. When the brain and nervous system is over-taxed, and there is restlessness, irritability, difficulty in thinking, and inability to confine the thoughts to one subject for any length of time, use this purely vegetable preparation. It is a scientific medicine, that, taken at the first symptoms, positively prevents the approach of serious brain and nerve diseases. In neuralgia, sleeplessness, nervous dyspepsia, general debility, and the weak feeling which is so common at this season, Paine's Celery Compound will restore and sustain the vital forces of life, and will renew the brain and build up nerve tissue as as fast as they become exhausted. It is not a narcotic, contains no minerals or harmful drugs, and is perfectly pure. It is the discovery of an eminent physician, and is a true boon of health and happiness to the thousands who are exhausted by the great strain and constant pressure under which they are laboring.

Died in Gaol.

An inquest was held this afternoon by Dr. Bell, coroner, on the body of Patrick Mandrigan, who died in gaol while confined there for vagrancy. The deceased was serving a third consecutive six months term, as he was unable to work and was without friends. He had been ill for some time and when last committed was unable to come down street to the court and the formality of trial was gone through at the gaol. The evidence of Dr. Yelland, gaol surgeon, the gaol authorities and prisoners was heard and a verdict of death from natural causes was returned.

Bible Readings.

In accord with the spirit of the age there is agitation, progress and improvement in methods of Bible study, as well as in matters of a purely secular nature. This is amply attested by even a cursory examination of the new book "Bible Readings for the Home Circle." The testimony of the different scripture writers, utterances of persons living in ages remote from each other, and under diverse circumstances, is brought out, by direct quotation, upon the vital topics of Christianity. When the sacred volume thus stands as its own witness and interpreter, the harmonious result is a demonstration of its authenticity.

ENDEAVOR UNION.

The St. Louis Delegates Report to a Large Meeting of the Local Union.

The Baptist Church was full of young people last night representing the union of young people's societies of Christian Endeavor of the town. Dr. Scott, President, took the chair; Mr. A. M. Scott, Vice-President, Mr. R. J. Colville, Mr. McCallum, Rev. Messrs. E. F. Torrance and P. C. Parker supported him. After hearty singing of "There is a Fountain" Rev. E. F. Torrance engaged in prayer, then another hymn and the President called upon Mr. McCallum, delegate to St. Louis convention, to give a report of the first two days' proceedings of the convention. Mr. McCallum gave an earnest and inspiring account of the hearty greetings that were accorded to them and of the splendid addresses, the enthusiasm and inspirations of the gathering. There were over 6,000 delegates from every state of the union and every province of Canada. Each state and province were called upon to report in turn and met with an enthusiastic welcome. As Mr. McCallum has decided to hand his notes in to the reporters of the town papers, it will not be necessary to report them here.

Mr. R. J. Colville was called upon to report of the two latter days' proceedings. In doing so he not only retained the interest to the end, but succeeded in inspiring enthusiasm in his audience as he told the many interesting incidents of the convention.

The Ontario delegates, 26 strong, left Toronto in a special pullman car with a large placard on with these words "Ontario's delegation to the Y.P.S.C.E. at St. Louis," and as they left Union station a large crowd of Endeavorers, who were bidding them good by, sang "God be with you till we meet Again." As they were entering the city a deputation came to meet them and welcome them. The Exposition building where they met, was decorated with the Stars and Stripes, and Canada's delegates called attention to the absence of "the flag that waved a thousand years the battle and the breeze." A Union Jack was procured and Rev. Mr. Andrews, of Toronto, stepped on, the platform and tied the Stars and Stripes and Jack together with a "lovers knot." Then Rev. Dr. Clark, of Boston, stepped forward amid immense applause and pronounced the marriage formula "Whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder," amid enthusiasm. Canada's delegation rose and sung "Blest be the tie that binds," The hymn was caught up by the 6,000 people and sang with fervor. The immense delegation were given a picnic down the Mississippi, in three large steamers.

During Mr. Colville's recital of these incidents he was frequently applauded. Afterwards the farewell hymn was sung "God be with You," and the Rev. P. Clifton Parker closed with the benediction.

Personal.

Little Lord Fontleroy.

French's company placed the dramatized version of Mrs. Burnett's popular story, "Little Lord Fontleroy," on the boards at the Opera House last night. The play is a most interesting and pleasing one, and the company, from first to last, had the ability to do it full justice. Every part was well taken and admirably rendered and those present were well pleased. The only regrettable feature of the performance was the small attendance.

About Advertising.

A long and extensive apprenticeship is generally necessary to achieve success at advertising. You may have an "invention" that will revolutionize things, or a wonderful "remedy" which will cure everything but a broken heart, but don't imagine the long-suffering public is yearning for either, or that a little advertising will cause the ducats to flow in with a steady stream. It is keeping steadily at it, selling a good article, giving full value, prompt and attentive brings custom, just as it does customers for Hawley Bros. teas, the finest, best in quality and price the town affords. THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE JUNE SESSION OF THE COUNTY'S LEGISLATORS.

The Valuators' Report Causes Some Dissatisfaction—The Report Adopted—Other Business Attended to.

The Council went into session on Friday afternoon, after spending the time in hard committee work, Warden Casement in the chair.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. PEARCE presented the following report of the special committee on the Warden's address:—

The special committee on the Warden's address beg leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee are pleased that the prospect of a good harvest in the country are most favorable and trust that the farmers throughout the whole Province will have no reason to complain of the issue of their season's labor.

2. Your committee approve of the action of the Warden of this county in respect to the Pigeon creek bridge and the line of action proposed by the County of Victoria.

3. Your committee are pleased to learn that the new iron steel bridge at Burleigh is completed. Your committee feel that the erection of such structures, lasting and permanent in their character, are most creditable to the county and in the end most economical.

4. Your Committee have reason to congratulate themselves on the improved accommodation provided for this Council. The present Council Chamber is fitted up more in conformity with the dignity and wealth of this county, and is more capable of supplying the necessities of the several courts when sitting concurrently.

5. Your committee recommended that the matter of increasing the insurance on the county building be referred to the Finance Committee of this Council. Your committee feel that there should be ample insurance, as the smallness of the cost of insurance would not be proportioned to the great loss the county would suffer in case of fire.

6. Your committee recommend that the matter of the debentures now falling due and a further issue of debentures be referred to the Finance Committee.

7. With reference to the county valuation your committee are pleased to learn that the same is completed.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
J. B. PEARCE,
Chairman.

June 18, 1890.

The report was adopted.

COUNTY PROPERTY.

Mr. SANDERSON submitted the report of the County Property committee as follows:—

The committee on County Property beg leave to report as follows:—

1. That the County Engineer be instructed to place a suitable wooden flooring in the office of the Registry office at Peterborough.

2. That the County Engineer be instructed to place in the library of the Law Association shelving sufficient to accommodate the requirements of that body.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
MICHAEL SANDERSON,
Chairman.

PETITIONS.

Mr. Stewart read the following report of the committee on Petitions:—

The Committee on Petitions beg leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee recommend that no action be taken with reference to the communication from the County Council of the County of Lanark asking this Council to petition of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario to establish a model farm in Eastern Ontario.

2. Your committee recommend that no action be taken towards petitioning the Ontario Legislature to appoint a commission to collect information regarding Prison Reformation, &c., and the cause of the most prevailing crimes.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
GEORGE STEWART,
Chairman.

June 18, 1890.

The report was adopted.

EQUALIZATION.

Mr. BURNHAM read the report of the Committee on Equalization as follows:—

1. Your committee beg to thank the county valuators for the efficient and painstaking manner in which they performed their duties.

2. Your committee recommend that the county valuators be paid $1,600 for their services and disbursements, to be divided equally between them.

3. That the assessment made by the county valuators be confirmed and that the said valuation be the equalized valuation for county purposes for the year 1890.

4. Your committee recommend that this Council be willing to have the final equalization of the assessment, in case of appeal, made by the County Judge.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
JOHN BURNHAM,
Chairman.

The following is the equalization, based on the county valuators' report, for this year, and for purposes of comparison the equalization of 1889 is also given:—

Mr. Pearce, Reeve of Norwood, Mr. Brown, Reeve of Belmont, and Mr. Forster, Reeve of North Monaghan, each moved for reductions, but their motions failed to succeed. The Council then adjourned until 9 o'clock on Saturday morning.

SATURDAY.

The Council resumed on Saturday morning, the Warden in the chair.

COURT HOUSE IMPROVEMENTS.

Mr. PEARCE moved, seconded by Mr. BURNHAM,—That it would add to the appearance of the Court House to have the windows in the front of the building made uniform with those recently put in, that the stone work at the entrance be pointed, and that the matter be referred to the Committee on Improvements.—Carried.

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1890.

Beware.

Beware, my boy, of the tempter's snare.
Beware of his trodden way!
From the lowest den to the palace fair,
Too oft you will trace his footsteps there,
Where he hides himself in a secret lair,
On thy precious life to prey.
Beware, my boy, beware!

Beware, my boy, of the tempter's snare,
Beware of his wily ways!
Like a silken web for the foolish fly
He weaves thee a net; never venture nigh,
Lest you would a wreck in its meshes lie—
A wreck of your youthful days,
Beware, my boy, beware!

Beware, my boy, of the tempter's snare.
Beware of the sparkling bowl!
From its depths cometh forth a bitter refrain,
From innocent blood of its millions slain,
While the fire of hell seizes heart and brain,
And mocks o'er the ruined soul.
Beware, my boy, beware!

A NIGHT ADVENTURE.

During the year 1869 I was employed by the Bank of Raybury to exchange money between it and the Bank of Mutual Redemption, with which they did business in the city. It was not a very interesting employment, and one which gave me but a small salary, but just then times were dull and work scarce, so I was glad to get anything to do, especially as I had an aged mother depending upon me for support.

One dark, drizzly November night—and nearly all November nights are dark—the stage for Raybury broke down hopelessly, fifteen miles from its destination. Of course, the accident happened in just the worst part of the road, where it was next to impossible to get a carriage of any kind, and where the only place of entertainment was a rude loghouse, dignified by the name of the Jefferson Inn.

Mr. Griggs, the landlord of the tavern, was soon on the spot, and gave it as his opinion that the passengers had better go to his house for the night, but as some half dozen of them were determined to go on, there was no alternative but to get out an old express wagon, which was stacked away in a remote shed, and dispatch them on their way. The stage horses were made available, and the passengers piled in with selfish haste; and long before I could get my valise out of the ruins of the stage and reach the wagon, it had rumbled off, and left me, with a half-dozen more, behind.

It was absolutely necessary that I should be in Raybury that night, else I should cause serious inconvenience at the bank the next morning. And as I had been so often congratulated on my promptitude in my business, I felt very loth to be hindhand now. I spoke to Mr. Griggs about it, and asked if it were not possible for him to let me have a horse for Raybury. I would pay him liberally, and return the animal in good condition the next day. But he only shook his head. He had only one horse in his stable, he said, and Mrs. Griggs was subject to dreadful spells of the colic, and might be taken at any hour, and he made it a rule of his life never to let Digby go out of the stable for fear Mrs. Griggs might be seized, and die before the doctor could be brought.

Under the circumstances, of course I could not urge my request for the use of Digby, and there was no chance for me to get to Raybury until the 11 o'clock stage next day, unless I footed it, and that I should not for a moment have hesitated to do, had it not been for the fact that the road to Raybury was the vilest in the county. I always felt like swearing when I rode over it, and doubtless I should have yielded entirely to the sin of profanity if I had attempted to walk it.

"Go to my house and stay to-night, Mr. Marsh," said the landlord. "I can give you some venison pie and a pot of beer for your supper, and a nice shake-down before the kitchen fire."

"Pray, sir," said a sweet voice at Griggs elbow, "is there no way to go on to Raybury?"

"Not to-night, my dear," said Griggs, softening, as the light of his lantern shone over the pretty face of a young girl whom I had scarcely seen before, she having been an inside passenger. "I guess you'll have to take up with such accommodations as my house offers. I shouldn't wonder if Sally—that's my darter, miss—will let you have half of her bed, seeing as you've been unfortunate."

"I must go on," she said, earnestly. "I have been some months from home, and have been summoned thither by the illness of my father. Indeed, sir, I can not delay here, for the despatch said my father was dying."

There were tears in her voice, but it was too dark to see whether they dimmed her eyes.

"It's too bad!" said Griggs; "but I couldn't let Digby go on any account; because, you see, if Mrs. Griggs should be took, she'd die afore we could git Dr. Lumsden here on foot. You [illegible] spells she's awful! Help! Who's coming now?"

A close carriage drawn by two dark horses had come up and halted by the side of the overturned coach. It was just light enough to show me that there were two men in the carriage, and that they wore caps with the visors well down and were muffled well about the throat; but it was a chilly, raw evening, and one needed to be muffled.

"What's the difficulty?" asked one of the men, in a hoarse voice.

"Stage upset," said the landlord; "axletree broke, and everything went to thunder."

"Well, you'll get your house filled to-night, if you're the landlord of the place back yonder," said the stranger. "Any gentleman here that would like to go on to Raybury? We would take one down."

I stepped quickly forward, and said I should be greatly indebted if they would give me a seat. And then I introduced myself—Henry Marsh.

"And here's a young woman as is going, too," said the landlord; "her pa's rich, and she must git there, and I wouldn't think of having Digby out on account of Mrs. Griggs' uncertain health. Miss—Miss—what's your name, my dear?"

"Axtell," said the girl, "Madeline Axtell. My father is Howard Axtell of the Raybury bank."

The president of the bank for which I worked. I knew Judge Axtell very well, and was able to tell Miss Madeline that his illness was not considered dangerous. But still she insisted upon going on, and at last after some considerable conversation between the two strangers, inaudible to us, they consented to take us both.

I assisted Miss Axtell into the carriage and took with her the back seat, our companions occupying the front.

Only one lamp of the carriage was burning, and that gave a very dim light, and the farther we went the deeper seemed to grow the darkness. It was a lonely road at any time to Raybury, but now it was particularly gloomy, and I was confident that Miss Axtell shared to some degree the vague forebodings which I could not prevent myself from experiencing, for she drew closer to me, and once she asked me how long it would be before we reached Manville—the next village.

We came at last to Hemlock reach—a long stretch of timber which intersected the country at that point, and was some three miles wide. There was not a house for the whole three miles, and both sides of the road were wooded almost to the wheel rut.

As the horse plunged into the blackness of the pines and panted and struggled through the mud under foot I was confident that the two men spoke together in subdued whispers, and that I distinctly caught the words, "D—— the girl!" and "Fifty-five hundred."

I grew cold with dismay. Fifty-five hundred dollars was just the amount I had about me, and it seemed very possible that these fellows had got information to that effect, and that I was to be robbed—perhaps murdered. If I had been alone I should have felt no fear, for I am naturally what is called a dare-devil sort of a fellow, and I had confidence in my courage and strength, as well as in the pair of trusty revolvers I carried in my breast-pocket.

"But Miss Axtell? What would become of her? If they conquered me she would be wholly in their power, and if they were what I took them to be—then God help her!

We had traveled about half the distance through the woods when the horses were stopped abruptly, and one of the men rose up in his seat and faced us.

Miss Axtell grasped my arm, and I knew that she was terrified by the quick way in which her breath came, but she did not cry out, as most women would have done.

"There is no need of mincing matters," said the man, with admirable coolness, "and I will come to the point at once. You have $5,500 in your possession, and my friend here and myself are in want of it. We planned the accident to the stage by sawing the axle half in two, and we happened along expressly to take you down to Raybury. The lady we did not reckon upon, but could not well be ungallant enough to refuse so much beauty in distress. And now the question is, will you or will you not give us this money?"

"Most decidedly I will not!" was the reply.

"Then we must use force," said the man, "and I warn you now that I will murder you before I will allow you to escape with the money! Give it up peaceably, and I pledge you my honor that both yourself and the lady shall be left at the next village safe and unmolested."

"I will never give up a cent of the money," said I, feeling my indignation rise at the scoundrel's coolness; "not a cent of it, unless it is taken from my dead body!"

As I spoke, the man flung off his coat and seized me by the shoulder. Quick as thought I leaped out of the carriage, dragging him with me, and then began the struggle.

"Don't use the pistols," said the villain who was taking care of the horses; "they would be heard too far; knife him if you have got to stop his wind!"

My antagonist was a powerfully built fellow and exceedingly strong, but I was lithe and athletic, and we were very nearly matched. Over and over we rolled in the mud, sometimes one gaining an advantage, sometimes the other, but neither giving up the struggle. Once I had him by the throat and his gurgling cry for help brought the other man to the spot.

Two against one was rather fearful odds, but I felt no disposition to yield. They beat me and crushed me with their weight, but they never once succeeded in pinioning my hands, and I flatter myself that I gave them some blows that they felt sensibly, to say the least.

But after a time I felt my strength giving way and knew that I could not hold out much longer. How Miss Axtell guessed it I do not know, but just as the larger man of the two had planted his knee on my breast and was raising a knife to strike it to my heart I saw by the dim light shed by the carriage lamp that the young lady had got down from the vehicle and was hurrying toward us.

I tried to shout to her to escape while she had a chance, but if she heard she did not heed. She came straight on, and the next moment I heard a cry of rage and pain, and the man on my breast tumbled off violently and lay kicking upon the ground.

She had made a slip noose with her scarf and flung it over his head while he was too much occupied to notice her presence. And now the brave girl was tugging away at the scarf with all her might, and the man was choking and swearing at a tremendous rate.

Suddenly, he twitched the scarf from her hands, and then, with a wild oath, he sprang upon her and both went down to the ground.

Breaking loose from the other man, I rushed to the spot and saw the villian was tying Miss Axtell's hands. She was between me and him, and I called out to her:

"Miss Axtell, drop your head and do not move until I tell you to."

She obeyed, and simultaneously I fired one of my pistols at the exposed breast of the man. He dropped instantly, and before I could turn to his companion I felt his grasp again upon my throat and the cold touch of steel upon my forehead. It was no time to indulge in questions of right and wrong if I would save my life and hers, and, without pausing to argue the morality of the proceeding, I gave this man the contents of the other barrel of my revolver.

It settled his business for him so effectually that he caused us no more trouble; and having ascertained that both the men were dead, I lifted Miss Axtell into the carriage and drove as fast as I could to the next village, where I found the proper authorities and placed them in possession of the facts. Then I took Miss Axtell home, and was gratified to find that her father was out of all danger and in a fair way of a [illegible] convalescence.

The two robbers were recognized as old offenders; they had each been at one time in the state prison, and were well-known as very desperate characters. Considering everything, my escape was most providential.

Perhaps the readers will be interested to know that during that uncomfortable night I fell desperately in love with Miss Axtell, and so successfully did we both plead with her father that, rich old nabob as he was, he consented to our marriage; and now I am cashier of the Raybury bank, and Madeline is my wife, God bless her!—New York Weekly.

Balms For the Skin.

It is not generally known that one of the best balms for a skin that has been irritated by excessive exposure to the sun or spring winds is pure, sweet cream, rubbed gently into the skin at night. The face and hands should first be washed with a silk sponge or any cloth kept for the purpose in water as hot as you can bear it. Do not add soap, as all soap, by the nature of its manufacture, contains alkali. There are persons who can use soap freely, on their faces, but others have more delicate skins, which become irritated and chafed with one application of even the finest soap. No woman who has once used soap on her face and reduced herself to the appearance of a victim of salt rheum or the liquor habit, and who has thereafter gone veiled till her skin healed, is likely to repeat the experiment. Oatmeal rubbed freely on the face at first and a teaspoonful of borax added to the washbowl of water in which the face is to be washed is better than soap. After the skin is thoroughly clean apply the cream, rubbing it gently in with a soft linen cloth, just before going to bed. Wipe off any excess of cream on the face not absorbed by the pores. In the morning wash the face in warm water, then in clear cold water, to make the muscles firm.—New York Tribune.

THE MILITIA UNDER ARMS.

A Riot at Schuylerville Between Electric Light Workmen and Church People.

SARATOGA, June 23.—Yesterday afternoon there was a row at Schuylerville between a gang of Electric Light Company workmen and the parishioners of the Church of the Visitation (Catholic). The church people insisted that the workmen should not set poles in front of the church, and as fast as holes were dug they filled them up. A row ensued, but no one was fatally injured, though missiles flew in a shower. Sheriff Dayee appeared, and ordered the rioters to desist. They refused, and a scuffle ensued between the Sheriff, imported officers, and the crowd. Sheriff Dayee, after arresting one man, telephoned to Captain McEwen of the Twenty-second Separate Company at Saratoga that the services of the military were needed at once. Soon afterward the company, 60 men strong, were under arms, but were informed that things were quieter and that they would not be needed that night.

The situation to-day is quiet, although 100 men with pistols and other arms guarded their church all night and day. Father Heffernan of the church this morning urged his hearers to stand up for their rights like men. It is understood that both sides are ready for a fracas, and should the trouble be reopened it is likely the military will be called out quickly to suppress it.

The O'Connor-Stansbury Race.

LONDON, June 23.—A cablegram to The Sporting Life says that the sculling match between O'Connor and Stansbury was won by the Australian.

O'Connor was evidently not in proper shape when the race was rowed. Before leaving he promised to wire Mr. Joseph Rogers the day prior to his contest. This he neglected to do, plainly demonstrating a lack of confidence. From recent letters received here O'Connor rowed 15 miles and walked 10 miles, besides indulging in dumbbell exercise each day. The Canadian had not the constitution to permit this and like in the London race he was again unfit.

Many believe Kemp to be Stansbury's superior and that he is a faster sculler to-day than when he raced in England in '88. It is therefore highly improbable that O'Connor will arrange a match with Kemp. Whether he will return immediately or not can now only be conjectured. However, when he does come Hanlan is prepared to row him on Toronto Bay for a purse and the championship of America.

Stansbury is a powerfully built man and rowed his first big race in July, '88, when he was beaten by the late H. E. Searle. Stansbury and Kemp will likely row at an early date.

Dry Goods News at

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

A FATAL EXPLOSION.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT NEAR COLCHESTER, ONT.

One Man Instantly Killed and Another Soon Succumbs to His Injuries—Several Others Seriously if Not Fatally Hurt—Alleged Carelessness.

COLCHESTER, June 24.—A frightful and fatal accident occurred about 3 o'clock this afternoon at the farm of William Craig, two miles west of here, by the blowing up of a steam engine belonging to Thomas Quick.

George Craig, youngest son of William Craig, was killed and Thomas Quick and Frank Bondy were fatally injured.

Frank Quick is most seriously injured, if not fatally, while several others are more or less injured.

Thomas Quick soon succumbed to his injuries. Frank Quick is very low and his recovery is doubtful.

Thomas Craig, Peter White, Frank Bondy and Lindsey, the engineer, were severely injured but it is thought not fatally.

Dr. Bell, coroner, from Amherstburg, will hold inquest in the morning. Low water in the boiler is supposed to be the cause of the accident.

Accident at a Political Rally.

COLUMBIA, S.C., June 24.—An accident occurred at the Fair grounds to-day, during the firing of a salute for the Democratic meeting, by the premature discharge of a cannon. Olin Barrer of Lexington lost both arms and both eyes and received a gaping wound in the chest. John Stoke was badly wounded in both arms, and one had to be amputated. W. H. Casson had his hand shattered.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

Sara Bernhardt's Narrow Escape—A Clever Roumanian Lady.

LONDON, June 24.—Sara Bernhardt, who is now performing "Joan of Arc" at Her Majesty's Theatre in this city, had a narrow escape from death this morning. Madame Bernhardt returned to the Savoy Hotel at an early hour from the theatre and retired. Finding it impossible to sleep she determined to take chloral, but by accident took 130 grains, which was an overdose, and the disastrous effects were soon apparent. She appeared to be dying and several physicians were immediately summoned and remedies were at once applied. It was four hours, however, before any marked improvement was perceptible in Madame Bernhardt's condition and she was pronounced out of danger. She is now recovering.

Mdlle. Belcesco's Success.

LONDON, June 24.—Clever women are coming out quite strong just now. Paris is all agog with the brilliant success of Mdlle. Belcesco, a Roumanian lady, who has taken her degree of docteur en droit, and obtained the highest place on the examiner's list. It was part of her task to read aloud her "thesis" to the jury of professors, a duty which she is said to have performed charmingly. It is Mdlle. Belcesco's intention to return to Bucharest, and to be called to the bar there. As, however, she possesses private means, she does not intend to practice unless it be to plead "for women too poor to pay counsel."

The City of Paris' Accident.

LONDON, June 24.—The inquiry instituted by the Board of Trade into the cause of the accident to the Inman Line steamer City of Paris while that vessel was on a voyage from New York for Liverpool in March last has been concluded. The court attributes the casualty to the wearing of the propeller's bearing. It also finds that the safety of the passengers in the City of Paris was not sacrificed to speed and that the vessel is one of the finest in the mercantile marine.

A Fatal Collision.

LONDON, June 24.—The bark Ethel, bound from London to Brisbane, collided off Portland to-day with the steamer Umbilo, bound from Natal to London. One of the Umbilo's crew and four of the Ethel's were killed by falling spars. The Ethel sank. Her crew boarded the Umbilo.

The Prisons' Congress.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—The International Prisons Congress closed its sessions to-day. The congress will meet in Paris in 1895.

A Dissident Caucus.

LONDON, June 24.—At a hastily summoned conference of Dissentients this afternoon Lord Hartington urged the importance of heartily supporting the Government. A 2-hours' discussion followed.

Cable Flashes.

The commission sent by the Spanish Government to determine the character of the disease now prevailing in the Province of Valencia pronounce it cholera. They are unable, however, to definitely fix the origin of the disease.

England will retain a consular agent in Heligoland. Germany will not erect fortifications there without consulting England.

Major Wissmann has been presented with a laurel wreath. He declined to express an opinion on the Anglo-German agreement, saying the fact of his holding an office under the State forbade his criticising the Government. From this it is inferred he greatly disapproves of the agreement.

The inhabitants of Heligoland fear the Germans will build a pier at the island and thus destroy the means of livelihood of the boatmen, who now convey passengers to and from the shore.

P. E. I. Elections.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., June 24.—Writs for a general election for the Legislative Council have been issued. Nominations take place July 23, elections July 30.

THE COPETOWN DISASTER

CORONER WOOLVERTON AND HIS JURY VISIT THE SCENE.

The Injured at the Hospital Out of Danger—Zachariah Shields Committed for Trial on a Charge of Manslaughter—Ambitious City Notes

HAMILTON, June 24.—Coroner Woolverton with 15 jurymen went to Copetown this morning by special train provided by the Grand Trunk officials. The wreck was carefully examined, and many of the jurymen expressed their astonishment that any one could come out alive from such a mass of ruins. The rails were found to be properly spiked down, but some of the ties were in bad condition. The jury returned at 1½ p.m., having found nothing which, in their opinion, might have caused the accident.

The four injured persons who were removed to the hospital yesterday are doing well. Mrs. McDonnell, widow of one of the victims, is reported out of danger. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith are suffering considerably from shock. Conductor Lewis Larimore will, it is expected, be able to leave the hospital in a few days. Mr. T. I. L. Lewis of Chatham, who came safely out of the St. George disaster, was not so fortunate yesterday. In trying to get in through a window of the ill-fated car to assist the occupants he slipped and his legs were badly lacerated by the window glass. Undertaker C. D. Blatchford has embalmed the body of Mr. McDonnell. It will be taken to Chicago by Mrs. McDonnell's brother.

Zachariah Shields, the negro who is charged with killing Joseph Grimes a week ago, was brought up at the Police Court this morning. Dr. Olmstead, who made the post mortem examination, testified that the heart of deceased was diseased and any heavy shock would probably have caused death. Mrs. Jenkins, a neighbor of deceased, testified to hearing Shields speak angrily from within his house. Shortly after Grimes came out and after leaning for a few moments against the house he fell to the ground. Witness immediately went to his aid, but he was already dead. The prisoner was committed for trial.

Notwithstanding the struggle of the Louisana lottery people for life or death, the monthly drawings take place as usual and a few tickets reach the city through unknown channels. It is rumored that one-fortieth of the capital prize of $600,000 has been drawn by the notorious Sarah Montgomery.

Rev. J. C. Hodgins, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, was ordained in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, and now people want to know why the hall was rented for such a purpose. The breeze has rapidly grown to a storm and complaints are raining in from all quarters. Rev. George A. Forneret, rector of All Saints' Church, has written a letter to the directors of the Y.M.C.A., in which he expresses deep regret that the hall should have been rented to a denomination which denies some of the fundamental doctrines of orthodox Christianity.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE DAY.

The Festival Celebrated by 100,000 People at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 24.—The festival of St. Jean Baptiste, the national saint of the French-Canadian, was observed to-day with great eclat, and the occasion was made a general holiday in the east end. The procession formed early in the morning and, after a parade with the firing of cannon, pontifical high mass was celebrated in Notre Dame Church, Archbishop Fabre officiating. Twenty-five societies, numbering 100,000 people, were present. After mass the participants adjourned to Sohmer Park, where speeches were indulged in. A picnic and bazar continued till midnight. The proceeds of the bazar will be devoted to the national monument organized by the St. Jean Baptiste Society, now in course of erection.

Stoned to Death.

MONTREAL, June 24.—The police authorities of this city were notified yesterday of a fatal occurrence that was reported from Craig's station, county of Lotbiniere, and High Constable Gale and Sergeant Harper left immediately for the scene to endeavor to secure the arrest of the accused, one B. Shallow, who is, however, reported to have left for the United States. The deceased was an old man named Cox, aged about 70 years, known as a quiet and law-abiding citizen. The report is that his death was caused by a blow from a stone thrown by Shallow, not directly at Cox but at one Hugh Smith, whose horse he was holding. Smith was originally from Lake Beaufort, and up to two months ago was a member of the city police force. Latterly he has had charge of a stock horse in the country. Shallow had words with him about the horse, and it is reported that for some time Smith took no notice of him until Shallow ran at him first with a piece of fence rail, then with a knife. He was about getting into his buggy to drive away, when Shallow threw stones at him, one of which struck Cox on the head as already reported. He died on Sunday and the deputy coroner left yesterday to hold an inquest on the remains.

A Montreal Absconder.

MONTREAL, June 24.—Louis Meyer of Louis Meyer & Co., wholesale clothiers, has absconded leaving debts amounting to $45,000. The creditors have been able to find only $400 assets.

The Franciscans.

MONTREAL, June 24.—The new Franciscan order of monks was formally inaugurated today by Archbishop Fabre. Rev. Father Othon, Provincial Superior of the Franciscan monks of France; Rev. Father Jean Baptiste, the Superior Guardian of the local monastery; Rev. Fathers Fulcran and Xavier, two lay brothers, two theological students and two converts are the present personnel of the monastery.

Off for Bisley.

MONTREAL, June 24.—The Canadian rifle team for Bisley sail at daylight to-morrow by the Parisian.

All Hope Abandoned.

DUNBAR, PA., June 24.—The report that the rescuers had broken into Hill Farm mine this morning was false. They merely broke through a heavy "gob" into a small opening. During the day good progress has been made, and the inspectors think they are very near the coal. When the coal is struck the rescuers can go at a rate of six feet an hour. This will probably bring them into the mine during the early morning hours. All hope of finding the men alive has been abandoned.

Another Decision Against Kemmler.

SARATOGA, N.Y., June 24.—The Kemmler case has been decided by the Court of Appeals. The court stopped argument for the people and affirmed the last decision of the lower court.

O'CONNOR-STANSBURY STAKES.

The Canadian Protests Against Payment—A Foul.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., June 24.—O'Connor, who was beaten by Stansbury yesterday, has protested against the payment of the stakes to the latter. O'Connor claims the race on the ground that Stansbury took his water a quarter of a mile from the start and that a foul ensued. The umpires deny that there was a foul.

The Sydney Herald states that O'Connor has claimed the championship because Kemp would not accept his challenge.

O'Connor will not row in Australia again. He will challenge Kemp to row on the Thames for £500 a side.

SALVATOR AND TENNY.

The Son of Rayon d' Or Runs a Fast Trial—The Betting.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Tenny and Salvator were given their last trials after the races yesterday. The little sway-backed son of Rayon d' Or ran a good trial but not a great one. He speeded over the last furlong a second faster than the first, but was notoriously sluggish at the start. He did the mile and a quarter in 2.09¼. Taral rode him in the trial and full weight was carried. Salvator was galloped in the morning and covered a mile and a quarter in 2.12. Tenny is being played stronger now than at any time since the match was made. Some of the bookmakers have taken big bets on him, and the chances are that Salvator and Tenny will go to the post even favorites. Two days ago it looked like Tenny would be 2 to 1.

THROWING THE BASEBALL.

John Hatfield's Famous Throw Beaten—Vaughn Makes a Record.

BUFFALO, June 24.—Before the game here yesterday there was a throwing match between Jim O'Rourke and Harry Vaughn for $25. There was no wind and Jim threw the ball 136 yards. Vaughn won, throwing the sphere 134 yards 2¼ inches at the first attempt, beating John Hatfield's record of 133 yards 1 foot and 7 inches and near the alleged throw made by Ed Crane of the Giants—135 yards 1 foot and ½ inch.

Cornell's Freshmen Win.

NEW LONDON, June 24.—The three-cornered freshman race between Cornell, Yale and Columbia eights was rowed this evening over the two-mile course and proved to be one of the most exciting freshman races rowed on the Thames River for several years. Cornell won after a hard pull in the rather slow time of 11.16¼ with Yale a good second in 11.25 and Columbia pushing Yale sharply for second place, finishing only four seconds behind the New Haven men. Cornell defeated Yale by two boat lengths and Yale defeated Columbia by 1½ lengths. The feature of the race was at the finish where the final spurt took place. Cornell fought hard to hold her lead, but Yale and Columbia gradually lessened the distance between their boats and the leaders and it is very probable that in another half-mile both Yale and Columbia would have overhauled and passed the Cornell crew, as the latter were pulling in distress, especially at No. 2. Cornell won the race in the first mile by pulling a fast stroke.

Racing on Long Island.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, June 24.—First race, Futurity course, about 6 furlongs—Fairview 1, Lord Harry 2, Priscilla 3. Time 1.11.

Second race, 1⅛ miles—Her Highness 1, Gloaming 2, Flora Bass 3. Time 1.57.

Third race, 1 3-16 miles—Teleso 1, Padishah 2, Eon 3. Time 2.03 2-5.

Fourth race, The Coney Island stakes, 1 mile and a furlong—Firenzi 1, Prince Royal 2, Senorita 3. Time 1.55 3-5.

Fifth race, 6 furlongs—Bolero 1, Vagabond 2, Russell 3. Time 1.16.

Sixth race, 1¼ miles—Brian Boru 1, Raccoons 2, Vengeur 3. Time 2.11 4-5.

CHICAGO, June 24.—First race, ½ mile—Silver Charm 1, Woodford 2, Pennyroyal 3. Time .49¼.

Second race, 1 mile—Longevity 1, Rock 2, Corticelli 3. Time 1.46¼.

Third race, ¾ mile—Fillers 1, Esperanza 2, Mary C. 3. Time 1.09½.

Fourth race, 1⅛ miles—Robespierre 1, Business 2, Arundel 3. Time 1.55½.

BEHRING SEA.

MR. BLAINE STILL IN CORRESPONDENCE WITH LONDON.

It is Said that There is Likely to Be Trouble But It is Hoped that the Difficulty May Be Arranged Diplomatically—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Mr. Blaine has declined an invitation to be present at the meeting of the [illegible] at Chicago on [illegible] to [illegible] that he will be detained [illegible] in connection with Behring Sea. This is one of the first official statements [illegible] that the negotiations as to Behring Sea are still pending. They are pending and the cruising revenue cutters have been detailed at one of the northern ports on the Pacific coast to await their final instructions.

The statements in various quarters that trouble is to be expected on account of these instructions are, to say the least, premature. The instructions as to the conduct of the revenue cutters in Behring Sea have not yet been issued. It is expected that they will be before many days. The understanding is that the State Department has delayed the issuance of instructions to await a reply from London as to certain propositions which were made some time since. The nature of these propositions has not been made public.

"There is going to be trouble about the enforcement of the act of Congress to enforce the claim of the United States to exclusive jurisdiction in the waters of Behring Sea," said a Senator on the Foreign Affairs Committee. "The administration has a simple duty to perform. It must carry out the law. There is no escape from that. In doing this there will be taken a number of illicit sealers sailing from Victoria, and the British Government will interfere. Now, of course no one knows to what extent that interference may be carried. It is hoped that it will be merely a diplomatic difficulty to be arranged by correspondence, and that some satisfactory treaty may be made. I am informed that the Russian Government has given our government assurances that it is prepared to stand by its guarantee made in the Alaska treaty. They have been engaged for some time in fortifying in British Columbia, and it is said a fleet is to be ordered there. But be this as it may, I don't think we are going to have any difficulty that cannot be settled by peaceful means."

A Fresh Complication.

NEW YORK, June 24.—A Washington despatch to The Herald says: Members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, are informally discussing a new objection to the free sugar provision of the McKinley Bill, that they deem quite as important as any advanced by Mr. Blaine. H. A. P. Carter, the Hawaiian Minister, has called the attention of our government to the fact that if the pending Tariff Bill is enacted into law, his government must regard it as an abrogation of the existing treaty by which we have important exclusive naval privileges in the Hawaiian Islands. This fresh obstacle, so far as examined, seems to bear momentously upon the political future of the United States as connected with our position in the Pacific Ocean and our commercial interests in that region.

Uncle Sam's Southern Neighbors.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Senate having under consideration the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, when the amendment relating to the work of the International American Conference was reached, Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) made it the text of a speech in praise of the Mexican and of the Central American and South American republics and in exposition of the splendid field which they opened up to the United States for commercial intercourse and for mutual development and advantage.

Mr. Reagan (Dem., Tex.) also spoke of the great importance of securing commercial unity with the Latin-American countries.

Presidential Timber.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—These are the presidential candidates in sight:

Speaker Reed. Platform—A federal election law.

Major McKinley. Platform—Home market.

Senator Allison. Platform—Lower duties.

John Sherman. Platform—Having waited for the office 20 years it is time I chased it.

President Harrison. Platform—The general policy of the administration.

On the Eve of a Mineral Boom.

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 24.—Prospecting for minerals still continues in Coffin, Galbraith and Haughton townships, and many promising veins are being discovered. That there are good gold, silver, copper and iron veins in close proximity to us is a settled fact. All that is required now is capital to develop these mines. At the Ophir mines, where several men are being employed testing the mines in different places, it continues to show well, beautiful specimens being unearthed. In several other places in Galbraith township rich veins have been discovered, as also in Coffin to the west and Galbraith to the east. Several local companies have been formed and are meeting with good success in their explorations. Reports have also been received that good finds have been made in other eastern townships. Altogether we believe that we are on the eve of one of the greatest mineral booms that has ever struck America.

A Fire at Bayview.

HAMILTON, June 24.—About 4½ this morning the barns and contents of George Midwinter, at Bayview, were destroyed by fire. How the fire started is a mystery. When the alarm was given the place was in flames, and as the barn adjoins the hotel the latter was in great danger. The neighbors, armed with pails, attacked the flames, and by hard work prevented them from spreading. The barn was completely destroyed. There was no insurance on it, and the loss will be about $1500.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. These words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

The District Master and the Examiner.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The following letter I sent to the proprietor of the Examiner for publication, but he has refused to give it space therein and I shall be greatly obliged if you will publish it.

I remain yours respectfully,

J. GRAHAM WEIR.

OTONABEE, June 23, 1890.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—The oceans of invectives and abuse showered upon me in your remarks on my letter to you of the 19th inst., can leave no doubt in the minds of all honorable and independent people that your cause is a bad one and that the dishonest, untruthful and vindictive treatment of Peterborough District Orange Lodge and myself is for the purpose of pleasing your bosom friends of West Peterborough, and those friends who perhaps supply you with information know well that there are at present six Orange lodges in the District of Peterborough, but it appears you will not state the truth even if it answered just as well as a falsehood. You state that I betrayed Mr. Kidd, and that I promised Mr. Blezard my support. This I wish to deny in the strongest manner possible, and I challenge you with your so-called proofs. I refused to support Mr. Blezard, and although I did not promise Mr. Kidd either my vote or influence, I voted for him and threw my influence in his favor. Now, sir, if you are the honest man you claim to be and have the proofs, bring them forward, otherwise apologize for your base motive. I do not take back any part of my former letter, and I say here as I before stated, that you and the Examiner appear devoid of truth and fair dealing and you still remain deserving of your old nick name, "untruthful James."

yours, &c.,
J. GRAHAM WEIR.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

ACROSTIC.

Let mothers rejoice, not give up in despair,
A boon is now offered, saves trouble and care;
Containing the elements baby requires,—
To strengthen and nourish are mothers desires;
All over the country, from North, East and West,
The doctors themselves have pronounced it the best;
Each one who has used it, for friends young or old,
Declare it to be worth its weight in fine gold;

For all 'tis the best, most digestible food,
On the market its value is well understood;
Over all other brands it soars far away,
Decidely, now the best Food of the day.

This pure, scientific food makes sick and peevish babies well and happy, and so thoroughly nourishes the little ones living upon it, that they rarely have a sick day. It is not a medicine, but a food which makes medicine needless. Twenty thousand physicians prescribe it, and it is endorsed by all users. One hundred and fifty meals for $1.00 is true of Lactated Food alone.

The Princess of Wales' Gown.

The Princess of Wales, on a recent visit to the Royal Academy at London, was arrayed in a costume that elicited much comment. Here is the description:

"She wore a dress of golden brown summer cloth, her skirt, which was long and arrayed with no fulness in front or at the sides and perfectly straight folded at the back, was bordered all round by a narrow band of black velvet surmounted by a narrow line of similar material edged with gold braid. The bodice was outlined in a corresponding way, and the sleeves were almost flat on the shoulders and finished with cuffs of black velvet and gold braid. She wore a bonnet of velvet with satin surfaced foliage and varied harmonious tones of brown. The short velvet strings were fastened with a diamond pin. A long, black, curled ostrich feather boa completed the princess' costume."

TORONTO TOPICS.

Alleged Contempt of Court in the Burchell Case.

TORONTO, June 25.—J. F. Hellmuth, counsel for Reg. Burchell, charged with the murder of F. C. Benwell near Princeton, is once more after the newspapers. Yesterday, before the Chancery Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall, he moved to commit C. W. Bunting of The Mail and David Creighton of The Empire for contempt in publishing an associated press despatch from Lockport, N.Y., in which it was stated that Chief of Police Wills of Woodstock had found at Lockport a trunk which in the chief's opinion was "intended to receive the remains of Benwell, Burchell evidently intending to send the body over Niagara Falls in the trunk." Mr. Hellmuth argued that the publication, inasmuch as the item intimated that there was no doubt of Burchell's guilt, was calculated to prejudice the minds of the public and would prevent the accused obtaining a fair trial. Affidavits were put in by each of the defendants to the effect that the paragraph was inserted without their knowledge or consent. Their Lordships Ferguson and Boyd, who heard the argument, reserved judgment.

At their meeting yesterday in Osgoode Hall the benchers appointed two lecturers in the Law School. They are R. E. Kingsford, LL.B., and F. H. Drayton. Mr. A. H. Marsh, who resigned his position as lecturer some time ago, withdrew his resignation at yesterday's meeting. Both of the newly appointed lecturers have hitherto been examiners in the Law School. They will fill this office till the beginning of the fall term, which opens during the last week in September, when they will assume their new duties. It will then become necessary to appoint new examiners.

Mr. Kingsford is a member of the firm of Kingsford & Evans and has been practising law for about 17 years. He has been an examiner in the Law School since Oct., 1886, and has proved himself worthy of his new position. Mr. Kingsford was at one time a member of the Senate of Toronto University.

Mr. Drayton has followed the legal profession for nine years and during the latter two years has also acted as examiner. He is a man of marked ability and versed in all the details of his business. Mr. Drayton has had considerable experience in military matters and holds the rank of captain. He is senior member of the firm of Drayton & Dunbar.

Mr. Justice Street and a special jury yesterday heard the case of Jeffs v. Brough & Caswell. Plaintiff sued for damages on account of injuries received by him while in the employ of the defendants, who are printers in Toronto. The injuries were sustained by the plaintiff while running a Gordon press. At a late hour a verdict was returned for the defence.

The next case, which was not concluded, was that of Daniel Forsyth v. Dr. Canniff and the city. The plaintiff is the proprietor of the Claremont Dairy, 240 Jarvis-street. On Nov. 4 last it is charged that the defendants wrongfully, maliciously and without sufficient reason caused to be delivered to the plaintiff the following letter:

Nov. 4, 1889.

To the Proprietor of the Claremont Dairy, 240 Jarvis-street: Will discontinue selling milk until permission is given by the Local Board of Health, and will call in all the milk that has gone out for sale.

Two thousand dollars and costs were claimed. A non-suit was applied for, but his Lordship reserved his decision till to-day.

William Creely, a 11-year-old boy residing with his parents at No. 3 Hickson-street, was drowned at 8 o'clock last evening while bathing in the lake at the foot of Dunn-avenue. The little fellow must have been seized with cramps and sank quietly, as none of his companions noticed anything wrong, and it was only when they were starting home that he was missed. The body has still to be recovered.

On Monday night the city morgue was broken into and articles to the value of $25 stolen. The principal items were two canvas covers used for hiding the remains of the unfortunates brought to the dead house, and a coat belonging to the man killed last month on the Esplanade.

Mr. Hilton of Meredith, Clark, Bowes & Hilton, solicitors for the liquidators of the Central Bank, obtained from the Master-in-Chambers, at Osgoode Hall yesterday, a writ for $115,135.97 against Jas. Baxter of Montreal, for moneys alleged to be due by Baxter to the bank on promissory notes, bills of exchange, cash obtained, etc. Counsel for the liquidators claim that new evidence of a most important nature bearing on the case has been obtained, and will put a different face altogether on the transactions of defendant with the bank from that presented at the previous action against Baxter.

William Homer, a laborer, was working in a sewer in Lake-street yesterday afternoon when he missed his footing and fell to the bottom of the trench, a distance of some 12 feet. His leg was fractured in two places and the ambulance conveyed him to the hospital.

Two or three interesting liquor cases were tried at the Police Court yesterday. J. D. Brown, who keeps a cigar store at 389 King-street west, on whose premises a 15-gallon keg of beer on tap and a 10-gallon keg full of beer were found, swore that he kept the beer for his own use and the case was dismissed. Ellen Sullivan, Bathurst-street and Brown's-lane, testified that the keg of beer found in her place was bought to celebrate her daughter's wedding and the charge against her was also dismissed. Thomas H. Noble, the grocer, swore that he made no profit on the liquor he sold, but considered that he was merely acting as the agent of his customers to oblige them. This plea did not save him, however, and he was fined $50 and costs. William Bugg, steward of the Toronto Gun Club, was fined $50 and costs or three months on a similar charge.

Mr. George A. Harvey, medical student at Toronto University, who attended the lectures of the faculty last session as a first year's student, was drowned while bathing at Atwood on Monday. At a meeting of medical students a letter of condolence was prepared for transmission to the parents of deceased.

G. B. Smith, M.L.A. for East York, will leave to-day on a two months' business trip in Germany, France and Great Britain.

Odd Bits of Life.

Two men sat on a bench in Union Square to enjoy rest and sunshine, says the New York Sun—one at either end of the bench. One was apparently well fed and well-to-do; the other had apparently staked his all and gone down with the crash. For the first five minutes not a word was spoken. Then the hard-up man ventured the observation:

"Fine day."

The other nodded. About five minutes later hard-up remarked:

"Foliage coming out."

A second nod. The interval was only three minutes this time, when the speaker inquired:

"Think you could cash a check for me?"

A third nod. It was exactly a minute and a half before he continued:

"It would be a great favor."

The other put his hand into his pocket, but let it remain. The hard-up man was now breathing in an excited manner, but he held himself back for fifty seconds before he said:

"It's a small check—one for a quarter."

The other held a quarter in his fingers and looked up to say: "Might have had it fifteen minutes ago."

"But I was afraid of working you too fast. I've been over in Jersey for three months, and they took all the hustle out of me there. Why, sir, I got so at last that I'd get to a house at midnight and wait for the farmer to get up in the morning to ask him if I might sleep under his straw-stack the coming night. At one place they were three weeks sending me to jail for five days, and it took me two days to make up my mind to break out and two more to dig through the wall. I'll soon be all right again. By next week I'll be able to ask you for a dollar without losing ten seconds' time."

NOVELTIES IN JEWELRY.

Among the latest productions in queen chain pendants is a miniature gold egg cup containing a platinum egg.

Oval cuff links with a band of sapphire dividing clusters of diamonds and rubies are costly and rich ornaments.

Two diamond doves with outstretched wings, holding between them a beautiful topaz, form a lace pin of recent production.

Many jewelers declare that colored stones will occupy this season a more prominent position in summer jewelry than heretofore.

Three diamonds nestling among the blossoms of a spray of gold backed enamel lilacs form a seasonable and pretty lace pin.

The fair sex will appreciate a gold queen chain ball pendant of delicate open filigree work containing a richly perfumed pad. This ornament obviates the necessity for using perfume on the attire and will doubtless prove to be a popular novelty.—Jewelers' Weekly.

The Open Sesame.

First reporter (at crowded meeting): "How did you manage to make your way through that awful crowd outside?" Second Reporter: "I got a club, blackened it with shoe polish, and then began hitting right and left. As the people dropped with cracked skulls I stepped over them and hammered away again until I reached the door." "Cracky! Didn't the crowd try to mob you?" "Oh, no. They thought from my actions that I was a policeman in citizen's clothes." —N. Y. Weekly.

He Took a Walk.

Fourteen years ago a Connecticut husband named Davis left the house one afternoon saying he guessed he'd take a little walk. Two weeks ago he returned, having never written a word to his wife in all the years. And the first thing she did was to break his head with the broomstick, and the next to inform him that she had been married for twelve years.

Dux Femina.

Ethel Reddy: "Mamma won't you please ask Dr. Docs to look at my little sick duckling?" Mrs. Reddy: "No, no; run away! Dr. Docs isn't a bird doctor." Ethel Reddy: "Well, papa said last night he was a quack doctor."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

London Lancet says of hot weather drinks: "Beer and other stimulants are hurtful rather than helpful." The "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice is absolutely pure and is perferable to any form of alcoholic drink.

He Was Despondent.

LAKEFIELD, Ont., June 24.—Edward McGuire, aged 28, of Harvey, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor yesterday. It is supposed he committed the deed in a fit of despondency. The Horticultural Society.

A meeting of the Directors of the Horticultural Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Mayor's office. There were present Mr. J. H. Roper, President, and Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, F. J. Lewis, Dr. Burnham, Adam Hall and R. Pearse. It was decided to hold the annual exhibition of the Society in the Charlotte-st. rink on the first or second Thursday in September, the date depending on the season. Messrs. Roper, John Burnham and D. W. Dumble were appointed a committee to revise the prize list and to decide on the date for the exhibition. The question of Sunday afternoon meetings on the Court House Park again came up and it was decided to adhere to the resolution adopted last year. A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions and ask the public to assist in supporting the Society in its work. This committee should have a light task and should meet with ready response. The society, apart from its regular work, which is in every way commendable, has done much and is still doing much in attending to the Court House Park and keeping that beautiful place in order. To do this as it should be done it must be aided by the people, and by simply becoming members of the Society aid and encouragement will be given.

A FAREWELL.

Rev M. L. Pearson Receives an Address from the Royal Templars.

The Royal Templars' hall was well filled last night with a gathering of members of the order of Royal Templars, Independent Order of Good Templars, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Young Women's Union and others, including a good representation from the Bridgenorth and North Monaghan Councils of Royal Templars, to bid farewell to Rev. M. L. Pearson, who leaves on Thursday to go to his new pastoral charge at Orangeville. The chair was occupied by Rev. A. C. Wilson of Peterborough Council of Royal Templars, and the meeting was opened with singing and prayer by Rev. D. N. Houck, of Bridgenorth. A good programme was then carried out, composed of a piano solo by Miss V. Bellegham, an address by the chairman, an address of welcome to the visitors by Miss Henderson, Select Councillor of the Peterborough Royal Templars, a solo by Miss Owens, an address by Mr. G. J. Early, W. C. T. of the Independent Order, instrumental music by Mr. Seward, an instrumental trio by members of the I. O. G. T., an address by Rev. S. J. Shorey, a cornet solo by Mr. J. Miller, an address by Rev. D. S. Houck, Select Councillor of Bridgenorth Royal Templars, and a quartette by Mrs. Turner, Miss Loucley and Messrs. Turner and Miller. Rev. Mr. Pearson was then called forward and Mr. Armstrong read the following

ADDRESS:

Rev. M. L. Pearson, Chaplain of Peterborough Council, Royal Templars:

REV. AND DEAR BROTHER,—We who have been your colleagues in temperance work in Peterborough during the past two years desire, before you leave, to give expression to our high appreciation of the services you have rendered to that cause in this town.

You had a reputation and a record as a staunch upheld of the cause of sobriety before you came among us, and we were pleased to receive you as a member of our Order soon after your arrival. Since then you have cheered us frequently, though not altogether as often as we desired, by your presence in our Council meetings, and your counsel, always thoughtful as well as hopeful, has been of great benefit.

In the temperance work in the town you have taken a foremost part. The influence of a clergyman is great, and we know that the duties of their position as pastors of large congregations are onerous, but we are glad that you have been able to devote so much of your time to the work we have banded ourselves in a society to accomplish, and to give the weight of your influence with the efforts made to promote the principles of total abstinence. We are pleased to be able to inform you that your services have not only been appreciated by those with whom you have worked, but they have also been productive of much good in the community.

We sincerely regret that your voice will not be heard in our Council meetings and on our platforms as before. We will feel the loss of your valuable assistance in this town, but our best wishes will go with you to your new sphere of usefulness, and we know that you will there, as here, find opportunity to join in the fight against the great evil of intemperance, which covers our whole land, and although we will not be so close together in the ranks, we will still be members of the same great army which will yet succeed in winning Canada over to sobriety and total abstinence.

We heartily wish you and Sister Pearson, and the members of your family, some of whom were also members of our Council, peace and prosperity in your new home, and we pray that the blessing of God may ever rest upon you and yours.

Signed on behalf of Peterborough Council No. 97, Royal Templars of Temperance.

R. BECKETT, Rec. Secretary. M. J. SANDERSON, Select Councillor.

Rev. Mr. Pearson replied in an appropriate terms, thanking them for the kind, but he thought too flattering, address, and referring to the pleasant character of his association with the Royal Templars and temperance people generally of Peterborough.

Short addresses were also given by Messrs. J. J. Hartley, G. W. Powell and G. S. Bean. Refreshments, consisting of cake and lemonade, were then served. A solo was given by Miss Butcher and the very pleasant meeting was closed with the benediction by Rev. Mr. Pearson.

At the close of the meeting a Royal Templar council of instruction was held.

A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exdous to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawirey Bros., George-st. d148

HYMENEAL.

The Marriage of Dr. C. S. Haultain and Miss Dennistoun.

Castleknock, the residence of Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun, was the scene at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon of a very pleasant event, the marriage of Miss Henrietta Eleanor, eldest daughter of the late James F. Dennistoun, Q. C., and granddaughter of Judge Dennistoun, and Charles S. Haultain, M. D., of the Northwest Mounted Police and second son of Major-General F. M. Haultain, of London, Eng., late of the Madras Staff Corps. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. F. Torrance, M. A., of St. Paul's church. The venerable Judge Dennistoun gave the bride away and Miss Annie and Miss Mamie Dennistoun, eldest sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, while Mr. R. M. Dennistoun assisted the groom. The bride was prettily attired in white silk trimmed with tulle and with tulle veil; while orange blossoms decked her hair, and in her hand she carried a beautiful white bouquet. Miss Annie Dennistoun wore a dress of pink silk trimmed with silver and Miss Mamie Dennistoun a dress of French grey china silk, and both the sisters carried handsome cream boquets.

The ceremony was witnessed by a family gathering of between forty and fifty, including Judge Dennistoun, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Noble, and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jenkins, of Petrolea. After the ceremony an elaborate wedding dejeuner was served, and the happy couple leave on the 5.50 train for Toronto and will proceed on a tour through the Rocky Mountains and to the Pacific coast, after which they will take up their residence at Maple Creek, N. W. T.

The bride was the recipient of an unusually large and magnificent array of wedding gifts, from numerous friends. Dr. Haultain and his bride were very popular with their acquaintances and friends, and many and heart-felt are the good wishes that will follow them to their home in the western Dominion.

Buckhorn Locks.

Mr. R. B. Rogers has returned from Buckhorn, where he went to look into the cause of the trouble which came near cutting short the County Council's trip last week. He found that one chain was unhooked off the gate and that the other chain was broken. It was but the work of a few minutes to hook the one chain on, and while that was being done a rivet link was put in the other chain. Under the circumstances it is strange that the lockmaster had not had the gates in order when the Cruiser reached the locks.

The Indian Officers.

Commissioner Booth-Tucker, Staff Capt. and Mrs. Jai Singh, and Lord Ratna Pula, the Indian officers of the Salvation Army, arrived at noon to-day accompanied by other officers. They were met at the station by a large procession of officers and soldiers and escorted up the street. At the corner of George and Hunter-sts. the procession halted and short addresses were given. Commissioner Booth-Tucker sang a Persian version of the hymn, "O, it was Love, it was Wonderous Love," afterwards singing it in English and gave a short address. Lord Ratna Pula, the converted Buddhist priest, then spoke for a short time, the commissioner interpreting, after which he said a few words in English. Mrs. Jai Singh sang a hymn and Staff-Capt. Jai Singh also gave an address. To-night a grand parade will be held and at 8 o'clock a "great Indian durbar" in the barracks.

Brevities.

—The Court of Revision will meet to-morrow night.

—A meeting of the Board of Health will be held on Friday night.

—The sidewalk on Crescent-st. to the cemetery ordered by the Council would be appreciated now.

—A west end resident who is something of a poultry man has a couple of roosters that crow vociferously every night, beginning the concert about 9.30 and subsiding near early morning. A neighbor objects to the roosters—that is to their crowing. Various remedies have been proposed and it is understood that acting on suggestions a local hardware man has sent to the States for a patent bird muzzle or two which will be donated to the poultry man when they arrive.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Peterboroughs Win a Victory from the Markham Club.

A game of baseball was played on the P. A. A. A. grounds yesterday afternoon by the Peterboroughs and a team from the Markham club, which came on the excursion. The match was an interesting one throughout. The home team was in good form and played a good steady game all round, the result being shown in a victory by 14 runs to 3. The Markham team also played well except in the third innings, when they got somewhat rattled.

In the first innings both teams went out without making a run, and in the second McGlynn scored one for the home team. In the third every one of the Peterboroughs crossed the plate and three of them twice, while Markham only made one. The fourth innings was a blank on each side and in the fifth Markham scored one, while in the sixth Peterborough added one to its score. In the seventh and last innings played, Markham got another run in, but the score of the home team remained unchanged. This gave the game to Peterborough by 14 to 3.

The match was well played and was well worth seeing by all who take an interest in ball.

The score was as follows:—

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we haven't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no lose, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

THE SUGAR BEET.

HOW IT MAY MOST PROFITABLY BE CULTIVATED.

Free Exposure to Sunlight Absolutely Necessary—Comparitive Merits of Oats and Barley From Various Points of View—The Philosophy of Butter Making.

From an advance copy of a bulletin issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture the following is taken:—The soil should be drained and with a good exposure to the light. It should be of loose texture, easily pulverized and of average fertility. Barnyard manure should not be applied immediately before planting, but if the soil has received a dressing of well-rotted manure the previous autumn, which has been well ploughed in and left over winter, it may be of advantage. If fertilizers are employed superphosphates of lime, containing from 14 to 15 per cent. of available phosphoric acid, may be used at the rate of 250 to 300 pounds per acre; if nitrogen is employed, it should be only in moderate quantities and best in the form of nitrate of soda at the rate of 100 to 150 pounds per acre; potash may be supplied in the form of kainite at the rate of 300 to 400 pounds per acre; or a high grade sulphate at the rate of 50 to 100 pounds per acre. It is probable that in most soils where experiments are made this year no fertilizers of any kind will be used and very good beets can be grown on most of our western soils without the use of fertilizers at present. When fertilizers are used they may be sown broadcast or drilled in the rows and best at the time of planting.

If the soil is deep and rich it may be ploughed at once to the depth of 12 or 15 inches. In less fertile soils it is best to plough to the depth of 8 or 9 inches and subsoil to the depth of 4 or 5 inches. The land should be thoroughly harrowed and reduced to a fine condition of tilth before planting. For small patches the seed can be put in by hand. For larger fields drills can be provided. In general, the rows should be 18 inches apart and the seed planted so as to give one for about every three inches. When the beets begin to show four leaves they should be thinned so they will stand at a distance of from 6 to 8 inches apart in the rows, according to the fertility of the soil. This regular thinning of the beets is absolutely necessary to secure a high sugar content and it should be completed before they show six leaves. In very fertile soils the beets should be left closer together, while in less fertile ones they should be further apart. The object, in all cases, should be to grow a beet which will weigh about 1 pound after it is cleaned and topped.

It is best to have the beets cultivated flat and not planted in ridges. Any method of cultivation which will keep out the weeds and keep the ground thoroughly stirred, will be sufficent. It is important that the hoe should be used, especially at the time of thinning and, to secure good results, this method of cultivation should not be neglected. The cultivation of beets should be continued about the same time as for ordinary crops and they should be laid by when the leaves begin to thoroughly cover the ground. If beets are planted in small patches, they should be in such a position as not to be shaded by other growing crops, especially corn, the free exposure to sunlight is absolutely necessary to produce a beet containing a maximum precentage of sugar.

Oats and Barley.

Barley has never been as successful a crop in this country as in England, says Mr. S. W. Chambers in the American Cultivator, Boston, where there is a great and steady demand for it for malting purposes. One reason is that the American barley has always been inferior in quality to that grown in Europe, and very few first-class English maltsters would buy the American product for their work. The English have lately bought up many of the American breweries, and the question is propounded among farmers whether this will not tend to increase the demand for first-class American barley. The question is asked, will oats or barley pay the best? Evidently the former is the surer crop, beer is being made without barley now, and it is doubtful if a very heavy demand for this purpose will ever be made again. Last year there was little or no demand for barley, and those who raised this crop could not dispose of it profitably. Barley certainly improves the land, and leaves it in better condition for wheat, and barley straw is superior to oat straw for feeding purposes. The latter, however, is nearly twice as great in quantity. The whole question then is that it is not safe to raise barley for the markets, but for feeding purposes it is. Even in this latter respect oats seems to be the superior crop.

The English, even with all of their barley raising, prefer oats for fattening animals, and say that oats make better and firmer meat than any of the other grains. Barley is an excellent feed for store sheep and for cows in milk; but it would not pay to raise it for these alone unless large numbers of the animals were raised. On a dairy farm there is no doubt but a field of barley would pay the owner; but where animals are fed for the market, or for home use, the oat crop is by far preferable. For work animals the oats give more solid flesh and muscle than nearly twice the amount of barley. A great many, working upon the assumption that the new English breweries will increase the demand for barley next year, are preparing to raise this crop more extensively than ever before. It is a little doubtful yet as to what course these breweries will pursue. It is not likely that they will import barley from England, but rather than use the inferior barley which has been grown in this country it is very probable that they will make their beer without the use of this grain. If American farmers are anxious to compete in this market, better crops of barley must be raised, and superior culture be given to it at the outset. The English excel in this crop, and American barley is always compared with their high-grade home product.

The Milking Stool.

You can churn sweet cream and get all the butter out of it, you can churn slightly acid cream and get all the butter, or you can churn thick, sour cream and get all the butter.

The sweet cream will make butter, of very mild flavor; if you prefer its flavor to that of ripened cream then the question is settled so far as you are concerned.

Tastes differ; if you are making butter to sell you must consult the taste of your customers.

If you gather the butter in the churn before washing it you will have butter with a decided buttermilk flavor. There is no objection to this—if one likes it—but it is not true butter flavor.

Some of those who have been accustomed to eating buttermilk-flavored butter do not at first like the flavor of butter washed while in grains, but after they use it for a while they object to the other kind.

Butter can be salted too much when it is dry-salted, but not when it is brine salted. The latter method requires the most salt and the least labor, besides being sure to salt the butter evenly.

When brine-salted there is no use in waiting for the butter to absorb the brine when it is put into the churn; if you are ready to print or pack give the churn a few turns, draw off the brine and the butter will be as salt as if it were allowed to remain in the brine for an hour.

Little grains of butter do not "absorb" brine, but each grain becomes coated with a film of brine, which salts it sufficiently to suit most tastes.

Cream can be kept sweet until wanted for churning by keeping it at a low temperature, but it should be stirred twice a day.

If the cream is well stirred, properly ripened, churned at the right temperature and the butter washed with brine while in small grains there will be no white specks in it. And if it is brine-salted there will be no streaks on it.

After the cream is brought to the right temperature to go into the churn the churn must be warmed to the same degree; otherwise a very cold churn may chill the cream too much.

When the "witches" get into the cream and the butter won't come hang a horse-shoe over the dairy door and then find out the reason why the butter doesn't come. If the cause proves to be too low temperature of the cream, and the thermometer you use is one of your fingers, take down the horseshoe, hunt up enough more of them to sell as old iron for 50 cents and trade the dairy thermometer. This will bring whole piles of "luck" into your dairy and kept out a good many "witches."—Stockman.

The Earliest Flying Machine.

The earliest flying machine that we can trace is that invented by Archytas, of Tarentum, B. C. 400. The historian of the "Brazen Age" tells us how the geometrician, Archytas, made a wooden pigeon which was able to sustain itself in the air for a few minutes, but it came down to the ground after a short time, notwithstanding the mysterious "aura spirit" with which it was supposed to be endowed. The capability of flying has for centuries been regarded as supernatural. Putting angels aside, demons are depicted with wings like bats' wings, while witches, etc., possessed the faculty of flying up chimneys upon broomsticks. We even read in childish lore of an old woman who "went up in a basket" (perhaps a balloon car) and attained a most astonishing altitude—an elevation no less than "seventy times as high as the moon!" It was not until 1782, however, that the true art of aerial navigation was discovered.

The Horseshoe for Luck.

It is claimed that the origin of the superstition that a horseshoe brings good luck can be traced back to the thirteenth century. The monk Gervaise, of Tilbury, informs us that at that time there was a kind of demon in England which appeared as a horse rearing on its hind legs and with sparkling eyes. Whenever this apparition was seen it was a sign that a conflagration would soon break out. Hence, as giving a kindly warning, this mysterious horse was regarded as a friendly spirit, and the animal in general was believed to be a beneficent mystic power. A horse tooth carried in the pocket prevented toothache; it was a sign of good luck to find a horseshoe, and one was placed under the pillow of a child to cure the colic, or nailed against a building to prevent it from catching fire. This led to its general adoption as a protective symbol.

Scientific Brevities.

Experiments are said to have proved that where electric lights have been used in place of oil lamps for lighting the compasses of vessels at night, an incandescent lamp brought close to the compass caused a deflection of the needle.

For water proof glue soak in a cool place half a pound of glue for one night in a quart of good milk, and boil it the next day.

The manufacture of paper from moss is reported from Sweden. The paper is as hard as wood and can easily be painted and polished.

A project for building a canal from the sea coast to Brussels will, if carried out, make that city practically a sea port.

Again it is announced that the photographing of colors has been achieved, this time by an Austrian.

What Are Orchids?

What is an orchid? A plant whose home is in the tropical forests, and yet a plant which is not dependent for its sustenance upon the earth or water in their visible forms. It is a curiosity of the vegetable world, which, perched in the air, sends out its long, searching roots and draws its nourishment from the atmosphere. Ethereal in its nature, so far as this characteristic is concerned, it is very substantial in the valuation which its owners and raisers place upon plants of rare varieties.

According to The Boston Advertiser, experts in this branch of horticulture say that some fine roots are well worth $5,000 each, and some have been held at even higher figures. Their rarity, the difficulty with which they are propagated, the exquisite delicacy, strange forms and great variety of blossoms are the reasons given for these extraordinary values.

Wood Wools.

A machine for making wood wool is being used in England. According to The Commercial Advertiser, wood wool is coming rapidly into favor among manufacturers of glass, cutlery, confectionery, etc., for packing purposes on account of its cleanliness and non-hygroscopic properties, but its adoption is hindered, among other things, by its comparatively high price. The new machine is intended to reduce the price, for it is of such size and design that every manufacturer can have one working on his premises, and can thus turn out his own wood wool. Very little attention is required by the machine and all the parts are easy renewable. Timber of any convenient length can be cut, and waste pieces can also be utilized.

Mixed Fuel for Engines.

At Spezzia some experiments have just been made on the Italian man-of-war Messaggiero, with a view to ascertaining the speed attainable with coal and petroleum mixed for fuel. They are said to have resulted in solving the problem of obtaining a certain and high velocity at a given moment. The Messaggiero, which never before surpassed fifteen knots an hour, reached almost seventeen with the new process of combustion. The engineers, however, complain that the immense heat generated affects the boilers injuriously.

To Prevent the Slipping of Belts.

One good way to prevent belts from slipping is to paint the face of the pulley. This can be done, says The Industrial World, by using hot asphaltum or white lead made very thin with turpentine. It will adhere well if allowed to dry thoroughly. A thicker coat of white lead and oil should then be applied and allowed to dry thoroughly before being used. These coatings will not scale off if properly applied.

Hatch Leghorns Now.

As the season is getting late, only the small breeds should be hatched in May for next season's laying. The Leghorns are adapted to May, as the eggs hatch well, and the chicks are active and forage for themselves. They mature early, and begin to lay before they are six months old. It will cost but very little to raise Leghorns now.

THE LADIES SPOKE FRENCH.

Unfortunately Some of Their Fellow Travellers Did Also.

A beautiful example of the sublime faith some people have in the superiority of their attainments over those of the people by whom they are surrounded, and of the confusion which occasionally ensues when it transpires that such faith has been misplaced, was presented in a railway car recently.

A lady and gentleman, the spic-and-span newness of whose apparel and belongings and the flawlessness of whose courtesy to each other bespoke their freshly wedded state were speeding along in the express from Boston. At one of the stations they alighted and presently returned accompanied by a young lady, who was evidently the sister of the bride. During their brief absence their places had been taken by newcomers and it was necessary force the party to distribute itself through the car. The sisters pouted a little at being separated by the aisle, and craned their heads across to whisper to each other. They seemed to have a great deal to say. This was proven when they hit upon the happy expedient of conversing in French. From this time they sat comfortably erect and talked across in tones sufficiently loud to be easily heard above the noise of the train. Their French was not that of the salons. It had probably been acquired in the nursery from some voluble bonne. But it proved all-sufficient for the transmission of the most confidential tales of the young wife's brief matrimonial career. It transpired that she was on her wedding journey, and not having seen her sister since the day when she started out in a rainstorm of rice and slippers, she had much to impart, and the particulars were thrilling. They talked in the somewhat thin, fine voices which are characteristic of "Down East" maidens, and which penetrate like a child's treble. When an occasional stop was made they were too interested to pause and did not even lower their tones, they felt so sure everybody else in the car could only understand United States. The wife had disclosed the whole history up to the present time when the train came to a stop in the Grand Central Depot. Then in the sudden hush a gentleman and lady who had been sitting near by exchanged a few sentences relative to their luggage and plans and spoke in correct and fluent French. As their accents fell upon the ears of the authors of les confidences the effect was marvellous, and the girls turned and fled like the Assyrian host, leaving their belongings to be collected by the young husband who had understood nothing and seemed wholly mystified.

As to Setting Rivers on Fire.

Bobby—"Mr. Bagley, you wouldn't set the North River on fire, would you?"

Mr. Bagley—"Why, no, Bobby, of course not. I couldn't do that. Why do you ask?"

Bobby—"Well, they were discussing smart people at the house last night and that's what sister Sarah said about you. I guess sister's got you down pretty fine."—Rochester Post-Express.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

DIAZ IN DANGER.

MEXICO REPORTED TO BE ON THE VERGE OF A REVOLT.

United States Troops Sent to the Rendezvous—The Agitators Said to Be Merely a Gang of Bandits—Some Unpopular Legislation.

LAREDO, TEX., June 25.—There seems to be no reasonable doubt that the Mexican Government fears some kind of an uprising, and there are various sensational rumors afloat in connection therewith, but none of them can be traced to a source sufficiently authentic to warrant refutation. What gives color to the belief that the general government of Mexico apprehends danger is the fact that troops are being massed on the frontier. It will be remembered that it was on this frontier that the revolution had birth that made Diaz president of Mexico. The Diaz government is, however, strong enough to nip in the bud any revolution. Charges have been made against some three or more men under the United States neutrality law, and warrants for their arrest are now in the hands of United States officials. It is most reasonable to suppose that there are to be some very sensational developments here in a few days that will assume an international character, and the Diaz government, while it has nothing to fear, is only acting to preserve the peace.

The enemies of Diaz say that the law recently passed by the Mexican congress, making it possible at the next election to elect Diaz for life, will result in his assassination and a revolution. They say that some of the governors of the states of the Mexican confederation said boldly that if congress can pass a law making it possible to be president for life, that their legislatures ought also to make their tenure of office for life. There is no doubt that the law has occasioned considerable unrest in Mexico. The organizers of the outbreak are said to make their headquarters in Laredo, and agents of the American Government, so it is said, have been here for several days securing the names of the men.

To-night I learned that warrants have been issued for Ruis, Sardonall and about 50 others. Deputy United States Marshal Ygleslas has the papers for their arrests, and knowing full well that he has not a force sufficient to arrest them, has asked for troop from Fort McIntosh. The fugitives are said to be stationed about 50 miles above here. Deputy Ygleslas left Fort McIntosh at 11 o'clock to-night for the point which scouts indicate as the rendezvous of the revolutionists, with a sufficient force of United States soldiers to kill or capture them. At the same time a force of Mexican soldiers left the fort in New Laredo to intercept the revolutionists should they attempt to escape across the Rio Grande. The penalty for the violation of the revolutionary act of the United States criminal code is $1000 fine and three to seven years in penitentiary.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., June 25.—Senor Felipe Gonzalis, a wealthy merchant and rancher of Tamico, Mexico, has arrived here from the scene of the alleged revolutionary operations in Mexico. According to Gonzalis the alleged revolution is nothing more or less than a bold attempt of an organized gang of bandits to commit robbery. Gonzalis says that last Friday the bandits, under the leadership of an ex-officer of the Mexican army, attacked a train near Monterey bearing gold and silver bullion to the United States. The train was well guarded by a detachment of soldiers and a pitched battle resulted, in which several of the bandits were killed and their leader captured and shot. The bandits, Gonzalis declares, were Mexican refugees who crossed from the Texas side of the river near Laredo. Notwithstanding this statement it is the general belief here that a revolutionary movement of no inconsiderable importance is in progress.

A Flat Denial.

MEXICO, June 25.—Mexico has never been more peaceful nor has peace been enjoyed for a longer time than under the present administration. Reports of revolution or revolutionary talk are solely confined to sensationalists.

There has been a disposition on their part to magnify local troubles not worthy of the name of riots into revolutions. Notwithstanding this these troubles have not possessed a single political feature.

The only move the Government has made is to mass troops in Nuevo Laredo to head off Mexican malcontents, who, with more bluster than sense, have threatened to invade Mexican soil from Texas.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS ABOLISHED

A Decision Which Sustains the Manitoba Legislature's Law.

WINNIPEG, June 25.—Judgment was given yesterday by Judge Bain in the famous separate school case. The Judge upheld the law recently passed by the Legislature abolishing separate schools, and grants an injunction to restrain teachers in Catholic schools from holding religious exercises.

Still Digging Away.

DUNBAR, PA., June 25.—The miners who are trying to reach their imprisoned comrades are still digging away. They are 510 feet below the hill and nearly one mile from the mouth of the pit. They are still working in the hardest kind of "gob."

Drowned at Brantford.

BRANTFORD, June 25.—Donald B. Thomson, aged 16 years, was drowned while bathing in Grand River last night. He was a good swimmer, but was probably seized by a cramp. Young Thomson came here from Dumbarton, Scotland, about two years ago. His parents now live in Bay City, Mich.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE GOVERNMENT DROPS THE LICENSING CLAUSES.

Prince Ferdinand's Narrow Escape from Death—Stanley and Miss Tennant at Oxford—The Explorer Made a Doctor of Civil Law.

LONDON, June 25.—The Times and Standard admit that the licensing bill has been doomed by the Speaker's opinion expressed in the House of Commons yesterday. The Speaker's ruling, which was received with cheers by the Opposition, caused the ministers to retire to discuss it. Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain, who were summoned to the conference, advised the Cabinet to drop the obnoxious clauses. No definite decision was arrived at, but the clauses will probably be dropped. The Government's decision will be announced Thursday, consideration of the bill being postponed until then.

The Post wants the Government to drop all bills and simply to ratify the Anglo-German agreement, deal with supply and immediately adjourn parliament.

The Telegraph says that the Government has done all that could legitimately be expected of them in the face of the obstruction offered, and that their best course now is to drop the licensing bill.

The Government's blundering was denounced by several speakers at the Unionist meeting yesterday.

The Conservatives have decided to nominate a candidate in opposition to Caine, who resigned his seat for Barrow-in-Furness with the object of seeking a re-election on an anti-compensation platform.

Lord Hartington is averse to the Conservatives contesting Barrow-in-Furness.

Decided to Drop It.

LONDON, June 25.—The Cabinet has decided to drop the licensing clause of the local taxation bill.

Sentenced for Intimidation.

CORK, June 25.—The court at Bantry today sentenced Father Crowley to one month's imprisonment and six months additional in default of bail for good behavior for intimidating a Protestant clergyman at Schull.

Ferdinand's Narrow Escape.

SOFIA, June 25.—While Prince Ferdinand was crossing the river near Rustichuck aboard a steamer one of the masts of the steamer was struck by lightning. The Prince had a narrow escape.

Dr. Stanley at Oxford.

LONDON, June 25.—Henry M. Stanley and his fiancee, Miss Tennant, attended the commemoration day exercises at Oxford University to-day. The undergraduates gave Stanley a most uproarious reception. They cheered and chaffed him, and when he was formally presented they sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," following up the song with more cheers for the explorer and finishing with "One more for the bride." The degree of Doctor of Civil Law was conferred upon Mr. Stanley and upon Professor Goodwin of Harvard (Mass.) University.

DESERTED HIS YOUNG BRIDE.

A Husband's Mysterious Treatment of His Beautiful Wife.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 25.—Mr. Ernest Leavaron of Paris, France, arrived here a week ago with his beautiful bride, a girl of 17 years. The day after their arrival here he purchased a half interest in a leading cafe and deposited several thousand dollars in the First National Bank.

Leavaron found a suite of rooms in which he placed magnificent furnishings, but there was only one day allotted for the enjoyment of these quarters.

The next morning Leavaron kissed his wife, said he was going out to do some marketing and would soon return. After waiting for some time the wife began to be uneasy, and going over to the cafe found a letter which nearly broke her heart. It was dated at St. Paul and enclosed $250, and said that she must forgive him for what he had done, but that he could not live with her any longer and that they must part forever.

Instructions were given for her to sell the furniture and buy a ticket for New York. After returning to that city she would find at the house of a mutual friend a ticket to France. Mrs. Leavaron left for New York to-day.

Her husband's interest in the cafe is worth $5000, and the cause of his disappearance is a mystery.

THE THIRD VICTIM.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the Essex Boiler Explosion Fatality.

COLCHESTER, June 25.—Frank Quick, the third victim of the boiler explosion, died at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Thomas Craig and Peter White are still in a critical condition.

The coroner's jury rendered this verdict: "That the explosion was the result of a defective boiler with no blame attached to any one."

Man and Horse Killed by Lightning.

CHELSEA, Que., June 25.—John Cameron, jun., son of Mr. Cameron, Gilmour's agent, was killed during the thunderstorm last evening. He was drawing stone all day and was getting his last load when he and the span of horses were killed. His hired man with him was injured but not dangerously.

Capt. Hendrie Seriously Injured.

CAMP NIAGARA, Ont., June 25.—At the artillery camp fire last night, while the officers were amusing themselves with trials of athletic skill, Capt. J. S. Hendrie, in making a jump, badly dislocated his ankle. He suffered great pain during the night, and at noon to-day was taken home on Albert Gooderham's steam yacht Aileena. Surgeon Osborne and a squad of 12 men under Sergt.-Major Wholton accompanied the yacht as litter-bearers.

To Meet in Montreal in 1891.

MONTREAL, June 25.—The Royal Society of Canada will hold its next meeting in 1891 in Montreal. This will be the first time the Royal Society ever met outside of Ottawa. Dr. J. G. Bourinot, clerk of the House of Commons, is the honorary secretary. The Natural History Society of this city has the matter of reception in hand.

Capital Notes.

OTTAWA, June 25.—Sir Adolph Caron left last night for Quebec. He will return on Friday.

Mr. Boyle, M.P., and Dr. Montague, M.P., went west to-night for a month's stay in British Columbia.

Circulars have been sent out by the Department of Agriculture to experimental farm superintendents and government agents, asking information as to the state of the crops throughout the country.

Agent Street Cut Rates.

CHICAGO, June 25.—In the Federal Court to-day Judge Blodgett rendered his decision in the case of the United States against executive officers of the Michigan Central Railroad for violating the Interstate Commerce Law in carrying grain from Chicago to New York at cut rates. Messrs. Nichols and Somers were found not guilty and were discharged and Agent Street was fined $3000 and given sixty days in which to pay his fine.

FATALLY BURNT.

A Hamilton Girl Perishes in Terrible Agony—The Copetown Victims.

HAMILTON, June 25.—While Joseph Christie and Mary Kenney, two 6-year-olds, were playing with matches last night, the little girl's dress became ignited and she was frightfully burned, dying in terrible agony within a couple of hours. The little one's father is a Grand Trunk car inspector living at 88 Ferrie-st. east.

William McDonnell of Chicago and John G. O'Neil of Port Huron, the brother and brother-in-law of E. J. McDonnell, who was killed in the recent railway disaster, left here for Port Huron this morning with the body. Lewis Larmour, the injured Wagner car conductor, has recovered. He left the hospital this morning and went to his home in Chicago. The other passengers at the hospital are doing as well as can be expected. T. L. L. Lewis and James T. Black, the injured commercial travelers, are still at the Royal.

A fatal accident took place yesterday at North Glanford. Mr. John Duffield, a well-known farmer, residing on lot 9, concession 8, Glanford, was engaged in drawing out manure when his horse took fright and ran away. He was thrown out and sustained fatal injuries, both to the head and internally. Death must have been instantaneous. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

Lynwood Palmer, the young English artist who had his shoulder blade broken by being thrown from his horse while riding along the road at the rear of the asylum, has brought suit against the township of Barton for $5000 damages. He claims that the road was out of repair.

In connection with the Freelton riot writs have been issued at the instance of John Brady against Justices of the Peace James L. Robertson and John Ross of Freelton, claiming $10,000 damages because "they did unlawfully and maliciously, and without reason or probable cause, cause a charge of common assault against John Brady to be altered and amended at the request of James Brady or his solicitor after hearing the evidence for the prosecution and defence, which showed that no charge, either of common assault or other crime against John Brady, could be changed to one of aggravated assault."

KINGSTON'S RECORD BEATEN.

Salvator Wins the $15,000 Race at Sheepshead Bay.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, June 25.—The Tenny-Salvator event led over 15,000 people to the track to-day. The weather was all that could be desired and the racing apart from the main event all that could be desired. That the main event was a great one is evidenced by the fact that both contestants beat the best previous records at the distance.

Fourth race, a match race, two entries, $5000 each, with $5000 added by the association, selling allowances, 1¼ mile. The competitors were: Tenny, best previous record at the distance, 2.07¼, made this year; and Salvator, best previous record at the distance made at this year's Suburban race, 2.06 4-5.

J. B. Haggins' ch h Salvator, 4, by Prince Charlie—Saline (122) ....Murphy 1
D. T. Pulsifer's b h Tenny, 4, by Rayon d'Or—Belle of Maywood (122)....Garrison 2
Time—2.05.

Post betting: 3 to 5 Tenny, 6 to 5 Salvator.

The race: There was no delay at the post and they were sent away at once. Salvator took the lead and made the pace a very fast one. Passing the stand Salvator was half a length in front of Tenny and this lead he increased to 1½ lengths at the upper turn. As they reached the far turn Salvator drew away and was leading by nearly three lengths. Then Garrison commenced to ride and whip and Tenny closed up the gap inch by inch. At the last sixteenth Tenny was gaining fast when Murphy brought his whip down twice on Salvator and he managed to keep his head in front, winning by about half a head. The fractional time of the race is as follows: Quarter, 0.25; half, 0.49 3-5; 1 mile, 1.39¾ (equalling Ten Broeck's time); 1 mile and a furlong, 1.52¾; and 1¼ miles in 2.05.

Trotting and Running at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, June 25.—There was a good crowd at to-day's races. The 3-minute trot was won by Higgins & Martin's Cal Stoner, L. Sebert's Rifleman Jr., Ed. Rooney's Sunrise 3. Chapman Maid, Frank L, Mattie B, Campbell, House Maid, Prince Boy, Jennie Warren and Arabella also trotted. Best time made by Rifleman Jr., 2.37¼.

The 2.35 trot was won by John Doddridge, Jimmy 2, Little Tommy 3. Laura C and Goldie also trotted. Best time 2.39.

The ½ mile running race in heats was won by Bass Viol, Warlock 2 and Scout 3. Time 53.

The McKinley Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The majority report of the Finance Committee on the McKinley Tariff Bill was presented to the Senate to-day. The substance of it has already been published. The minority report has not been prepared.

A GREAT RAILWAY TIE-UP

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL PARALYZED BY A STRIKE.

No Wheels Moving on Three Important Divisions of the Road—An Official's Discharge Demanded By the Men—A Strike at St. Louis.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The Illinois Central officials have decided that they will resist the strikers' demand for Superintendent Russell's discharge. They now await overtures on the part of the employes who are out, and it is said unless the men return to work the company will hire new men. The tie-up will cause serious trouble locally and throughout a large section of the country west and south. The suburban traffic of the road is enormous. The trains run in and out of the city every few minutes from 5 o'clock in the morning until midnight and are crowded. All these people are now thrown upon their own resources of transportation. Moreover, to stop freight traffic on the Illinois Central means to prevent thousands of people in Northern Iowa, Southern Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana from getting products to markets. The yards here are filled with freight cars, and the Michigan Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Big Four roads, which enter the city over the Illinois Central tracks, are seriously interfered with owing to the blockade created by the motionless trains of the Illinois Central.

CENTRALIA, Ill., June 25.—The Illinois Central strike has tied up everything in the freight line here. Sixty men departed for their homes last night to remain till the matter is settled. The men are almost unanimous for the removal of Superintendent Russell.

ANNA, Ill., June 25.—The orders of the Illinois Central Company to their agent here not to receive any perishable freight for shipment until further order almost caused a panic among fruit and vegetable growers. They are in the middle of the raspberry season, and tomatoes and cucumbers are beginning to come in. Failure to get transportation for these crops means ruin to many.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 25.—There is a stir among railroad men here on account of the presence of P. M. Arthur, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Several conferences of railroad employes and employers are to be held between now and Saturday night. The Big Four engineers are out of humor because several of the oldest and best engineers on the road have recently been discharged without any known cause, and the yardmen, switchmen and other employes propose to demand an advance in wages. A grievance committee will submit formal complaints to Chief Arthur and representatives of the road. A special meeting of the Indianapolis division of the Order of Railway Conductors has been called for Thursday afternoon in connection with the other conference to be held, and if necessary support will be tendered the employes in other branches of the service.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 25.—An absolute tie-up of the Illinois Central Railroad continues today. Another conference between the officers of the road and a committee of strikers will be held to-day.

The Situation Serious.

CHICAGO, June 25.—At to-day's conference between the Illinois Central Railway strikers and the officers of that road there was a heated wrangle. The officers' final decision will be given at 10 a.m. to-morrow.

The divisions of the road now reported completely tied up are those from Chicago to Centralia, Ill., Chicago to Freeport, Ill., and Chicago to Dubuque, Ia. As the result of the tie-up the express companies here are refusing matter for points on the Illinois Central. About $300,000 worth of perishable freight is side tracked at Kankakee. Live stock en route for this city from points on the Illinois Central is being brought in by roundabout routes over connecting lines. It is estimated between 1500 and 1600 men all idle. An engine and mail train from Cairo to-day brought in a committee of the men employed on the Cairo division of that road to demand the removal of E. J. Hartigan, superintendent of that division. President Fish says the strike has not reached a point where any action on his part is demanded, but if it does not do so he will know what to do.

J. D. Caldwell, chairman of the Grievance Committee, said to-night that if the Illinois Central officials announce to-morrow that they have decided to uphold Russell, the objectionable superintendent, every road in Chicago will be tied up, the greatest railroad strike on record will ensue and the financial loss will be almost incalculable.

A Strike at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Nearly 500 men employed by the various railroads centering in East St. Louis struck to-day for higher wages. A large amount of perishable freight is in the different depots.

A PHYSICIAN MURDERED.

Found With His Throat Cut and Shot Through the Heart.

WICHITA, Kas., June 25.—Dr. R. M. Barns, a physician living at Greensburg, fifteen miles northeast, about noon to-day was found in his office shot through the heart and with his throat cut from ear to ear. He was last seen yesterday evening going to the country. He did not expect to return until late in the evening. It is supposed that when he returned his assailant shot him down, and to make sure work, cut his throat. He was quite popular, and, as far as known, had few enemies. There is no clue to the guilty parties. There is a theory that some persons living at Detroit, Mich., where he lived until five years ago, were afraid Barns knew something about them which they did not want known and were instrumental in the murder.

HEAT TAKING OFF THE INFANTS.

Burial Certificates for Thirty-two Issued at St. Louis Yesterday.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 25.—The intense heat prevailing is causing great mortality among children. Out of fifty-one burial certificates issued to-day thirty-two were for infants, largely due to summer complaint. Two deaths are recorded as due to sunstroke—Minerva Carr, aged 50, and Carl J. Adler 22 years of age.

What Steamer is Lost?

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont., June 25.—The crew of one of the fishing boats belonging to this place found a pilot-house with the wheel in it on the lake about thirty miles west of this port. They brought the wheel here. It is a steam barge's wheel, and evidently some boat has been lost. Yesterday the same boat picked up a pail north of here with the name "steam barge C. C. Ryan" painted on it.

Col. Rhodes Beaten by 5 Votes.

MONTREAL, June 25.—By private information received here to-night it is definitely learned that Col. Rhodes, the representative in the Quebec Legislature for Megantic, has been defeated by 5 votes. This leaves the Protestant minority without their "fitting" representative.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. These words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

YOUNG'S POINT.

Headquarters for Numerous Fishing Parties —A Hotel Enlarged—Other Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

FISHING.—A great many gents from Peterborough who take delight in bass and maskinonge fishing are making this place their headquarters this season. By leaving Peterborough in the mornings at 6.45 p. m., as the steamer Mary Ellen connects with the above train on two days, Thursdays and Saturdays, they can have a good day's sport and spend a very enjoyable time.

BATHING.—It would be wise if those parties who delight in the pastime of bathing would try and pick out more isolated places. It would please those who object to them bathing too near their houses.

THE ROADS.—Mr. Will M. Graham, pathmaster of this section of Smith, deserves credit for the excellent work done on his beat this summer.

[illegible].—This popular summer resort is still carried on in the usual first class style by our old friend John Holmes. A great many Americans are now staying at the hotel, and John is looking forward to doing a very large summer trade. Parties who intend staying at this hotel had better notify him in time to secure good accommodation. He has enlarged his premises considerably. He also keeps on hand canoes, skiffs and fishing tackle for the guests.

SAW MILL.—Mr. C. Young is now busy cutting his logs purchased last winter and the lumber is turning out well.

THE CROPS.—The crops in this section are looking remarkably well and everything growing looks promising.

BRIDGENORTH.

Correspondence of the Review.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—A temperance meeting was held in the town hall on Friday evening last under the auspices of the Bridgenorth Council of Royal Templars and it was well attended. The greater part of the programme was supplied by Peterborough friends. Rev. D. S. Houck, Select Councillor, presided and opened the meeting with prayer. Mr. G. H. Howson read a portion of Scripture. A hymn was sung and Mr. J. J. Hartley gave an earnest address. Miss Owens and Mr. Morgan sang a very pleasing duet. Mr. John Carlisle then spoke for some time from a gospel temperance standpoint and was attentively listened to. Miss Owens sang another solo, and short, pithy addresses were given by Miss Sanderson, S. C. of Peterborough Council, and Mr. H. R. Armstrong. Mr. [illegible] also spoke briefly on the order of Royal Templars, and the meeting was closed with prayer. Miss Udy presided at the organ during the evening in a very acceptable manner and the meeting was a very pleasant as well as profitable one.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,

"TAKE HEED, TAKE HEED!"

The Diseases of Spring are Filling Many Homes with Suffering and Sadness.

The advent of the cuckoo, the robin, and the swallow, those bright harbingers of spring, bring with them to the old and young bright visions of summer and happiness. But beautiful and bright and attractive as spring appears, we must not forget her hidden dangers. Yielding to her seductions, we discard our winter garb, forgetting her proverbial fickleness. A sudden change brings winter back again and this entails a thousand colds, fevers, and inflammations that too often result in death. Then too, the poisons arising from the ground at this season soon develop fevers, headaches, and diseases of every function and organ of the body. What is needed at this time is a faithful use of Paine's Celery Compound. This scientific preparation has an especial power over the diseased and debilitated condition so common at this season of the year that is possessed by no other medicine. It is not an ordinary blood purifier, nervine or bitters, but combines in a remarkable and hitherto unknown manner the power to strengthen and build up the nerves, and hence regulating the nervous system. It purifies and enriches the blood: this purified life fluid is carried to heart, lungs and brain with an impetus which removes all feeling of heaviness, weight, and dulness. It aids digestion and creates appetite. It builds up the worn out tissues and strengthens weak women and tired men. You cannot afford to trifle with the symptoms of spring debility and weakness. They may not be dangerous in themselves, but should a fever, pneumonia, or other serious disease attack you it will not find the strength necessary for recovery, and death may be the unfortunate ending. Paine's Celery Compound is a purely vegetable preparation, endorsed by the best physicians, and is without an equal as a spring medicine. You cannot afford to do without it.

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

Fashions in Flowers—Roses the Royal Favorites—Ideas Imported From Africa —Sweet but Subtle Arrangements for the Drawing-Room—A Rich and Magnificent Description—What's the Matter With Lady-Cab-Drivers?

The rose is the flower of the moment, and color schemes are carried out in pink or crimson or yellow roses, fresh and fragrant with dewdrops glistening upon them, the latter a result of a spray of rosewater just before the dinner is announced. Mantel-pieces piled high with these royal beauties shading from a base of deepest carmine shadows to a summit of pink-tinted fairness, amid which electric lights flash and glimmer, are like glimpses of fairyland at elegant receptions. Forget-me-nots and pink roses tied with ribbons of corresponding tints decorate dainty tea tables in harmonious unison with royal Dresden china and figure pieces of the delicate Watteau type. In the centre of the round tables one sees a sedgy bed of fine grasses, fringed with maidenhair ferns, from which roses and lilies of the valley spring, as if growing amid the feathery green. Sometimes browner grasses are chosen as a bed for the golden of daffodils or yellow iris, intermingled with white gladioli; or daisies, half closed, massed about a centre of yellow buttercups, on a puckered-up bed of moss-green velvet, make a dainty and spring centre-piece for a yellow dinner. Ribbons or trails of green carried from one corner of a square table to the other, crossing in the centre beneath tall candelabra with flower arrangements in the angles, form a rather unique effect which has the charm of novelty.

Stanley's return has brought everything African into prominence on the Continent, and just now the whim is for fringes of elephant or Kaffir grasses and Kayma reeds blended with African strawberries or borders of the silver tree leaves painted with flowers.

Now that the formal drawing room, with its set pieces of furniture placed in stiff, rectangular array about a centre table of white marble, suggestive of memorial tablets and tombstones, and upon a glaring, geometrically figured carpet, has been idealized, apotheosized into a bower of dreamy luxuriousness, where festooned windows, craftily devised draperies, cosy inglenooks, artfully arranged screens, couches spread with Eastern broideries, lovers' corners curtained softly where swinging censers emit subtle odors, and sensuous, harmonizing, blending tintings softly melt and fade one into the other from very faintness, all in happy accord with the trailing beauty of lace-frilled, loosely girdled tea gowns and house dresses, the old-time conventional chandelier is replaced by a cunning arrangement of "gloom and glow" from countless shaded and draped lamps glimmering through frills of lace and fringes of silk. A lamp without a petticoat, a pagoda, or a parasol to hide its nakedness from an unfeeling world is not only unconventional, but entirely bad form and irregular. Some of these petticoats are light, fleecy, fluttering things, like a ballet girl's tarlatan; others are of rich brocaded lace-frilled silk, as sumptuous and elaborate as a lady's court dress. A tall wrought-iron shaft, with a bowl of brass gleaming through its sombre carvings, has a huge parasol large enough for a small family to keep house under, made all of deep crimson Jacqueminot roses, arranged round and round in concentric rings with a fringe of grasses. A vase of shining brass like gold, supports an urn of exquisitely painted Dresden china and has a huge pagoda of white satin with brocaded festoons of floss caught up with faintly pink roses. Heavy cascades of lace fall like drifts of snow down the centre of each panel in the dome-shaped covering, and flounces of rare lace, one above the other, encircle and finish the lower edges. A sombre column of iron, rising darkly from heavy brackets of black supports a huge half-blown tiger lily, orange with brown flecks and stamens, through which the lighted lamp sends a deep yellow glow. Another shade of iron blossoms unexpectedly into a gorgeous tulip of red and gold, wherein the lamp is hidden.

Here is a skirt of pale pink silk, draped like a lady's ball dress, with a frou-frou of white edelweiss lace, strewn with apple blossoms, and there a simple little petticoat with lace frillings, all in white, like a sweet maiden's graduating gown. The cunning fingers of milliner and mantua maker as well must needs be employed in the dressing of one of these drawing-room luminaries, whose draping is of more or less deeply tinted shades according to the color scheme prevailing in the room. Once these lights are placed at different levels and arrayed in as many different and harmonizing colors as an opera chorus, one of the most important features of modern drawing-room decoration is perfected. Plain women are fair and fair women are ideal in this softly gleaming radiance, where the foot falls noiselessly on velvet carpets and voices are softened by heavy hangings in the perfumed atmosphere.

Lady cab drivers! Lady dramatic agents! Yes. Why not? There is nothing smarter or more chic for a woman than to drive her private team. Then why is it disgraceful and unwomanly to drive a public one? At least so reasons a lady in Manchester, England, who during her days of prosperity moved in the most fashionable circles, drove her dog cart tandem, her park phaeton, with a spirited span, and occasionally her husband's mail coach, four in hand. Now that she has, through the death of her husband and loss of fortune, been obliged to join the vast army of woman wage earners, she purposes to do for a livelihood what she once did for pleasure, and sees in it no element of disgrace. Her patrons may well rejoice in the idea of a coachman whose head is not filled with the fumes of gin or small beer, to the exclusion of caution and forgetfulness of routes; but what she will do in emergencies and trying situations, arising from taking home customers whose heads are not then delightfully clear, whose ideas of their destinations are hazy, and whose powers of locomotion are inadequate, remains to be seen. As for the lady dramatic agent, that is a new title, but a respectable one, which several enterprising women in London rejoice in. Verily, the world moves, and it is sometimes confusing to one's ideas to keep up with the procession.

Baby Ribbon Trimmings.

New chemises this season are much trimmed with baby ribbon of various colors run through insertion. This style in various widths is a marked and pretty feature in many garments for both children and grown people. Charming muslin frocks for little folks show baby ribbon run through insertion and dainty rosettes here and there. This ribbon appears, too, on the dainty, bewitching hats and bonnets with their wide brims from beneath which the little faces look so lovable. Some have a wide bow in the center under the brim.

Many new gowns have their most prominent features borrowed from old fashions such as the postillion jacket, gauntleted sleeves and high, short waists.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

A Collection of Fugitive Facts and Out-of the-Ordinary Information.

In a recent conversation with a representative of The Pall Mall Budget, M. Zola gave a resume of his plan of action when preparing a new work, and observed that before he began to write he lived the life of his characters. In the "Assommoir," however, he had drawn simply and solely on the experiences of his youth, but before penning "Germinal" he spent a year among the miners of Anzin, and he had qualified himself for "La Terre" by residing among the peasants of the Beauce and the Perche. After these confidences M. Zola was suddenly confronted by his interlocutor with the remarkable question: "How about 'Nana'?" The novelist was equal to the occasion. It was not true that he had spent a day with the notorious demi mondaine, and that he fell into raptures about her boudoir. He did lunch once with a lady of facile manners, to whom a friend introduced him for professional purposes; but his chief information was derived from the "green room" of the Varieties, where M. Ludovic Halevy took him, and where he made the acquaintance of Mme. Judic. All the legends published in the papers about his search of "human documents" for the production of "Nana" were works of pure imagination.

The Princess Bismarck.

If little is known in England of Prince Bismarck's life, still less is known of the lady who for more than forty-two years has shared his home. The Princess Bismarck is described as the very model of a practical, methodical German matron, with an eye for every detail of household arrangements and economy. It was at the wedding of a friend that Bismarck first met with Fraulein Johanna von Puttkamer. She made there an impression which culminated in an offer of marriage three years later. The key to the Princess' character is to be found, says the same biographer, in her words, "That my husband is a public character is a fact to which I often find it painful enough to resign myself. But as for me, his wife, what have I to do with publicity? I do not exist for publicity, but wholly and solely for him." In a letter which the prince wrote to the princess from Biarritz, he said: "I have a bad conscience because I am seeing so much that is beautiful without you. If you could only be carried hither through the air, I would go with you this very moment back to San Sebastian."

Why a Bush is the Sign of an Inn.

The ivy being sacred to Bacchus, the god of wine, the ancients indicated a place where wine was sold by hanging an ivy bush over the door. The Romans had this custom, and the moderns took it from them. Shakespeare's "good wine needs no bush" was a familiar proverb, founded on the latin "vino vendibili hedera non opus est" (to salable wine no ivy is necessary); the French have the proverb, au vin qui se vend bien, il ne faut point de lierre" (to wine which sells well, no bush is necessary). The modern proverb is: "A good thing advertises itself."

Wedding Celebrations.

Additions are frequently made to the recelebrations of wedding occasions. The following, so far as we can ascertain, is the latest revised and improved list: Three days, sugar; sixty days vinegar; first anniversary, iron; fifth anniversary, wooden; tenth anniversary, tin; fifteenth anniversary, crystal; twentieth anniversary, china; twenty-fifth anniversary, silver; thirtieth anniversary, cotton; thirty-fifth anniver ary, linen; fortieth anniversary, woolen; forty-fifth anniversary, silk; fiftieth anniversary, golden; seventy-fifth anniversary, diamond.

Purification of Sewage Water.

A discovery, which may be of very great value in a sanitary point of view, has been made by Mr. Webster, of England, who has applied electricity to the purification of sewage water. He found that if a strong current of electricity—such as is now used for lighting purposes in our principal cities—be passed through a sewer the salts of the metals, sodium, potassium, etc., are decomposed, while nascent chlorine and oxygen are set free, which act as disinfectants. Further researches in this direction will doubtless lead to valuable results.

Live Poultry for Market.

Crowding the fowls in the coop may save space and expense of coops, but it results in ten per cent of dead fowls before they arrive at destination. A cup for water should be at every corner of the coop, and each fowl should have room enough to move from one point in the coop to another freely. The food is not so important as the water, and unless you have water at every convenient point in the coop, the fowls will not know where it is and cannot drink, the consequence being that they perish of thirst.

A State Flower.

Californians favor the eschscholtzia, or California poppy, for the floral emblem of their state, says Vick's Floral Magazine; and there is a legend that the name of the entrance of the bay of San Francisco, the straits called Golden Gate, was given it on account of the sight of masses of flowers of the California poppy, like sheets of gold, on the foothills.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Last evening a young man who was driving a buggy on George-st. ran over a little son of Mr. Wm. Clancy in front of the arcade. A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exodus to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. Given a nice camping spot, good water handy, a shady spot to lounge, good canoeing water, plenty to eat and good company the time can be put in fairly easy. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawley Bros., George-st. d148

THE KINDERGARTEN.

The Closing Exercises—A Very Pleasing Entertainment.

The closing exercises of the kindergarten class at the Central School yesterday afternoon were attended by a large number of the parents and friends of the children, the Chairman of the School Board and several of the trustees. The room was nicely decorated with flags, bunting, flowers and mottoes. Miss Warner is the principal of this department and is assisted by Miss Davidson and Miss Hodgson. There were about 35 pupils present ranging from 3 years to 7.

The room is furnished with three rows of small tables and small neat chairs. The children were seated before the guests for the occasion arrived, but the effect of the admirable discipline of the school was shown in the patience with which they kept their seats. Upon entering the little children were all seen seated at the tables, like a company of fairies or angels, nearly all dressed in white. In front of each little pupil there was a small basket, the work of their own tiny but agile fingers—and very neat and very pretty work it was—and each basket contained a bouquet. The opening exercises consisted of suitable songs, prayer and a number of happy glees which the children accompanied with sypathetic physical action. They all joined heartily in the singing and exercises, showing that their hearts were completely engaged in them. After the singing the children presented their baskets to the parents and trustees present. The kindergarten "work" was then taken up, and very interesting it was. The children were given small sticks, and with these they made, at the proper command, very graceful geometrical figures, such as squares, right angles, acute angles, etc. By these exercises the little ones become acquainted with proportions, geometrical figures and fractions, and the exercises are an excellent training for mind, eye and hand, while on account of the manner in which the instruction is given it does not unduly tax the strength of the children. On another table mats in a variety of patterns were woven with strips of paper, and little tots of three and four years were given pieces of paper four inches square and folded them into the form of geometrical figures. After a number of these exercises the tables were removed, and the children, after a number of marching evolutions, all very nicely performed, began their kindergarten games. These games were all based on natural history, such as the "butterfly," "lizard" and other games, and while of a pleasant character instructed the children in the nature, customs and feelings of the animals—in fact they illustrated the habits of the animals and were pretty object lessons in natural history. Another evident object of the marching and games was to inculcate grace of action and the nice, delicate proprieties that can only be learned by exercises such as these or similar ones. The various evolutions and graceful combinations showed careful culture and wondrous aptitude in the children, and all tended to remove the awkwardness natural to childhood and to cultivate every grace of action and movement, which must produce results that will never be lost. The movements from beginning to end, all made to the music of the piano, were a perfect kaleidoscope of beauty and grace. The singing of "God Save the Queen," during which the children pointed to a picture of Her Majesty which graced the wall covered with the Union Jack, closed one of the most pleasing entertainments ever given in connection with our schools. At the conclusion the children sang a very pretty "Good-bye" song.

The deserved praise of Miss Warner and her assistants was on every tongue, and by all the Board of Education was given credit for having introduced this most effective and useful department in connection with the whole school system—a work in which Mr. Dumble took a leading part. It is to hoped that on another occasion, when a similar closing entertainment is given, a large hall may be secured which will accommodate the large numbers who would be pleased to attend.

GREAT INDIAN DURBAR.

INDIAN OFFICERS OF THE SALVATION ARMY AT THE BARRACKS.

A Triumphal Procession—Addresses by Indian Missionaries—A Converted Buddhist Priest Speaks.

The Salvation Army procession last night was an interesting sight. It was led by a triumphal car containing Major Leighton, of Toronto, and the officers from India, Commissioner Booth-Tucker, Lord Ratna Pula, and Staff-Capt. and Mrs. Jai Singh. Capt. Kantabella and Lieut. Abdul Aziz were forced to remain in Toronto through illness. A canopy covered the car in eastern style and was borne by four soldiers dressed in the costume of India. The officers and soldiers had also adopted the Hindoo head-dress and the long procession was an interesting sight.

THE VISITORS.

Frederick de la Tour Tucker was born thirty-seven years ago in Monjhyr, a town of Bengal, about 300 miles from Calcutta. He was educated partly in India and partly in England, where he was a student at Cheltenham College, and subsequently gained admission to the India Civil Service. He attained the position of assistant judge or governor of a district, and while acting in this capacity joined the Salvation Army, a step which subsequently led to his voluntary retirement from his profession, in order that he might devote all his time to laboring among the natives. Seven or eight years ago, after spending a year in England, he was appointed by General Booth, whose daughter Emma he married, Commissioner in India, and has since then been untiring in his exertions to spread the influence of the Army among the native population.

Ratna Pula, who was a kamudra or lord in his native Ceylon, was ordained a Buddhist priest at the age of thirteen, and was converted through the instrumentality of the Salvation Army. He possesses fine intellectual qualities, and is a very popular preacher in his native tongue.

Staff-Capt. and Mrs. Jai Singh (Jackson) labored as Army missionaries in India for nearly two years.

AT THE BARRACKS.

The barracks was filled to overflowing and the raised seats on the platform were filled with officers and soldiers. Among the officers present were Major Leighton, Toronto, Capt. Jones and Lieut. Lebar, Peterborough, Adjutant Evans, Capt. Clarke, Toronto, Capt. Bromley, Bobcaygeon, Capt. Rowans, Millbrook, Lieut. McDonald, Capt. Barker, Kinmount, Capt. Barber, Norwood, Lieut. Scott, Kinmount, Lieut. Gemmidge, Norwood, Lieut. Anderson, a Swede who is a candidate for the work in Sweden, Lieut. Remner, Fenelon Falls, Capt. Rawlings, Lindsay, Capt. Wood, Omemee, Capt. Vanbusker, Campbellford, Capt. Way, who goes to Lakefield, Capt. Murray and Lieut. Glover, Coboconk, Lieut. Boyler, Millbrook, Capt. Vale, Fenelon Falls, Capt. and Mrs. Temple, Bowmanville, Capt. Cunningham, Peterborough District, Lieut. Smith, Campbellford, Capt. Jordan, Hampden, Capt. Mellor and Lieut. Slote, Oshawa, Capt. and Mrs. Wooler, Stirling, Capt. Cockerill, Brooklyn, and Capt. Cameron, Warkworth.

When the visitors entered the building they were received with a tremendous "volley." The meeting was opened with singing, accompanied by hand clapping and a waive offering, and prayer by Major Leighton, Capt. (Mrs.) Temple and Commissioner Booth-Tucker. Mrs. Jai Singh then sang a song in a pleasant voice.

The COMMISSIONER, who wore the Salvation Army red shirt and the Indian costume, said that the population of India was 260,000,000, while the population of the whole British Empire was only 320,000,000, and India was only half the size of Canada. In India 3,000 more people die every year than would make up the entire population of Canada. Many of these peorle were ready to receive salvation if the message was carried to them. Canada had already done something for India by sending out missionaries, among whom were Capt. Langtry and Capt. Stollicker (whose Indian name was Hookem) formerly of Peterborough. He referred to the work of some of these missionaries. The Army had now 131 European and Canadian and 187 native missionaries at work in seven and a half years, which was a good record. The Hindoos were a very intellectual people, but the Army had used the key of love to unlock their hearts and had succeeded. They had 38 stations in that land and 28 outposts, and he had known as many as 130 to seek salvation at one meeting. He related incidents to show the opposition they had encountered and also how they had won the love of the people by adopting their habits of life. Their prison gate work among the convicts was an interesting work and had been very successful. They had a home in connection with it to aid convicts and so successful was the work that the Ceylon government contributed $50 a month.

LORD RATNA PULA was then introduced. The ex-Buddhist priest has a small supple figure, a vivacious countenance and a perpetual smile. He wears a square of red cloth bound tightly about his head instead of the turban, a red tunic and a yellow robe. He spoke in Cingalese, the Commissioner interpreting. He said he had taught that there was neither God or devil, and although he had heard of Christianity and had seen Christians he was not convinced of its truth. "But thank God! Salvation Army," he exclaimed in English and a volley was fired. He continued to relate the circumstances of his conversion and chanted a verse in Cingalese, concluding by asking in English, "How do you like it?" which brought out much laughter and another volley. He spoke of the Christian religion in an eastern strain of imagery. His conclusion presented the novel spectacle of a converted Buddhist appealing to a Christian audience to accept Christ. He then spoke briefly in broken English and asked them to give $200 and 20 volunteers for the work in India.

The COMMISSIONER said $25 would pay missionary's expenses for a year or $100 would pay for the outfit, passage and a year's expenses of a missionary.

Subscriptions and a collection were then taken up, one gentleman giving as high as $25.

Capt. BROMLEY, of Bobcaygeon, who will go to India, then spoke, and testified that his desire was to go to India to win souls for Christ.

Capt. ROWAN, of Millbrook, who has volunteered to go to India, also testified, and said that if it was God's will that she should go to India she would go. As she concluded Lord Ratna Pula shook her by the hand heartily.

The Commissioner exhibited samples of the wooden shoes, the leather sandals and the brass drinking vessels used in India, and told of some of the peculiar customs of that country.

Mrs. JAI SINGH then related some incidents of her life in India, and said her health was excellent there.

VOLUNTEERS FOR INDIA.

The Commissioner then asked all officers who were willing to go to India to stand up and about twenty arose, including Major Leighton, Capt. Cunningham, Mrs. Cunningham, Capt. Bromley, Capt. Barber, Capt. Rowans, Capt. Clarke, Lieut. Lebar and Ensign Logan.

The meeting was then closed with prayer by Commissioner Boot-Tucker.

The Indian officers went from here to Cobourg and continue eastward on their tour.

NORWOOD NEWS.

A High School Teacher Resigns—Other Interesting Items.

Correspondence of the Review.

CONCERT.—A Scotch concert will be given in the town hall on Friday evening.

PERSONAL.—Rev. Orr Bennett, formerly of Peterborough, preached two acceptable discourses from the Presbyterian pulpit on Sunday....Dr. Moore, who has been practising in Toronto for a year past, has returned to Norwood....Lawyer Henderson showed up here for two or three days and again disappeared.

A CHANGE DESIRED.—Our village is unusually quiet this summer. No news of much interest, very little building going on and trade dull. We hope to see a change

NEW BUSINESS.—It is reported that a Mr. Savigle, of Peterborough, will open out a flour and feed store in a few days nearly opposite the Methodist church. If so we wish him success.

SPORTS.—Very little interest is taken in athletic sports this season as shown by the small number of spectators who witnessed the lacrosse match between the Riversides and the local team in the park on Thursday.

THE EXAMS.—Norwood High School has a large class writing at the Matriculation and Departmental examinations. There are 7 writing for matriculation in arts, 12 for second class and a large number for third class. We fully expect that its examination record will be sustained. The Board of Education met Monday evening to consider Inspector Seath's report. Additional apparatus will be added as the equipment is not nearly equal to the attendance.

THE VALUATORS' WORK.—The county valuators raised the assessment of our village to nearly double. A glance at the figures will show that the villages of Ashburnham, Lakefield, and Norwood will have to contribute a much larger sum for county purposes than formerly. It need not be said that the valuators were farmers.

A RESIGNATION.—Mr. H. Bewell, who held the position of English master of our High School for nearly five years, has tendered his resignation. Mr. Bewell was a very successful teacher. He trained the boys in football so well that the H. S. team has been for some time the strongest in Eastern Ontario. During the vacation he intends taking the local team on a playing tour through Western Ontario. Already matches have been arranged in Berlin, Galt, Seaforth and other western towns. Mr. Bewell has secured a more lucrative position in the Baptist College in Woodstock. A part of his duties will be the physical culture of the students, for which he is admirably fitted. As a teacher and a citizen he will be greatly missed, but his loss will be specially great in athletic sport. Both as a football player and trainer he has no superior in Ontario.

KEENE CHRONICLES.

Correspondence of the Review.

COUNCIL MEETING.—A meeting of Otonabee Council was held on June 16th. On motion James Carter was offered eighty cents per square yard for gravel and if he would not agree to that sum price to be fixed by arbitration. The committee appointed to consider the advisability of making the road on original allowance on Taylor's Hill reported against making any change and are willing to give Alex. Drummond the original allowance in lieu of forced road. The committee appointed to arrange about the Shearer and Elmhirst disputed line fences reported that no settlement could be made. The Reeve and Deputy were appointed to endeavor to get the original or Ludgate's field notes. Failing in that, then to have a survey made. The Reeve and Mr. Johnston were appointed to have a survey to define the con. line opposite lot 12, con. 13. The following statute labor was struck off:—Andrew McDermott, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Roach and James Armstrong. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—John Keer, $4.00 for cedar; David Knox gravel, $2 40; John Clegborn cedars, $4 68; Alex. Gillespie cedar, $3 28; J. R. Stratton, printing and stationery, $32.35.

S. A. Picnic.

The Salvation Army will run an excursion per steamer Golden Eye to Jubilee Point on Dominion Day. Every arrangement will be made for the comfort and pleasure of the excursionists.

Saved.—A fine family of children were all afflicted with scrofula. Two died early; the rest would soon have followed, but for the timely an persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla which built them up into a healthy and vigorous manhood.

Good Templars Grand Lodge.

At the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars at Galt yesterday it was decided to hold the next annual meeting in June, 1891, in Peterborough. The Grand Secretary's report showed an increase of 21 lodges over the previous year and an increase in the membership of 817, while six new district lodges had been organized.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

Mr. McIlvena purposes carrying on his business of blacksmithing in that locality and we predict for him that success which strict attention to business and good workmanship always insures. His reputation as a horseshoer is more than local and his patrons may rely on the most careful treatment in this branch of his business.

'Tis An Old Saying

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

THINGS SCIENTIFIC.

SOME SIMPLE EXPERIMENTS THAT WILL INTEREST AND AMUSE.

The Laws that Govern the Human Eye—Photographers' Cameras are the Same—A Lesson in Optics Graphically Illustrated by Nature.

Take a piece of cardboard or opaque paper and pierce a small, clean cut hole through it, about the diameter of the head of a large pin. On holding the opening before the eye and looking through it, the first effect noticed will be that the depth of focus of the eye is greatly improved; objects can be placed very near to the eye and seen plainly, while if viewed in the usual way they would be indistinct. At the same time distinct objects can be seen with clearness. The effect of the minute opening placed before the eye is exactly the same as when a photographer puts a "stop" in front of his objective; greater depth of focus and clearness of definition, but a loss of illuminating power.

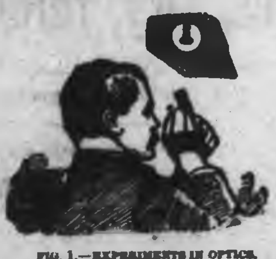

FIG. 1.—EXPERIMENTS IN OPTICS.

A more curious experiment may be shown by holding the card between the eye and a strong light—a lamp shade, for instance, or a window curtain through which the light is shining. Then hold a pin between the eye and the hole in the card, as shown in Fig. 1. The head of the pin will be visible, but reversed, as shown in Fig. 1. The cause is explained in the accompanying diagrams of the eye (Fig. 2), which represents the experiment under ordinary conditions; the rays of light from the pin are refracted by the lenses of the eye so that they cross each other, giving a reversed image on the retina. In fact, we really see everything upside down, and it is probably only on account of long experience that we perceive objects in their natural position, just as the photographer soon forgets that the images formed on the ground glass of his camera are reversed, but selects his points of view and poses his sitters without thinking of the inverted position in which they appear.

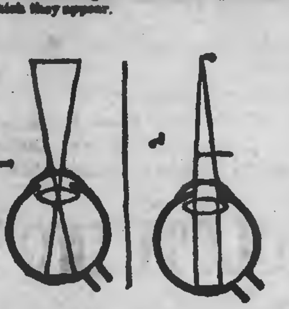

FIG. 2.—EXPERIMENTS IN OPTICS.

In 2, however, the conditions are changed. The illuminated opening in the card acts as an independent source of light, and casts the shadow of the pin directly upon the retina; the head of the pin being smaller than the pupil of the eye, and being held so close to it that the shadow is cast directly upon the retina, without the usual reversal of the image, which, therefore, appears to our mind as upside down, whereas it is really in an upright position. This automatic correction by the eye or brain of the images thrown upon the retina is a curious fact, and cannot be said to be fully understood.

KILLED IN A CATTLE-GUARD.

The Tragic End of Lizzie Fraser in Oro Township—A Peculiar Accident.

TORONTO, June 26.—The mail train over the Northern division of the Grand Trunk, due at Union Station at 8.10 last evening from the north, was delayed for about three-quarters of an hour on account of a very peculiar accident. The accident, too, was attended with fatal results and is probably one of the most uncommon on record. The train was skimming along at her usual rate of speed between Gowan and Barrie stations, in the Shanty Bay vicinity, and just in rear of Col. O'Brien's (M.P.) farm in the township of Oro. It was about 5 o'clock. Engineer Mike Fennell of Allandale [illegible] at the throttle and on drawing near a cattle-guard he was horrified to see a young girl, whose wealth of brown hair and sunburnt face was covered by a broad-brimmed straw hat, poke her head up from between the bars of the guard. The engine, No. 168, was within a few feet of the guard and the engineer, like a flash, reversed and applied the brakes. Of course it was all to no avail. The pilot of the engine caught the poor creature just at the waist and cut the body clean in halves, one portion being thrown nearly 20 feet.

The accident happened at a sideline, and the train ran several lengths beyond before she was brought to a standstill.

Conductor Ben A. Waterhouse of this city and the engineer, together with a number of the horrified passengers, went back to the sideline. The remains were carefully gathered together and laid in the tall grass beside the tracks and covered with a shawl. In the cattle guard was found a First Reader of the Ontario series. On the fly leaf was written "Lizzie Fraser, S.S. No. 1, Shanty Bay, 1886."

The train hands were dispatched in various directions, and several farmers were notified of the horror. About 200 yards up the sideline stood a white cottage. It was here the poor girl lived with her grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. James Fraser. The grandfather was away at work down the line, and when the grandmother was notified of the calamity she set up a piteous wail that deeply touched the hearts of the passengers. The poor old lady was induced not to go near the fatal cattle-guard. Conductor Waterhouse ran his train down to where the grandfather was at work and brought the old gentleman up.

Mrs. Fraser said her granddaughter would have been 16 in a few months. Her name was Lizzie and she had raised her, her father and mother being dead. Between her sobs the poor old lady said, "her Lizzie was such a fine girl." The grandmother then went on to explain, still bitterly sobbing, that Lizzie had gone down to the tracks to keep the cattle off and to look for strawberries. She could not form the faintest idea of why she had got down into the cattle-guard, the bottom of which was totally void of grass or any kind of vegetation. There were several marks of Lizzie's bare feet in the soft clay of the bottom of the guard, however.

Mr. Fennell, who is an old and careful engineer, said: "This is the most peculiar and painful accident that I ever saw or heard of. The first intimation I had of the presence of the poor girl was just a few (about six, I should say) feet before we got to the culvert. A head, covered by a broad straw hat, suddenly shot up from between the bars of the culvert and right between the two tracks. I was certainly much surprised and horrified, but we were so near the culvert that I could do nothing. The poor thing, of course, was killed instantaneously; it could not have been otherwise."

KEMMLER'S FATE.

The Condemned Man Drags the News from His Keeper.

AUBURN, N.Y., June 25.—William Kemmler was not informed that the Court of Appeals had affirmed the judgment of the lower court in his case until after he had eaten his evening meal, which was handed into the steel cage about 5 o'clock by old Daniel, his keeper. Old Daniel, by the way, seems to have a greater respect for the condemned man's sensibilities than anybody else, and did not volunteer the information his charge was so anxiously awaiting.

After he had eaten the last morsel of the liberally provided meal Kemmler turned to Daniel and said: "Well old man, you seem to take it harder than I do. See"—raising himself to his full height and expanding his chest—"I am not nervous or downcast, and I know by your solemn way how my case has ended, and learned my fate from your actions. But it will be all right, Daniel. Don't feel bad. I knew all along we would have to part, and I was ready to hear what your good old heart dreaded to reveal to me."

The prisoner is really as much attached to his keeper as is possible for one with such a brutal nature to be attached to anyone. He pretended to be more concerned about Daniel than about himself, but when Daniel did not essay to enlighten him on the decision of the Court he asked, "What did the Judge say, anyway?"

"The Court simply affirmed the decision of the lower court," was the reply.

"And that is," said Kemmler, "that I've got to be touched off by this electric machine. Well, the sooner it's over with now the better. I'm tired of this monkeying, for I guess the law's all right."

Warden Durston said that he would take Kemmler before the court in a few days for re-sentence. He seemed to be of the opinion that another date would be fixed upon for the execution, as there was no necessity for further delay. The electrical apparatus is in readiness and the prisoner could be disposed of at an hour's notice.

No one except the condemned man's keepers, the warden, the Rev. Dr. Houghton and the prison chaplain are allowed to see Kemmler.

New York's Volcanic Streets.

NEW YORK, June 25.—If it is not already clearly demonstrated to the citizens of New York that they are living upon the surface of a mine or volcano they had additional evidence of that fact yesterday in the explosion of gases in a subway manhole at the corner of Twelfth-street and Sixth-avenue at 10¼ o'clock in the morning.

Laborers were "piping" Sixth-avenue from Eleventh to Twelfth-street for the purpose of making connections with several large stores using their electric light system. The foreman and six men were at work in the trench near the manhole at Twelfth-street when the explosion occurred. The less experienced of the men were surprised to find the air full of bricks, paving stones, gravel, etc., but the others simply waited to see if it was all over, and then approached the manhole. They found its big iron cover, which weighs 1000 pounds or more, tilted up and broken. Its lighter surface covering was blown off and carried ten feet away. Several of the upper courses of bricks upon which the heavy casting rests were blown out and the pavement surrounding the place was ripped up. The manhole was filled with a mass of debris and some tubes of telephone and telegraph wires were badly disarranged.

The soil affects the quality of the plants grown thereon to a certain extent. A crop of wheat from rich soil contains more gluten than one from poor soil.

HOW SEEDS ARE TESTED.

One of the Branches of Work of Uncle Jerry Rusk's Department.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, writing from Washington and detailing the work of the agricultural department in sending out seeds says: All the seeds are tested before being sent out, and the way in which it is done is very curious indeed. Shallow tin pans half full of water are employed, and across them, parallel, are laid thick wires in pairs. Each two wires have a strip of muslin sewn between them, so that when they are laid together across the pan, a fold two inches deep hangs into the water. In this fold all along from one side of the pan to the other, seeds are put, and the water, rising by capillary attraction, soaks the muslin and causes the seeds to germinate. The forming roots poke the way in every direction through the muslin, and the plants grow famously. One tin pan two feet long will hold a wonderful number of sprouts, and it is a simple matter to count and find out what percentage of those put in germinate, one fold of muslin being devoted to each kind of seeds. Any seeds that do not prove entirely satisfactory are sent to the gardener of the department, to be tried in earth. Thus Uncle Sam is able to guarantee all the seeds he distributes this year. The tin-pan idea is a new one. The tin pans are attended to altogether by a pretty enthusiast in petticoats, who thinks it great fun to have a whole botanical garden within half a dozen square feet of room. She does the whole business on a window-ledge, and simply in the water that way she has grown beans big enough to eat. And she ate them. Try it for yourself. Use a good-sized tin pan from the kitchen and fix wires and muslin in the way described. Write to the department for the seeds you want and you are all ready to go into business. Own your own kitchen-garden; every city family should have one on the window-ledge. Flowers will do as well.

Two-thirds of the $160,000 worth of seeds go to congress, each member of which gets about 5,000 envelopes of them yearly. Usually the department sends them off under instructions from the congressmen. The remaining one-third is distributed by the department as it sees fit. Its generosity is often abused, for people sometimes send as many as a dozen times for seeds in one year. As a rule, they get them, too, for it is the policy of the department to be very amiable and conciliate everybody.

$40,000 FOR A DINNER.

But It Was Well Got Up, and the Price Was Not Grudged.

"I once paid $40,000 for a dinner for forty people," said Gen. William T. Clarke, now of Denver, formerly adjutant-general of the Seventeenth army corps, commanded by Gen. James B. McPherson. The remark was made to a listening group at the Southern hotel, says the St. Louis Post-Despatch. Gen. Clarke went on to explain about the high-priced meal. It was in Jackson, Miss., in the summer of 1863. The federal army had just taken possession of the town. A few days before that one of the federal cavalry commands had captured a confederate officer on his way to Texas to buy cattle for the confederacy, and with him they captured a big leather valise stuffed full of confederate money, some of it just as it came from the press with the sheets uncut. It counted up in all $40,000. Gen. Clarke got hold of it and went to a man named Johnson, who kept the best hotel in Jackson. He told the landlord that he would give him $40,000 for a dinner for forty, and the landlord went to work to do his best, and really got up a fine dinner. All the principal generals of the army sat down to eat it. When the meal was finished Gen. Clarke, handed over the $40,000 to Mr. Johnson. "It made the old fellow rich, too," said Gen. Clarke, "for he put every dollar of it into real estate at very fair figures considering the character of the currency, and his heirs are pretty well-off now on account of the rise in value of the past twenty-five years."

The Untamed African in Paris.

An American recently returned from Paris, says the New York evening Sun, matches stories of the enterprise of the American dime museum and variety showman with the following: He and his party had strolled one night into a concert garden, where on a small stage, a varied performance of singing, dancing, and juggling was provided. On the program, the announcement was set forth that presently there would appear an untutored African just from the jungles of his land, who would sing a "little song" (as our own Mr. Pastor would say) in his native tongue. And by and by, when the time came the "untamed" came trotting out on the platform clad in a tiger skin and a spear, And then did he lift up his voice, and the royal hearts of the Americans leaped for joy to hear bawled out in round mellow tones and purest Georgia accent, the dear old song of "Nellie Gray."

DEATH OF LIEUT.-GOV. M'LELAN OF NOVA SCOTIA.

A Successful Career—The Organizer of the Meteorological Bureau and of the Parcel Post System—A Character Above Reproach.

HALIFAX, June 26.—Hon. A. W. McLelan, Lieut.-Governor of Nova Scotia, died this morning after an illness of ten days. The remains will be taken to Londonderry, his native place, for burial. The funeral takes place Saturday.

Archibald Woodbury McLelan was born at Londonderry, N.S., Dec. 24, 1824, his parents being of Irish descent. After completing his education at Mount Allison Wesleyan Academy, he engaged in shipbuilding. Mr. McLelan always took a deep interest in politics, and in 1858 was elected to the Nova Scotia Assembly for Colchester, retaining the seat until 1863, and thereafter until the union representing North Colchester. He was sworn a member of the Cabinet and President of the Privy Council May 20, 1881, also taking charge of the Department of Marine and Fisheries during the illness of the minister, and on July 10, 1882, he was officially appointed Minister of Marine and Fisheries. When Sir Leonard Tilley resigned the portfolio of finance in 1885 Mr. McLelan succeeded him and administered the affairs of that department until Jan. 27, 1887, when he followed Sir Alexander Campbell as Postmaster-General. In the following year he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

Mr. McLelan was married in 1854 to Caroline Metzler of Halifax.

The public character of Mr. McLelan was above reproach. He was scrupulous in doing the duties of his office, always careful, equal-handed and thorough. As a speaker he was clear, direct and forcible and his public utterances always commanded attention and respect.

The death of Mr. McLelan was not altogether unexpected. Failing health compelled him two years ago to relinquish his post in the Federal Cabinet of which as President of the Council, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Minister of Finance and Postmaster-General he had been a member for seven years. Of Mr. McLelan's practical statesmanship the departments over which he presided will long continue to bear potent witness. While holding the marine portfolio he organized the meteorological bureau, made great improvements in the life saving service and introduced the gas buoy system. In the postoffice he introduced the parcel post, consolidated the departmental finances and extended the entire system. As a financier, he was cautious, firm-handed and clear-headed. During his short term as Minister of Finance he introduced the polariscopic test of sugar.

In politics Mr. McLelan was a Liberal and Anti-Confederate up to 1869, when he and the late Mr. Howe separated from their friends and accepted the situation.

HAMILTON IS HAPPY.

Projector Young of the T., H. & B. Arrives in the Ambitious City.

HAMILTON, June 26.—Projector J. N. Young of the T., H. & B. arrived in the city this morning from Brantford. He says the company will start work to-morrow or Saturday, so as to comply with the terms of the bylaw under which they get a $275,000 bonus.

Caught at Kingston.

KINGSTON, June 26.—A short time ago a pleasure boat and tent were stolen in Ottawa by two young men named Galerneau and Gagnau, and yesterday the two thieves arrived in Kingston. Officer McCullough was on duty in Princess-street about 7½ p.m., and saw the pair. He recognized them from their description, and at once arrested and brought them to the police station. They acknowledged that they had stolen the boat and tent, leaving the former at Kingston Mills, and selling the latter to a second-hand dealer, Lamoureaux of this city. An officer will come from Ottawa for them. Their luggage consisted of a large supply of very loud collars, a pair of kid gloves, a pair of new socks, a tooth brush and a bottle of proof whisky.

Promptly Dismissed.

ST. CATHARINES, June 26.—James McKelvey was arraigned on Tuesday before Mayor McIntyre, on a charge of illegally practising medicine, preferred by Medical Detective Webb of London. A young married couple named Henderson were the witnesses. Henderson said Mr. McKelvey came to him as a friend and told him he thought he could cure him of a severe bronchial affection. He left syrup and pills for which he wanted nominal pay, but made no charge for his services. His wife corroborated the story. There was not a shadow of evidence in support of the charge and Mayor McIntyre very promptly dismissed the complaint.

Fifteen Arrests in Vain.

OTTAWA, June 26.—The police have already arrested 15 men on suspicion of one of them being the man who has committed the outrages on small girls, but in every case the children have failed to identify them.

Why Not Immediately Before?

OTTAWA, June 26.—It is stated in political circles that Mr. Rykert, M.P., will resign for Lincoln immediately after taking his seat next session.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

BATTLES BETWEEN ARMENIANS, TURKS AND KURDS.

Heavy Losses on All Sides—Erzeroum in Full Revolt—Mr. Smith Gives a Good Reason for Dropping the Licensing Clauses.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 26.—Erzeroum is reported to be in full revolt.

In the conflicts that have taken place 80 Armenians and 9 Turkish soldiers were killed, and many on both sides were wounded.

Serious conflicts are reported between Armenians and Kurds, in which many have been killed on both sides.

It is reported that Osman Digna has left Tokar and is marching northward with a large force.

The Anglo-German Agreement.

BERLIN, June 26.—The Cannstadt Zeitung states that Prince Bismarck, in addressing a deputation from Cassel, said, with reference to the Anglo-German agreement, that England looked well after her own interests. For a time the English would treat the German merchants in Zanzibar in friendly fashion, but sooner or later they would try to oust the Germans. Speaking of Heligoland, he said the possession of the island had always been the wish of German patriots, but there might be various opinions as to the price that had been paid for it.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 26.—The Russian newspapers are angry over the cession of Heligoland to Germany. They fear the possession of the island by Germany will hamper Russian naval operations. Many papers assert that a secret defensive alliance has been formed by England and Germany.

LONDON, June 26.—The Times echoes the advice that the Government drop all bills and simply ratify the Anglo-German agreement, deal with supply and immediately adjourn parliament.

The Standard believes the Government will abandon all contentious bills. The Standard states that no difficulty with France will arise over the Zanzibar question.

PARIS, June 26.—M. De Loncle advises France to submit the Anglo-German convention to a special conference of the powers. He expresses his belief in the existence of a secret Anglo-Italian agreement ceding Somali and the ports of Brava Marka and Niagadoxo to Italy.

There Was No Alternative.

LONDON, June 25.—In the House of Commons this afternoon W. H. Smith, Government leader, stated that the Government, finding no alternative, withdrew the proposal relative to the funds for the purchase of publicans' licenses. He would say at a future day what ought to be done with the funds thus realized.

Cretan Convicts Pardoned.

CANEA, June 26.—The Sultan has pardoned all prisoners convicted under the common law in Crete whose sentences do not exceed three years.

NOT THE FIRST TIME.

Lewis Meyer Has Victims in Two Countries—Ashes as Assets.

MONTREAL, June 26.—The flight of the three wholesale and retail clothing merchants, Lewis Meyer, Frederick Lewis and James Nolan, is still the leading sensation in business circles here. In February last Lewis and Nolan arrived in Montreal from the States. Lewis Meyer, who had been in Montreal from the September previous, was at this time about to start a wholesale clothing establishment at 773 Craig-street. The three men knew each other intimately. Meyer, who for a few months had been in the retail clothing business in Notre Dame-street west, disposed of this business to Nolan, and it is said he took notes in payment of the stock. Lewis next set up in a splendid new store at 114 St. Lawrence-street. He called his place the "Model Clothing House." He stocked it well. The goods were supplied through Meyer's headquarters. The latter received splendid orders from his confederates, and on the strength of these orders, combined with his suavity and good address, managed to get about $30,000 of outstanding paper in town.

Meyer tried hard to get the banks to discount his paper, but none of them would have anything to do with him excepting a small bank, which only took his deposits. An appeal was made to a well-known private banker and financier, who advanced $26,000 on goods. He is, it is said, only partly covered. The three, it appears, have been endorsing each other's paper.

About two weeks ago Mrs. Meyer and her two children, who had been boarding in a first-class house in Phillips-square, left for the States. Between last Friday and Saturday her husband, Lewis, and Nolan have also gone.

Mr. Gross of the Canadian Secret Service was given the case, and has now two men on the track of Meyer and Lewis, who are supposed to have gone off together in one direction. Meyer was seen in Toronto on Saturday afternoon. The clue is being followed. An indictment is lying against Meyer in the States, so that it would be a danger for him to go back. Warrants have been sworn out against the three men, who are charged with defrauding their creditors.

Mr. Caldwell has men in charge of the three vacant places. He and Mr. Gross looked over the stock of each place to-day. In Nolan's store there is only about $500 worth of goods. In the one in Main-street the place has been very much thinned and the shelves are full of empty boxes. The contents have evidently been abstracted. In Meyer's place in Craig-street a discovery was made. On the shelves were rows of empty boxes, tied in fine wrapping paper, done up with colored cord. The parcels, by their appearance, were supposed to contain some expensive goods. One of them was opened, and its contents were ashes, coal ashes.

The shock to the onlookers was severe. All the boxes were alike filled with this substance. Nearly the whole of the large amount of goods which had lately been purchased was gone.

The total assets will not amount to over $4000, and the liabilities, including the $36,000 advanced by the private banks, will amount to about $80,000.

Meyer's real name is Jacobs and before he turned up in Montreal he left creditors in Kansas City to the tune of over $100,000.

Some months ago Meyer wrote to several Toronto houses and it is said that at least one firm sold him a large bill and has been let in for a considerable amount.

A Fatal Fall.

ST. CATHARINES, June 26.—The lad Joseph Weaver, who fell from a tree on the Smith farm on Monday, died at 10 o'clock last night, never having regained consciousness from the time of the accident.

The Fourth Victim.

COLCHESTER, June 26.—Peter White died this afternoon. He is the fourth victim of Tuesday's boiler explosion. Frank Bondy and Thomas Craig are thought to be improving but inflammation is feared.

HE TOOK AN AGENCY.

An Uxbridge Farmer Swindled Out of $130—How the Scheme Was Worked.

UXBRIDGE, June 26.—Some months ago a man giving the name of Bostick or Bestwick called upon Mr. Alexander James, lot 20, con. 4, Uxbridge, purporting to be agent for the Pinless Wire Clothes Line Company of London, Ont. In the course of conversation he found out that Mr. James owned a farm, and before leaving induced him to take an agency to sell the wire. Mr. James is a delicate man and has for many years been unable to work his farm alone, and this agency was represented to him as an easy way of making good wages. The smooth-tongued Bostick explained away every objection that was raised, and said the company would take back any wire that remained unsold.

In this way Mr. James, anxious to be doing something, undertook to try an agency, and the next morning two men delivered 3000 feet of the wire to him, requiring his signature of course to a "receipt" or document, just to show that he had received that much wire from the company, so that they would know where it was.

Mr. James tried to sell the wire at cost price, 4½c per foot, but it was no go. Very few people would buy. The wire was too dear.

The upshot of the whole affair is that his signature turns up at the bottom of a note for $130, and that John F. Wood (presumably a banker) sues the Pinless Wire Clothes Line Company and Alexander James for the amount of the note, which, of course, Mr. James will have to pay.

The names given by the men who delivered the wire and got the note were Malloy and Brown, and W. J. Malloy is the name on the note as witness. Such tricks are done so often, and they have been explained and exposed so often by the press, that people should be up to the dodges by this time.

KING'S COLLEGE CENTENNIAL.

Honorary Degrees Conferred—Women to Be Admitted to Its Ancient Halls.

HALIFAX, June 26.—There was a large attendance of distinguished ecclesiastics at the celebration of the centennial of King's College at Windsor to-day. King's was established by a charter obtained from King George III., and by the aid of the Nova Scotia Legislature for a long time it was a state college and the only one in Nova Scotia, which then included New Brunswick, which was allowed to confer degrees. To-day it is the oldest English-speaking institution of learning in the British colonial empire.

The honorary degree of D.D. was conferred upon Dean Hoffman of New York, Bishop Walker of North Dakota, Bishop Dudley of Kentucky, Rev. Jacob Mountain of England, Rev. Rupert Cochrane, grandson of the first president of the college; Rev. Dr. Kingdon, bishop coadjutor of New Brunswick, and Rev. P. J. Filleul, the oldest graduate of the college in the active ministry.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Mail-Empire Alleged Contempt of Court Case Decided.

TORONTO, June 27.—The Chancery Divisional Court yesterday gave judgment in the action of the Queen v. David Creighton and C. W. Bunting, to commit the defendants to jail for contempt of court for publishing in The Empire and The Mail respectively an associated press account of the alleged finding of a trunk at Lockport, which, in the opinion of Chief of Police Wills of Woodstock, was intended to receive the body of F. C. Benwell, who, according to Chief Wills, was murdered by J. Rex Burchell, who intended sending the remains of his victim over Niagara Falls in the said trunk. This despatch was alleged to be contempt of court, inasmuch as it contained emphatic opinions as to Burchell's guilt which would prejudice the prisoner in receiving a fair trial at the hands of an Oxford county jury. Mr. Justice Ferguson held that the Court of Chancery had no jurisdiction in criminal matters. Chancellor Boyd held the opposite opinion. The matter, therefore, drops, as far as the Court of Chancery is concerned, but Mr. Hellmuth, it is understood, will apply to the other courts for relief.

FERGUSON NON EST.

And New Brunswick Creditors to the Extent of $40,000 Mourn His Absence.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 26.—The failure of M. A. Ferguson, the lumber merchant, is one of the worst that has occurred for years. He has disappeared. The liabilities are estimated at from forty to fifty thousand dollars. Among the sufferers will be a number of farmers who can ill afford it, to whom he owes sums running up to several hundred dollars each in some cases. Considerable is owing in St. John, and a good deal in Upper Canada cities.

Ferguson, it is understood, was in the habit of buying goods in Montreal on long notes, shipping them to Toronto and selling for cash at a sacrifice. In this way he secured a lot of money. Some goods he purchased from Messrs. Daniel & Boyd and W. T. McLeod of St. John were shipped to Sussex and then sent back here. They were seized again by the original owners. There is much uncertainty regarding some of the paper afloat. There will likely be much litigation, and an attempt to hold W. G. White of Sussex, his former partner, responsible for some debts. Mr. White holds some bills of sale, but others hold like paper. It is thought Ferguson lost money speculating.

IS MIDDLETON TO RESIGN ?

It is Said on Excellent Authority That He Will Very Shortly.

OTTAWA, June 26.—It is learned on excellent authority that General Middleton will tender his resignation as commander of the militia forces of the Dominion shortly after the close of the military camps, which he will inspect, and the meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association.

The General Denies the Story.

OTTAWA, June 26.—Gen. Sir Fred Middleton emphatically denies the story that he intends to tender his resignation shortly after the close of the military camps.

The Spider Won.

CENTRE PORT, L.I., June 26.—Spider Kelly of Harlem and Benny Murphy of England fought three fierce rounds here to-night with 2-ounce gloves. Kelly won. Murphy was knocked down many times.

MATTERS IN MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG WANTS THE H.B. RAILWAY BUILT.

A Brace of Suicides—A Mount Forest (Ont.) Man Drowned in Dakota—A Drop in the Price of Flour—Welcome Rain—The Excursionists.

WINNIPEG, June 26.—The news was received with general satisfaction here of the contemplated grant of the Dominion Government to the Hudson Bay Railway Company. President Sutherland is detained here attending an important law suit or he would be en route to England.

John J. Hosker of Miramichi, N.B., suicided this evening by cutting his throat from ear to ear. He had been despondent for some time. He was formerly cashier of a large mercantile firm in New Brunswick.

Great preparations are being made by the people of Griswold to entertain the Ontario excursionists to-morrow. The Canadian Pacific railway authorities have permitted the train to stay long enough to enable the excursionists to visit the surrounding grain fields. 100 teams have been provided to drive the visitors around and a picnic will follow.

John Ramsay, working for J. E. Smith at Souris, was killed this morning by a stroke of lightning.

John Coyle, a lunatic prisoner in care of the Mounted Police at Fort Saskatchewan, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the right temple.

Flour has dropped 15c.; bran and shorts $1.

A magnificent rain fell yesterday where it was most needed in Southern Manitoba.

John Elmslie, from Mount Forest, Ont., was drowned yesterday at Grand Forks, Dak., while bathing.

There are several Grand Forks (Dak.) farmers prospecting in Southern Manitoba for land.

THE FLOUR MARKET.

Some Improvement Noted at Minneapolis—Wheat Thought to be Low Enough.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 26.—The Northwestern Miller says: The aggregate flour production of 11 mills last week was 82,500 barrels. Present indications point to an output this week of 75,000 barrels. There is a rather better tone to the flour market, and confidence appears to be growing. Many leading lights of the trade, who have until now believed wheat too high, think it has got down to a solid basis, and look for a stronger market and improved business. Stocks in the hands of middlemen are declared to be excessively light. Local millers had more of a call for flour during three or four days ending Monday and sold the most proportionately that they have in some time. Considerable patent was claimed to have been sold on a basis of $5 in New England, but this was considered extremely low. Some patents have also been sold for export at quotations not far from 28s 9d to 29s. London bakers' is also in rather better demand for export. The export shipments for the week were 29,580 barrels.

THEY STAND BY THE OFFICIAL.

The Illinois Central Refuses the Strikers' Ultimatum—Trains Side-Tracked.

CHICAGO, June 26.—A crisis in the big strike of Illinois Central trainmen was reached this evening. After an all-day session the conference between the Strikers' Committee and the Illinois Central officials ended with the positive refusal of the railroad company to discharge Supt. Russell. The ultimatum of the employes had been a demand for Russell's discharge.

Speculation is rife as to whether a general strike throughout the Illinois Central system will be ordered.

Notified Not to Handle Central Cars.

CAIRO, Ill., June 26.—A committee of the strikers came here to-day and on their orders every freight train between here and Centralia was side-tracked. The passenger coaches were detached from two trains and local roads were notified not to handle Central cars going to other lines.

It Was a Costly Codfish.

BANGOR, Me., June 26.—Julian Poole and A. F. Yeaton of this city have sent word to relatives here that they have just been released from prison in St. Andrews, where they were placed several days ago for fishing in Canadian waters. The young men were visiting Eastport and went out in a small boat for a row.

While between Eastport and Campobello, where the bay is not two miles wide, they threw out lines and caught one codfish.

A Canadian cruiser swooped down and arrested them for fishing within the three mile limit. They were put in jail for a few days, but were released on pleading ignorance of the three-mile limit law.

Nearing Their Dead Comrades.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 26.—The miners are in the solid coal which forms the line between the Mahoning and the Hill Farm mine. At 6 o'clock this evening they had gone seven feet in the coal and the drill hole had been advanced 10 feet. If the coal continues hard the men will be through early to-morrow morning. If there are no gases on the other side the work of recovery will proceed rapidly.

Twenty men, who have been secretly at work, have cut a hole from the Ferguson to within two feet of the Hill Farm mine. A drill has been forced through and the air in the Hill Farm mine is being tested.

Fun for the Shippers.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Wabash has given notice that, taking effect Monday, it will further reduce the rate on dressed beef by way of the Detroit line and the Canadian Pacific to the basis of 30 cents per 100 pounds, Chicago to Boston. The Chicago and Grand Trunk is expected to file a similar notice Saturday. A meeting of the Chicago committee of the Central Traffic Association will be held to-morrow, and the Lake Shore will announce its intention of meeting the 30 cent rate of the Wabash.

Philadelphia Carpenters Beaten.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—The carpenters' strike, which has been in progress since May 1, is virtually at an end, and the men who have been holding out for 35 cents per hour will take work at the best terms they can get.

Dislocated His Arm.

GUELPH, June 26.—Patrick Ryle, who lives in the York-road, met with a painful accident on Tuesday afternoon. He was walking down Macdonald-street when he caught his foot under the end of a sulky axle which had been placed on the sidewalk for shipment. He fell to the ground, dislocating his right arm at the elbow.

Damages for the Fishing Nets.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 26.—Rev. Dr. Howley called on the government yesterday and presented claims for $5000 damages to fishermen's nets. He says that last season the commander of the Emerald was about to fire on a French war ship, but the latter stopped removing British lobster traps.

Messrs. Whiteway and Harvey, the government delegation, left for London on the Caspian yesterday.

"Try Ayer's Pills"

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout. Stephen Lansing, of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "Recommended as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me from that trouble and also from Gout. If every victim of this disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be—'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

"By the use of Ayer's Pills alone, I cured myself permanently of rheumatism which had troubled me several months. These Pills are at once harmless and effectual, and, I believe, would prove a specific in all cases of incipient

Rheumatism.

No medicine could have served me in better stead."—C. C. Rock, Corner, Avoyelles Parish, La.

C. F. Hopkins, Nevada City, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for sixteen years, and I think they are the best Pills in the world. We keep a box of them in the house all the time. They have cured me of sick headache and neuralgia. Since taking Ayer's Pills, I have been free from these complaints."

"I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with rheumatism that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I am never without a box of these pills."—Peter Christensen, Sherwood, Wis.

MR. BLAINE'S POLICY.

THE proposal made by Mr. Blaine, United States Secretary of State, to arrange reciprocity treaties with southern countries in America is thus discussed by the Montreal Gazette:—The attitude of Mr. Blaine towards the McKinley Tariff bill is being interpreted in some quarters as a proof that protection has failed to accomplish its purpose in the United States. It is difficult to conceive a more glaring misconception of the Secretary of State's ideas. Mr. Blaine is a protectionist from the start, and seeks reciprocity only that his country may reap greater advantages from the protection it has maintained so long. His arguments all through are those of a protectionist. His reciprocity proposals are begotten of his protectionist principles. He wants an outlet for the surplus products of the manufacturers of the United States built up under a protective tariff. He seeks it in countries whose exports are altogether raw products, and who look abroad for the manufactured goods they consume. There are more manufactories in Massachusetts and Connecticut than in the whole of Spanish America south of the Rio Grande. In this vast region there is a consuming population of forty or fifty millions of people, and Mr. Blaine wants them to buy their merchandise from the New England and Pennsylvania manufacturers. He would extend the market of the United States manufacturer and the United States artizan to Cape Horn if he could, but not to a single country that would be a rival to the producers of his own land. He seeks no reciprocity with manufacturing nations. He would still protect the United States from hostile competition at home by the tariff, only relaxing its provisions in the case of those countries which can send into his home markets articles of food not coming into serious competition with the United States agriculturist, or material to be worked up in the Yankee mills by Yankee mechanics. At the same time the United States producer will be protected in these reciprocal markets by the tariff maintained by them against the goods of outside countries. The idea is the same as that brought up by Mr. Vincent in the Imperial House of Commons the other day, when he pointed out that the way to obtain a modification of the United States tariff, so hostile to British exporters, was to arrange British customs duties so that Great Britain would have something to offer to the United States for the favor she desired. It is the same idea that prevailed when Canada, after twelve years of a free trade tariff, despairing of securing fair reciprocity with the United States, resolved on a national policy of protection that would assist in developing her internal resources, and, if ever her neighbors were willing to negotiate for a reciprocal trade arrangement, would give her something to offer for the favors she expected to receive. Mr. Blaine's policy is the carrying out of protection to its fullest extent, and gives promise of much good for United States domestic and foreign trade, if Congress and the people are capable of adopting and adhering to it.

The Little Ones at Home.

The gleeful laugh of happy and contented children is the best home music, and the graceful figures of childhood are the best statuary. Babies are kings and queens in the cradle, and each baby is a new marvel.

The care which covers the seed of the tree under tough husks, provides for the human plant, the mother's breast.

Baby is strong in his weakness; his little arms are more irresistible than the soldier's. The small despot asks so little that all reason and all nature are on his side.

What a precious treasure is given to the mother! What careful tending must be done to protect the life of the fragile flower! As the gardner carefully waters and nourishes his young plants, in like manner must the mother nourish with the utmost care and diligence, her babe, that it may grow and expand.

Mothers often get anxious, as to the kind of food baby is receiving; more especially is this the case in hot weather.

Baby may be constipated, and as a consequence becomes fractious and cross. Certainly, mother, your child's food has not been of the right kind. In emergencies like this, your proper course is to use the well-known "Lactated Food"; it will give relief and sweet repose to your darling one.

Other foods often bring on a dangerous Diarrhœa; this can never result from the use of "Lactated Food," as it keeps the bowels invariably in a proper condition conducive to health.

"Lactated Food" is, in truth, a boon to yourself and child. It does away with anxious cares on your part, and wakeful nights to yourself and child will be unknown.

It makes dear baby vigorous, strong and healthy as you desire your child to become. Try it mothers.

A COLLISION OF AUTHORITY.

The Mayor, Council and Police Force of a Town Arrested.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., June 26.—A serious collision occurred yesterday between the authorities of Spokane County and the city of Spokane Falls. There is a rivalry existing between the Spokane Street Railway Company and the City Park Transit Company, both wanting to lay tracks on Division-street for an electric and cable line. The Street Railway Company has its line in position and the City Council ordered the track torn up in five days. The limit expired at midnight. As a precautionary measure the Transit Company had procured an injunction from the Superior Court to prevent the city authorities from interfering with the tracks.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning the work of demolition began. Acting Mayor Davidson, Sheriff Hinchliff and other city and county officials were present. The sheriff and his deputies arrested the mayor, superintendent of streets and Captain of Police Martin, who gave bonds, and returning to the scene found a large force relaying the track. The police ordered them to desist and arrested all who refused, and subsequently took the sheriff and his deputies into custody. State warrants were then issued for the arrest of all the members of the City Council and the entire police force, about 65 men. This disqualified the policemen and an entire force of special policemen were sworn in. Upon the order of Judge Kennard, of the Superior Court, 250 deputy sheriffs were sworn in.

The fight between the street railway companies has now quieted down and to-day both sides await the action of the court, to which the case was referred. Acting Mayor Davidson and Councilmen Battle and Hetholm appeared before the court this morning on a charge of contempt, for disobeying the orders of the court. They are defended by Attorney-General Jones. Decision will not be rendered before to-morrow.

ANOTHER BOILER BURSTS.

Five Men are Killed and Nine Seriously Injured.

ASHLEY, Mich., June 26.—By the explosion of the boiler in Gardiner's stave mill at North Star, three miles north of here, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, 5 men were killed and 14 injured. The killed are as follows: Fred. Tucker of St. Louis; Charles Brown, engineer, North Star; Hiram Goodwin, North Star; Costello, Green Bay, Wis. R. D. Gardiner, proprietor of the mill.

The injured are: Jay Brown, North Star, badly cut and scalded, will die; William Brody, of Saskin, arm broken twice, head bruised and scalded, may die; John Brims, North Star, badly bruised; Richard Britton, North Star, badly bruised; James Hill, seriously bruised and cut; Cassino Conklin, seriously cut and scalded; Eugene Conklin, cut about the head; William Erb, bruised on the head; David Robson, bruised.

The mill is a total wreck. Loss about $15,000; no insurance.

The Sunday School Convention.

PITTSBURG, June 26.—The International Sunday School Convention decided that a conference of field workers shall be held annually, except in the year when the International convention is held. It was resolved to appoint a capable man as promoter of school interests among the colored people. It was also resolved to pledge $10,000 a year for three years for the work of the organization. A motion to establish a paper in the interests of the International organization was lost.

ANOTHER RECORD SMASHED.

Firenzi with Murphy up Lowers the 1½ Mile Time.

NEW YORK, June 26.—In the race for the Coney Island Cup at Sheepshead Bay today, distance 1½ miles, Firenzi 1, Cassius 2, Tea Tray 3. Time 2.33. This lowers the record for 1½ miles by one second. Cassius got off with a lead and at the lower end of the back stretch was two lengths ahead of Firenzi. He held this advantage until the back turn was reached. Firenzi then began to gain. When they came into the stretch Firenzi was a length behind Cassius, but rushing to the front she got a good lead and won by 2½ lengths without being urged. Cassius beat Tea Tray four lengths.

CORNELL'S FAST EIGHT.

They Outrow Pennsylvania in the Fast Time of 14.43.

NEW LONDON, June 26.—The Cornell University crew to-day defeated the University of Pennsylvania crew by six lengths over the 3-mile course in the fast time of 14.43. Pennsylvania's time was 15.09. The fast time was due largely to a strong ebb tide running with the crews. The race, however, was very quiet and uninteresting, especially after the first half mile.

As the flag was reached Cornell pulled right away from the Quaker boys and gradually increasing the lead easily held all they gained to the end. There was a long and annoying delay in getting the crews started.

[illegible] Without Winding.

Herr A. Noll, living at Berlingen, in the Black Forest, after five years' patient and arduous labor, has constructed a wonderful clock, which he considers surpasses in marvellousness all clocks of ancient or modern times. This timepiece is warranted to go without stopping and without winding till midnight of the year 9999, practically an 8000 year clock. On its dial, besides the time of day, it shows years, seasons, months, weeks, days, festivals, and sun and moon changes.

Ignorance That Was Fatal.

Col. Burks, of Americus, Ga., persisted that a straight beat a flush, and, in the course of a discussion on the subject, called Col. Hall a liar. People living out in the country ten and fifteen miles went to Americus to pay the last tributes of respect to the deceased Col. Burks, and his coffin was a regular floral poem.—Peoria Transcript.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—Readers will find in the second instalment of Daudet's Port Tarascon a complete realization of the anticipation aroused by the first chapters. The rare humor of which M. Daudet is master adds an indefinable zest to the story, which abounds in alternate droll and tragic situations. Twenty-four illustrations by the eminent French artists, Rossi, Montenard, Myrbach, and Montegut accompany the article. Among the other illustrated papers in the same number of the Magazine are Howard Pyle's quaint account of A Famous Chapbook Villain who flourished in the early part of last century; Texan Types and contrasts, by Lee C. Harby, describing certain phases of life and manners near the Mexican border; a paper on Social Life in Oxford, by Ethel M. Arnold, with portraits of some well-known celebrities at the University; and Dr. Henry Lansdell's narrative of a journey through Baltic Russia, including a visit to Riga, Dorpat, and other places not often seen by English tourists. In the department of fiction, besides Daudet's new novel, there are several short stories: A Poetess, by Mary E. Wilkins; The Moonlighter of County Clare, by Jonathan Sturges, an experience resulting from a personal study of the Irish question; Two Letters, by Brander Matthews (illustrated); Truth and Untruth, by Mat Crim; and The Scarecrow, by S. P. McLean Greene (illustrated). Besides Mr. Aldrich's poem, Thalia, which occupies the place of honor in the Magazine there are poems by William Sharp, Matthew Richey Knight, and George Edgar Montgomery. In addition a number of other excellent papers help to make up a number of unusual excellence.

Married at Belleville.

The Belleville Ontario says:—"A quiet wedding was celebrated on Albert-st. yesterday afternoon, the contracting parties being Mr. H. A. Dean teller in the Bank of Montreal and Miss Mary E. Cherry. Rev. W. Young, Wellington, cousin to the bride, officiated. The affair was quietly conducted, the bridal couple taking the evening train for Niagara Falls, thence to Albany, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Quebec." Mr. Dean's friends in Peterborough extend their warmest congratulations.

A Pair of Prisoners.

The prisoners' box at the Police Court held two promising looking prisoners this morning. Gilbert Peck, an old visitor at police headquarters, was charged with being a vagrant, and acknowledging that he had no money or employment he was given a month in gaol at hard labor. His wife laid the complaint against him. John King, the other prisoner, was charged with drunkenness. He was from Toronto, he said, and was a chimney sweep, and his looks were not misleading, for he looked rather black and sooty. The Magistrate was merciful and allowed him his liberty free of charge.

Revising the Assessment.

The Court of Revision met last night to continue the consideration of the appeals against the assessment of this year. Councillor Rutherford, chairman, presided, while present were Councillors Moore, Langford and Davidson. The appeals of the insurance companies were considered and finally disposed of as per the agreement passed at the former meeting. The insurance companies put in certified statements of their incomes which were accepted by the Court. The companies will be assessed for their gross income, after the losses, expenses, commissions and 30% per cent for re-insurance has been deducted. The Court did no other business and adjourned until Thursday evening next, when the business will probably be concluded.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE TRIP.

Orders Issued to the 57th Battalion—The Turn-out Large.

There was a large muster of the men of the 57th Battalion on parade last evening. The men are looking forward to their trip to Toronto with pleasant anticipations and after they were dismissed last night there was a bustle in the drill shed, while haversacks were being served out and the trip was discussed. The bugle band headed the parade and they will be able to make a good showing in Toronto, thanks to the leadership of Bandmaster Miller. Major Bell was in command of the battalion and put the men through a short drill at the corner of Aylmer and Brock-sts. and at the Central Park on George-st. The men did well, and by giving strict attention to business while there they will be able to appear in Toronto in good shape and do Peterborough credit.

DISTRICT ORDERS.

After parade Capt. Dennistoun, Adjutant, read the following district orders, issued by Lieut.-Col. Otter:—

No. 1. The following corps, having signified their intention of taking part in the carnival parade at Toronto on the 1st July, will be formed up on East and West Market and Front-sts. at 11 a.m., under the command of deputy adjutant-general M.D. No. 2.

Governor-General's Body Guard—In quarter column on East Market-st., the head within 50 yards of King-st.

Toronto Field Battery—In column of sections in front of City Hall.

First Brigade—Lieut.-Col. Rogers, 57th Battalion, commanding.

15th Battalion Argyle Light Infantry and 57th Battalion Peterborough Rangers—Mass of quarter column, East Market-st.

Second Brigade—Lieut.-Col. Smith, 14th Battalion, commanding.

14th Battalion Prince of Wales' Own, 39th Battalion Dufferin Rifles and 2nd Battalion Queen's Own Rifles—In mass of quarter column on West Market st.

All the foregoing corps will appear in review order.

2. The Toronto Field Battery will fire a salute on the 1st July in the Exhibition grounds at 3 p.m.

BATTALION ORDERS.

The following Battalion orders were also read:—

HEADQUARTERS,
Peterborough, June 26th, 1890.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, commanding the 57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers:—

No. 1.—The Battalion will parade on Tuesday morning next at 6 o'clock, and entrain for Toronto.

No. 2.—Haversacks will be issued to-night. As there are not enough haversacks to permit of one being issued to each man, captains of companies will see that they are divided equally among their men and that the men arrange among themselves to carry their kits.

No. 3.—Companies must take with them combs, towels, blacking, pipe clay, soap and blacking brushes. These must be carried in the haversacks.

No. 4.—The commanding officer is endeavoring to arrange for transport for the quarter-master and a guard of twelve men. If transport is obtained this guard will en-train for Toronto on Monday morning and make all arrangements for the Battalion. The quartermaster will detail the men for this purpose selecting two men from each Company if possible.

No. 5.—Captains of Companies will prepare and hand to the Adjutant not later than to-morrow nominal rolls of the men of their Companies who are going to Toronto.

No. 6.—Orderly Sergeants of Companies will be careful to have their Companies roll books in good shape, so as to be able to keep carefully the attendance of the men.

No. 7.—To be captain of the day on Tuesday, Capt Brennan. To be subaltern of the day Lieut. Lech. Next for duty Captain Mason and Lieut. Stevenson.

George-st. Sunday School.

At a business meeting of the teachers and officers of the George-st. Sunday school held Wednesday night after the regular service, it was decided to hold the annual picnic at Hastings on July 10th. This is a fine picnic ground and George-st. school always has an enjoyable outing.

A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exodus to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. Given a nice camping spot, good water handy, a shady spot to lounge, good canoeing water, plenty to eat and good company the time can be put in fairly easy. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawley Bros., George-st. d146

The Boys on the Wheels.

The annual meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association is to be held at Ottawa this year and promises to be one of the most successful that has ever been held yet, the Ottawa club having made every possible preparation for the reception and entertainment of the wheelmen from all parts who will be present. The meet may be said to open on Sunday, when a church parade is to be held, and on Monday and Tuesday good programmes have been arranged. The Peterborough club will send twelve representatives to the meet this year, ten of whom will be mounted on the treacherous steed of steel. Those who intend taking in the meet on wheels are Messrs. F. Might (Captain), R. J. Fife (First Lieut.), W. H. Meredith (Second Lieut.), J. Dolan (Sec.-Treas.), C. Marshall (Bugler), A. H. Stratton, J. McGill, J. McKim, D. Davidson, J. Lang, while Messrs. R. B. Rogers and F. E. Bell will go down but will ride their wheels. The boys of the local club have made great preparations for a good time and Peterborough is sure not to be left at all in the shade. They will leave on the midnight train to-morrow night. The Wanderers, of Toronto, are also expected to be on this train. Mr. F. Might has been chosen official scorer for the C. W. A. races which will be held during the meet.

THE DICKSON CO. AT HARWOOD.

The Cobourg Town Trust and the Dickson Co.—Expect to Cut Ten to Fifteen Million Feet.

The Cobourg World says:—On Monday last the Commissioners of the Cobourg Town Trust and Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, representing the Dickson Lumber Co. (limited) entered into the following agreement:—"Whereas the Company in contemplation of purchasing certain mills at Harwood heretofore applied to the Commissioners to reduce and fix the harbor tolls on lumber to be manufactured at the said mills and shipped from the harbor of Cobourg, and whereas in accordance with said application the Commissioners resolved to reduce the rate of harbor tolls to ten cents per thousand feet board measure; and whereas acting on the faith of said resolution the Company have purchased the said mills at Harwood and intend manufacturing a large quantity of lumber at said mills, of which a portion will be shipped from said harbor, and it is expedient to enter into a formal agreement respecting the said tolls,—Now, therefore, the Commissioners agree with the Company that for and during the term of ten years from the first day of October next, they will at all times keep the centre pier, known as the "lumber pier," in such good and sufficient repair as shall be necessary to carry a superstructure to enable a railway locomotive and train of cars to run over the said pier with safety whether loaded or unloaded, and that during the said period the Commissioners shall not nor will impose or charge the Company by way of harbor tolls any higher rate than ten cents per thousand feet board measure for lumber and such timber as can be reduced to board measure——per thousand for shingles and——cents per thousand for laths; and that the company shall in consideration of the payment of the said rates be entitled to keep its lumber piled on the said pier for such length of time as the company may require in the ordinary course of their business, without being liable for demurrage—it being understood that "culls" not shipped shall be exempt from toll." Mr. Hazlitt states that the Company expect to cut and ship from ten to fifteen million feet of lumber every season at the Harwood mills.

Sunday School Picnic.

It is generally understood that Charlotte-st. Methodist Sunday school will picnic at Chemong Park about 15th July. This is always a popular picnic and the people are waiting for it.

Music at St. John's.

There was a good attendance at the organ recital given at St. John's church last evening by Dr. Davies, the new organist. The programme rendered was an excellent one and was greatly appreciated by all present, being rendered in a most masterly manner. The rapidity in changes of tone was specially noticeable in the "Funeral March of a Marionette," and the overture "L'Italiani," while in the first number the great feature was the pedal playing of long continuous and exhaustive passages. The effect of these were slightly marred by the unfortunate clicking of the pedal action, but this no doubt will be remedied shortly. One of the most delicate numbers of the programme was Greig's charming "Capriccio"—Opus 28. The Handel chorus from "Judas Maccabeus," brought out the grand tones of the full organ, which prevaded every nook and corner of the edifice. The congregation of St. John's are to be congratulated on the possession of such an organ and on having secured the services of such a master of the instrument as Dr. Davies. The lovers of music will hope that another recital will be given shortly. The programme as rendered was as follows:—

Concert—Stats	Otto Dienel
Adagio from first Quartette	Mendelssohn
Sonata in F minor	Lemmens
Andante in A major	Davies
Choruses from "Judas Maccabeus"	Handel
Capriccio-Opus 28	Edward Greig
Funeral March of a Marionette	Gounod
Overture "L'Italiani"	Rossini
Bridal Chorus and March "Lohenghrin"	Wagner

E. G. C.

Prof. Ketcham has organized a singing class in connection with the Charlotte-st. Methodist Sunday School which will be known under the name of the Epworth Glee Club. At the meeting of the members last evening the following officers were elected:

HON. PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. J. Shorey.
PRESIDENT.—P. Hamilton.
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT.—Geo. Dobson.
2ND VICE-PRESIDENT.—F. Turner.
SECRETARY.—Wm. Christie.
TREASURER.—W. Squires.

A meeting will be held this evening for the purpose of completing organization.

A Pupils Concert.

There was quite an assemblage in the "Y" Hall on George-st. last evening to listen to the concert which was given by the pupils of Mrs. Brodigan. Invitations had been issued to the parents of the children and a few friends and all those who accepted these invitations enjoyed a musical treat which delighted them and redounded in no doubtful terms to the credit of Mrs. Brodigan as a tutor of music. Mr. R. J. McWilliams, one of her pupils, presided as chairman for the occasion and did his duty nobly. The programme rendered was lengthy and varied, showing to advantage that music in all its different branches had been advanced and developed under the careful and talented guidance of Mrs. Brodigan. The pupils each and every one rendered their numbers in a most praiseworthy manner, which was pleasing to parents and encouraging and flattering to their teacher. To make any individual comment would be invidious, so the programme as rendered is given as follows:—

Chorus—Good Evening	Class
Solo—Immer Neider	Miss Aggie Hall

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

Nuptials of Mr. W. H. Hill and Miss Mary H. Taylor at Niagara.

At noon on Wednesday a most interesting matrimonial event was solemnized at Niagara Falls, when Mr. W. H. Hill, of Peterborough, manager for Central Ontario of the Sun Life Insurance Company, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Mary H. Taylor, daughter of Dr. W. H. Taylor, formerly of Peterborough and well-known as a member of the firm of Taylor & Macdonald. The nuptial knot was most auspiciously tied at Rosseire, the beautiful residence of the bride's parents situated in that garden of beauty and verdure, the village of Drummondville, which is close to the historic ground where was fought the battle of Lundy's Lane. Rev. John Young, M. A., of Niagara Falls, performed the ceremony, which was unostentatiously celebrated in the presence of the relatives and a few immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bridesmaids were Miss Bella Fairweather, of Peterborough; and Miss Hattie Taylor, sister of the bride, while the groom was assisted by Mr. F. D. Mackay, of Peterborough. The bride, who was handsomely and most becomingly attired in pearl white silk, trimmed with brocaded silk of the same color, wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms, while the bridesmaids wore costumes of pink and blue respectively. The bride and bridesmaids carried beautiful hand bouquets, while a profusion of flowers decorated the house and lent beauty and fragrance to the scene. An interesting fact in connection with the bride's wedding costume was that the rich material in the dress and the wreath of orange blossoms were the same that the bride's mother had worn when she was wedded to Dr. Taylor. After the ceremony the wedding party sat down to a most elaborate dejeuner, before the departure of the happy couple on the afternoon train on a honeymoon trip to Chicago and other western points.

The bride and groom were followed by the best wishes and congratulations of a host of friends in Niagara and vicinity, and there will also be an unusually large number of warm friends in Peterborough who will join most heartily in these well-wishes and congratulations. The bride, who is possessed of many excellencies of character which made her a favorite with all with whom she mingled, left an extended circle of friends in Peterborough when she went to her western home about a year ago, and these friends will now warmly welcome her back to Peterborough. Her extended friendships were attested by a very large and handsome array of wedding gifts of which she was the recipient. Mr. Hill is one of Peterborough's most energetic, successful and popular business men, and his departure from the ranks of the benedicts will be the occasion of many well-wishes.

After a tour which will occupy a couple of weeks the happy couple will return to Peterborough to take up their residence. The REVIEW joins with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hill a happy future in which their fondest anticipations may be realized.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you mustn't think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we haven't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

'Tis An Old Saying

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak to-day. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

SMOKELESS POWDERS.

EXPERTS SAY THAT ALL SUCH EXPLOSIVES ARE FAILURES.

Affected by Atmospheric Conditions and Rendered Useless—Cause of the Antwerp Disaster—Compressed Black Powder.

An American naval officer writing about the equipments of armies in one of the magazines makes the statement that smokeless powder has entirely superseded black powder in Europe, and criticises the United States government for lagging behind in everything pertaining to warfare. W. M. Thomas of Bridgeport, an expert employed by one of the big cartridge concerns, thinks the statement is premature, says the New York Sun.

"They are still experimenting with new explosives," said Mr. Thomas, "and nobody can say with certainty that any of the new powders will be adopted finally. The French thought they had found the perfect explosive in melanite, a glycerine compound; but they had to discard it because it would not retain its original properties. Melanite is affected by atmospheric conditions and undergoes chemical changes that alter its action, making it a detonating compound. Every glycerine compound made is liable to such chemical action, and therefore is unsuitable for use in rifle cartridges. The French were so confident that they had millions of cartridges loaded with melanite and stored in their arsenals. When they discovered their mistake they had to throw away the whole lot.

"The cartridges were sent to Antwerp to be unloaded, as the shells could be used; and it is my opinion that the terrible explosion in that city was caused by those cartridges. Probably one exploded when a workman pulled it apart and the detonation set off all the rest.

"One of the smokeless powders now being tried looks like broken shellac. It is in fine splinters of irregular size. It cannot be measured accurately by bulk and to get uniform results the amount put into each cartridge must be weighed, thereby increasing the difficulty and cost of putting up ammunition. Whether this stuff will remain in good condition for any length of time is an open question. While it is almost smokeless it makes a very noxious gas.

"The English adopted not long ago the Roubin cartridge, a Belgian invention, loaded with compressed black powder, gives high velocity, is uniform in action and stands any climate without deterioration. But the rage is for smokeless powder and England is trying a new explosive in the Roubin cartridge. The stuff looks like little globules of rubber and is elastic to the touch. After a few rounds have been fired, a thick gummy coating appears in the rifle barrel; and this stuff is so elastic and tenacious that it retards the bullet and tears the lead; and that not only destroys accuracy of fire but very soon ruins the rifle. Export of any of these secret compounds is prohibited, but for all that I have had samples of all and have tried them.

"Somebody may invent a practicable smokeless powder, but it has not appeared yet; and a good many people are going to get their heads blown off in fooling with the new compounds. I don't say that success is impossible, but in my opinion all this experimenting will end in the adoption of compressed black powder. There is a limit to the force of the blow that a bullet will stand and while you use an explosive that is too quick and too powerful the bullet is upset and knocked out of shape before it leaves the barrel. Bullets covered with nickel or some other hard metal will stand more than unprotected lead will. The mannlicher bullet covered with nickel has been shot through 37 inches of solid pine at 2,500 yards without damage to the bullet. Several governments are experimenting with protected bullets and Spain is using brass for the outer covering, regardless of the international agreement to refrain from using poisonous projectiles. At the Springfield armory they are trying a copper coating, but it does not follow that copper will be adopted in actual use. It only serves as a basis of experiment to determine the requisite hardness of the protecting metal.

"But all this experimenting cannot be confined to the ammunition. Just as radical changes must be made in the rifles, to adapt them to the new cartridges; and the rifle makers and cartridge makers ought to be working together. The United States government is away behind in the matter; and when the others get through experimenting it will have to go over a great deal of ground that they are covering now. It is a mistake to wait for other governments to reach a conclusion with the idea of saving trouble and getting the benefit of their work, because they will try and discard many things that we will never hear of and that will seem new to us when we do get to them. The procession is moving and the tail end can't catch up with the head of the column without marching over the same ground. The cartridge factories keep within hailing distance of the advance because they may get contracts from foreign governments at any time and must know what is going on. They do their experimenting as they go along and the rifle makers ought to work with them to produce the best results."

A Cat Kills a Rattlesnake.

Near Deckertown, N. J., the other day, a rattlesnake attacked a litter of kittens, when the old cat sprang at the reptile and a fierce fight ensued. The cat sank its teeth into the throat of the serpent and the snake coiled itself tightly about the fur-coated body. The cat's ribs gave way under the pressure, but she retained her grip on the neck of the snake and with her claws tore open its body. After several minutes of bitter warfare the life of the snake was crushed out by pussy's teeth. When the coils of the snake were cut away the cat was nearly dead. Its first blow, however, was so sudden, and its grip so vice-like that the rattler was unable to sink its poisonous fangs in her flesh. Pussy was resuscitated, and when her fractured ribs mend she will be all right.—Trenton American.

Are Women Careless of Money?

No woman, at least in America, has any such talent as a man has for spending money. She spends for what she believes to be beauty—for raiment, books, jewels, decoration, furniture, pictures, marble—rarely for what does her serious harm. He spends most for his vices, for the things that hurt him greatly. He is apt to gamble, to speculate, to bring evil to others from his love of pleasure or of gain. He will get rid of more money in a month than she would in years. She would, however, ignorant of it, be appalled by the sums he dissipates. She is constitutionally conservative; big disbursements of any sort are likely to alarm her. Unless desperate or frenzied, she invariably stops short of extremes. She trembles and turns pale, where he, in the flush of egotism, moves undisturbed.

Nearly all the talk of woman's carelessness of money is really idle. The opinion cannot be sustained. It is merely the echo of misapprehension. Where she is even partially enlightened on the subject, she is prone to be very cautious in its use. Her temperamental tendency is to the opposite of carelessness.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Story of a Fashionable Girl.

He saw her coming down the street—
A fair, sweet girl, with dainty grace;
He smiles at first, yet while they meet
He bows with angry, scornful face.

And she—her pale cheeks flush with red,
Startled to find herself so blamed;
Then haughtily she lifts her head—
Guilty she is, but unashamed!

Guilty—and yet he loves her well;
He kissed her face this very morn;
Now, what has wrought this evil spell
That fills his loving heart with scorn?

He is her brother—yet his eyes
Send forth disdainful looks that hurt;
Her brother—judge of his surprise
To find her wearing his new shirt!
—[Pittsburg Dispatch.

Rudyard Kipling.

Imagine a man born in Bombay, of people in whose veins runs the blood of more than one people, born and passing the first five years of his life in that strange, warm land; then taken back to the parental roof-tree in old England that he might know something of the sweet childhood and healthy boyhood peculiar to this sheltered island; and again at the age of sixteen returning of his own free will to the tropical country which gave him birth, and for seven long years doing the hardest kind of journalistic work—working from dawn to eve, year in and year out, with the thermometer frequently away up in the hundreds, no substitute even of the poorest possible in a territory where journalists are not to be obtained on short notice for either love or money, with fever looking him grimly in the eye, cholera slaying those nearest and dearest to him, and in his own heart always that tumult of aspiration and despair which is ever the lot of the highly gifted—the only genuine consolation lying in the hard labor which later on was destined to bear ripe fruit, but which at the moment in that deadly climate strained the vitality to its last possible limit. Imagine a man who has led this kind of a life, having but little society for nearly a decade beyond the rough-and-ready representatives of the army and the natives, with whom he has slumbered and fought, sorrowed and made merry, watched and broken bread, until they are to him as brothers—imagine all this, and see if you cannot understand why it is that at this moment the writings of Rudyard Kipling are astonishing two worlds. Without a previous knowledge of the soil whence has sprung all these marvellous blossoms of a human intellect, it is quite natural that the first question should be whether this precocity but presages an ultimate fiasco, or work stronger than any that this century has yet known. Lionized as a young man can be only in society which constantly craves a new sensation for its dulled appetite, courted with a persistency which must prove more flattering than wholesome at the age of twenty-four, it will not be at all surprising if Mr. Kipling has startled the world this year only to fall by the way in the end.

But may the gods be kind and avert such a catastrophe! and, indeed, as I contemplated the modest menage near the Thames, with the desk and chair and the pen, which evidently saw long and daily service, I felt that after all, genius would rise superior to society. A charming little study that is, with the green of Victoria Embankment directly beneath the windows, the glistening waters of the shipburdened river but a stone's throw away, and such coziness and cheer within. Walls hung with army pictures reproduced by Detaille, a dozen well-used pipes of various sorts and sizes occupying a case just above a most inviting sleepy hollow chair, a couch covered with a tiger skin, which even in death is not free from menace and alarm, a great black cat, thoroughly alive and happy and much petted by her fond master, the little tea-table, from which an ascetic repast is snatched when inspiration comes thick and fast—ah, it was all very fascinating! And the lord of this little realm, how shall I describe him—it is so natural to describe a woman, so difficult to reproduce the personality of a man; woman lends herself with ease to any kind of portraiture, while it always seems to me that man instinctively rebels against it. Yet I would I could convey to you some impression of that small, lithe, graceful figure; of a countenance which even at the age of twenty-four is beginning to tell the tale of persistent and severe labor, and a climate which must eat the very heart out of a man, a chin cleft in twain, but strong and prominent, telling of many battles fought and conquered, and many a battle yet to come; nostrils which expand with every emotion like those of blooded horses quivering for the race; a complexion pale from study and also from the great heat borne unremittingly for so many years, and fine gray eyes, whose widely dilating pupils behind the constantly worn eyeglasses fill one with a vague alarm, as of some misfortune lying in wait for their future sight.—London Letter.

GEESE WERE AFTER HIM.

They Chase a Fisherman and Drive Him up a Tree.

Irwin Bossler, while fishing in the Maiden Creek, was attacked by two wild geese. He was standing in the middle of the stream when one of the geese suddenly flopped upon him, knocked off his hat and sent his rod and line flying into the water. As Bossler grabbed for his hat he received a blow which almost broke his arm and sent him sprawling upon his back. He waded out but no sooner had reached the bank than another goose attacked him, and dealt him such severe blows that he was compelled to retreat. He finally climbed up a tree, where he was rescued completely exhausted.—Morning Journal.

Winged Ants Filled the Air.

A peculiar sight was witnessed on Main street, Ansonia, Saturday morning, about 9 o'clock. It was what might be styled a shower of ants, and lasted nearly two hours. The air was completely filled with the insects. They seemed to come out of the ground. At one place near the Post Office they issued forth in a stream five inches wide. As soon as they reached the pavement they would take to their wings. They came out along the street for 100 yards, and after circling around in the air started in a body down the street. They evidently had mid-air combats, as the street was full of dead and injured, and the wings of other unfortunates. What caused this immigration from the buildings is unaccounted for.

A Tough Yarn.

A servant boy was sent to the jeweler's with a valuable ring. He took it out of its box to admire it and, passing over a plank-bridge, let it fall on a muddy bank. Not being able to find it, he ran away to sea, finally settled in a colony, made a large fortune, came back after many years and bought the estate on which he had been servant. One day, while walking over his land with a friend, he came to the plank-bridge, and there told his story. "I could swear" said he, pushing his stick into the mud, "to the very spot on which the ring dropped. When he withdrew his stick, the ring was on the end of it.

Died From Lockjaw.

CHATHAM, June 26.—Sam Scripps, colored, who has been waiter at the Grand Central Hotel, and afterwards for four months in the service of Dr. Steen, V.S., on Monday jumped accidentally on a nail, and symptoms of tetanus set in, and he died at 2 o'clock. Before the fatal result of the lockjaw, from a wound an inch deep on the ball of the great toe of the right foot, he spoke a little.

DIDN'T WANT TO KNOW HIM.

Isaac H. Bromley Called Sullivan a Bully and Declined His Acquaintance.

John Lawrence Sullivan has at last received an insult which he failed to resent. A dispatch from Washington, says that at about [illegible] time he strolled into Chamberlin's hotel in company with Jack Barnitt. The pair of sluggers had just arrived from Pittsburg, where they had been giving a series of athletic exhibitions. They were in exceedingly good humor, and the champion [illegible] interesting night out. As he entered the dining room he pushed his high silk hat over his left ear and looked about to see who was there. Seated in a corner quietly chatting were a party of gentlemen including Senator Squire, Representative Caine, John Russell Young, Phil. Thompson of Kentucky and Isaac H. Bromley. Mr. Young had the pleasure of Mr. Sullivan's acquaintance and he politely shook hands with him. Before there was an opportunity for introductions, the pride of Boston loudly called for wine for the party. He then stood in an expectant attitude, and Mr. Young naturally introduced him to all his friends except one. This one was Mr. Bromley, who was not presented because he had coldly turned his back on the great man.

"What's the matter with you?" growled Sullivan. "Don't you want to know me? Ain't I good enough for you?"

Then he drew back with a menacing gesture, as though he contemplated knocking Mr. Bromley into the middle of the street. Mr. Bromley was pale, but plucky, and answered:

"No, you are a bully and I don't want to know you."

Sullivan looked fiercely at Mr. Bromley for a moment, evidently astounded at his boldness. Then, making an awkward bow, he muttered through his teeth:

"Well, as there is no good in my staying where I am not wanted I will go out," and he did.

His chum, Mr. Barnitt, almost fainted at the big man's forbearance, and Mr. Bromley and his friends each breathed a deep sigh of relief.

PEOPLE.

Gen. E. Kirby Smith claims to be the oldest man born in Florida.

Carmencita, the famous dancer, can neither read nor write, but possesses a pair of highly educated feet.

The Hon. Grover Cleveland and wife will be the guests of President Eliot at Harvard, at commencement.

Jane Simmons, a woman living in Middle Edgeville, Ga., is said to be the first woman in the south to become a butcher by profession. She can kill, clean and cut up more hogs in a day than any man in the country.

Jay Gould has resumed his former habit of spending one or two evenings each week in the crowd of Wall Street men at an up-town hotel. He does not do a great deal of talking himself, but he is a close listener to what others have to say.

Miss Constance Fenimore Woolson, the novelist, is the idol of novel publishers. All the productions of her pen are eagerly bought by them and readily disposed of. She is now living in Italy. She is a dainty little woman and very peculiar in her dress.

Sam Small, the evangelist, has been elected president of the Methodist University of Ogden, U. T. He will remove his family there and make Ogden his future home, severing his connection with the Southern Methodist Conference and affiliating with the Northern Methodists.

Private advices from St. Petersburg, from a highly credible source, state that the new American minister, Charles Emory Smith, and his accomplished wife, have made a most favorable impression alike in court and in social circles of the Russian capital. They were most cordially welcomed, as have been all American ministers for many years, and have already become conspicuous social favorites.

The Marquise Clara Lanza, Dr. Hammond's daughter, is described as a decided blonde, whose fluffy hair, lying in short boyish locks against forehead and neck, could scarcely be a paler yellow, on her skin of a most unvarying pallor. She has lovely eyes, of a rare greyish blue, and regular features, but her charm lies chiefly in the nobility of her expression.

ORIGIN OF THE CHOLERA

THE PLAGUE IN SPAIN A LEGACY OF THE EPIDEMIC OF 1885.

A Few Fresh Cases and Several Deaths Reported—Six Lives Lost by the Sinking of a Steamer—The Fight at Erzeroum.—General Cable News.

MADRID, June 27.—Investigation shows that the cholera epidemic at Pueblo De Rugat had its origin in the opening up of an old cemetery, in which the victims of the epidemic of 1885 were buried. The Cabinet was opposed to declaring officially that the disease prevailing in Spain is cholera, but it had no alternative in view of the report of the Sanitary Commission. Yesterday's report shows two deaths at Gandia, one at Barxigemia and one at Barcheta. A few fresh cases are reported at Jatova, Pueblo De Rugat, Barcheta and Enova. Elsewhere in the province of Valencia the public health is excellent.

PARIS, June 27.—It was reported here yesterday that cholera had appeared in different parts of France, but no advices reporting such an outbreak have been received and the rumor appears unfounded.

ROME, June 27.—The Government has issued an official denial of the rumors that cholera has appeared in Italy. It is announced the whole country is in excellent health.

A Dutch Steamer Goes Down.

LONDON, June 27.—The Dutch steamer Prinz Frederik, from Amsterdam for Java, was sunk on the night of June 25 in latitude 47, north longitude 6 west, by collision with the British steamer Marpesa, from Taganrog for Dunkirk. The collision occurred during a dense fog. The Marpesa has arrived at Falmouth with her bows stove and her forepeak full of water. She had on board the crew and ninety-three passengers of the Prinz Frederik. Six lives were lost in the collision. The Prinz Frederik was 1902 tons register.

The Trouble at Erzeroum.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 27.—Advices received here from Erzeroum regarding the trouble in that city state that a detachment of Turkish soldiers searched a church there while services were being held, in the belief that a quantity of arms were secreted in the building. The congregation resented the indignity and opened fire with revolvers upon the Turks. In the encounter which ensued one Turkish officer, four Armenians and eight Turks were killed and many others on both sides were wounded. A party of Mussulmans subsequently made a riotous demonstration and stoned the British Consulate.

Mafia Conceded to Germany.

BERLIN, June 27.—It is stated that England has ceded to Germany the Island of Mafia, on the East African Coast.

Finally Concluded.

BERLIN, June 27.—The National Gazette announces that the Anglo-German agreement relative to East Africa has been finally concluded.

A CHINESE MUTINY.

Fifteen of the Ringleaders Condemned to Death and Executed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Chinese advices say that a mutiny occurred on the Chinese steel cruiser Nan Sheng lying at Woo-Sung. Capt. Chu-Ming-Fu refused to allow the native sailors more than half pay as the vessel was undergoing repairs. Commodore Wu with a detachment of soldiers from a fort went aboard and proceeded to dole out half pay to the sailors. The latter, however, fell on the soldiers and drove them from the vessel, stabbing three of them. The sailors then locked up the commodore and captain and had a festive time. They subsequently released the officers, and the commodore caused 15 of the ringleaders to be sent ashore and shot.

$3000 for the Conscience Fund.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Postmaster-General Wanamaker to-day received a letter postmarked New York enclosing $1000 United States gold certificates, which the writer says is interest on a sum of money of which he defrauded the Government years ago. He desires Mr. Wanamaker to return them to the Government. He is the same man, he says, who some months ago sent $1500 to Mr. Wanamaker for the same purpose. The letter accompanying the money is signed "Conscience."

Suicide of an Old Glen Allan Man.

GLEN ALLAN, Ont., June 27.—Mr. John Manderson, an old resident of this place, committed suicide by hanging himself this morning. He left his bed about 5 in the morning and told his wife he would go out and hoe in the garden while it was cool. He had been in poor health for some time and seemed low spirited. No reason can be given why he put an end to himself.

Terribly Scalded.

WALKERVILLE, June 27.—John Keitz, an employe of the Ontario Basket Works, slipped while going past one of the vats holding the boiling water, and before he could save himself one leg was terribly scalded. In some places large chunks of flesh dropped off. It is hoped he will save the injured limb.

Abducted His Own Child.

ST. CATHARINES, June 27.—James Riley of Howell, Mich., who some time ago secured a divorce from his wife on the ground of infidelity together with a decree for the custody of his 6-year-old child, by the aid of detectives found that the little girl was here and succeeded in getting her across the border

BAXTER HITS BACK.

THE MONTREAL BROKER SAYS HE HAS BEEN SLANDERED.

Justice Wurtele Grants Him Permission to Sue the Central Bank and Liquidators for Criminal Libel—Damages Placed at $100,000.

MONTREAL, June 27.—Broker James Baxter has determined to carry the war into Africa and has to-day secured permission from Mr. Justice Wurtele to sue the Central Bank of Canada and Liquidators Howland and Lye for criminal libel. He places his damages at $100,000 and explains his reasons for taking the action in this affidavit:

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC,
District of Montreal,
Superior Court:

James Baxter, broker, of the city and district of Montreal, petitioner, to any of the honorable judges of the Superior Court of Lower Canada, sitting in and for the district of Montreal.

The humble petition of James Baxter, broker, of the city and district of Montreal, respectfully represents that your petitioner does extensive business as broker in the city and district of Montreal; that his business consists of banking, purchase of commercial paper and real estate; that according to his said business you petitioner is constantly in relation with the banks and all financial and commercial agents generally;

That since about 20 months the Central Bank of Canada, as body politic and corporate, having its chief place of business in the city of Toronto, in the province of Ontario, and now in liquidation, and William H. Howland and Henry Lye, both of the said city of Toronto, liquidators of the said Central Bank of Canada, have spread out through both the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, where your petitioner does his business, that the said petitioner was indebted to said Central Bank of Canada in a sum exceeding $100,000 for money pretended to have been loaned by said Central Bank to your petitioner and not repaid;

That on June 18 said Central Bank of Canada, through its said liquidators, has taken in said city of Toronto an action against your petititioner for the sum of $115,155.37 for money pretended to have been paid by said Central Bank to your petitioner and not repaid;

That the above-mentioned rumor and the institution of the said action have been published by all the leading newspapers of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, through the suggestion of the said Central Bank of Canada and of its said liquidators, William H. Howland and Henry Lye;

That the said rumor and publication have become known by all the persons with whom your said petitioner was doing business;

That your petitioner is not indebted to the said Central Bank of Canada in the sum of $115,155.37, nor in any sum whatever; that the said rumor is false and that the said action is vexatious and was instituted with the intent of injuring your petitioner in his reputation, credit and honor in his business;

That the said rumor and publication have been spread out with the intent of frightening your petitioner and of forcing him to pay to the said parties moneys which were not due by your petitioner;

That the said rumor and publication have in fact injured your petitioner in his reputation, credit and honor and in his business, and have caused to your said petitioner considerable damage, which he values at the sum of $100,000;

Wherefore your petitioner prays that he be permitted to issue a writ out of this court against the Central Bank of Canada, a body politic and corporate having its chief place of business in the city of Toronto in the Province of Ontario, and now in liquidation, and against William H. Howland and Henry Lye, both of the said City of Toronto, liquidators of the said Central Bank of Canada, jointly and severally for a sum of $100,000 for damages caused to your petitioner as above mentioned.

That such writ together with a declaration may be served upon the said defendants in the Province of Ontario, the said writ returnable on Sept. 5, 1890.

WHAT IS A COW?

Judge Chadwick Renders an Interesting Decision at Guelph.

GUELPH, June 27.—The farmers of Guelph and vicinity have been following with a great deal of interest a case in the Division Court in reference to the award of prizes at the last exhibition of the Guelph Fat Stock Club. James McQueen of Pilkington offered for competition three cattle in the class set out in the prize list as "cows three years and over." These cattle were over three years of age, but never had calves. Mr. McQueen paid the fees to the secretary and drove his cattle into the prize ring, but was ordered by Mr. Waters, the president, and Mr. Sharp, the vice-president of the club, to remove them as they had not had calves, they claiming that a cow was not a cow until she had a calf, and was not entitled to show under this heading. Mr. McQueen removed his cows and brought an action against these two gentlemen personally for $16, the amount of the prizes, which he claimed he would have taken had he been allowed to show.

The case was tried before Judge Chadwick. A number of technical objections were raised by the defence. It was urged that the whole club ought to have been sued and not these defendants, that the damages were too remote and that the case ought to be dismissed.

The judge has given judgment holding that the defendants were properly sued, as the club were not responsible for the acts of the two men; that the cows were improperly rejected; that the contract was that published in the printed rules, which must be liberally construed; that no dictionary defines a cow as an animal with a calf, but simply as the feminine of the bovine species; that the damages were clear, as the evidence showed beyond a doubt Mr. McQueen would have taken all three prizes, and His Honor concluded by saying his judgment must be against the defendants with costs.

Struck by a Deal and Killed.

SACKVILLE, June 27.—A young man named Amos Hicks, aged about 21, was accidentally killed on Monday morning in Ogden & Hicks' mill at Harper's Brook. He was struck on the head by a deal, thrown from a circular saw, in the forehead, nearly severing the upper part of his head. He could be noticed to breathe for an hour after the accident.

But It's an Awful Bore.

STRATFORD, June 27.—Shortly after 8 o'clock last night the drilling of the natural gas well was commenced. This morning the drill had got down to a depth of 25 feet. There is every indication of a rich strike of gas.

Mr. Beemer Awarded $82,000.

OTTAWA, June 27.—Mr. Page, Chief Engineer of Canals, to whom was referred the claim of H. J. Beemer for $200,000 in connection with the Welland canal aqueduct contract, has rendered a decision in the case which awards Mr. Beemer $82,000.

AN AERONAUT'S FALL.

Narrow Escape of a Notoriety-Seeking Female at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Estella Leroy, a Cleveland girl whose real name is Bell, attempted to make her first balloon ascension and parachute jump at Beasley's Park last evening. She failed, however, and narrowly escaped death. The balloon was inflated with hot air and Ed French was sent inside to keep it from igniting from sparks from the fire. He was forgotten and when the balloon was sufficiently inflated it was cut loose and shot up into the air. French was not prepared for ascension and began to scramble out. One of his feet caught in the ropes and he hung head downward. After a vigorous struggle he succeeded in extricating himself when the balloon was about thirty feet from the earth, and after turning two somersaults in the air he alighted on his face and was severely injured. The struggles of French loosened the parachute from the balloon and when at the height of 100 feet it suddenly broke loose. The parachute does not open until a considerable distance has been traversed, and the woman descended with a rush. There was a cry of terror and a general stampede. Fortunately the aeronaut fell into the branches of a large tree and was rescued without sustaining any injury.

THE BANTAM CHAMPIONSHIP.

Dixon of America Defeats Wallace of England at the Pelican Club.

LONDON, June 27.—The international glove fight between George Dixon (colored), the bantam weight champion of America, and Nunc Wallace, the bantam weight champion of England, took place at the rooms of the Pelican Club this evening. The match was for the bantam weight championship of the world and a purse of £800. Wallace retired in the 18th round and Dixon was declared the winner.

The fight was witnessed by about 1600 persons, among whom were Baron North and the Earl of Lonsdale.

Wallace led off in the first round, appearing to considerable advantage. Intense interest was manifested and he was loudly cheered by his friends and received many signs of encouragement.

In the second round the Englishman adopted ducking manoeuvres in which he touched Dixon's legs. This gave rise to cries of "foul," which was not allowed by the referee.

In the third round Wallace seemed to be considerably fagged and Dixon came to the front to great advantage. In the succeeding inning the American forced the fight.

In the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds they fought on even grounds. From this up to the tenth round there was no great display of pugilistic skill, but in the tenth round Wallace received a knock down blow and blood flowed from him pretty freely. He came to time, however, promptly at the call, though his weakness was plainly apparent.

In each successive round up to the eighteenth Dixon fought the Englishman all around the ring. At the next call Wallace reached his corner, but had been so badly used up that he was unable to defend himself. He leaned helplessly against the ropes and was obliged to give up the fight.

Yale Outrows Harvard.

NEW LONDON, June 27.—The Yale-Harvard University annual eight-oared boat race was rowed this evening over a four-mile straight-away course on the Thames river and was won by Yale by 3½ boat lengths in 21 minutes 29 seconds. This was the fifteenth annual race between these universities, and it was Yale's fifth successive victory. Yale has won nine and Harvard six of the 15 races. The race was a remarkably close and exciting one for the first three miles, neither crew being able to gain a decisive lead. Harvard was ahead twice for brief periods, but Yale quickly recovered by spurting. Yale's staying qualities finally prevailed, and during the last mile the blues gained slowly but surely on their competitors. After passing the third mile flag Harvard's stroke seemed to lose some of its effectiveness. The shell rolled somewhat and three or four swerves by the coxswain helped to retard the crimsons. Yale kept up the long steady swing, with almost faultless precision, to the finish, and the men did not show any sign of exhaustion as they rested on their oars after crossing the line. The Harvard boys, on the other hand, showed plainly the effects of their but unavailing struggle. The losers' time 21 minutes 49 seconds.

OTTAWA, June 27.—A drowning occurred at Bryson, Que., last evening. George J. Hurdman, aged 24, third son of Charles Hurdman, lumber merchant, Ottawa, went out in a bark canoe, which upset after he had paddled a short distance. The body has not been recovered.

EX-REEVE JARDINE OF SALTFLEET STABBED.

The Crime Committed by a Drunken Farm Hand in the Victim's Employ—Poisoned by Corned Beef—The T., H. & B.—Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, June 27.—Joseph Jardine, ex-reeve of Saltfleet, was stabbed last evening and received injuries which may prove fatal. For a couple of months John Mullin, a farm laborer, has been employed by Jardine. On Thursday Mullin was on a drunk, and going to Jardine's house he became abusive and used vile language. Mullin finally went away, but he returned in the evening and continued his abuse. Jardine told him to go away, and Mullin pulled out a knife and stabbed him in the groin, inflicting a dangerous wound. Mullin ran away after he committed the crime and has not yet been captured. County Constable [illegible] has a warrant for his arrest.

At a late hour last night every member of Adam Bell's family, residing at 16 Mary-street, were taken suddenly ill. The doctor says that the family were poisoned, and after making minute inquiry he is firmly of the opinion that it was through eating corned beef. No fatal results are feared.

The first sod will be turned to-morrow on the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway by ex-Mayor William Doran, one of the local directors. Seven o'clock in the morning is the hour named for the formal commencement, and what is known as the Cherry property, near the corner of Bay and [illegible], will be the scene of operations. As soon as the ground is broken Contractor Harry Massy will put on a gang of men and teams and the work will be pushed ahead as rapidly as possible.

A 15,000-gallon water tank at Elsinore burst last night. It is a complete wreck.

SAN SALVADOR REVOLUTION.

Sensational Scenes in a Ball-Room—Died of Excitement.

LA LIBERTAD, San Salvador, June 27.—The following are the particulars of the recent sudden death of President Menendez: During a ball given at the President's residence at the capital, celebrating the anniversary of the triumphal entry of Gen. Menendez on June 22, Gen. Malesion Marcial suddenly entered the ballroom at 11 p.m. and announced, in behalf of his chief, Gen. Ezeta, who had arrived with 600 men from Santa Anna, a revolt against the existing government and demanded the deposition of President Menendez.

Gen. Martinez, commander of the Government forces at the capital, appeared, and President Menendez, who was sick in an upper story of the house, requested an audience with Gen. Marcial. An altercation ensued between Martinez and Marcial. The latter was shot and expired immediately. Ezetta's soldiers thereupon took Martinez prisoner and captured the barracks. Twenty-three men were killed. It is asserted that the president, through excitement, died from heart disease.

The following day Gen. Ezetta was proclaimed president provisionally and the new cabinet formed, but it has since dissolved, and Gen. Guirola for the present is directing the different branches of the administration. Order prevails.

Troubles on the Mexican Border.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 27.—Monterey telegrams say revolutionists under Ruiz Sandoval attempted to cross the Rio Grande Wednesday from the United States to Mexico six miles west of Laredo, but were driven back by Mexican forces. Sandoval and six others were captured by the police of Laredo, Texas, but the Mexican troops captured one prisoner and several horses. Sandoval was expelled from this country by President Diaz under the Pernicious Foreigner Act and has a price on his head in Central America, where he headed a revolution. He has no standing here and less following. A revolution at present in Mexico is out of the question for two reasons; First, there is no motive, the country being prosperous; second, the government is able to suppress any movement of its enemies, who are few in number. Commanders of the forces on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande report everything quiet.

It is Expensive.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A glance through the pending Sundry Civil Bill, supplemented by the regular Legislative and Executive Appropriation Bill, discloses that Mr. Harrison is likely to be able to make both ends meet at the close of the coming fiscal year. As a starter, he has his salary of $50,000. There is a further sum of $35,000 allowed him to spend as he sees fit in recarpeting his rooms and making his domestic apartments comfortable in the matter of furniture, $16,000 or thereabouts is set aside to pay for his gas and electric lights, and $3000 is allowed him for coals. To keep his greenhouses in order so as to furnish him with buttonhole bouquets and flowers to present to his friends $7000 is appropriated, $1000 is allotted him for his front garden and $5000 for his back garden. If his kitchen pipes should happen to burst in the winter there is $5000 plumbers' bill for him to draw upon.

He has no servants to provide except a cook and scullions and chambermaids. Congress furnishes him with a steward and everything else in the servant line at a cost of about $15,000. He has not even to provide matches. The appropriation for fuel and lights distinctly specifies that it shall include matches. He has to buy his butcher's meat and groceries and his wine, however, when he gives a dinner party. Pretty nearly all else is given him, and lest there should be something overlooked a contingent fund of $8000, which he is at liberty to spend as he thinks proper, rendering no account to anybody, is added as a cap sheaf.

The total appropriations for the domestic economy of the Executive Mansion, excluding the salaries of the private secretaries and clerks engaged solely on official business, foot up $128,000.

ANOTHER YEAR OF SUCCESS.

THE annual report of the Sun Life Assurance company, which is given in this issue, shows that in 1889 this company had another year of success and prosperity. Its record has been one of advancement and last year was a bright twelve months in its record.

During the year policies were issued for $3,722,331, an advance over the previous year of $766,236, a strong evidence that the Sun not only maintains its popularity but is increasing in favor with the people. An addition of a quarter of a million dollars was made to the assets, and it is a point worthy of consideration by all intending insurers that the cash surplus to policy holders amounts to the handsome sum of $219,026. The net surplus is divided every five years. In 1881 this amounted to $64,824, and in 1886 to $89,452. Three years have elapsed since the last quinquennial division, and already the net surplus amounts to $156,526. Thus the accumulated profits of the past three years alone amount to a great deal more than the profits of any previous five years.

This satisfactory result is obtained by careful management and conducting the business on the best plans. Although in 1889 the insurance in force was largely in excess of 1888, the death claims were considerably less, a fact that speaks volumes for the carefulness with which the Sun carries on its business.

It is a pleasure to see this Canadian company steadily advancing and increasing in prosperity. Its success has been worthily obtained by straight business methods that have won the confidence of the public.

In this district the Sun is fortunate in having for its manager a man so capable and energetic as Mr. W. H. Hill, for with the happy combination of a popular manager and a popular company success is certain.

As an Emergency Medicine, for sudden colds, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all remedies, a dose or two generally sufficing to stop ordinary coughs and ease the worst. For the cure of throat and lung disorders, this preparation is unequalled.

NURSERIES OF DISEASE.

A Reporter's Rambles Among The Club Houses of Disease Germs, Microbes, and Miasmatic Odors—The Condition of Alleyways and Back-yards.

"Every householder, whether rich or poor, should give personal attention to the cleanliness of his premises, especially to the cellar and yard. Health is too important a thing to be intrusted to subordinates. No decaying matter should be allowed in the cellars."

When one of our leading physicians wrote the foregoing, he gave advice that should be acted upon at once. This city is far in advance of many as respects cleanliness of streets, yards, and alley-ways. Yet there are a few spots that are a disgrace and a source of diseases. Malarial poison rises unseen and lurks in the very air we breathe. It brings disease and death to thousands, and is rightly regarded with as much fear as a pestilence. To fortify the system against its attacks, we earnestly recommend the use of Paine's Celery Compound. By keeping the nervous system strong and vigorous, the health becomes so robust that the poison of malaria is successfully resisted. This medicine regulates the circulation, and sends the rich, pure blood pulsating joyously to every part of the body, and removes all feelings of heaviness, weight, and dullness.

In malarial districts if a free use was made of Paine's Celery Compound, there would be no fear of chills, low fever, bilious attacks, and all that train of evils. A specific for all nervous diseases, it has a remarkable power in malaria and liver complaints, owing to the fact that the perfect performance of the functions of the liver depends upon the strength and wellbeing of the nervous system. It has cured chronic cases that no other treatment could ever benefit. Its enormous sale has been created solely by its own virtues and the thousands of remarkable recoveries which it has wrought.

St. Paul's Young Men.

The Young Men's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church held a regular meeting last evening, at which an interesting debate took place on the question, "Resolved, that the negroes should not receive equal privileges with the whites." Mr. R. F. McWilliams led the negative side and was supported in his argumentary strife by Messrs. D. Davidson and Jas. A. Fife. The affirmative side was championed by Mr. A. Wood, with Messrs. C. Collins, J. W. Bennett and Jas. Lowe as supporters. The chairman gave his decision for the affirmative. It was decided on account of the warm weather and the large number who will leave town during July and August for holiday trips to hold no meetings during those two months, and accordingly an adjournment took place until the last Friday in September

THE SUN LIFE.

The Annual Meeting of this Prosperous Assurance Company.

The annual meeting of the company took place on March 7th, 1890, at the head office, St. James-st., Montreal. The President, Mr. Robertson Macaulay occupied the chair. The attendance was large and the meeting enthusiastic.

On opening the meeting, the President referred feelingly to the absence of his much esteemed predecessor, the late Mr. Thomas Workman, who had acted as chairman at every previous annual meeting in the Company's history. He took a deep interest in the Company's affairs and for years had been a daily visitor at its office. It was a pleasure to consult with him, and both the Company and the speaker had lost in him a true friend, whose memory will long live with them.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in presenting their report of the transactions of the Company for the past year. An examination of the accompanying statements of accounts will show that the progress made has been rapid, solid and in every way satisfactory.

During the year we received 2,755 applications for life assurance amounting to $4,102,716.55. Of these 2,594 for $3,722,331.15 were accepted and policies issued thereon, the balance being declined or withdrawn. This total is $766,236.99 in advance of the previous year and the passing of the four million line marks another mile post in the Company's history.

In the accident department, the applications were 1,363 for $2,420,300 00, and the policies issued 1,347 for $2,375,300.00. The combined applications of the two branches thus reached the handsome total of $6,523,010.55.

Life	8,951	……	$12,237,882 66
Accident	2,664	……	4,926,400 00
Total	11,615		$17,164,282 66

The financial position of the Company is very gratifying. The income has increased until it now amounts to $563,104 52, or nearly $2,000 for every working day in the year. The death claims which fell in were $5,538.49 less than in 1888, although in natural course they should have increased. An addition of more than a quarter of a million has been made to the assets, bringing their total up to $2,233,322.72. The cash surplus has also advanced to $219,026.64, or $156,530.64 beyond all liabilities and capital stock. And last, but by no means least, is the fact which does not show on the surface, but to which we can testify, that the quality of the assets is exceptionally high. In view of this prosperous condition of affairs, there is no risk in predicting that the surplus to divide among policy-holders at the end of the present quinquennium will be large and satisfactory.

The premises which the Company has occupied since its foundation being now entirely insufficient for the requirements of our rapidly extending business, we some months ago purchased the property on the corners of Notre Dame, St. Alexis and Hospital Streets. On this it is proposed to erect a building which will be a Home Office worthy of the Company, and will provide the additional accommodation which is now a necessity. The site is very central and unusually well lighted, and as it was obtained at a low price, it is expected to prove a good investment.

It is with the deepest regret that we have to chronicle the death of our late President, Mr. Thomas Workman. The loss to the Company was severely felt, while each of the Directors has lost in him a warm personal friend. Mr. Workman had been President of the Company since its inception. He took a deep interest in everything which affected it, and was proud of its prosperity. There can be no doubt but that the widespread influence of his name and character contributed in no small measure to its success. In view of the parliamentary and other engagements of the Vice-President, Hon. A. W. Ogilvie, the Board, on the motion of Mr. Ogilvie, unanimously elected Mr. Robertson Macaulay, the Managing Director, to the vacant Presidency. Mr. James P. Cleghorn, President of the Board of Trade, and managing partner of the wholesale firm of J. G. Mackenzie & Co., has been appointed to the Directorate in Mr. Workman's place. The Actuary, Mr. T. B. Macaulay, has also been appointed Secretary.

The Directors who retire this year are:—Messrs. A. Macpherson, James Tasker and M. McKenzie, who are all eligible for re-election. Mr. Cleghorn's name also comes up for confirmation.

W. J. WITHALL,
JAMES TASKER,
A. MACPHERSON
M. MCKENZIE,
Directors.

Montreal, February 26th, 1890.

To the President and Directors of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada:

GENTLEMEN,—We have much pleasure in reporting that we have audited the accounts of your Company for the year ending 31st December, 1889, and have certified the various statements of accounts as above.

We have verified the receipts of revenue from the various sources as far as possible, and are satisfied that the same has been fully accounted for. The disbursements are also fully sustained by vouchers.

As in past years we have procured acknowledgements from parties that have received money on mortgages on real estate, admitting the correctness of the amounts at their debit in the Company's books on the 31st December, 1889.—Respectfully submitted,

P. S. ROSS & SONS,
Chartered Accountants, Auditors.

Montreal, 3rd March, 1890.

In moving the adoption of the report, the President said that the duty devolving on him was a very pleasing one. The progress made could not fail to give satisfaction to all interested in the Company's welfare. The new business did not consist of that cheap insurance that fills a Company's books but not its coffers. It was all done on the safe old lines of Life and Endowment. As a result the Assets show a handsome increase. The most important branch of the business, the Investments, receives the special attention of the Directors. A unanimous vote of all Directors present is necessary to ensure the acceptance of any loan or security offered. Each is submitted to the searching enquiry of Mr. Cross as Solicitor, and is drawn up and completed by Mr. Cushing as Notary, and at the close of the year they are all examined in detail by a Committee of Directors who then verify the Auditor's final Schedule of Assets. During the currency of the year Messrs. P. S. Ross & Sons audit the books and vouchers in a most thorough manner and communicate with each individual borrower and then verify the amount at his debit. These gentlemen are not members of the office staff, performing their duty in a merely perfunctory manner, but are independent of the office—Chartered public Accountants—and their audit is thorough.

Mr. Macaulay spoke strongly of the evils accruing to the country from foreign competition. The benefit of Capital to a country or community is in the use of it. Canada through its government, private individuals and Loan Societies is all the year round in European money markets seeking their surplus funds to open up and develop public works and industries of every sort, and yet we are spending millions in cash every year abroad for life assurance that can be had with every possible advantage from our own Companies. The whole paid-up Capital of all our Canadian Banks is about sixty million dollars, and yet the Life premiums alone paid to Foreign Companies have exceeded that enormous sum. All the money and valuables brought yearly into the country by emigrants (to encourage which our Government pays large sums to Commissioners and others) are not equal to the sum paid for Foreign Assurance every year.

In this connection we have the phenomenon of the political leaders in the Dominion Parliament on both sides (Sir John A. Macdonald and Hon. Alex. McKenzie) loudly declaiming against the evils resulting from this needless withdrawl of Canadian money, yet neither party suggesting either in Parliament or out of it a remedy therefor. That it is an evil cannot be doubted when these gentlemen, both of whom are Presidents of Life Companies and therefore conversant with the facts, affirm it to be so over their signature in print. If an evil, as they say it is, and affecting the whole country, it must be a fit subject for legislation. And what are these gentlemen in Parliament for if it be not to devise legislative measures for the removal of such evils? We shall hope to see something done by them next Session.

Mr. T. B. Macaulay, the Secretary and Actuary, in his reply pointed out the progress which the Company has made. The yearly income is about twelve times as large as it was in 1872, and more than double what it was even as late as 1884. The increase in assets during the one year 1889 is as large as the total income of the year 1884, which had accumulated during the preceding fourteen years. But while the progress has been very marked as regards size, the improvement as regards profit earning power has been even more noticeable. The profits are distributed among the policy holders every five years, and the divisable surplus at the end of the two last quinquenniums was as follows:—

do do	1886,	(5 years)	89,452 97
do do	1889,	(3 years)	156,526.64

The profits accumulated during the last three years alone is thus greatly in excess of the corresponding amount earned during any previous term of five years. If the next two years are equally prosperous with the past three, the profits to Policy-holders will indeed be gratifying.

Many other gentlemen spoke, all of them in a strain of highest satisfaction.

The Board of Health.

The Board of Health met last night, Dr. Fife, chairman, presiding. Present were Messrs. Edg. Pearce, Wm. Lech, Wm. English, R. Shortly, Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, and Jas. G. Macdonald, Secretary. A communication was received from a Toronto gentleman wishing to introduce an odorless excavator here. The matter was referred to the Council. Mr. Pearce introduced two lengthly resolutions suggesting to the Council the necessity of putting in a system of sewerage and adopting a system of seweraging at once. The motions were carried and will be sent no the Council. Mr. J. H. Mulhern was given permission to construct a sewer from his residence to the river. The Board then adjourned, after discussing the slaughter house nuisance for a short time.

Stanley

"In Darkest Africa," is indispensible to every well informed man. The great question before the world is the civilization and commercial development of Africa. Just as the question three centuries ago was the civilization of America all previous ideas will be greatly changed when Stanley's recent discoveries are made known which have been kept secret and will not be revealed until his book comes out. Stanley has purposely withheld this information thus far as he must depend almost entirely upon the sale of the book to remunerate him for the hardships he has undergone. "In Darkest Africa" will be one of the most important books ever published; it heralds the dawn of a new epoch for central Africa the transition from exploration and discovery to civilization and development. Mr. John Watt is the regularly appointed agent and will call on you. 2d151

Decoration Day Fixed.

The two committees from Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges, I.O.O.F., who were appointed to arrange for the Oddfellows' decoration day, met last evening in Otonabee Lodge room. The question of fixing the date was the first question to be considered, and it was finally decided that Friday, 11th of July, would be observed as decoration day. Flowers should be in full bloom about this time and all persons will have ample time to beautify their lots at the cemetery before the date if they so desire. The Canton will be extended an invitation to turn out in full dress uniform and a full band will head the procession. A committee was also appointed to circulate a petition among the merchants asking Mayor Stevenson to declare a half holiday for the occasion, and as this is the custom in other places and has been here always, there is not the slightest doubt but that the necessary signatures will be readily secured. The arrangements will be made as complete as usual, and it is hoped that the friends of the Order who have flowers will contribute as liberally this year as in the past. The joint committees adjourned to meet on Wednesday night next at eight o'clock in Otonabee Lodge room.

THE CLUB HOUSE OPENED.

The Successful Picnic Assembly of the Chemong Lake Club—A Pleasant and Enjoyable Event.

On Friday afternoon, when the general public on George-st. were consulting the thermometer to find out if the temperature was gaining a colorific ascendancy and mopping their heated brows, a couple of hundred well dressed and pleasant mannered people were strolling about in the park at Chemong Lake. The breeze off the Ennismore shore was brisk and cooling and the light attire of the gentlemen and white dresses of the ladies were not more than ample for comfort. The couple of hundred cool and comfortable people were members and guests of the Chemong Lake Boating Club, out there by reason of special conveyance and invitation at the hands of the club. The fine club house had been completed and the occasion was the first picnic assembly of the club, a veritable house-warming. The description of the handsome and commodious club house has been given before, but now it looked its best in a pretty coat of olive color trimmed with red. On the lower floor were placed the rowing boats. The upper floor was a capital one for dancing and the room was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting.

At 6 o'clock tea was served in the open air under the trees in the park. The lady friends of members had provided an ample and tempting tea which was tastefully set out on tables. The company fell to and ate heartily. Many the compliments that were passed on the excellence of the spread which included substantials and delicacies.

During tea the Peterborough orchestra played a fine programme of music, and afterwards played while the company danced in the club house a programme of sixteen pieces.

All the available craft were put to use and many enjoyed a sail on the lake. Those who were not fortunate enough to do so contented themselves by a succession of trips on the ferry boat, a sort of Gannon's Narrows Ferry arrangement, and which works in every way satisfactory. At nine o'clock the orchestra struck up, partners were selected and led out and the pleasant diversion of dancing off the following programme commenced:—

1. Waltz
2. Waltz
3. Polka
4. Lancers
5. Waltz
6. Ripple
7. Eight Hand Reel
8. Waltz
9. Lancers
10. Waltz
11. Waltz
12. Polka
13. Waltz
14. Ripple
15. Waltz
16. Waltz

The company returned to town by the conveyances provided. During the evening a number drove out from town and enjoyed the assembly.

The club have reason to feel proud of their success as hosts. Of the gentlemen who were assiduous and on whom fell the serious work of entertaining may be mentioned the Committee of Management, Messrs. W. D. Parker, A. Elliott, J. W. Fairweather, A. V. R. Young, R. B. Rogers, Capt. Geo. Stevenson; President, G. W. Hatton; Vice-President, R. A. Morrow and Secretary, J. L. Lower.

The lady patronesses were Mrs. Weller Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mrs. G. W. Hatton and Mrs. Geo. Stevenson.

The Fire By-law.

Mr. Wm. Snowden was charged with a breach of the fire by-law at the Police Court this morning. Mr. Snowden has erected a wooden shed behind his hotel and hence the charge against him. He explained to the Magistrate that the shed was merely a temporary structure which he was using until he erected new brick stables, the contract for which had been already let. Mr. Snowden has rented his old stable on Simcoe-st, to the Lock Works Company for a moulding shop, and he will build new stables for his own use. The explanation was accepted and the case enlarged for one week.

A DESTRUCTIVE BLAZE.

BETWEEN THIRTY AND FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS GONE.

The Moulding and Pattern Shops of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Works Completely Destroyed—A Hard Fight Against a Fierce Fire—The Firemen Work Like Heroes and Save the Major Portion of the Works—The Works Will not be Shut Down for any Length of Time.

Last night Peterborough was visited by the most disastrous conflagration that the brigade has been called upon to fight for years, when a fire broke out in the moulding shop of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Works, and between thirty and forty thousand dollars worth of property went up in smoke. The fire, which originated in the moulding shop, was a fierce one, but the firemen and the men of the works fought the flames like heroes, and succeeded after a hard battle in confining the fire to the two departments of the works mentioned.

It was a few minutes before ten o'clock when Tommy Couch, the faithful engineer of the works, made his usual visit of inspection to the buildings before retiring for the night. When he discovered the fire it was near the cupalo in the moulding shop, where they "cast" every day. An alarm was at once sent to the Central office and the general alarm sent out over the new electric system. In an incredibly short time the hose waggon was out and away, but the fire had gained an awful start when the brigade arrived on the scene. The moulding shop, which was situated in the centre of the building on Reid-st., was a roaring furnace within and it was thought the entire works were

DOOMED TO BE SWEPT AWAY.

A short delay was caused in getting the water on the building at the beginning by the busting of eight lengths of hose. However, in a few minutes four powerful streams were playing on the fierce flames, which by this time had entered the pattern shop which extended northward along Reid-st. In this pattern shop was stored patterns which it will take a long time to replace and which will represent half the total loss by the fire. The fire in this shop, where so much dry material was stored, was so fierce that, as one of the brigade remarked, the whole Otonabee river would not have quenched it. Seeing that the moulding and pattern shops were doomed beyond all hope the firemen turned their efforts to save the remainder of the works. The boiler shop which adjoins the pattern shop at the north and stretches along the railway track, was the scene of a hard conflict while at the other end the men battled manfully and successfully to keep the fire out of the machine shop. Once in this machine shop where everything was saturated with oils the flames would have held high carnival and defied the efforts of men and water. Fortunately a fire wall separated the moulding and machine shops, or it is hardly probable that the latter would have been saved. The men of the works did noble service just at this point. Two good streams, one from the steam pump and the other from the force pump belonging to the works, were kept playing on the encroaching flames and stopped their progress into the machine shop. These two streams, with the four powerful ones of the brigade, made six in all, and an enormous volume of water was poured on the seething and threatening flames. For about an hour it was a hard fight for the mastery, but about half-past eleven and the tired and exhausted fire-fighters began to breathe easy and feel that victory was theirs.

THE FIRE WAS UNDER CONTROL

In the meantime the houses on Reid-st. opposite the destroyed shops were in imminent danger and the occupants removed their goods and chattels and will accordingly suffer some loss by careless handling. Chief Rutherford had his streams placed at the most effective points. Two were playing from Reid-st. while one held the boiler shop and the fourth was inside the quadrangle fighting from the rear. The way the firemen worked was a credit to themselves while it seemed that every person was willing to lend a hand. It was a fire that was not only disastrous to property, but threatened idleness to over two hundred men who are employed in the shops. The men themselves worked like Trojans and did most effective work with their streams from the shop pumps.

THE LOSS AND RE-BUILDING.

As stated, the loss is placed by Mr. Hamilton at between thirty and forty thousand dollars, upon which there is an insurance of only about seven thousand. The principal loss will be the patterns, which were valuable and will take a long time to replace. Some of them were carried out, but all were more or less damaged and rendered worthless.

The delay in again getting the works in running order will not be as long as might be supposed. The new moulding shop which stands about completed across the road on Reid-st. will be occupied by Wednesday or Thursday, while the machine shops will be able to start up again before that. No time was lost, as this morning the work of clearing away the ruins was commenced, and re-building operations will be started at once. The most serious delay will be caused by the loss of the patterns. The company had several large orders which, it is hoped, however, will be filled without great delay.

THE DANGERS OF FIREMEN.

It was a hard and dangerous fire to fight and it is a wonder that some serious accidents have not to be reported. As it is there are only a couple of minor accidents and some narrow escapes. Louis Squire, who was working with the Hamilton men defending the machine shop, received an ugly cut on the leg just above the knee, while another young man named Freddenburgh, had his hand and arm severely jammed. Fireman W. Metheral had a narrow escape on the roof of the machine shop. He walked into a skylight and would have fallen to almost sure death but fortunately caught himself and with the assistance of a fellow-worker was pulled from his perilous position. Prominent among the workers were many of the leading citizens, while Councillor Adam Hall, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, was most energetic in his efforts to assist the men of his department.

"Where would the buildings have been without the water works," was the general remark, and indeed well might it be asked. The four streams from the water works were magnificent ones, and no city can boast of better. A pressure of one hundred and twenty pounds was held at the pump house, and Superintendent Henderson can feel proud of the efficiency of his system.

An unusual crowd of people filled the streets and shed tops in the vicinity.

PRINCIPAL, STAFF AND PUPILS.

Mr. J. H. Long the Recipient of an Address and Presentation from the Teachers and Pupils of the Collegiate Institute.

A pleasant event in which regret was mingled took place at the Collegiate Institute yesterday afternoon just before the school closed for the long summer vacation. Principal Long, as is known, has accepted the charge of a Unitarian congregation in the Western States, and accordingly has placed his resignation of the Institute principalship in the hands of the Secretary of the Board of Education. Knowing this, the teachers and pupils of the Institute felt that they could not allow an old and much respected principal and benefactor to go from his labors among them without expressing in some tangible form their appreciation of his many acts of kindness and their sense of indebtedness for his faithful and efficient services.

Accordingly the pupils of the Institute and teachers of the staff assembled in one of the class rooms shortly after two o'clock and Mr. Long was notified that his presence was requested. Mrs. Long had also received a mysterious invitation to be present, but was unfortunately unable to comply. Mr. Fife, the mathematical master, made a few remarks of an introductory nature upon Mr. Long entering. Mr. Fife expressed his regret at Mr. Long's departure, and spoke in warm words of the excellent terms which had alwas existed between himself and the principal.

THE ADDRESS AS READ.

Miss Amy Halliday then stepped forward and read the following address:—

To Mr. J. H. Long, M.A., LL.B.

DEAR SIR,—Having learned that you have severed your connection with us, and that the time of your departure is at hand, we, the pupils of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, avail ourselves of this opportunity of conveying to you a slight expression of our high esteem for you as a faithful teacher, an estimable principal and a kind friend, and of our sincere regret at your removal from our midst. During your stay among us, which has extended over a period of six years, we have not failed to recognize that in your class work you have ever zealously endeavored to present the lessons in the most attractive and interesting form, and to impress them upon our minds in the most practical manner, and, moreover, they have always been accompanied by an energetic and kindly mien that has evoked our admiration. In our difficulties we have had your sympathy, in discovering truths your patience, in our failure, your encouragement. Our studies have been assigned, not as mere tasks, but as rich and appropriate intellectual food. Development has always been the desired end. Particularly do we wish to express our thanks to you for the deep interest you have taken in our physical culture, which has not only been of much real value to us, but has also afforded us a great deal of thorough enjoyment.

Not less have we appreciated the marked amiability, the natural geniality, the courtesy and many other gifted attainments you have shown in the capacity of principal and head of our school. As a slight token of our esteem for you, we would ask you to accept this clock, which we hope, as it tolls out the hours in the future, may recall to you many pleasant hours spent in Peterborough.

We shall watch with pleasure and interest the success which we trust will attend the labors of one so talented and industrious. We wish you, your wife and family a long and happy life, accompanied by heaven's richest blessing.

Signed on behalf of the teachers and scholars.

As Miss Halliday concluded reading, Miss Lillie Fitzgerald and Master John VanEvery unveiled the handsome clock which was standing on the desk.

Mr. Long was taken by surprise, but his reply was a feeling and appropriate one. He regretted that Mrs. Long was not present, and returned to the teachers and pupils his heartfelt thanks for their beautiful gift. He also referred to his departure from Peterborough, which he regretted, but said that he was pleased to know that he was leaving the Institute in the hands of an efficient and capable staff. He referred to the adjuncts which had been introduced into the Institute since he had come here, among which was music under the able leadership of Mr. Ketchum and the physical department under the equally able management of Sergt.-Major Bundie.

Messrs. Jeffries, Drope, Ross and Sergt.-Major Bundie each followed with a few remarks regretting Mr. Long's departure and wishing him success in his new labors in his western home.

The event was a most pleasing one, in that it evidenced the feeling of honor and love which extended between the pupils and their principal and Mr. Long must indeed have felt flattered.

A Baseball Match.

The park nine, of Toronto, will play a game with the local nine here in the P. A. A. A. grounds on Monday afternoon. This will be a good game.

A Popular Resort.

The Salvation Army will hold a picnic on Tuesday at the popular resort, Jubilee Point. The comfortable steamer Golden Eye will take the excursionists to the point and a most enjoyable time may be expected.

G. T. R. Excursions.

Special excursions on the Grand Trunk lines have been arranged for Tuesday. Tickets to Chemong Park station will be issued at 30 cents, to Chemong Park at 40 cents, to Lindsay, via Chemong and Bobcaygeon, at $1.75, to Port Hope at 96 cents.

Police Court Pointers.

Geo. Wilson the umbrella mender was arrested yesterday as a vagrant. He was allowed to go at the police court this morning upon promising to leave town. John Devoux was fined two dollars or ten days for drunkenness. He took the ten days.

Tuesday's Event.

The picnic on the grounds of St. Joseph's Hospital will be the event of Dominion Day. Good orchestral music, a good programme of sports and other attractions, besides a dinner that will be a dinner at 12 o'clock. Why go out of town with such an opportunity for a real good time at home?

A Most Fortunate Escape.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hatton had a most miraculous escape from serious injury when returning from the "at home" at Chemong Lake last night. The accident from which they escaped so fortunately, however, resulted in the killing of a valuable four-year-old colt which Mr. Hatton was driving. The accident happened on the Communication road, just at the turn behind Mrs. Jas. Dickson's. At this point the horse shied at the bright glare of the fire at the Hamilton works, and in its fright jumped with one bound into the ditch at the side of the road. The buggy was completely overturned and Mr. and Mrs. Hatton thrown out upon the side of the ditch. Mr. Hatton clung to the lines when the horse made another spring across the road, dragging the overturned buggy after it. The animal then turned up the side road and, it is supposed, struck its head against the fence. The buggy was left against the fence, while the horse made a couple of turns in the middle of the road, reared up on its hind legs and dropped dead. Mr. and Mrs. Hatton were driven into town by a gentleman who happened along, and they feel thankful that they escaped so fortunately, as neither was hurt to any extent.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we haven't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake-not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

'Tis An Old Saying

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

AN OFFER FROM TORONTO.

To Construct an Electric Street Railway System at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, June 27.—The City Street Railway Committee to-night received an offer from ex-Mayor Howland of Toronto to construct and operate an electric street railway by the Imperial Trust Association. The capital is to be $950,000. The main line is to be completed by June 15, 1891. The offer is dependent on securing water power and is to be completed with full terms by next Thursday.

A Narrow Escape.

BROCKVILLE, June 27.—George Burnham, a log-driver, had a memorable experience at Brownville, near Watertown. He was working near the dam, the boat being held by a rope wound round a snubbing post with the end in the hand of a fellow-workman. The rope slipped a little and allowed the boat to rest for a moment on the edge of the dam. The strain on the rope was too great and it broke, the boat and its occupant going down in the foaming waters. People who saw the accident watched for Burnham's body, but it did not come up, and after half an hour they gave him up. But all that time he was behind the sheet of water which fell over the dam, clinging to the logs for life. Finally he succeeded in attracting attention to his position and was rescued. He says that he went down to the bottom when he fell over the dam, and when he came up he was behind the falls and was lucky enough to catch hold of a log and save himself.

A Naval Hero's Grave.

The people of Maine are not especially noted for patriotic sentiment, although they generally hold their end up pretty well when there is any fighting to be done. The illustrious Gen. Henry Knox, of revolutionary fame, who first lifted Thomaston into prominence and scattered wealth there with a lavish hand, has not yet been honored with a monument, although he died about a century ago and the whole section is full of rich men and granite quarries.

Commodore Tucker's grave, in a neglected little cemetery in the Town of Bremen, Lincoln Co., is marked only by a weather-beaten slab of slate, and yet he ranked with such men as Paul Jones in the American Navy. In 1777 Commodore Tucker commanded the man-of-war Boston, which carried John Adams across the ocean on his mission to France and took several prizes on the trip. He took part in the defense of Charleston and at its surrender became a prisoner of the British. He was soon exchanged and took command of the United States steamship Thorn, which he made a veritable thorn in the side of the British Navy.

A Vagabond, but Good Friend.

A lady tells this story of two four-footed vagabonds, says The Examiner:

"One day at a railway station I met a wretched little white cur, and I said: 'Come on, and I will give you something to eat.' We went together into the dining room, and after he had eaten a good meal off he went in a hurry. 'He is not very grateful,' I said to my husband. But much to my surprise in a few minutes there was a little scratch at the door, and when it was opened in walked my small friend, accompanied by a more lean and miserable specimen than himself. He seemed to say: 'Allow me to introduce my friend, Mr. Black, and if you will provide him with as good a dinner as you have given me he will be much obliged. Needless to say, they both had a meal which doubtless they remember to this day; after which they trotted away together, wagging their tails, as happy and contented as dogs could be."

Death on the Rail.

PRESCOTT, June 27.—A shocking accident occurred in Gladstone Grand Trunk Railway gravel pit west of Prescott yesterday morning, resulting in the death of William Dalton by a train backing over him. He was standing alongside the track leaning on a shovel with his back towards the train and apparently did not notice the train backing up. He was struck, knocked down and 13 cars passed over him, completely severing the body in two. Deceased was a member of the A.O.U.W., Maitland, and leaves a wife, formerly a Miss Boyer near Maitland, and two children about two and four years of age. The body will be conveyed to Maitland this afternoon. Deceased was about 30 years

A RAILWAY TOILET.

Advice to the Traveller in the Sleeping Car.

There is no way in the little dusty plunging den of a sleeping car's dressing room to practice fine arts, with only the aid of two towels as big as handkerchiefs; still much may be accomplished by well-directed effort. To begin with, the night toilet must have been complete—that is to say, the face and hands bathed, the teeth and hair brushed in the dressing room. Then, standing inside the curtains, the garments removed one by one and folded. Let no woman attempt to sleep in any of the garments worn during the day. Poor rest and fatigue the next day is the result. Remove everything and slip on a night-gown, over which should be added in cold weather a gown—a perfectly plain one—of flannel, to avoid colds. Put the stockings and garters inside the shoes and hang them in the net. A travelling woman should always provide herself with one of the neat, stout little bags that hang from the belt, and have her hairpins, jewelry, purse gloves and veil, and small toilet articles put therein for the night and the bag put under the covers at her feet, where it is much safer than at the pillow. In this way there is no danger of small articles of attire being missing when needed in the morning.

In the morning try to have three-quarters of an hour for the toilet, and this may be secured by either rising before the other women or lying until they are through. Slip on stockings and shoes, the under-clothes, and the flannel wrapper, once all carrying the dress and underskirts across the arm and the satchel in the other hand. Spread the satchel wide and take out the sponge in its oil-silk bag, the soap and tooth brush in their travelling boxes, and unroll the linen that holds whisk-broom, brushes and comb, hair-pins and pins. Brush the dress and skirts well and hang them on the hooks, out of the way. Brush the hair smartly, to remove the dust, and arrange it compactly for the day, putting away in its place each toilet article as it is finished with. Lay the railroad towels on the floor, and one's own larger ones near at hand. From the wicker-covered cologne bottle pour a generous quantity into the water in the bowl and hanging all clothes out of the way stand on the towels and take a sponge bath from head to feet. The cologne absolutely cleanses away all railway dust and the freshness resulting from such a bath will make all the difference between a pleasant and an unpleasant day. Dress carefully and completely, and after laying everything away in the satchel, do not fail to wipe off the washstand and lay the wet towels out of the way so that one's successor may find the place orderly and clean.—Harper's Bazar.

A Perilous Quest.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 27.—The flames in Hill Farm mine burst from the mouth of the pit to-night and leaped 20 feet in the air. All efforts to extinguish them have proved fruitless. The buildings in the vicinity have been torn down to prevent the fire spreading. A hole has been drilled in the Hill Farm mine and at 11 o'clock to-night the inspectors started on their perilous search for the imprisoned miners. They have taken their lives in their hands and may never see daylight again. It is feared the mine is on fire all through or else filled with smoke.

The Dressed Beef Rate War.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The Chicago freight committee of the Central Traffic Association to-day voted to meet the rate of the Wabash on dressed beef to the seaboard, a reduction from 23 to 30 cents per 100 pounds, to take effect July 3. It was learned that the Chicago & Grand Trunk had also filed notice with the Inter-state Commerce Commission that a 30-cent rate would be adopted next Monday. It is believed this is as low as the dressed beef rate will go, as it is understood the Grand Trunk's contract with the shippers does not require it to go below that figure and insures it the patronage of the shippers whether the other roads make a lower rate or not.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

PERSPIRING MORTALS.

THE PRESENT WEATHER ALMOST WITHOUT A PARALLEL.

Prostrations and Deaths Reported at Many Places—The Special Bulletin Furnished by the Washington Signal Office.

CHICAGO, June 28.—There are no signs yet of the cold wave which has been anxiously looked for. The list of people stricken down yesterday numbers nearly 20. Two men died and three more in the hospital will not live. The others are out of danger.

Despatches from many points in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin tell of insufferable heat and many fatalities. At La Salle, Ill., yesterday the mercury reached 102° in the shade. Three men died from sunstroke. All outside work has been abandoned. At Galena three persons have died from the effects of the heat in the past two days and there is a great deal of sickness. Jacksonville reports 101° in the shade; two men fatally stricken and many horses dead. At Joliet the thermometer registered 103°—the highest point in 24 years. A dozen people were overcome and two of them have died. In Peoria 104° in the shade was reached. Two deaths occurred and several people were overcome. Danville, Freeport and many other points report numerous prostrations and a few fatalities. At Burlington, Ia., the intense heat has demoralized business. The mercury has gone as high as 106° in the shade. Reports from surrounding villages tell of a number of fatal cases of sunstroke. At Waterloo, Wis., yesterday the temperature was 104°. Four people died from the effects of the heat and many others are ill.

LOUISVILLE, June 28.—At 10 o'clock this morning the thermometer stood at 94°, but an hour later it had fallen two points. Thirteen persons were prostrated by the heat, but only one of them has proved fatal. Since the heated term began there have been eight fatalities.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 28.—The weather to-day is extremely hot, the temperature being higher than at any time during the summer, the thermometer marking 96 degrees at the signal office. A half dozen prostrations from the heat occurred during the morning, but none of them are expected to result fatally.

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 28.—The oppressive heat caused three deaths from sunstroke here to-day.

MILWAUKEE, June 28.—Eleven cases of sunstroke were reported to the police up to 2 o'clock. At that hour the mercury registered 96° and at 9 o'clock to-night the thermometer registers 89°.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 28.—At 11 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 96° in the shade.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 29.—Eight persons have died here from prostration caused by the excessive heat.

SPECIAL WEATHER BULLETIN.

The Maximum Temperature the Highest Ever Known For June.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The signal office furnishes the following special bulletin to the press: The present period of continued high temperature in the Middle Mississippi Valley is unprecedented for June. Beginning with Tuesday, June 20, when the temperature was 10° above the normal or usual height, it has gradually risen till the 26th and 27th to nearly 20° above. The maximum temperature for the past eight days has exceeded the highest ever known for an equal period in June, and has averaged as follows, viz.: Cairo and Springfield, Ill., 98°; Keokuk, 94° and St. Louis, 95°.

Sunstruck.

AMHERSTBURG, June 29.—Charles Graveline was at work on William Wilson's place at Arnaud-street, plowing corn at 10½ Tuesday morning, when he was sunstruck and fell senseless to the ground. Mr. Wilson happened to notice him and carried him into the house and sent for Dr. Hobley. It was half-an-hour before he recovered his senses. He was removed to his father's, January Graveline's, and will be confined to bed for some time.

Prize Fighters in Limbo.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Locked up in Police Headquarters here are Tommy Kelly, the Harlem "spider," and Bruny Murphy, the Englishman, the principals in a recent prize fight. With them are also Jack McAuliffe, Murphy's second, and William Oliver, who got up the fight. In the newspapers it was reported the fight had taken place at Centreport, L.I., but the police found out that it was fought in this city and arrested as many of those concerned in it as they could.

The Sunday School Convention.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 28.—In the International Sunday School Convention yesterday Mrs. Frances Willard, President of the National W.C.T.U., spoke on temperance lessons in the Sunday school. She was then admitted as a delegate to the convention, notwithstanding strong opposition from the Canadian delegation. Dr. Duncan of New York delivered an address on home classes. The evening session was devoted to discussion of Sunday school work, foreign missions and the Bible. At 10 p.m. the convention closed. The meeting is conceded by all the delegates to have been the greatest ever held by them.

Colorado Fires.

DENVER, Col., June 29.—The business portion of Morrison, 20 miles from here, was burned to-day. Loss $65,000.

A special from Boulder, Col., says the fires in the woods near there are under control. The burnt district extends over an area of 2500 acres. The only building destroyed was the shaft house of the Baltimore mine.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

A BITTER CAMPAIGN AT BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

London Liberals Espouse the Cause of the Police—Major Panitza Meets Death Bravely—The German Army Bill Passed—Renewal of the Dreibund.

LONDON, June 28.—The test of popular opinion as to compensation to publicans, which is the basis of Mr. Caine's campaign at Barrow-in-Furness, is attracting more attention than has been given to any single election in England in many years, and the contest for the seat promises to be waged with a degree of bitterness that will sever many life-long friendships. Cardinal Manning takes part in the campaign to the extent of writing a letter to Mr. Caine in which he bids that gentleman godspeed in the cause of which he has made himself the champion. The venerable prelate writes that he has always refused to take part in political matters, but he regards the present issue as a question of morals, and therefore feels called upon to express his views and declare his preferences. The action of the Barrow Liberals in putting up a candidate renders Mr. Caine's return extremely unlikely, while Lord Hartington's telegram advising the Unionists to support the Tory candidate is believed to be of sufficient weight to give the seat to the Conservatives.

The London Liberals have espoused the cause of the police in their attempt to obtain recognition of their demands, and will endeavor to have the matter discussed in Parliament with a view of putting an end to the uncertain state of affairs which now exists. It is now freely asserted by the police that Sir Edward Bradford has used all the influence he possesses with Home Secretary Matthews to the end of inducing that official to make no concessions to the force, and has represented himself as being thoroughly capable of dealing with the situation in a way that will prevent any similar trouble in the future.

FROM THE GAY CAPITAL.

Collapse of the Panama Canal Scheme—Russia Purchasing Rifles.

PARIS, June 28.—The French press admit that the negotiations between Lieut. Nyse, the representative of the liquidator of the Panama Canal Company and the Colombian Government for an extension of the Panama Canal concession and the resumption of work on the canal have collapsed, and that the hopes of the bondholders are ended.

The budget committee will submit its report to the Chamber of Deputies next week. If the Chamber discusses Finance Minister Rouvier's 1,000,000 franc loan before adjourning the session will be protracted until August. Otherwise, the Chamber will adjourn in July.

The municipal council have appropriated the sum of 106,000 francs for the celebration of the fall of the Bastile on July 14.

The members of the Brazilian legation say that the only concession made by their Government in return for recognition by France was that the negotiations regarding the frontier of French Guiana should be resumed where they were left off in 1860, and that if this proved unfeasible the question should be submitted to arbitration.

Russia has ordered to be manufactured in France a quantity of new infantry rifles modified from the French standard rifle and without the magazine feature.

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL.

Passed to a Third Reading—The War Estimates Chopped.

BERLIN, June 28.—The Reichstag passed the Army Bill to its third reading without an amendment. The minority consisted of the Freisinnige, Socialist and Volks parties and 18 members of the Centre party.

The House next passed to its second reading the Budget Committee's report striking out the credit demanded by the Government for raising the pay of officers below the rank of colonel. The supplementary estimates, amounting to 73,600,000 marks, which are mainly intended for military purposes, were referred to the Budget Committee.

The renewal of the Dreibund until 1895 has been the subject of negotiations between Signor Crispi, the Italian Premier, and Count Kalnoky, the Austro-Hungarian Prime Minister. The new treaty, though unsigned, is effectively assured.

The Porte has sent private special envoys to Berlin, Vienna and London on a mission relating to the demands for Bulgarian independence, which are concurrent with Russia's insistence upon the immediate payment of 30,000,000 francs war indemnity.

The chief of the Czar's private police has been dismissed for failing to detect a recent Nihilist plot. A barrel half full of dynamite was found in the winecellar of the Gatschina Palace, but no clue as to how it came there has been discovered.

PANITZA'S EXECUTION.

He Meets Death Bravely—21 Bullets Pierce His Body.

SOFIA, June 29.—The sentence of death pronounced upon Major Panitza for conspiring to overthrow the Government was carried out to-day. On arriving at the place of execution he made a confession to the chaplain. With a firm step he walked to the post alone and saluted the military officers present. He was then bound to a tree. Just before the order to fire was given the condemned man cried out in a loud voice. "Long live Bulgaria!" The execution took place at 10 o'clock in the morning at the camp near the city. All the military officers attached to the camp were present. Four regiments of infantry with a battery of artillery formed the hollow square in which Panitza met his end. He blindfolded himself, stood erect in plain clothes and acted courageously throughout. Twenty-one bullets pierced his body. The remains were given to his widow.

Wealth Lost in the Sea.

LONDON, June 29.—The Dutch steamer Prins Frederick, which was sunk by collision with the British steamer Markess, had 1,000,000 guilders on board. All the passengers' and seamen's effects were lost.

Challenged to a Duel.

PARIS, June 29.—A. Forquier, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, has challenged the editor of The Matin to fight a duel.

The Chronicle's New Cabinet.

LONDON, June 30.—The Chronicle says the recasting of the Ministry is not a distant event. It thinks the raising to the peerage of W. H. Smith, Government leader in the House, is not unlikely. It says that Sir John Gorst will probably replace Mr. Balfour as Chief Secretary for Ireland; that Lord Hartington is likely to become Prime Minister; that Lord Salisbury will be Secretary for Foreign Affairs; that Sir Henry James will be Home Secretary, and that perhaps Lord Randolph Churchill will receive a portfolio.

Right Rev. Mgr. McManis, member of the papal household, vicar-general of the Rochester diocese, and one of the oldest and best known Catholic prelates in the United States, died in Geneva Saturday afternoon.

O'CONNOR-STANSBURY.

The Australian's Unsportsmanlike Conduct—Advice to the Canadian.

LONDON, June 29.—No details of any kind have been published here about the Stansbury-O'Connor match in Australia, but from the fact that the race has to be rowed again to-morrow there is little doubt that the Canadian did not receive fair play.

All the newspapers here comment severely upon the unsportsmanlike manner in which O'Connor has been treated in Australia, and some go so far as to advise him to have nothing more to do with the colonials.

Toronto Topics.

TORONTO, June 30.—Preparations for the Carnival are now complete, the official program is out and the city is swarming with visitors from all over Canada and from the States.

Great interest was taken in the Shamrock-Toronto lacrosse match Saturday, over 4,000 persons paying admission to the ground. It was a one-sided affair, Toronto winning 5 of the 6 games.

Two more victims of the bay and Don yesterday. The Don keeps up its ghastly record about as well as its more pretentious neighbor. As the season advances the list of those who meet watery graves grows bulky Here is Sunday's record:

Last evening Robert Finlay, a small boy, residing with his parents in Pape-avenue, fell into the Don near the Gerrard-street bridge, while playing on the crib work. The body was recovered.

The second victim was a youth of 16 named Charles Lyons, living with his parents at 108 Strachan-avenue. Deceased and two companions named Gallagher and Mundey were rowing in the vicinity of the sand bar when the boat was overturned and all three were precipitated into the water. Mundey and Gallagher managed to save themselves by swimming, but Lyons, being unable to swim, speedily sank.

The body was recovered about 11 o'clock and taken to the home of the parents.

E. Matheson, an amateur photographer, was out canoeing on Saturday on the Bay when the canoe upset and he was thrown into the water. Two young men picked him up when he was quite exhausted and conveyed him to his rooms in Clendinning's boathouse.

A man who refused to give his name fell into the Bay at Queen's Wharf yesterday morning and was rescued by a deckhand from the Mayflower.

Cable Flashes.

Mr. Parnell was 44 years old Saturday, and in honor of the occasion a grand banquet was given at the National Liberal Club. Covers were laid for 70 guests. Justin McCarthy presided.

The Czar and family have gone on their annual trip to the Finnish Archipelago.

Some Russian papers urge the formation of a treaty of alliance with France as a counterpoise to the alleged defensive alliance between England and Germany. Other papers prefer the present tacit alliance between Russia and France. The latter sentiment prevails in official circles.

Powers Knocked Nagle Out.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 28.—A skin glove fight to a finish, Queensberry rules, between Jack Powers and Dick Nagle, came off this morning at Vanceboro. Both men were in the pink of condition. Powers forced the fighting, and in two minutes and 20 seconds knocked Nagle out with a tremendous right-hander on the jaw.

New U.S. Consul at Windsor.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The President sent to the Senate this afternoon the name of Charles D. Joslyn of Detroit, as consul to Windsor to succeed John Devlin.

DOMINION NEWS NOTES.

A THIRD AND SUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

The First Sod Turned on the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway—Ex-Reeve Jardine's Assailant Eludes Capture—A Fatal Accident.

HAMILTON, June 28.—John Mullin, who stabbed ex-Reeve Jardine of Saltfleet, has not been captured. Jardine's condition is hopeful.

About 2000 persons witnessed the ceremony of turning the first sod on the line of the T., H. & B. at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Ex-Mayors Doran and Roach, Mayor McLellan and others made speeches.

Mrs. Smith, who was sent to the hospital three weeks ago suffering from a self-inflicted razor wound, jumped from an upper window Friday night and received injuries which proved fatal. She was about 65 years old and this was her third attempt at suicide.

A block fell on the head of William Irvine, foreman for Engine Builder Morrison, Friday, producing a blood clot on the brain from which he died to-day.

CONTRABAND CIGARETS.

Three Welland Merchants Fined—An Inland Revenue Fraud.

WELLAND, June 29.—Three of Welland's merchants were summoned before Police Magistrate Hellems on Saturday afternoon to answer to charges of infringement of the inland revenue laws, and their experience was one they will probably remember for some time, as it affected their bank accounts to a considerable extent, two of them being fined $50 each and the third $100.

It seems that Mr. John McClive of the Customs Department of St. Catharines, acting upon instructions from the Inland Revenue Department, made a trip through St. Catharines and Thorold and discovered quantities of cigarets which were being offered for sale without having the Canadian excise stamp upon the packages. He had been informed these goods had been purchased from a pedlar, and presuming the same pedlar had probably disposed of some of his merchandise in Welland, he came here on June 12 and investigated, calling upon Messrs. F. Macoomb, A. O. Ross and D. D. Hoover, and at each place discovering some of the contraband articles. He explained to each their liability, but nothing further was heard of the matter until the summonses were served on Saturday. Messrs. Ross and Hoover were charged with having the goods in their possession and Mr. Macoomb with having them in his possession and offering them for sale. After hearing the evidence of Mr. McClive the three pleaded guilty to the charge, the first two being fined $50 each and the latter $100.

Funeral of Lieut.-Gov. McLelan.

HALIFAX, June 28.—The funeral of the late Lieutenant-Governor McLelan took place this afternoon. The remains were taken to the railway station and thence to Great Village, Colchester County. There was a large turnout of citizens. The streets were lined with troops of the West Riding Regiment and sailors from the warships. There were guards of honor from the local militia regiments at Government House and the railway station, and minute guns were fired from the citadel and the flagship Bellerophon during the progress of the procession.

The name of M. B. Daly, ex-M.P., is generally mentioned as the new Governor of Nova Scotia.

Burglary at Varna.

GODERICH, June 29.—Last week a daring burglary was perpetrated at Joseph Morrow's store, Varna. The entrance was made by bursting the front door. The safe was drilled and blown open. Fortunately Mr. Morrow had no money in the safe at the time nor any registered letters. The only money taken was a few dollars in American silver and some small change. There were also four silver watches and one revolver missing. The safe is badly wrecked. No clue.

The Canonto Firebug on Trial.

KINGSTON, June 29.—The prisoner Green was charged before Judge Price yesterday with having feloniously set fire to the mill of Warren Fairman, in the township of Canonto, on June 9. The prisoner elected to be tried by the judge without a jury, and pleaded "not guilty." His trial was fixed for July 4. Mr. McIntyre, Q.C., appeared and stated that he represented Mr. Warren Fairman, the owner of the mill, against whom certain unfounded allegations had been circulated by the prisoner Green. Mr. McIntyre observed that his client, Mr. Fairman, would voluntarily surrender himself at any time he was required, and stand his trial on any charge that might be laid against him.

A Prize Fight on Stag Island.

SARNIA, June 30.—A prize fight took place on Stag Island last week, between Angus King of Port Huron and a colored man by the name of Brown of St. Clair. The party, about 100 in number, including Sarnia sports, started from St. Clair in a tug about midnight, and crossed to the island, where a ring had been staked out. The men fought 15 rounds. Two-ounce gloves were used. For the first 14 rounds King had the advantage of his opponent, but on time being called for the 15th round the colored man threw away his gloves and before he could be stopped had given King a severe pounding. Owing to this action on the part of Brown the referee decided King the victor. Brown is hostler for Mark Hopkins.

Two Skeletons Unearthed.

BRANTFORD, June 29.—Workmen engaged in excavating for a new bank barn on Arch. McDonald's premises on the Mt. Pleasant road found two skeletons. They were evidently the remains of a mother and her 2 or 3-year-old daughter, and had been buried a great many years. There were no evidences of coffin or box, only the bones remained.

The End of a Drunken Spree.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 29.—William Haighley, alias William Hoyle, yesterday afternoon murdered his aunt, Mrs. J. Dorsey, at the house of Thomas Hoyle in Common-street by kicking her in the abdomen. The murderer escaped. Mrs. Dorsey was 45 years old and the murder was the result of a drunken spree.

Manitoba's Crop Outlook.

WINNIPEG, June 29.—The Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin on the condition of crops and live stock, 276 correspondents reporting simultaneously June 15 that the weather was admirable for seeding. Growth was slow early in the season but very rapid later on. The average fall of rain over the entire province has been 1.79 inches and only a few places are regarded as needing any. The acreage under crop is 1,082,000, an increase of 180,000 over last year. The condition of grain, root and hay crops in almost every district is reported excellent, and prospects of bountiful yields were never more promising. Livestock is also in a flourishing condition.

CANADA.

TWENTY-THREE years is a short time in the history of a nation, but in the twenty-three years since confederation was established and the Dominion of Canada came into existence much progress has been made. In the earlier years the Dominion was enlarged by the admission of the smaller Provinces and the acquisition of territory, and in the later years much progress has been made in providing facilities for commerce at home and for extending the trade of the country abroad.

Canada has an area of 3,610,000 square miles and is larger than the United States. At the time of confederation and for some time after it was thought that a very large portion of the country was unsuitable for cultivation or for settlement, but the opening up of the Northwest struck a strong blow at that idea and it has been further dispelled by the results of recent investigations, such as the facts made known regarding the great Mackenzie region. Exclusive of the area covered by the great lakes, Canada has an area of over 3,470,000 square miles, or about 40 per cent. of the area of the whole British Empire. Some comparisons may assist even Canadians to a better comprehension of the vastness of their country. England, Wales and Scotland together form an area of 88,000 square miles. Forty such areas could be cut out of Canada. New South Wales contains 309,175 square miles and is larger than France, Continental Italy and Sicily. Yet Canada would make eleven countries the size of New South Wales. British India contains a vast population, but there is room for three British Indias in Canada and enough would be left over to make a Queensland and a Victoria. The German Empire could be carved out of this Dominion and fifteen more countries of the same size.

This great area of country is favored with many great natural advantages, such as fertile soil, rich minerals, forests, natural drainage and good climate. And in addition to all this Canada has a moral, temperate and law-abiding people, who are are also possessed of those sterner qualities that are valuable in times of peace and in times of trouble, though happily the Dominion has had a peaceful existence.

Large as Canada is, it should have no room for pessimists. By being true to themselves Canadians can build up a country that will hold a proud place in the world and in which a vast number of happy people may contentedly live.

THE COMMODORE'S OUTING.

The Complimentary Excursion Down the River a Delightful Event.

Commodore Calcutt's complimentary excursion down the river, as briefly referred to on Saturday, was a most delightful outing, and those who were favored with invitations and were unable to accept can well regret it. Mr. Calcutt gave the excursion as a sort of recognition to those gentlemen, the directors of the Farmers' Institutes of this district, who aided so successfully in making the recent union picnic the magnificent success it was. All those who received invitations were not able to attend, but a very pleasant party of gentlemen from town and the surrounding country boarded the Golden Eye and left the wharf here at about eight o'clock. The day was a beautiful one and the beauties of the sail down the Otonabee were enjoyed to the fullest by those on board. The several ports along the route were visited and Idyl Wild was reached shortly after noon. Here several representatives of the other Institutes joined the party.

Dinner was served in the dining hall, and the spread set before the guests of the Commodore was a magnificent one and was thoroughly appreciated by the party whose appetites had been well wetted by the fresh breeze of the water. The hospitality of Mr. Calcutt never moves by halves and on this occasion his efforts were duly acknowledged.

At the close of the repast Mr. John McClelland, of town, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Calcutt for his generous and handsome hospitality. Mr. John Burnham, Q.C., seconded the resolution, which was enthusiastically carried and appropriately acknowledged by the liberal Commodore.

Short speeches were also made by Messrs. Dawson Kennedy, President of the West Peterborough Institute; Jas. Moore, Reeve of Asphodel; Wm. Collins, J. R. Emory, John Moloney and M. Quinn, barrister, of Toronto. The speeches were all pronounced in their expressions of Mr. Calcutt's kindness, generosity and hospitality.

The sail home was equally as enjoyable and delightful as that of the morning and the party arrived home delighted with the outing. Wishes for long life and prosperity were extended to the large-hearted Commodore who had entertained so handsomely.

HYMENTAL.

Another Matrimonial Event.

Another interesting matrimonial event was duly solemnized this morning at the residence of Mr. John McClelland on Rubidge-st., when his daughter, Ada Hellen, was united in wedlock to Mr. Alfred Thomas, C.E., of Sherbrooke, Que. The wedding was a quiet one, only the relatives and a few friends of the contracting parties witnessing the ceremony. Rev. E. F. Torrance tied the nuptial knot which united the happy couple in the bonds of matrimony. Miss Lucy McClelland, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Chas. McClelland, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. After the ceremony the party sat down to an elaborate wedding dinner. The happy couple left on the 11.45 train on the C. P. R. for Montreal where they will sojourn for a short time prior to going to Sherbrooke to take up their residence. The bride is an estimable young lady with many friends in Peterborough, while the groom is a former resident of the town and also enjoys the friendship of an extended circle. All these friends of the happy couple will unite in wishes for unbroken joy and long continued happiness and will extend their warmest congratulations. The REVIEW would also wish them every happiness and prosperity.

Beech-Mein.

A happy matrimonial event took place in Ashburnham on Thursday last, when Mr. Robert Beech was united in marriage to Miss Mary Mein. The wedding was quiet. Rev. E. F. Torrance officiated, while Miss Maggie Mein, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. John Miller supported the groom. The happy couple have many friends in Peterborough who will unite in wishing them all happiness and prosperity.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The Annual Children's Day at St. Paul's Church—Sermon By Rev. E. F. Torrance.

Yesterday was children's day at St. Paul's Church and special services appropriate for the young folks of the Sabbath School were held in the morning and afternoon. In the morning the children of the junior classes occupied the front seats in the church and listened very attentively to the discourse delivered by the pastor, Rev. E. F. Torrance. The hymn's selected for the service were familiar ones and the children were thus enabled to join in the singing. The sermon, which had for its theme obedience, was couched in suitable language for the young people, and contained many lessons and much that should be remembered by the children. His text was;—

"And He went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them."—Luke II. 5.

In the afternoon interesting service was held in the church. Singing, responsive reading and an address by Rev. E. F. Torrance made up a very pleasing service in which the children entered heartily. The infant class sang a number of hymns in a very creditable manner, and each of the children in this class left a pretty little bouquet on the pulpit table before leaving.

OTHER CHURCHES.

Mr. H. A. Strike occupied the pulpit in the George-st. church yesterday morning and delivered a very able discourse to a good congregation. Mr. Strike gives promise of considerable pulpit ability and will always be listened to in Peterborough with pleasure.

George-st's. New Pastor.

The Collingwood Bulletin says:—This week the Rev. J. H. Locke and family with the exception of Mr. Geo. Locke, go to Peterborough where Mr. Locke has been appointed pastor of the principal Methodist Church. During their three years residence here they have made a wide circle of warm friends both within their own church and among others. During Mr. Locke's pastorate the church has prospered in every department and the Methodists of Peterborough may congratulate themselves on getting a minister whose energy, tact and ability will not allow any of their interests to languish.

A SOLDIER BAYONETED.

Private Bradburn Stabbed at the Kingston Camp—His Assailant Arrested.

KINGSTON, June 29.—The soldiers in camp were very much excited last week over a stabbing affair which occurred there on Wednesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock. The most reliable statement is as follows: Private I. Inglis of No. 3 Company, 45th Battalion, who was sleeping in his tent at the time named, was annoyed now and again by several comrades outside. He went out and remonstrated with them, but they appeared to be in for deviltry, and no sooner had he laid down than they began to tease him, as is often done in camp. His gun, with bayonet attached, was standing near him. Seizing this he thrust the bayonet through the tent in order, he says, to frighten the men away, but the weapon passed through the muscle of the left arm of Private Bradburn of the same company, and into his side about an inch deep and slightly above the heart. The wound bled freely and soon a crowd collected and an alarm was raised. On Inglis being arrested he said he had no intention whatever of doing an injury. All he wished to do was to put a stop to the annoyance. He is a very respectable young man, sober and of a retiring disposition. Bradburn is a farmer, and belongs to Janetville. On being examined by the physicians, it was found that he was not seriously injured, but that he would be unable to work for about six weeks. He and Inglis are good friends. The latter will be handed over to the civil authorities. The affair is most unfortunate, because this is the quietest camp that has ever been held in Kingston. Not a single fracas has occurred, and the best of feeling exists between the citizens and the soldiers.

Drowned.

BROCKVILLE, June 29.—This afternoon about 5½ o'clock Miss Mary McMann and William Casselman were drowned in the river by the upsetting of a boat. There were four in the boat, but two were rescued.

DELAWARE, June 29.—William Johnstone, aged 20, was drowned while bathing in the river this morning.

A Letter From Parnell.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 28.—This letter from Mr. Parnell has been received by President Fitzgerald of the Irish National League of America:

With reference to the proposal to hold a convention of the National League of America at Baltimore, I beg to say that in conjunction with my leading colleagues I have given the subject my anxious consideration and we are unanimously of opinion that no useful result would follow such a gathering at present. We think, therefore, that you would exercise a sound discretion if you would let the matter rest for the present.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The delightful thirst-quenching "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice is an admirable and wholesome hot weather beverage.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

What thou Writest, Write Right.
Write we know is written right,
When we see it written write;
But when we see it written wright,
We know it is not written right:
For write, to have it written right
Must not be written right or wright,
Nor yet should it be written rite;
But write, for so 'tis written right.

We know whereof we write: and claim to be right, when we write regarding the great benefits derived from the use of Lactated Food. Physicians who are progressive and who cling to no rite of old, write us, that we are quite right in all we write and say about Lactated Food. A careful analysis of this food has shown that it contains vastly more of the elements of nutrition, and building-up properties than any other known food.

It is the best at all times for invalids; cures dyspepsia, nourishes the aged, increases flow of milk in weak mothers, makes teething easy, gives natural sleep, cures Cholera Infantum; and lastly it is the physician's favorite, and in every respect a "Perfect Food."

Mothers, your great desire is to see your babies look strong and vigorous; you wish them to rest well and be happy; you wish to have peace, joy and contentment in your homes, if this be your desire, use this celebrated Lactated Food, no other kind of food will produce these results.

The Ladies Annual Meeting.

The Ladies Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary met yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Griffin, President, presided. The Secretary, Miss Davidson, submitted her report, showing the amount of work accomplished during the year. Mrs. Braden, Treasurer, reported that the receipts had amounted to $187.15. The General Secretary thanked the Ladies Auxiliary for the work they had so generously and gratefully done for the Association in furnishing the rooms and providing for the receptions. He said they were indispensible to the Association, personally they had been a great help to him, for God had blest their deeds of kindness in reaching the young men of our town. Mention was made of the loss sustained in the removal by death of Mrs. Alexander Smith, who took an active interest in the work of the Auxiliary as far as her health would allow her to do so. The following were elected officers for this year:—President, Mrs. H. S. Griffin, re-elected; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Fairbairn, re-elected; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Wm. J. Green; Secretary, Miss Moore; Treasurer, Mrs. Braden, re-elected. An Executive Committee was appointed to canvass each church for honorary and active members for the Auxiliary. The ladies are going to help raise sufficient funds to clear off an old debt that has so long been an incubus on the Association. We ask hearty co-operation in the work. The year just closed has been one of joyful service, good seed has been sown and, praise God, we have seen results.

OUR NATIONAL HOLIDAY.

Prospects for a Great Day for Peterborough—Large Number of Excursions to Choose From—The St. Peter's Picnic—The Cricket Match.

To-morrow will be Canada's National Birthday and Canadians will accordingly celebrate the day with their usual loyalty and enthusiasm. Business will be suspended in town and the noise and buzz of our many busy manufactories will be hushed. What avenues for pleasure will be open for the holiday observers will be of interest and accordingly the REVIEW publishes a list of the local events.

THE VOLUNTEERS' TRIP.

The first event on the programme will be the departure of the 57th Battalion for Toronto. The men will parade at the drill shed at six o'clock in the morning and will march to the station where they will entrain for the Queen city. The programme for the volunteers in the city has already been outlined. The men will form up at the City Hall and march in the grand parade to the Exhibition grounds, where they will be quartered during their two days' stay. An advance guard under the Quarter-Master will go to Toronto on Monday night to make arrangements for the reception of the volunteers.

THE ST. JOSEPH'S PICNIC.

The principal local event and attraction for those who remain at home will be the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's cathedral. This picnic is to be held at the beautiful grove at St. Joseph's in Ashburnham, and the committee who have the arrangements in charge are sparing no efforts to make it a success and provide for the entertainment of all who spend the day at the grove. A CRICKET MATCH.

Another most interesting attraction at home will be the cricket match between the local eleven and the Torontos. This will be a good exhibition of the gentleman's game and no doubt will attract a large crowd of spectators.

WITH THE SALVATIONISTS.

The Salvation Army is going to have a red hot, hallelujah day of it. Large posters are out announcing a grand excursion to Jubilee Point where they intend going in for a great rebellion, not among the Indians but against the government of the devil. Capt. Cunningham and Ensign Logan will be assisted by officers and soldiers from Omemee, Millbrook, Lindsay, Lakefield and Port Hope. A big day is expected and all who go are promised a good time. The excursion leave on the steamer Golden Eye and palace barge at 7.30 in the morning Return tickets are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children under 14 years.

THE G. T. R. EXCURSIONS.

The Grand Trunk railway has also issued posters for a number of attractive excursions at cheap rates. There will be one to Stony Lake, the train leaving the station here at 8.45. The fare for this trip is 85 cents. Then there will be another excursion to Chemong Station Park. This train leaves at 8.33 a. m., and the fare will be 30 cents. Still another excursion train will leave at 8.30 a. m. for Chemong Park. This trip will cost 40 cents. Two excursion trains will also run to Port Hope, where a special demonstration is being held. One of these trains leaves at 6.40 a. m. and the other at 11.55. The last cheap trip in this list is an all-round excursion by rail and water via Chemong, Bobcaygeon and Lindsay. The fare for this trip is $1.75. All tickets are good to return the following day. These cheap rates will take a good crowd out of town.

AT IDYL WILD.

Commodore Calcutt is also holding a monster picnic at Idyl Wild and excursion that will run from all points along the lake. Those who intend taking in this beautiful resort will have to leave Peterborough at three o'clock on Monday afternoon and remain at Idyl Wild over night. This will be a delightful outing.

ON THE C. P. R.

The Canadian Pacific railway advertises reduced rates for the day. Return tickets will be sold on Tuesday, July 1, 1890, good to return up to and including July 2nd, at single fare, and on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 28th, 29th, 30th and July 1st, good to return up to and including Thursday, July 3rd, at one and one-third.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

The Hardware Store of Muckleston & Co. Entered and a Quantity of Goods Stolen.

Late on Saturday night or early Sunday morning burglars paid a visit to the hardware establishment of Muckleston & Co., on Hunter-st., and succeeded in carrying away with them a quantity of selected goods.

Constable McGinty, accompanied by Night-watchman Gordon, was making his round of the stores as is customary before the police go off duty in the morning, when he discovered the back door of Muckleston & Co's store open. Thinking that it was negligence on the part of some one, the junior clerk was sent for, but upon his arrival it was found that burglars had been in the store. An easy entrance had been gained through the back window, which was supposed to be guarded from nocturnal visitors by iron bars. These bars, however, only entered the sides of the window about three quarters of an inch, so that little effort was required to bend them sufficiently to allow them to slip out. Having removed one of these bars, the window which was not fastened was slipped up and the burglars were within. They evidently were after a selected stock as they only carried away a comparatively small quantity. The goods taken were three bulldog revolvers, two Defender revolvers, one pair of hair clippers, one dozen H. B. hollow ground razors, one-third of a dozen Rollin's razors, one dozen Roger's pocket knives, half a dozen S. B. pocket knives, a razor hone and $2.87 in change which was found in the till.

The job was evidently the work of tramps. A dark lantern, two coal chisels, an old file and a dirty pocket handkerchief were left behind by the visitors. No trace of the perpetrators of the robbery has been gained, although Chief Roszel and Constables Adams and Stewart scoured the surrounding county yesterday in search of suspicious characters.

Mr. Loucks, the managing clerk of Muckleston & Co., had left for Kingston Saturday night, but returned this morning.

A Visit to Belleville

The Belleville Intelligencer says that Dr. R. W. Bell, of Peterborough, Grand Master of the I.O.O.F., paid an official visit Friday evening, to Belleville Lodge No. 81, and gave a lengthy and interesting address on the general working of the Order.

Three Months in Gaol.

George Wilson, the umbrella mender who was given a chance by the magistrate to shake the dust of Peterborough from off his shoes on Saturday, appeared at the Police Court again this morning charged with vagrancy. George was a character and pleaded most eloquently and pathetically for mercy, but the magistrate sent him up for three months at hard labor.

If you are going to Toronto to-morrow take the Grand Trunk Railway with choice of two routes going and returning. It is delightfully cool and pleasant travelling along the shores of Lake Ontario in the Forney seat car attached to the train leaving at 6 40 a. m. Later train via Lindsay leaves at 8.38 a. m. with parlor car attached. Return fare $3 40 either way. 1d152

A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exodus to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. Given a nice camping spot, good water handy, a shady spot to lounge, good canoeing water, plenty to eat and good company the time can be put in fairly easy. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawley Bros., George-st. d146

—The local cricket eleven which will play with the Toronto University will be composed of Messrs. Stratton, Rutherford, Ray, Turnbull, Hamilton, Attewell, Burnham, Gower, Scott and two others.

—The Park Nine baseball club arrived here this morning and are playing the local nine at the P.A.A.A. grounds this afternoon.

—The Smith line road to Chemong Park is in a rather bad condition consequent on work being done along the line. Those driving to and from the park find the back road much the better thoroughfare.

—Mr. Fred E. Bell has in course of erection at Chemong Park a roomy and comfortable cottage. Mr. T. Rutherford is also building a summer home at the park. Several lots have been sold within the last few days and new houses will be put up at once.

—It is proposed to hold in the new market house at an early day a promenade concert, just as a sort of opening. The large market room will afford an excellent auditorium. By the way, it would be an excellent place for the Horticultural Exhibition.

Be sure and attend the sale of the Stethem property, this Monday evening, June 30, on the grounds, Sherbrooke street. Sale begins at 6.30 p. m. Choice property, must be sold. Grand chance to secure splendid lots. 1d152

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

'Tis An Old Saying
that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

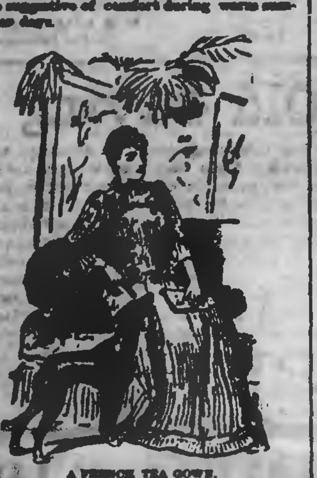
THINGS TO WEAR.

NEW AND CORRECT STYLES FOR THE SUMMER SEASON.

A French Tea Gown That Combines Grace, Style and Comfort—It is of Peach Colored China Crepe and Silk.

The Parisian made tea gown here illustrated can hardly fail to please, it is so graceful, so suggestive of comfort during warm summer days.



A FRENCH TEA GOWN.

The princess blouse and loose sleeves are in peach colored China crepe. The jacket, with under part of sleeves and scarf belt, is in peach colored silk, figured with fern leaves in their natural tints. There is a frilling of [illegible] round the neck, the jacket and sleeves. The bow at the throat is in plaited muslin. The overskirt of China crepe, which is accordion plaited, is made over soft peach hued silk. This gown would also be exceedingly attractive made in soft silk in the new mixtures, with passementerie.

The New Parasols.

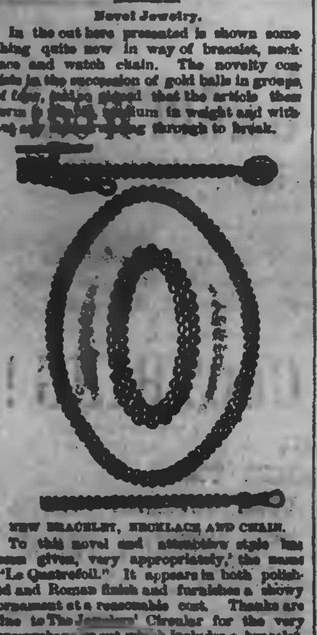
Many of the new parasols are in reality things of beauty. "Rajah" is the name given to one style. This is composed of [illegible] Indian gauze of soft silk, with a double frill caught up at distances around the edge and a rosette clustering around the ferrule. In white it is delightfully cool and dainty, but it is to be seen in all colors. "Letty Lind" comes next, and is formed of three flounces of accordion plaited silk, with a small one reversed, and clustered round the ferrule. In red the parasol resembles a large poppy, in black is could be used for mourning, and in a new shade of copper ore [illegible] it is lovely. Another variety has the foundation of soft silk, with a [illegible] flounce of gauze round the edge, and frills of the same up each rib, [illegible] clustering at the top. In plain and fancy [illegible] silk the parasols are made to order to match any costume, and so are the [illegible] in fancy Arabian crepe, soft tinted flowered muslin and patterned cottons; these latter plain or edged with a frill.

English Styles.

Dresses have not grown much wider, spite of the fact that drapery has been revived. Limp, skimpy looking skirts are vanishing. The new dresses are not allowed to cling. The hem is very much stiffened, so that the dress stands out well around. Small steels are also being introduced into the backs of dresses. They are worn about half way down the skirt, and are too small to assert themselves. The straight, deep lines that [illegible] have ceased to please. Even the independent tailor-made dresses have altered their tone considerably lately. They are being draped about the hips, and in straight lines from waist to hem.—Pall Mall Budget.

Novel Jewelry.

In the cut here presented is shown something quite new in way of bracelet, necklace and watch chain. The novelty consists in the succession of gold balls in groups of four, [illegible] that the article [illegible] form [illegible] medium in weight and without [illegible] through to break.



NEW BRACELET, NECKLACE AND CHAIN.

To this novel and attractive style has been given, very appropriately, the name "Le Quatrefoil." It appears in both polished and Roman finish and furnishes a showy ornament at a reasonable cost. Thanks are due to The Jewelers' Circular for the very comprehensive cut which includes a bracelet, neck chain, [illegible] chain and a lady's queen chain.

Fashion Echoes.

Gauze fans, hand painted and most delicately mounted, are seasonable luxuries.

Silk bags [illegible] with satin are sold with some of the [illegible]. These bags are almost as long as the [illegible], and hang from the arm by silk cords.

With other heart shaped jewelry are watches.

A queen chain has as a pendant gold basket filled with eggs, the latter being simulated by pearls.

Silk petticoats are richly trimmed with lace. One of gray and white brocade, [illegible] with long tabs at the hem falling over lace flounces and terra cotta silk, seemed to have flounces round the feet swathed in lace.

The seamless bodice hooks under the left [illegible] is finished at the waist with a shaped band covered with embroidery. There are large leg-of-mutton sleeves.

A Step too Far.

She could figure to a fraction the exact esthetic action of each prismatic shading, down to infinite detail,
Her taste was [illegible] and 'twas everywhere reputed that in color combinations she was never known to fail.
She'd expend upon a ribbon all the energy of Gideon, and to her a simple threading would transform the face of day.
In the art of woman's dressing she was great beyond expressing; but she brought her [illegible] a [illegible] and he fainted dead away.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

Some Charming Schemes and New Ideas in Table Decoration.

A charming scheme of table decoration was lately seen at an artist's supper table. The table was covered with delicate green silk, slightly draped with filmy, silver threaded muslin, through which the green shimmered faintly. Thrown carelessly hither and thither were small rustic logs of all shapes and sizes, covered with lichen, moss and maidenhair ferns. The lights were all softened with green and yellow shades. The effect was delicate and fairy like.

A golden scheme of color is carried out with long fronds of maidenhair ferns arranged in fancy baskets of gilded wire of different sizes. A long curved spray of flowers spread at either end of the table may be composed of the large single daffodils and small flowered [illegible]. Yellow sweetmeats in little gold dishes and yellow shades on the candles complete the decoration.

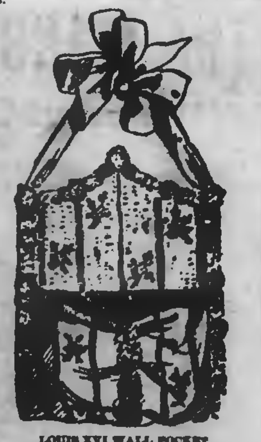
A new idea is to place low baskets in gold rush or wire full of flowers, around them to lay pretty green leaves, the fruit resting on a dish; the larger leaves near the centre and the smaller ones near the edge of the table.

Fruit Salads.

Fruit salads may be made of berries, oranges, bananas, pineapples, melons, etc. Apples, also peaches and pears, are served as salads with French dressing, after being pared and cut in slices. Three tablespoonfuls of oil, one of vinegar, one small teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper, mix well together and pour over the sliced fruit arranged in a dish. This may be used with oranges, adding a little of the chopped rind to the dressing. A sweet syrup may be used instead, made of white sugar dissolved in water and boiled till thick; to this add a flavoring of sherry wine or brandy. For an acid dressing for sweet oranges, bananas, etc., into a thick syrup of sugar stir the juice of one lemon, add chopped orange peel or rub the yellow rind on lumps of sugar till they are well flavored; then dissolve them in the syrup. The plain syrup, made of sugar and flavored with orange and a very little lemon juice, is excellent for banana salad.

An Attractive Wall Pocket.

Cut a stout sheet of cardboard, for the back 16 inches by 13 inches, and shape the top in a vandyke; have a similar piece in coarse cretonne, allowing one-fourth inch for turnings, and gum it at the back. For the front cut a wide band of pompadour silk or chintz, which will be placed at the top and joined to another one in old pink satin.



LOUIS XVI WALL POCKET.

The loose part of the pocket is gathered at the lower edge, and is caught up in a few plaits and crossed with a double row of the same gimp, fringe or ruching, which frames the wide pocket. Over the cretonne behind is gummed a breadth of cream satin. It is hung with two satin ribbons tied in a butterfly bow.

Points About Brooms.

A broom corn dealer says: "A few years ago all broom corn was so bleached with sulphur fumes as to make it so white that it nearly destroyed its pliability, and it sometimes broke to pieces much more rapidly than it should have done. Now the broom makers have gone to the other extreme. They dye their broom corn so green that housekeepers are afraid to break off one of the splints to test a cake with their teeth for fear they may be poisoned with Paris green." "Why do they do so?" he was asked. "Well, said he, "I don't know exactly, but I suppose styles must change. Then, again, the housekeepers may not have found out that the white brooms didn't wear so well, and caused a demand for green ones." "But are they really dyed with Paris green?" "I can't say as to that. It doesn't look like it to me, but I'd rather be on the safe side and not eat any of it."

A Delicate Cake.

Two cupfuls of sugar, three of flour, three-fourths of sweet milk, one-half butter, and white of six eggs; one and one half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, flavored with the grated rind of a fresh lemon; beat all the ingredients well and add the whites of the eggs the last thing.

Preserved Raw Pineapple.

Pineapple is a fruit that is apt to grow hard in cooking, and is therefore not always a successful preserve. Housekeepers will be interested in a method given by Miss Parloa in Good Housekeeping for making a rich and delicious preserve of raw pineapple:

"Pare the pineapple and take out all the eyes. Now, with a very sharp knife, cut the pineapple in thin slices, cutting down the sides until the heart is reached. This is to be discarded. Weigh the sliced pineapple and put it in a large earthen dish. Add to it as many pounds of granulated sugar as there are pounds of pineapple, and stir well. Pack this mixture in Mason pint or quart jars; put on the cover and tighten them, then put away in the preserve closet. The pineapple will keep for a year or more and be perfectly tender and fine flavored.

French Paper Lamp Shades.

The way of making these is to use twenty sheets of tissue paper, ten dark and ten light or white. Each sheet must be passed through the hand over and over again until it is quite crinkled. This needs a certain amount of adroitness or the edges are torn. When satisfactorily crinkled the ten sheets are formed in a circle, ten light and ten dark, the light under the dark above. They must then be plaited at the top, and tied round to the wire frame with tape, so that there is a thick ruche at the top. This is the most troublesome part, as, unless the paper falls evenly all around, the whole effect is spoiled.

A Curious Phenomenon.

A curious connection between colors and the auditory sense has been noted by Dr. Albertini. He has observed that persons suffering with color blindness to certain lines have a corresponding deafness to certain musical notes. Special instances are given. For example, a person not having the sensation of red cannot distinguish the note sol, a person blind to green cannot recognize re, nor can the notes be produced by the voice.

SOME FIGHTING IN MEXICO

A BLOODY BATTLE SOUTH OF THE RIO GRANDE.

There's No Revolution in Mexico, of Course—But There is Reason for the Government Troops to do Some Shooting—The Greasers Defeated by the Filibusters.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 30.—A despatch from San Antonio says news reached here yesterday of a bloody battle on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande last Thursday. Col. Nicano Valdez started from his headquarters at San Juan Sabinas with two troops of cavalry to intercept a band of filibusters who were making for the interior of Mexico from the Rio Grande. He came upon the bandits in ambush a few miles off Polafix. In the fight Col. Valdez's troops were routed after seven men had been killed and a number wounded. The filibusters escaped to this side of the river without loss.

LAREDO, Texas June 30.—Ex-Mayor Isidor Salinas, of New Laredo, was brought into the city yesterday and jailed, charged with being one of the leaders in the recent revolutionary forces in Mexico.

THE TORONTO CARNIVAL.

A Big Success so far as Numbers are Concerned—Crowds in Attendance.

TORONTO, July 2.—The carnival, so far as numbers are concerned, has been a great success. The Jarvis-street promenade concert and the various items of yesterday's program were carried out to the satisfaction of all participants. The procession was the largest ever seen in Toronto. The city is still crowded with visitors and the remaining events will doubtless be witnessed by large crowds. At least 75,000 persons visited the exhibition grounds yesterday.

Carelessness yesterday resulted in the death of John Smith, a deck hand on the steamer Eurydice, which plies between Toronto and Lake Island Park, Wilson, N.Y., about 5¼, when six miles out from Wilson. Smith was aft on deck and was running along the railing on the side of the boat when he fell overboard. Life belts and cork jackets were at once thrown to him, and one of the life belts was thrown almost over his head but he was unable to grasp it and sank, a pair of heavy boots which he had on apparently carrying him down. Captain Jackson ordered a boat lowered, but no trace of Smith could be found other than his hat, which was picked up on the water. Deceased was about 21 years of age, single, and boarded at the Armory Hotel, West Market-street. He was lately out from England, had no relatives in this country and was one of the best of the crew.

OLD MAN V. MARRIAGE BROKER.

The Latter's Claim Held to Be Invalid—An Attorney Censured.

LANSING, Mich., June 30.—The most scathing opinion ever handed down by the Supreme Court was rendered in the case of Outcliff v. June. The case involved a claim for service as a matrimonial broker, Randy June suing John Outcliff, an aged farmer of Manchester, Washtenaw County, for assistance rendered in enabling the latter to obtain a young wife. Outcliff was coerced by J. Reed Crowell, June's attorney, into paying $240 to settle the claim, but afterwards brought suit against both to recover the amount. The case has been in litigation three years.

The court says the claim was not a valid one, as it would be against public policy to allow marriage brokerage. It charges June and his attorney with conspiracy and fraud, and says both should have a term in State's prison. The court asks the county court to disbar Crowell.

A Long Time Building.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—The Roman Catholic cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, the corner-stone of which was laid Sept. 6, 1846, was consecrated to-day with most imposing ceremony. Cardinal Gibbons preached the sermon and was listened to with almost breathless attention by a congregation of 4000 persons.

Murderous Burglars at Port Robinson.

PORT ROBINSON, June 30.—Burglars made an attempt to enter the general store of C. B. Bennett at 1¼ this morning. Postmaster and Custom Officer James McCoppen caught them at their work and was beaten into insensibility. His recovery is doubtful.

The U. S. Public Debt.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—It is estimated at the Treasury Department that there has been a decrease of about $20,000,000 in the public debt since June 1. This makes the total decrease for the fiscal year ended to day $87,800,000, as against $114,000,000 for the previous fiscal year.

O'Connor Coming Home.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., July 1.—O'Connor the oarsman, admits that he was fairly beaten by Stansbury yesterday. He declines to make further matches in Australia.

Cut Off His Foot.

LONDON, Ont., June 30.—H. White of Arkwright met with rather a nasty accident the other day at Cape Chin. Mr. White and other men were in the bush chopping. His axe caught in a limb above, which resulted in the axe coming down on his foot instead of on the log. His foot was almost severed midway between the toes and the ankle.

An Unlucky Street.

WINDSOR, June 30.—The house owned and occupied by Mrs. Adams, in Pelissier-street, was struck by lightning during the storm early Saturday morning. No damage was done except a few shingles torn off. This makes the fifth house in Pelissier-street that has been struck by lightning during the past few years.

THE M'KINLEY BILL.

ONE REASON FOR SECRETARY BLAINE'S OPPOSITION.

European Powers Accept the Measure as a Declaration of Commercial War—A Retaliatory Scheme Proposed by Germany and Agreed to by Other Nations.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Herald's Washington special says:

One week ago a desperate attempt was made by some of Mr. Blaine's alleged friends to break the force of what the Secretary of State had said about the McKinley Tariff Bill. That statement has not only been fully corroborated in every detail, but since the surprise is over those in the confidence of Mr. Blaine who know the secret of his bold act only wonder that he kept silent so long. During the last week the Secretary has personally assured members of the Diplomatic Corps that his views were not misstated. To the ministers from the Latin-American States, nearly all of whom were delegates to the Pan-American Conference, he has emphasized in the most positive manner his deep chagrin at the way Republican leaders in Congress have treated the recommendations of the Administration.

Months ago Mr. Blaine intended to speak about what he feared would be the drift of the tariff policy in Congress. He took the quieter course of endeavoring by confidential intercourse with gentlemen of the Ways and Means Committee and others to engraft upon the general tariff bill a special provision for substantial free trade with Latin-America through the agency of reciprocity. He failed for the two reasons that free sugar had been chosen as a bait to the western farmer and because free wool, in any amount, under any circumstances, was a horrifying nightmare to protectionists of the practical kind. Mr. McKinley, as an Ohio representative, was unnerved by the prospect of unlimited cheap wool from the Argentine Republic and Uruguay. But why should Mr. Blaine so suddenly and energetically blaze against the Republican tariff policy after giving up his original purpose to speak out to the country about it, and failing in his private efforts to save the commerce of our own continent from its mischief?

They answer that he has cable and other dispatches from our ministers in Europe that the Continent Powers accept the McKinley Bill as a declaration of commercial war and are preparing in concert a scheme of retaliation. At this moment the State Department is burdened with dispatches from ministers and consuls, supplemented by semi-official advices, all tending to show how deeply the McKinley Bill has stirred the Cabinets of Europe and how little disposed they are to admit any American product to their own ports that can possibly be prohibited by retaliatory duties or regulations.

It is not alone the pending Tariff bill that has aroused this feeling, but the general commercial policy of the party now in power in Washington. The Customs Administration bill came first, pretending to be a measure to simplify the business of transportation and to suppress the evils of undervaluation, but really meant to obstruct importation and to raise rates of duty by indirection. Then came the McKinley bill with duties intentionally prohibitory instead of simply protective, as heretofore.

The "proposition to take concerted action" originated with Germany and has been virtually accepted by France, Austria-Hungary, Italy and Spain, and possibly other powers of less moment to American commerce. In these countries the American export trade will be struck at partly through prohibitory duties on cattle and swine under the plea of stopping pleuro-pneumonia, while canned goods, flour and other staple articles are to be subjected to higher duties.

Inasmuch as the farmers are put forward by the prohibitory tariff men as the especial wards and beneficiaries of the McKinley bill, Mr. Blaine thinks they will be interested in learning of the concert of action by which American cattle, hogs, breadstuffs, and provisions are to be excluded from European Continental markets, with England a good second, though not a formal party to the contract.

THE NORDCAP'S LAST VOYAGE.

A Chapter of Disasters—Burned to the Water's Edge—Seamen Killed.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The bark Athena, which arrived last night from Windsor, N.S., has among her crew two seamen, Henry William and George Walker, who were part of the crew of the Norwegian bark Nordcap which was burned at sea June 9. The Nordcap left Laguna, West Indies, May 6, with a cargo of cotton and cedarwood. She was commanded by Capt. Nielsen and had a crew of 19 men. On June 7, when off the Grand Banks on her way to London and Christiansand, she encountered rough weather. A fierce gale knocked her about during that day and night. A high sea boarded the vessel, smashed the wheelhouse and swept one of the crew overboard. On the morning of June 9, Second Officer Orloff discovered fire in the cotton in the hold. The crew were aroused and fought heroically against the spread of the fire. Flames shot upward, enveloped the rigging and mast. The yardarm of the mizzen mast fell, and killed two of the crew. The flames rapidly spread and the captain, realizing the hopelessness of longer fighting against them, gave orders to clear away the boats. Just then the mizzen mast fell and knocked three of the crew into the sea. The others finally got away in the boats and were adrift for four days, when they were finally picked up by the Norwegian bark Agatha from London.

MILLIONS OF GOLD IN SIGHT.

An Officer's Story of a Fabulous Discovery of the Metal.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Col. [illegible], of the American Army, reached San Diego Wednesday from Juarez, Lower California, and tells of a remarkable strike in the mountains near Juarez. He found gold ore so rich that with a hand-mortar he got six pounds of gold. He declares that it is not a pocket, but there are millions in sight.

Failure of a Pennsylvania Bank.

FREEPORT, Pa., June 30.—The Tarentum Bank, the only financial institution in Tarentum, failed to-day. The bank was an individual concern run by John Kennedy, jr., & Sons. The liabilities are not thought to be large, as deposits have not exceeded $40,000 for a long while. Mr. Kennedy is wealthy and it is not thought creditors will lose much.

Drowned.

PORT ELGIN, June 30.—Miss Sybilla Latimer of Mildmay was drowned while bathing in the Saugeen River this afternoon. She was about 18 years old.

Hope Abandoned.

DUNBAR, July 1.—Fifteen and a half days have elapsed since the flash of gas set fire to the Hill Farm mine. Hope and work was abandoned this evening at 5 o'clock.

ANOTHER COWLES CASE.

Emma May Tremane in the Hands of Her Profligate Father.

LONDON, June 30.—A case has recently come to light in this city which has in it many of the features of the celebrated Cowles abduction sensation. Some three years ago Thomas Tremane ran away from his wife, a daughter of John Egelt, market gardener, who lives a short distance out of the city, leaving with her two daughters, the eldest being 12 years of age. When Tremane ran away he is said to have taken with him a niece of Thomas Garside of South London. The woman was a member of the Salvation Army here, and an intimacy sprung up between her and Tremane, which resulted in the pair leaving their respective lawful partners and fleeing to the "land of the free." The Garside woman took along with her her three children, and they are supposed to have settled in Cleveland.

Mrs. Tremane is a highly respectable and delicate woman, and at the time felt keenly the disgrace which had fallen upon her, but struggled manfully to maintain her helpless children, and did not think it worth her time to follow the worthless fellow who had promised to "love and cherish" her. But Tremane grew lonesome without his children and succeeded, so it is said, in abducting them. The unfortunate mother was in no condition to give chase, and where they were was a mystery. Mrs. Egelt heard from a friend in Cleveland a short time ago that Tremane and his paramour were living in Cleveland and that the eldest child was being shamefully abused.

She immediately wrote to the chief of police there asking for information. The child mentioned is said to have been caught several times by the Cleveland police running away, and was always returned to the miserable place which was called her home, no attention being paid her plea that she wanted to see her "mamma in London," Tremane swearing that the woman was his wife. Mrs. Tremane has since moved to Hamilton, where she is working at the tailoring business. Mr. and Mrs. Egelt have interested themselves in the case and will use every means to have the children returned to their mother.

The girl was found by Policeman Potts of the Cleveland force, on Friday afternoon, in the House of the Good Shepherd, where she had been placed by Humane Agent Parmalee. The old folks here have been notified to this effect.

QUEBEC CABINET CHANGES.

Mr. Charles Langelier, ex-M.P., Sworn as President of the Council.

QUEBEC, June 30.—Mr. Charles Langelier was to-day duly sworn President of the Council in place of Hon. H. Mercier, who assumes the duties of Commissioner of Agriculture pro tem., vice Col. Rhodes, who has retired to private life. Mr. Langelier resigned his seat for Montmorency in the Commons with the understanding that if successful he should have a portfolio. It is generally thought that this arrangement is not decisive and that another will take place later on.

Others sworn in office to-day by Lieutenant-Governor Angers were Hon. H. Mercier, Duhamel, Garneau, Shehyn, Marchand and Gustave Grenier as clerk of the Executive Council.

Found Dead.

ST. CATHARINES, July 1.—About 5 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Read, superintendent of the County Industrial Home, came down stairs and, as is his usual custom, opened the front door of the institution, when he discovered one of the inmates lying on the grass by the side of the building dead. On examination the body was found to be that of a man named Chester Hoskins, a native of Niagara, and aged 60 years. The deceased has been in the home for the past three years, and was entered on the books as being afflicted with heart disease, from which he suffered severely, having at times fainting spells, during which it was thought he would expire. Dr. Olfie, the medical attendant of the home, who was at once notified, is of the opinion that as the night was oppressive the old man got out of bed and opened the window, during which act he took a fit and fell outwards, thus causing his death.

Look Out for These Thieves.

ABERFOYLE, July 1.—Some two weeks ago Mr. Malcolm McBeath, living immediately below the village of Aberfoyle, had a number of articles stolen from his barn, near the Brock-road. These comprised nearly all the machinery belonging to a threshing. The thieves also unscrewed the teeth out of a cultivator, also the metal of a plow, all of which disappeared in one night. Two men must have been employed about the business, as one man alone could not handle the cylinder of the thresher. No trace has as yet been found of the thieves, but it is hoped that they may be found out. Farmers and those living in the country should keep a sharp look-out, as there are a number of characters about who lay their hands on all sorts of iron work, which it seems they can easily dispose of either at London or in Hamilton.

Fire at Pembroke.

PEMBROKE, June 30.—A fire broke out here last night about 12 o'clock, destroying four dwelling houses. Insurance about $6100.

THE NEW HALIFAX CABLE

THE OLD SEAPORT TOWN AND THE BERMUDAS JOINED.

Successful Completion of the Westmeath's Labors—The Rate Between the Two Countries to be 75 Cents Per Word—A Reported Transfer of Troops.

HALIFAX, July 1.—The steamer Westmeath, which left here last Tuesday afternoon to lay the cable to Bermuda, reached her destination last evening. The officials here received a message over the cable at exactly 5 o'clock saying that the steamer had reached Bermuda, having successfully laid the cable the entire distance and buoyed the end. The shore end having already been laid, the connection was made to-day. The line is now complete and Halifax and Bermuda united.

It is reported that the troopship Orontes will leave England about September 14, with the Eighth (King's Royal) regiment for Bermuda to relieve the Seventeenth (Leicester) regiment, and will bring the latter to Halifax, the West Riding regiment embarking on her the first part of October for Kingston (Jamaica) and Barbadoes, where they are to be stationed. The troopship Tyne is now due with drafts for various corps on this garrison and for several ships in port and also for the Seventeenth at Bermuda.

Bermuda, now connected with the rest of the world by telegraph cable, is a group of islands lying 660 miles east by south from Cape Hatteras, in latitude 32 deg. 20 min. north, and in longitude 64 deg. 50 min. west. These islands lie to the southward of a coral reef about 24 miles in length, extending northeast to southwest, by 12 miles in breadth.

There are two towns, St. George's and Hamilton, the latter being the centre of the colonial Government. The whole population numbers about 15,000, of whom about one-third only are whites. The soil is very fertile, and a large business is done with New York in vegetables and flowers. It is one of Great Britain's naval stations, having large docking facilities and ample plant for the repair of modern war ships.

The Westmeath sailed from London on May 28 with the cable and arrived here on June 7. She has been fitted up for the work by the contractors, who have utilized the tanks and cable machinery taken out of the Roddam, after that vessel had completed the laying of the French West Indian cables.

The Westmeath, after landing the stores for the equipment of the Bermuda station, landed the shore end there and paid out a short distance seawards. The cable was then cut and buoyed and the Westmeath proceeded to Halifax, taking soundings on the way. A line of soundings on this route was made by the Challenger and deep water with level bottom was encountered, so that the work of the Westmeath was chiefly confined to making an accurate survey of the ground at each end of the line; that is, from Bermuda into deep water, and approaching Halifax, from deep water to the edge of the Labrador bank.

At Halifax, where the Westmeath arrived June 16, the northern shore end was landed, and the ship started paying out toward Bermuda on the 24th inst. It was originally intended to proceed the other way, laying from Bermuda up to Halifax, but owing to the prevalence of fog at this time of year it was decided that there would be risk of delay.

The cable consists of five sizes—the Bermuda shore end, about six inches in diameter; the Halifax shore end, two "intermediates," A and B, and the deep sea section.

The cable will be opened for general commercial business from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., and the greatest amount of traffic is anticipated between New York and Bermuda. Arrangements are now being negotiated with all American, Canadian and European lines for a general interchange of business.

The line is to be extended to Nassau and Jamaica, and thence to Progreso and Vera Cruz. Also a line will be laid from Bermuda to the Azores, and thence to Lisbon, Portugal.

The rate per word between Bermuda and Halifax will be 75 cents.

BRITISH CAPITAL IN CANADA.

A Syndicate's Effort to Capture Cotton Mills Comes to Grief.

MONTREAL, July 1.—The negotiations between the English syndicate and the Canadian Cotton Association for the purchase of all the Canadian mills have fallen through, owing, it is said, to the excessive figures asked by the Canadians as well as to the fact that English capitalists seem to have been grievously disappointed at the result of many of their American ventures, and are consequently extremely cautious in making new investments.

Germany Has Not Moved.

BERLIN, July 1.—Semi-official denial is made here of the statement published yesterday that the powers of continental Europe, headed by Germany, had agreed to establish mutual repressive tariff against American imports if the McKinley Bill becomes a law. Germany has taken no steps to counteract any possible injury to her American trade by the enactment of the McKinley Bill.

A Big Fire.

LONDON, July 1.—A despatch from Port Louis, Guadaloupe, says that the principal buildings in that place have been destroyed by fire. The loss is $800,000. Many of the inhabitants lost all their effects and are destitute.

Salisbury is Tired.

LONDON, July 1.—The Cabinet to-day decided to drop the Tithes Bill, pass minor bills and supply votes and then adjourn Parliament.

A Parkhill Man Killed in Michigan.

PARKHILL, June 30.—Postmaster John Noble has received this letter:

FOWLER, Mich., Clinton County, June 28.—Postmaster Parkhill, Ont., Dear sir,—There was a man killed on the railroad track here May 28, and he had some some papers on his person which gave his name as John B. Nicols of Parkhill, Ont. If you know of him or his people an early reply will be thankfully received. Respectfully yours,

A. L. CLUNEY, Clerk of the Inquest.

Gen. Middleton Resigns.

OTTAWA, June 30.—There is a prospective vacancy in the command of the Canadian militia. Gen. Middleton has resigned at last, the official document having been handed in to the Minister of Militia on Saturday. The General felt, in view of the resolution of censure passed by the Canadian Parliament, that no other course was open to him. The resignation will be accepted. It will be remembered that about the middle of last week Gen. Middleton denied positively that he had any intention of resigning.

DOMINION DAY DOINGS.

THE RAIN INTERFERES WITH THE JOYOUS PICNICKERS.

The St. Peter's Picnic at St. Joseph's—List of the Prize Winners—The Attractions to Other Points—Cricket Match.

Canada's birthday was a quiet day in town, the streets being well deserted. The heavy rain which fell in frequent showers during the day kept even those indoors who were left at home, while it also was an effective preventative of many a little private "picnic" down the river.

Early in the morning the town was awakened by the martial sound of the bugle calling the men of the 57th to parade for their trip to Toronto. It was a little before 7 o'clock when the battalion marched down George-st. and entrained for Toronto. The officers and men never looked better. Next was the Salvation Army picnic to Jubilee Point. The Golden Eye and palace barge was crowded with happy pleasure seekers, and soldiers, and officers from this district. A grand sail down was enjoyed but the rain in the afternoon interfered somewhat with the picnickers. However, a good time was enjoyed and home was reached without accident. The Grand Trunk excursions to Chemong, Stony Lake and other points were well patronized, a good number going to Port Hope to take in the celebration there.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S.

In town the centre of all attraction and for all pleasure seekers was the beautiful grove at St. Joseph's, where the annual picnic of St. Peter's congregation was held. The arrangements were of the most complete character. Tables, spotlessly white and tastefully arranged, stretched along in all directions beneath the shade of the spreading trees, while booths, where charming young ladies tempted the passing picnicker with ice cream and refreshments, dotted the grounds in close proximity to the tables. The rain which fell after noon was indeed unfortunate to the picnic, as the tables were drenched. There was an immense gathering of people present, and the doors of the new hospital had to be thrown open and the crowd allowed to take shelter in the building. Later on in the afternoon the rain again stopped the sports and games, and drove the crowd under shelter. As it was, the attendance was very large, and with fine weather it is safe to say the gathering would have been a monster. Among the clergy present were His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, Rev. Fathers Rudkins, Coffey and Dube, of town; Rev. Father Lynch, Port Hope; Rev. Father O'Connell, Maniamore; Rev. Father Kelly, of Douro; Rev. Father Conway, of Norwood. Despite the rain a good time was spent by the young people, and the dancing platform was well patronized all day. The refreshments that were served were excellent. The following ladies presided at the tables:

NO. ONE WARD TABLE.—Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Laplante, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Cahill, Mrs. Timbers, Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Hayes. Ice cream stand—Misses Rudkins, O'Brien and Cahill.

The quoit match was postponed on account of the rain, and will be contested some day this week.

A concert and social will be given in the grove to-morrow evening, at which the band will be present.

THE CRICKET MATCH.

The cricket match played on the P. A. A. A. grounds between the local eleven and the Trinity University team resulted in a victory for the home men by 19 runs in the first innings, rain preventing the second innings being finished. The report and score of the game is unavoidably held over from this issue.

STANLEY'S FORMER LOVE.

Fickle Woman Caused Him to Plunge Into African Wilds.

Miss Tennant is not the first person to whom Henry M. Stanley has been under engagement of marriage, writes F. G. De Fontaine in the Chicago Times. His early sweetheart now lives in New York, and his attachment for her was highly romantic.

It was after he had found Livingstone, and the intrepid traveller was on a lecturing tour in the United States. He received great attention and was greeted with marked distinction in many American homes.

There was one residence in New York where he was especially welcome, and where he was never weary of visiting. It was the home of a lovely girl, at that time probably 23 years of age, finely educated, highly accomplished, witty, self-reliant, something more in fact, than a mere woman of the world, and withal very wealthy.

Stanley fell in love with her "at first sight," and the attachment appeared to be mutual. Day after day he spent an hour or two in her presence, and his strong nature was gradually absorbed in the one grand passion of a man's life.

It was at this juncture in his affairs that the writer on a bright Sunday afternoon found Stanley in his elegant apartments in a Broadway hotel ruminating over some of the possibilities that always seemed to be uppermost in his active mind.

"Come in—a royal welcome," was his cheery greeting as I opened the door, "for I'm nursing my pet scheme and want help." After some preliminary talk Stanley proceeded: "You know, my dear fellow, I'm engaged to be married. It is the only love I ever had, and my fiancee is a woman of whom any man might well be proud."

It would be a breach of confidence to repeat all of his extravagant language in this connection, for it was the language of a man who was in dead earnest and is sacred, but he said incidentally:

"Before I marry and settle down a great undertaking remains to be accomplished. If successful I expect to be the possessor of an amount of wealth that will enable me to gratify every whim. True, the lady of my choice is in her own right an heiress, but it is my intention during the next two years to lay the foundation of a fortune that will greatly exceed her own, and thus permit me to enjoy an honorable man's independence.

"Ah, my boy," he exclaimed, "then I shall realize the dream of my life. When I shall have tapped the reservoirs of Tanganyika and Nyanza, money will begin to flow in streams that will satisfy any reasonable desire, and then—and then—" he said musingly, "I'm going to build a magnificent home on the Hudson and rest for the remainder of my life. I can see the house now—broad halls, a great gallery of rare pictures, rooms of oriental grandeur, grounds with lakes and wooded paths; an African tembe built especially for the boys, like that in which I lived so long with Livingstone, where my newspaper friends can come when they want to work or play, and all the surroundings of luxury and taste that the experience of a traveller can suggest."

It was a very beautiful castle in the air and peopled with very beautiful fairies of the explorer's imagination.

Agreeably to appointment, we went on the following day to Wall st., where Stanley was introduced to a number of capitalists and influential gentlemen, from whom he received much attention, but that was all. Stanley told his story and mapped out his plans. The millionaires listened respectfully, and then declined his proposition "with thanks." Not one of them seemed to appreciate the value of the opportunity thus presented, and since so amply demonstrated.

Disappointed and chagrined Stanley returned to his hotel, remarking that he would no longer look for co-operation in America, for in London and Brussels he could easily obtain 10 times the amount needed for his enterprise.

A few weeks later he bade farewell to his American friends, and sailed for England. Now comes the climax of his romance. Six months after his departure the girl to whom he was betrothed married another.

From the moment he heard of this event Stanley became a changed man. The sequel shows that the United States lost its charm for him from that hour, and that he was only too glad to bury himself once more in African wilds.

Entwin'd around its banner in the state,
As the great strengthener for young and

Tis' thus "Lactated Food" is now extoll'd.
In every home great comfort, peace and joy

This food, on which the great and wise rely;
Full will thy cup of joy and blessing be,

THE BASEBALLISTS DEFEATED.

The Park Nine, of Toronto, Victorious by a Score of 7 to 5—A Good Game.

The baseball match which was played on the P. A. A. A. grounds on Monday afternoon between the champion amateur club of Toronto, the Park Nines, and the Peterborough nine was a very good exhibition of the game, but resulted in a victory for the visitors by a score of 7 to 5. The local nine played as good ball as the visitors, but a couple of bad and inexcusable errors lost them the game. The three runs of the visitors in the first innings were made after two men were out and the third man was given his base on a bad error. However, the game was close throughout and the crowd present were interested. McCabe was in the box for the home team, while Billings and Sullivan each had a turn behind the bat. Gouley and S. Mackell, the battery for the Park Nine, did very good work. In the third innings Somers, who was playing second base, had his finger badly split by a ball from the pitcher and had to be relieved by Allison. Another game may be played with the Park Nines in the near future.

A CLOSE CALL.

Picnickers at Idyl Wild Struck Down by Electricity During the Storm.

Down the river Dominion Day was celebrated in royal style. The Salvationists were enjoying a hallelujah time at Jubilee, and escaped with little rain, while the Indians held a monster picnic at Hiawatha. At Idyl Wild Commodore Calcutt had arranged another picnic, which was attended by large numbers from Keene, Alnwick and other lake points. The rain interfered and prevented the out-door sports, but dancing was enjoyed in the pavilion all afternoon. All went merry, and the young people enjoyed themselves, notwithstanding the weather without, until about six o'clock when their merriment was slightly dampened by from a terrible catastrophe. The rain had been coming in heavy showers during the afternoon and about six o'clock a regular deluge passed over the lake. All were inside and nothing was thought of danger when suddenly there was a loud report like that of a mighty cannon. It was a clap of thunder and the lightning had struck a large oak tree not fifty feet from the dancing pavilion and shattered it to slivers. So close and powerful was the shock that the dancers in the pavilion were stunned by the electricity, several of them falling on the floor helpless. One young lady did not revive for over an hour and then only after every effort had been made to restore her to consciousness. It was a narrow escape for the pavilion, but fortunately no serious results followed. A house near Harwood was also struck by lightning and burnt.

A SEWERAGE SYSTEM WANTED.

The following resolution was read from the Board of Health:

Moved by Mr. Pearse, seconded by Mr. Lech:

That whereas English's creek, running through the heart of this town, is used as a common sewer by no less than 749 people, and the outlet of this creek is wholly within the limits of the town.

Whereas, the system of the cesspools in this town, the closing up of old ones, and the opening up of new ones, is such as to cause the complete permeation of the soil with excieta and matter which decays in a way most dangerous to the health of the inhabitants.

Whereas, the Otonabee River is also used as a common sewer.

Whereas, people are in the habit of getting ice from a place which, to some extent, is the depositing place of this filth.

Whereas, from the above recited causes, and other good and sufficient evidence, this Board is of the opinion that the health of the town is greatly endangered.

And whereas, the functions of this board are such as to require the firm and conscientious execution of its duty, and therefore this Board wishes to place on record that in the event of an epidemic timely warning had been given, and that it had carried out the trust imposed on it by the law and by the people.

And whereas, in the opinion of this Board the condition of the town is such that it is absolutely necessary that some immediate action be taken in the matter of the construction of a thorough system of sewerage, this Board urgently recommends that the Town Council without delay ascertain the wishes of the people in this matter. This Board is further of the opinion that the impending danger to the health of the community will be rendered less imminent by the adoption by the Council of a system of cleaning cesspools by scavengers employed by the Council and under the direction of the Health Inspector.

The resolution was received.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Councillor DAVIDSON, Chairman, presented the report of the Finance Committee as follows:—

R. S. DAVIDSON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Councillor ADAM HALL, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, read the report of this committee as follows:

To the Mayor and Town Council:—

GENTLEMEN,—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend six electric lamps to burn three hundred nights in the year up to twelve o'clock, at sixty dollars per annum, the same to be placed in the following places:—One near Geo. Hilliard's mill, Water-st.; one west of Mrs. J. F. Denniston's house on George-st.; one at corner of Water and McDonnel-sts., Aylmer and Dublin-sts., Hunter and Homewood-ave., Park and Wescott-sts. The lamp on the corner of George and Dublin-sts., requested to be removed to Division-st., to remain on the corner of George and Dublin-sts.; and and that the lamp ordered on Dublin and Divition-sts. be cancelled.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ADAM HALL,
Chairman.

Councillor KENDRY objected to the placing of a light on Homewood avenue.

After a little discussion, and on motion of Councillor Davidson, the clause placing a light on Homewood avenue was struck out.

Councillor RUTHERFORD also strongly objected to the manner in which the chairman of the committee had placed the lights, complaining that the work was being done in a one-sided manner. He therefore moved, seconded by Councillor Davidson, that the report be referred back for better consideration.

This resolution was lost, and the report as amended was adopted.

FURNISHING THE MARKET HALL.

Councillor CAHILL presented the report of the Market Committee as follows:—

To the Mayor and Town Council of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—Your Market Committee beg leave to report that they have received tenders for supplying three hundred chairs and forty tables for the new market hall and recommend that the tender of Mr. D. Belleghem for tables at $1.25 each be accepted, and the tender of Craig & Mooney be accepted for 300 chairs at 41 cents each.

Your Committee received only one tender for the purchase and removal of the old market building and recommend that said tender be not accepted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS CAHILL,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE ALL-NIGHT LAMPS.

Councillor ADAM HALL presented a contract which it was proposed to enter into with the Electric Light Company, which the Clerk read. The contract called for 74 lights, 40 of which were to burn all night.

Considerable discussion arose over some of the provisions, Councillor Kendry objecting strongly to the binding of the town to accept an all-night service limited to the centre of the town. He wanted some of the all-night lamps in the outskirts of the town and proposed that the company be consulted, and he felt they would meet the Council favorably.

Councillors E. H. D. HALL and CAHILL endorsed Councillor Kendry if it was practicable.

Councillor A. HALL explained that the town had been given a low figure for the all-night lamps because the company could run the forty lamps on one circuit. If they wanted lamps at Auburn and the outskirts the company would have to run two circuits and would want a much larger figure.

Councillor KENDRY still thought the matter should be referred back and the committee see the company and he was sure the latter corporation would deal liberally with them. He moved that the agreement be referred back and that the committee see the company regarding the terms of the extension.

Councillor CAHILL seconded the resolution, which was carried.

FOUR NEW STREETS.

Councillor LANGFORD moved the Council into Committee of the whole on the second reading of the by-law providing for the opening, laying out and assumption of Bernardo avenue and Church, Conger, Maple and other streets in the town of Peterborough.

The by-law was given its second and third readings, passed and numbered.

OTHER BY-LAWS.

Councillor MOORE introduced a by-law providing for the erection and maintenance of electric light, telegraph and telephone poles. The by-law was read the first time.

Councillor A. HALL introduced the new fire by-law for its second reading.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY, that the by-law be laid over for one month. This was carried.

THE DRAIN ON PARK STREET.

Councillor DAVIDSON read a communication from a number of residents on Park-st., offering to do the work of cribbing the drain if the town would supply the cedar for the cribbing and the plank for the covering. This matter was referred to the Street and Bridge Committe with power to act.

FOR DECORATION DAY.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor MOORE: That Terrance Smith be authorized to water the streets leading to the Little Lake Cemetary on the 11th of July, which had been set apart by the Oddfellows as Decoration Day.—Carried.

DRINK FOR THE THIRSTY.

Councillor LANGFORD moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That the Street and Bridge Committee be instructed to purchase and place in the town three drinking fountains such as were used in Hamilton. Councillor Langford said they would be useful for man, dogs or horses, and he believed they were necessary.

Councillor MOORE thought they might first better open the Brown fountain in Central Park.

Councillor RUTHERFORD endorsed Councillor Moore, saying that we now had three fountains, none of which were in operation.

Councillor LANGFORD explained that those were different from the one in Central Park, being more like basins to accommodate dogs, horses and men. The fountains would cost about $25 each. The resolution was carried.

AID FOR THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

Councillor DAVIDSON introduced a by-law to provide for the granting of aid to the Mechanics' Institute. The by-law, which granted $100 to the Institute, was given its three readings, passed and numbered.

THE VACANCY ON THE TOWN TRUST.

Councillor LANGFORD moved, seconded by Councillor DAWSON,—That the resignation of Mr. Wm. Cluxton as a member of the Town Trust be accepted and that Mr. Richard Hall be appointed to the vacancy.—Carried.

THE COURT HOUSE PARK.

Councillor DAVIDSON introduced a by-law providing for the granting of aid to the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society.

Councillor A. HALL moved that the blank be filled in with $500.

Councillor RUTHERFORD objected to the grant, holding that St. Paul's Church, St. John's Church and residents on Water-st. were specially benefitted and gave nothing towards the maintenance of the Court House Park. He moved that the grant be $400.

Mayor STEVENSON spoke strongly. He said he was surprised at Councillor Rutherford objecting to supporting the park which was a credit to Peterborough. He would pay the grant out of his pocket if he could afford it.

Councillor DAWSON endorsed what Mayor Stevenson said and would favor spending $500 on Central Park.

Councillor HARTLEY also upbraided Mr. Rutherford for his objection and spoke in terms of pride of the park.

After some further discussion the grant of $500 was filled in, Councillor Rutherford alone voting against it. The by-law was read a third time and numbered.

NEW FIRE HOSE.

Councillor A. HALL moved, seconded by Councillor E. H. D. HALL,—That the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorized to purchase 400 feet of new fire hose.—Carried.

Councillor A. HALL asked that Councillor Davidson act as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee for the next two months, as he might be out of town. A motion to that effect was carried.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor CAHILL,—That the Street and Bridge Committee be instructed to lay a new sidewalk on King st. ordered last year. The matter was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

THE SEWERAGE QUESTION.

Councillor E.H.D. HALL moved, seconded by Councillor A. HALL,—That the report of the Board of Health be referred to a special committee consisting of Councillors Davidson, Moore and Langford to consider the matter and report.—Carried.

Councillor LANGFORD moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That a special committee on sewerage be appointed with power to have the necessary survey of the town and plans made, to investigate the different systems of sewerage with a view to obtaining information as to what system would be best suited for the town, to consult a sanitary engineer if necessary, and to take such steps as they may deem best in obtaining such information, the committee to be composed of Messrs. Cahill, E. H. D. Hall, Rutherford, Davidson, Moore and the mover and seconder.—Carried.

THE WATERING OF STREETS.

Councillor KENDRY, after objecting to the manner in which Water-st. was watered, moved, seconded by Councillor HARTLEY,—That Water-st. be watered as far north as Sperry-st.—Carried.

Councillor A. HALL explained that the teams had all the watering they could possibly do, but the resolution was carried.

The Council then adjourned.

Keep it Always at Hand.

A hunting party pushing through the forest to the north in the direction of Lake Nipissing halted on the shore of a small lake. One of the party was inclined to think they were the first comers. "The place," said he, "is so much out of the way that I dont suppose any one has been here for scores of years." One of the party disputed the assumption, and as proof of previous occupation produced an empty bottle, which he had picked up, and which bore the familiar label "Perry Davis's Pain Killer," the evidence was conclusive, and why had the previous visitors carried the pain killer with them.? Because they knew it to be an unfailing remedy for cramps or pains in any part of the system, as a sure relief for Diarrhœa Dysentery, as something that will promptly alleviate Frost bites, Chilblains, Bruises, Sprains, cuts, etc. If you are going camping take a supply of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. For summer Complaint is an invaluable remedy. Change of diet, water, etc., may effect you, but with the Pain Killer at hand you are safe. Sold by all druggists everywhere.

A Tender Association.

At his lecture on "Ministers and Preaching" last night, Dr. Andrews told some amusing stories of ministers of the past. One about Dr. Jeter was especially good. Dr. Jeter, when he became worked up in preaching and was the most eloquent, had a habit of putting a whine into his voice which as near resembled tears in the voice as possible Once when the tears were especially strong during a sermon the good old Doctor noticed a lady weeping in the audience. As soon as the services were over he hastened to overtake the lady and ask her what part of the divine work touched her to tears.

"Twasn't that," said the lady.

"Have you had some deep affliction in losing family friends?" said the Doctor.

"Twasn't that neither," said the lady.

"Well, what was it?" asked the Doctor.

"Well, Doctor, we had a mule and it was a good one, too. We all liked that mule, and he died; and while you were preaching your voice sounded so much like that mule's that I couldn't help crying."—Providence Telegram.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

FIVE ACRES OF FIRE.

A BIG BLAZE AT KENTUCKY'S METROPOLIS.

The Standard Oil Refinery Consumed—Hundreds of Gallons of Burning Oil—Seven Persons Injured, two Fatally—A $100,000 Conflagration at Minneapolis

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 30.—Five acres of fire was the awful sight witnessed at the Standard Oil refinery at Fifth and C-street this morning. The immense structure was blazing at every point, and the heat was so intense that even at 200 yards persons were overcome. It was first reported that seven persons had lost their lives and later that three were killed and 35 wounded, but it is now believed that only seven were injured, two fatally. The fire broke out at 8½. The refinery is on the east side of the Louisville & Nashville Railway, but the tanks are scattered along it on both sides. Saturday a tank of crude oil came in on a flat car from Cleveland and it was to be turned into the refinery vats. Some of the workmen thought the iron tank was too hot for such a thing to be done in safety. After consultation it was postponed in the hope that the tank would be cooler. It did not prove to be, however, and it became necessary to run the oil out of the car tank into another in the yard. Inspector Keene took John Fitig and another workman with him and they climbed on the car. They were about to unscrew the cap when they felt there was a tremendous pressure from the inside against the head. At first they decided not to open it. Finally they opened it.

In an instant there was a dull puff as the vapor escaped, filling the air all around. The gas, as is known, is heavier than the air, and it sank to the ground, spreading out all over the locality and moving with the wind. Almost in a twinkling it reached one of the sheds under which there was a fire. There was a flash as the inflammable vapor ignited, and at once there was a tremendous explosion. The tank was blown to pieces and hundreds of gallons of burning oil were scattered all over the great works. A wall of fire 30 feet high and nearly 900 feet long moved with lightning rapidity to the building. In less time than it takes to relate the storehouses, filled with thousands of gallons of canned oil, the cooper shop, the carpenter shop, pump and engine houses, the filling and lubricating houses, the storage houses, the paint and glue houses and 900 feet of platform were all ablaze and burned furiously.

At the first intimation of the explosion all of the workmen who could do so started to run. Johnnie Kline, however, stumbled and fell and his clothes caught fire. The men bravely returned to his assistance, but the fire that enveloped him could not be extinguished until he had been frightfully burned.

Three little boys, Danny O'Neill and Andrew and John McDonald, were on the railway track when the explosion occurred. They were slightly to the east of the tank and the wind blew the blaze down upon them. Shrieking with pain, they impulsively jumped backward and into the clear place on the western side of the track with the bright blaze streaming upon them. The bystanders soon extinguished the flames and laid the boys under a tree. When an attempt was made to remove O'Neill's clothes a great piece of flesh peeled off his face and body at the slightest touch. He was unconscious and never uttered a cry.

The loss on buildings and stock is about $40,000.

A Big Blaze at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 30.—George Huhn's drug store was burned to-day. Loss, $50,000. Mahler, Lane & Co., type founders, who occupied the upper stories, were damaged $50,000.

Factory Burned at Stirling.

STIRLING, Ont., June 30.—Fire started here in the sash and door factory owned by Mrs. Martin Saturday night. The loss on building and machinery was about $800 and insurance $500. It was rented by C. Boldrick, who lost about $300 worth of stock; no insurance.

Incendiary Blaze at Drummondville.

DRUMMONDVILLE, June 30.—The storehouse full of machinery belonging to L. A. Plante, agent for the Watson Manufacturing Company, and Shaw Bros. & Cassels' storehouse for hides and leather, were burned last night. The Watson Manufacturing Company sustains about $3000 damages, Shaw Bros. & Cassels $5000 and Plante $400, partly covered by insurance. The fire originated in Plante's building and was undoubtedly incendiary.

Not Ripe for Prohibition.

HALIFAX, July 1.—The Episcopal synod, regarding the prohibition question, resolved that:

We deplore the great evils produced by the excessive use of intoxicating liquors and the great need there is of the use of and every means of suppressing their evils by education, moral suasion and legislation. We are yet of opinion that the time has not arrived when total prohibition can be successfully enforced.

Canon Patridge was elected governor of King's College.

Just in Time.

LONDON, Ont., June 30.—It is learned that Mr. Fulkinson of Dorchester township, who has been in New York attending the Pasteur Institute, will return home this week thoroughly cured. The specialists say that he reached there just in the nick of time and that had he delayed two days longer it would have been impossible to save his life. Two additional cows and one pig have shown signs of the "rabies" and had to be shot. Dr. Graham of Dorchester visited Mr. Fulkinson's farm to-day in order to secure the brain of these animals for transmission to New York.

Death on the Track.

KINGSTON, June 30.—The express going west yesterday morning ran over an unknown man 1½ miles this side of Ballantyne station. He was about 30 years old, wore a dark brown coat with trousers patched on both knees, grey woollen socks and brown hat. In his pockets was $2 in bills, $1.35 in silver, and a Rogers knife. A crucifix was attached to his neck.

French Tobacco.

It was a woman who did it. "Unknown the city of her birth, the town in which she died unknown, her name has perished from the earth, this truth survives alone," and the truth is that she caused a nation of 40,000,000 of people to suffer from the vilest and dearest tobacco on the face of the earth. She did it through feminine vanity and in one moment avenged all that her sex has suffered from the selfishness of tobacco smokers. And this is how it happened: One evening there was a ball at the Tuilleries. Napoleon said to one of his ministers:

"Who is that woman over there blazing with jewels?"

"That," replied the minister, "is the wife of M. ——, the tobacco manufacturer."

"There is money in tobacco," said the emperor. "The government will have a monopoly of the tobacco business after this."

So the French Government, monarchical or republican, has ever since served out to its unfortunate subjects such tobacco as it thinks they can smoke without falling dead when they get the first whiff. It costs from half a franc to a franc for a packet containing a couple of ounces. The government is not content with legitimate profits, but serves out the most abominable mixture that ever insulted a respectable pipe. It is a black, stringy, rank substance and the material of which it is made is kept a deep secret by the officials. Some say it is made of old rags, but this is evidently untrue, for rags would smoke much better than French tobacco does. Fearing an uprising among the English and American residents in France, the government reluctantly consented to allow a couple of brands of English tobacco and one or two brands of American tobacco to be sold in the republic. The price put on these goods gives about three times the cost of the tobacco to the government. Thus, a packet which sells here for ten cents costs in France two francs, or forty cents—four times as much. But in order that the government can do its own swindling and that the retailer will not have a chance to run in his own little local swindle on you, the government does one good thing. It prints on every package of tobacco or bunch of cigarettes the price that is to be paid.

The tobacco shops of France are government offices and are filled with deserving people who have claims on the government, as for instance, the widow of a soldier who has died in the service of his country. These tobacco shops are few, as compared with the number found in English or American cities. They are all also practically sub-postoffices, as they sell stamps and weigh your letters or papers. At the door of most of the tobacco shops are letter boxes.

Beating the Weather.

A man at Dayton, O., has six sorts of underwear on hand, and is changing from three to six times per day, thus beating the weather no matter how eccentric it is. He has practised until he can make a change in three minutes.

Poisoned Icecream.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Over 60 persons were seriously poisoned last night and today by partaking of icecream from D. Brinkmann's store in Third-avenue. Henry Meyer, employed in Brinkmann's store, has been arrested on suspicion of putting poison in the cream. It is said Meyer and Brinkmann had a quarrel. Meyer, it is alleged, shirked his work and Brinkmann had decided to discharge him. Mrs. Brinkmann says Meyer told her yesterday that if he felt disposed he could ruin her husband's business. "Why, all that I have got to do," he is reported to have said, "is to scrape off the verdigris from the freezer and put it into the icecream."

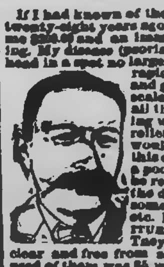
SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.



If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot no larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

Pure Lime-Fruit Juice.

WHAT is Lime Juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the Best Temperance Beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the Lime Fruit without admixture.

By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the Lime Fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand (as supplied to the British Government), in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, prepared Lime Juice, &c.

DANGER IN BEHRING SEA.

UNITED STATES CRUISERS RECEIVE SEALED ORDERS.

The Instructions Deemed Too Important to Entrust to the Ordinary Methods of Delivery—The British Squadron Being Centralized at Esquimalt.

PORT TOWNSEND, July 2.—The arrival of Colonel A. C. Mathew, First Comptroller of the Treasury, in Port Townsend yesterday caused some little excitement. The Colonel brought orders from the Treasury Department for the commanders of the revenue cutters Richard Rush and the Corwin. The Rush immediately prepared to proceed to sea. The Corwin this morning took water at the fort and will sail to-morrow afternoon. The department deemed the despatches of such importance that they would not intrust them to the ordinary methods of delivery, but sent them by hand and would even then allow only one of the highest officials in the department to carry them.

Colonel Mathews delivered his orders to both naval officers and left last night on the City of Kingston for Tacoma, on his way back to Washington.

The orders to the Rush were to proceed at once to Ounalaska and then to patrol Behring Sea, seize all vessels found in the sea with sealskins aboard or any other prima facie evidence that the vessels had been poaching. The cutters are then to take the papers and instruments and leave on board only sufficient quantity of food to keep the crew until the vessel reaches the nearest port. If any resistance is offered the poachers are to be fired upon and compelled to submit.

Captain Hooper of the Corwin said that although the orders to the Rush were for her to sail, the Corwin was still waiting to hear from Washington. The documents he received from Washington were of no public interest, but simply private communications from the department, and he did not care to make public their contents. They also treated, he said, of details to be carried out in enforcing the revenue laws, but were nothing different from what had been published.

As it had been reported that a change of policy had been instituted by the State Department Captain Hooper was asked if there was anything in the report. He said that so far as he knew there had been no orders issued deviating from the policy outlined in the first general orders issued by the authorities. The Rush, Captain Hooper said, was to proceed direct to sea and carry out the instructions of the Treasury Department. He expected to receive orders almost any day and was ready to proceed north without delay.

The orders received by the Rush are sealed and will not be opened until the vessel is at sea. From one of her officers I learned that the general impression on board was that there would be no change in the policy already outlined by the department. The Rush has been on the Sound since June 9, and as the season opened on June 1 the vessel will be a month late in reaching the sealing ground.

The British Government is centralizing the Pacific squadron at Esquimalt and it may be that the sealers will be protected by the authorities. The Amphion is now at Esquimalt and five other war vessels are on the way there.

When the squadron is mustered, it is reported, two and perhaps three vessels will be sent to sea and will see that no British vessel is outraged nor the British flag insulted.

HE WAS TIRED OF LIFE.

Suicide at Halifax—The Will of the Late Lieut.-Gov. McLelan.

HALIFAX, July 2.—There is little doubt that Francis Scottney, who mysteriously disappeared from his residence, has drowned himself in the Northwest Arm. His hat was found there this afternoon. Talking to Capt. Arthur of a bark lying in the Arm a few days ago Scottney intimated that life wasn't worth living and the best and easiest way to get out of the world was by drowning. Scottney separated from his wife eight years ago. He leaves an estate of $14,000, of which $4000 is cash. His will has been filed. He bequeaths $250 to the citizens' library and the residue among his four children.

The will of the late Lieut.-Gov. McLelan leaves his estate in equal portions to his widow and children. The value is not stated but it is believed to be over $100,000.

John Costley, a well-known citizen, died to-day, aged 78. He was at one time principal of Picton Academy, registrar of births, marriages and deaths for Nova Scotia and was deputy provincial secretary during the Holmes-Thompson Government. Deceased was for many years on the editorial staff of The Halifax Press and was the first editor of The Halifax Herald.

The National Club's Banquet.

MONTREAL, July 2.—The event of to-night was the Liberal gathering at the annual dinner given by the Club National. It was held at the Windsor Hotel, and nearly 300 guests attended.

It was advertised that many of the prominent speakers in federal politics would be present, but the only one of note was Hon. Wilfrid Laurier. Premier Mercier attended, and in a long address dwelt chiefly upon provincial rights, and touched on the railway and prison systems.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, in speaking in response to the toast "Canada," deprecated the opposition the Liberal party received. He classed together the extreme Catholics of Quebec with the extreme Protestants of Ontario, and both were alike harmful.

MURDERED BY A MANIAC.

A MADMAN'S TERRIBLE WORK NEAR GRAVENHURST.

Charles Robinson Killed by William Brown—The Victim Beaten Over the Head With a Gun—The Murderer in Jail—An Inquest Begun.

GRAVENHURST, July 2.—William Brown, an insane person, strayed from Debiaquieres Mills, at Leg Lake, early on Monday morning and had not been heard of till yesterday afternoon, when he turned up in a field owned by Thomas Robinson, a farmer in the township of Morrison, four miles from this town. It was raining at the time.

Brown stripped himself of all his clothing and walked to Robinson's house, where old Charlie Robinson was staying. On entering he asked Robinson to come out in the rain and wash himself, which Robinson refused to do. An altercation ensued.

The maniac seized an old gun and with the stock felled Robinson to the floor. After breaking the gun over the murdered man's head he cut some fearful gashes in his victim's side. He was preparing to dig a hole in the garden in which to bury the victim, when a man came along the road and Mrs. Robinson gave the alarm.

Chief Constable Sloan of Gravenhurst was summoned, and the murderer was found lying concealed in the grass, still naked. The prisoner made no resistance and told where his clothing was piled on a stump. He is now in jail here.

An inquest was began by Coroner Bridgeland to-day.

THE CIGAR SEIZURES.

Mr. Muller Has an Extended Conference with Minister Bowell.

OTTAWA, July 2.—Mr. G. W. Muller, a traveler for Goldstein & Co. of Montreal, arrived in this city this morning from Toronto. Mr. Muller had a lengthy conference with Minister Bowell and Commissioner Johnson of the Customs Department in connection with the recent seizures of cigars in Toronto and St. Catharines. It was 9 o'clock this evening before the interview was concluded. I called on Mr. Muller at the Windsor Hotel after the interview, but he refused to divulge the nature of his talk with the minister and commissioner. However, I learned elsewhere that the cigar importing business generally was fully discussed and that Mr. Muller made a proposal to the minister as a means of preventing a repetition of the practices of Nerlich & Co., that the makers of domestic cigars be compelled to run a blue ribbon through the end of each cigar, to show that it really is a domestic cigar. The charge is freely made that retail dealers place domestic cigars in boxes which previously contained well-known brands of imported cigars and thus impose upon their customers. If the ribbon scheme were adopted, it is claimed, no one could palm off a domestic article for an imported one. There are plenty of people who prefer a domestic cigar to the imported article, but the importers want their goods protected from all kinds of home imitations and fraud.

It is an illegal act to place these domestic cigars in imported boxes, but the thing is done almost every day all over the Dominion.

It is said that Mr. Muller's interview with Mr. Bowell will greatly aid the department in the investigation which they are now making in connection with the Toronto Custom House, and more particularly with regard to the illegal privileges which seem to have been extended to Nerlich & Co. during the past dozen years.

I asked an official of the Customs Department how it was that the Toronto Custom House had been permitted to use a cigar stamp different from that used at all the other ports in the Dominion. He said that if that were true he could not understand how it was, and he doubted the story. I then informed him that one of the boxes of a lot seized at St. Catharines had been shown me and that the statement was perfectly true. "Well," he remarked, "if that is the case I know nothing of it."

"Does the Minister know about it?"

"I do not know; you had better ask him."

Mr. Muller left for Toronto to-night.

BLAINE'S BILLS BOTTLED UP.

Speaker Reed Ignores the U. S. House Foreign Affairs Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—One of the side lights upon the contest between the broad views of Secretary Blaine and the prohibitory policy of the Reed-McKinley combination is the extraordinary treatment which has been accorded the House Committee on Foreign Affairs by Speaker Reed. The chairman of the committee is Congressman Hitt of Illinois, close friend of Secretary Blaine and his Assistant Secretary of State during the Garfield administration. Mr. Hitt has reported to the House resolutions favoring reciprocity with Canada and with South America, but they have slumbered harmlessly upon the calendar for weeks. Mr. Reed's policy does not seem to be "one of action" in regard to these resolutions, which embody the views of his distinguished Maine rival, Mr. Blaine.

Again and again Mr. Hitt and other members of the committee have asked that a day be given for the consideration of measures from the Committee on Foreign Affairs. Speaker Reed and his associates of Committee on Rules have not seen fit to report the necessary order and it is doubtful if the subject has been even mentioned in the committee.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs in the last Congress under Perry Belmont and afterward under the efficient chairmanship of Governor McCreary of Kentucky had five days for the consideration of its measures, but in this Congress it has not had a day.

Mr. Hitt has got through a few measures over which there was no contest by the unanimous consent of the House, but Governor McCreary, who now leads the Democratic minority, has just notified him that he will no longer permit this singling out of the favorite measures of the Speaker. The committee must be fairly treated or Governor McCreary will object to the consideration of any of its measures.

The bill to carry out the proposal of the Pan-American Conference for a survey for an intercontinental railway still slumbers far down on the calendar of the House, where apparently it may rest during the remainder of the session. The rules of the House would not permit the small appropriation needed for the survey and the appointment of commissioners except by a separate bill, but fortunately for Mr. Blaine the rules of the Senate permit such items to be attached to the regular appropriation bills. An amendment was accordingly adopted to the Diplomatic Appropriation Bill making this appropriation and the House will probably accept it in conference. The Speaker seems to have pretty effectually ignored the Foreign Affairs Committee and to have kept Mr. Blaine's suggestions for the extension of our trade tightly bottled up.

A Youthful Suicide.

ALLISTON, July 2.—An English lad named Webb, aged 16, taken from some institution in Toronto and living with a farmer named Quinn in Mono township, attempted to take his life this morning by hanging. He was cut down before life was extinct. He cannot live. No reason is known for his rash act.

A BIG ONTARIO STORM.

Great Damage done to Fruit and Crops—The Lightning's Work.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 2.—A terrific electric storm, accompanied by hail and torrents of rain, passed over here last evening. Hail stones the size of hen's eggs were pelted down by a hurricane of wind, breaking glass by the hundreds. Trees and fences were torn down and scattered, barns blown over, with great damage done to fruit, crops and hay.

In town half of the roof of the Trent Valley Woollen Company was blown off, and the whole roof of Henderson's foundry was lifted in one mass and dropped on the street, breaking electric light poles and mixing telephone, arc and incandescent light wires in confusion. There were no lights last night. Roads are impassable.

Losses in Prince Edward County.

PICTON, July 2.—A violent storm of wind, rain, thunder and lightning passed over this county between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning. Four cows, two of them thoroughbred Jerseys, owned by Mr. Bruce Johnson, and two owned by Mr. Yerex, were killed by lightning in the fields. A barn of Capt. Wyatt Walbanks, South Bay, was struck by the lightning and consumed. The drive house of Mr. Buchanan of Hillier, and the drive house of Mr. John Sprague, Ameliasburg, were both struck by lightning and burned. The rain was much needed.

Three Barns Struck by Lightning.

BELLEVILLE, July 2.—Last night's storm was very destructive to fruit trees and crops. Three barns in this vicinity were struck by lightning and burned.

A Narrow Escape.

HAMILTON, July 2.—During the storm this afternoon lightning struck the flag-staff on the G.T.R. freight sheds, completely shattering it. The electric fluid passed down through the roof into the freight office, splintering the walls and filling the air with fine pieces of wood. One young man, a clerk in the office, had his cheek slightly cut by a flying splinter. No one was seriously hurt.

OF INTEREST TO PRINTERS.

A St. Thomas Type's Successful Suit Against the Union.

OTTAWA, July 2.—Judge Rose, who presided at the last Assize Court session in this city, to-day gave judgment in the case of Beland v. The St. Thomas Typographical Union. This action was brought by the plaintiff Felix Beland, a printer, against the St. Thomas Union for $500 for wrongful expulsion from that society. The plaintiff was expelled from the union last December for being intemperate and irregular, but was given no notice of the society's action and therefore had not a chance to defend his conduct. The resolution passed by the society deprived him of all privileges and benefits notwithstanding that he was a member since 1877 and in good standing. In giving judgment His Lordship said that although no rules may have been violated by the society in not giving him notice of the intention to move for the expulsion, and although the action of the society may have been bona fide, and nothing appears to raise any question as to want of bona fides, yet in his opinion the expulsion without notice was contrary to natural justice and the resolution declaring him expelled null and void. His Lordship held that it was no case for damages, but directed that judgment be entered for the plaintiff with costs, declaring his expulsion illegal, the resolution null and void and restraining the society from interfering with plaintiff's right of membership.

THE TORONTO CARNIVAL.

Aquatic Day at the Queen City's Summer Festival.

TORONTO, July 3.—Yesterday was the aquatic day of the carnival. The various contests came off according to program, and were witnessed by a crowd of large proportions. The first-class yacht race, in which 9 vessels sailed over the course, was won by the Oriole, Whitewings second and Cygnet third. The Cypress took the second-class yacht race, and Maudie B the third. Uneasy outsailed all the skiffs. In the evening there were pyrotechnic displays in Queen's Park, at the Exhibition grounds and on floats in the bay. To-day the show winds up with the firemen's tournament. The crowd in the city is still a big one, and the streets present a busy and animated scene. Hotel-keepers, railway, steamboat and street car lines and fakirs of all kinds are reaping a rich harvest, and although some mistakes in the management have been made, yet it seems to be the general opinion that the Carnival has been a great success.

Mr. W. A. Murray, the well-known septuagenarian drygoods merchant, was married yesterday to Mrs. Sarah Cawthra, by Archbishop Walsh. The bride is 60 years old. They go to Europe for the honeymoon.

News has just been received here of the drowning in Moon River, in Muskoka, last Sunday of Miss Hostetter of Toronto and Mr. Board of the Clifton Falls House, Bala. They were carried over the falls while boating.

A Female Smuggler Nabbed.

WINDSOR, July 2.—Capt. Wilson, the deputy collector at the Walkerville ferry, had his suspicions aroused in regard to a woman who has been crossing that ferry frequently, and on Monday morning caused her to be arrested and searched. Under her clothes were found two long pockets, which were fastened to a belt. In the pockets were several pairs of new stockings and a lot of new thread. The goods were at once seized, and as it is believed she is a professional smuggler she was sent down to Collector Hopkin's office for investigation. She gave her name as Mrs. Bushe, and claimed to live with her daughter at 347 Sandwich-street, Windsor. She is a rather tall woman, about 45 years of age, and claimed she had never smuggled before. She wept plenteously, but could not be induced to give much of an account of herself. She is held pending the investigation, as if it is found she is a professional she will be given a fine of not less than $50.

The Evil that He Did Lives After Him.

NEW YORK, July 2.—In the suit of the Union Insurance Company of Philadelphia against the Continental Insurance Company of New York, a verdict was given to-day for the plaintiff for about $77,000. The suit included 26 causes of action and 16 counterclaims. The plaintiff based its suits on fraudulent practices of Lorenzo Dimick, general agent of the defendant company at Buffalo. Dimick, who represented several Maine insurance companies, victimized other companies for the benefit of his own by transferring every risk drawn against the Continental Company to another concern as soon as he received notice of loss. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for perjury, but was admitted to bail pending an appeal and he fled to St. Catharines, Canada, where he died. There are eight other suits for sums aggregating $600,000 against the Continental Company on the same grounds.

The Poison was Not Fatal.

NEW YORK, July 2.—All the persons poisoned yesterday by eating icecream bought at the confectionery store of D. Brinckmann, are doing well. No fatal results are anticipated.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

A GLADSTONIAN VICTORY AT BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

Mr. Caine, the Late Member, Runs Behind Both the Other Candidates—Dr. Peters' Successes in Africa—The Servian Consul's Murder.

LONDON, July 2.—The Parliamentary election at Barrow-in-Furness to-day, the outcome of which has been looked forward to with much interest and considerable anxiety by all parties, resulted in a victory for the Gladstonian candidate. The vacancy was caused by the resignation of W. S. Caine, a Liberal-Unionist, who wished to test the feeling of his constituency regarding the licensing clauses of the Local Taxation Bill relating to the compensation of publicans and who resigned just before the clauses referred to were dropped by the Government. The vote was as follows:

Duncan (Gladstonian)..........199
Wainwright (Conservative)..........186
Caine (Liberal-Unionist)..........128

In 1886 Caine was elected by a vote of 3212 against 1882 for Ainsworth (Home Ruler).

A Servian Consul Murdered.

BELGRADE, July 2.—M. Marinkovics, the Servian consul at Prestina, Roumelia, has been murdered. The Servian Government is making an enquiry into the affair.

A Strict Investigation Demanded.

BELGRADE, July 2.—The Government has demanded of the Porte that it cause the strictest investigation to be made of the circumstances of the murder of M. Marinkovich, the Servian consul at Pristina.

Dr. Peters' Successes.

ZANZIBAR, July 2.—Dr. Peters is expected to arrive at the coast on July 10. After hard fighting in Ugogo he subdued the hostiles and hoisted the German flag at Mwanda. He was completely successful in Uganda and returned to the capital, when he was joined by a European missionary.

The Anglo-German Agreement.

BERLIN, July 2.—The Anglo-German agreement contains no secret clauses, but a variety of matters beyond those already published are regulated.

THE NIAGARA CENTRAL.

Increase of Capital Stock—To be Built to Toronto in a Short Time.

ST. CATHARINES, July 2.—At a special general meeting of the shareholders of the St. Catharines & Niagara Central Railway Company to-day the capital stock of the company was increased from $300,000 to $1,000,000. The directors assured the shareholders that the completion of the road into the city of Toronto at an early date was arranged, and was merely delayed pending the settlement of details.

An 8-Hour Day for Postal Clerks.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Representative Ketcham having received the necessary information from the Postoffice Department reported favorably to-day from the committee on Postoffices and postroads the bill limiting the hours of labor to eight hours for clerks in first and second class Postoffices.

Maine Democrats and Prohibition.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 2.—Three hundred and eighty-five delegates were present at the Democratic State Convention to-day. M. P. Frank of Portland presided. A resolution to be inserted in the platform in favor of submitting to the people again the question of license or prohibition was adopted after a stormy debate, 145 to 90. William P. Thompson of Belfast was nominated for governor by acclamation.

Fatal Accident at Lindsay.

LINDSAY, July 2.—A 9-year-old boy named Frank Bush, son of Francis Bush of this town, met with a fearful and fatal accident to-day. The little fellow was playing around Dovey's mill when his clothing in some way got caught in the shafting. The piercing cries of the unfortunate boy gave the alarm when the machinery was immediately stopped and the mangled body released. Medical aid was procured but nothing could be done, and the poor little fellow lingered in excruciating pain until death came to his relief.

A Big Tumble in Coal.

ELIZABETH, N.J., July 2.—Pier 2 of the Philadelphia and Reading Company's coal docks fell with a terrible crash at 11 a.m. to day, carrying with it 92 cars filled with coal. People in the lower part of the city were much alarmed by the crash. No one was injured, although a number of men had miraculous escapes. Loss heavy.

Sudden Death at Moncton.

MONCTON, N.B., July 2.—James Lear of Halifax, traveler for Gordon, McKay & Co. of Toronto, was found lying on the floor of his bedroom in the Commercial Hotel this afternoon dying of apoplexy. He was raised to his bed and expired in a short time.

Cowles is All Right Again.

MONTREAL, July 2.—Eugene H. Cowles, who was shot by his brother-in-law, C. C. Hale, in connection with the kidnapping of little Florence, has sufficiently recovered to leave the general hospital, and left for the Adirondacks to-day.

Hamilton's Headless Hospital.

HAMILTON, July 2.—As a result of the investigation into the management of the hospital, Resident Physician Crosthwaite and Nurses Ross, Ross and Cadenhead have left the institution. Chairman Pratt telegraphed to Toronto General Hospital for a doctor to take temporary charge of the sister institution at Hamilton.

A Bride at 79.

MARTINSVILLE, Ind., July 2.—David Miller of Monrovia, Ind., aged 66 years, and Mrs. Adeline Darnell of Fairview, aged 79 years, were married at Plainfield Saturday after an acquaintance of only six weeks. Mr. Miller is a member of the Friends' Church, and about one year ago was engaged to be married to a Mrs. Hayworth of the same denomination. Having made known their intentions and while proceeding in the manner peculiar to their branch of the Friends' Church, which takes at least two months, the bride elect changed her mind. This, no doubt, will account for the haste exhibited in his recent courtship and marriage.

Pugilists Fined.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 2.—Jack Power and Dick Nagle were tried to-day on the charge of leaving Canada to engage in a prize fight in another country. They pleaded guilty and were fined $100 each.

Drowned at Ontario Beach.

ROCHESTER, July 2.—A sad boating accident occurred this evening at Ontario Beach. W. W. Frye, a traveling man of Bradford, Pa., was out boating with Mrs. E. M. Wimer and Mrs. J. E. Hammond of this city when the boat capsized. Frye pulled the ladies into the boat three times but they were so exhausted that they could not hold on and both sank. Both leave husbands and Mrs. Hammond leaves a boy 15 years of age. The bodies have not been recovered. Frye was saved.

KEENE CHRONICLES.

Damage Done by Lightning—Obituary—No Typhoid Fever.

Correspondence of the Review.

DEATH.—Mr. Malcolm Campbell, an old resident, passed away on Sunday morning last. Mr. Campbell was in his 85th year and had resided here fifty-eight years. In politics he was an uncompromising Reformer, and held to that political faith through principle. He was well known and very highly respected by all. The funeral took place on Tuesday to the upper cemetery and was attended by a large number of people.

DENIAL.—A report has been circulated that there is typhoid fever in Keene. Such is not the case.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—A very severe thunder storm passed over here on Tuesday night. Mr. John Wood's fine barn was struck by lightning and damaged to the extent of $75. A number of trees and telegraph poles were also struck by the lightning.

SNAKES WERE HER ONLY FRIENDS.

A Feminine Hermit Who Died Surrounded by Reptiles.

Salem (Va.) letter in the Philadelphia Times: A singular character, by name Martha Ann Tillson and who was know as the "snake woman," died near here recently. She lived in a little cabin at the foot of Twelve O'clock Knob, and led a hermit's life, having no one to share her abode except snakes. By the few who were ever allowed to see the interior of her cabin it is said to have literally swarmed with her strange companions, with which she ate and slept, and which were to be seen lying in her bosom and coiled about her neck, body, and limbs whenever she was caught sight of.

Her extraordinary predilection for these unpleasant creatures is supposed to have arisen from a morbid feeling that she was like them, hated of men, for, naturally deformed, she received in addition an injury to the spine while an infant, and though perfectly sound in mind, was of so sensitive a nature as to render her miserable and uneasy in the presence of any but her parents, as she imagined herself an object of loathing and hatred to them. This she seemed to feel while still a little child, for her peculiar friendship began then. She was observed to steal away every day with a pan of milk, and on being followed was found to be caressing a dozen or so hideous rattlesnakes, while they drank from the vessel which she held in her lap. Horrified, her parents tried to reason with her, then to punish, and finally to confine her in an endeavor to break her of her fondness for the reptiles, but she pined so for her pets that they feared she would die if kept from them. She evinced even stronger distaste for human society as she grew older, and since the death of her parents has withdrawn entirely from any association with her kind, living wholly on the product of a small garden cultivated by herself and of half a dozen chickens which the snakes seem to know were not legitimate prey, and left unmolested.

She was a little, fair woman of about 45, with sandy hair, abundant and long, which he wore in a number of tight plaits, which, combined with her deformity and the odd miscellaneous style of dressing, the result of her refusal to hold any communication with a fellow-being, served to make her a most remarkable-looking object. She was looked upon as a witch by the negroes about, who declared her to be possessed of the evil eye, and hated and feared her accordingly, though her life was a most harmless, quiet one. She had been dead some days when discovered and her dead body was literally covered by a writhing mass of snake, which had to be killed before it could be removed, for the reptiles turned viciously on all approaching the remains. On her heart was found coiled a huge rattlesnake dead.

The inquest proved that the woman's was a natural death and it is probable that the snake died of grief for its mistress. She left no heirs and a few nights after her burial the house was burned down, it is supposed by some of her neighbors, as the greatest horror was felt for the place, which was still infested with snakes.

A Moving Mountain.

A travelling mountain is found at the cascades of the Columbia. It is a triple-peaked mass of dark brown basalt, six or eight miles in length where it fronts the river, and rises to a height of almost 2,000 feet above the water.

That it is in motion is the last thought which would be likely to suggest itself to the mind of any one passing it; yet it is a well-established fact that this entire mountain is moving slowly but steadily down the river, as if it had a deliberate purpose some time in the future to dam the Columbia and form a great lake from the Cascades to the Dalles. The Indian traditions indicate immense movements of the mountains hereabouts long before white men came to Oregon, and the early settlers, immigrants, many of them from New England, gave the above-described mountainous ridge the name of "travelling," or "sliding mountain."

In its forward and downward movement the forests along the base of the ridge have become submerged in the river. Large tree stubs can be seen standing deep in the water on this shore. The railway engineers and the brakemen find that the line of the railroad which skirts the foot of the mountain is being continually forced out of place. At certain points the road bed and rails have been pushed eight or ten feet out of line in a few years.

Geologists attribute this strange phenomenon to the fact that the basalt, which constitutes the bulk of the mountain, rests on a substratum of conglomerate, or of soft sandstone, which the deep, swift current of the mighty river is constantly wearing away, or that this softer sub-rock is of itself yielding at great depth to the enormous weight of the harder material above.

OVERDREW HIS ACCOUNT.

A Bank President Certifies his own Check and Gets into Trouble.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Charles R. Packer president of the Park National Bank, which is in the hands of the bank examiner, is in trouble. He was before Commissioner Hoyne to-day charged with drawing his check for $3000, when he had only $1000 in bank; that as president he certified it and put it through the clearing house; that this transaction was not entered on the books of the bank and that it was only discovered yesterday, when Bank Examiner Sturgis found the check among the bank's papers.

Mr. Packer says the proceeding is an outrage, but that he will come out of it with clean hands. He waived examination and was held in $5000 bonds to the United States Grand Jury. The case will be heard in October. Mr. Packer has resigned his position as president of the Park National Bank, as has also C. F. Bell, its cashier.

DIDN'T LIKE THE BALLET.

Cornetist Koehler Shot Himself Because he Tired of Seeing "Painted Faces."

NEW YORK, July 2.—Henry Koehler, a Casino cornetist, shot himself Monday night because he preferred death to playing in front of the ballet. His dying request to his wife was not to allow his children to go on the stage.

During his leisure moments of late his wife says Koehler did little but scribble in German that the "painted faces" of the Casino performers were driving him mad. He launched forth a fierce tirade against actors and actresses, based on those he had seen at the Casino, where he had played from the time it was opened. On one piece of paper which his wife had preserved Koehler wrote only a few days ago: "Only not to see painted faces is worth to die."

SNOW WITH THE MERCURY AT 90.

Strange Discovery by Workmen at Manistee, Mich.

MANISTEE, Mich., July 2.—While workmen were employed in excavating a cut a short distance above Canfield & Wheeler's mill they came upon a thick bed of snow. The mercury was away above 90. The snow was covered with several feet of sand. Many persons from the city visited the place to ascertain the truth, and every one returned with large chunks of the "beautiful" to prove the fact of its existence. The presence of the snow will interfere with the grade to some extent and the engineer was not at all pleased to witness the phenomenon. The men, however, enjoyed drinking the ice water converted from the snow.

THE $40,000 REALIZATION.

Tournament an Easy Winner — Her Highness Gets Second Money.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, L. I., July 2.—The Coney Island Jockey Club brought the most successful spring meeting in its history to a close today. Rain commenced to fall an hour before noon and by racing time the track was quite heavy. The chief event of the day was the race for the Realization stakes for 3 year olds—$10,000 added, 1¾ miles. The starters and jockeys were: Torso (Garrison); Padishah (Murphy); Banquet (Lewis); Her Highness (Hamilton); Palisade (Taral); Rancocas (Bergen); King Thomas (Hayward, jr.); Tournament (Hayward); Jersey Pat (G. Covington). Lisimony was entered but exhibited symptoms of lockjaw this morning and did not start. It is thought he will die. Tournament was the favorite with Palisade second choice and Torso and Banquet next in demand. The race was as poor a one as has ever been seen on this track. At the start Tornament shot to the front and increased his lead at every jump. On the far turn he was 3 lengths to the good, followed by Her Highness, two lengths before Banquet, and the rest strung out for a furlong. After the stretch was reached Tournament increased his lead still further, and simply galloping passed the post a winner by 30 lengths. The only interest in the race was the fight for second money. Banquet moved up rapidly in the stretch and at the furlong pole was on even terms with Her Highness. A brief tussle ensued when Her Highness drew away and got it by a short head, while Banquet beat Padishah 10 lengths for third money. Then came Palisade, King Thomas, Rancocas, and Jersey Pat a very poor last.

Given to the Hyphens.

LONDON, Ont., July 2.—The game here today was given to the Hyphens by the umpire, 9 to 0, London refusing to play on the claim that the grounds were too wet.

Behavior at Table.

Do not sit a foot away from the table, neither sit jammed up against it.

Do not eat soup from the end of the spoon, but from the side. Do not draw in your breath or make other noises when eating soup.

Do not eat fast, but always take plenty of time.

Avoid taking huge mouthfuls or filling your mouth with too much food.

Neither put your knife into the butter, into the salt cellar or into any dish.

Do not play with your napkin, or your goblet, or your fork or any other article on the table.

Above all avoid speaking when your mouth is full.

Music Loving Cows.

Opposite to our house was a large field in which some twelve or thirteen cows were put during the summer months. One day a German band commenced to play on the road which divided the house from the field. The cows were quietly grazing at the other end of the field, but no sooner did they hear the music than they at once advanced toward it, and stood with their heads over the wall attentively listening. This might have passed unnoticed, but upon the musicians going away the animals followed them as well as they could on the other side of the wall, and when they could get no further stood lowing piteously. So excited did the cows become that some of them ran round and round the field to try to get out, but finding no outlet returned to the corner where they had lost sight of the band, and it was some time before they seemed satisfied that the sweet sounds were really gone.—American Naturalist.

PIANO PRACTICE.

Much of the Over-strain so Commonon Amg Girls is Traceable to Excessive Diligence at the Piano.

The London Lancet, the authoitive journal in medical matters, lifts a warning voice against the exhaustive and excessive diligence so common in piano practice. One can hardly conceive of anything more truly monotonous than a continuance of that tax of patience, piano practice. A German observer states that much of the nervous delicacy and mental overstrain so common among girls is traceable to excessive diligence at the piano. Probably an hour or so of practice daily would rarely prove excessive, but when a longer time is taken up in repeating a humdrum series of manipulations the wonder is that the nervous system is not entirely wrecked.

The coveted perfection is often reached, but the accompanying result of nervous overstrain makes one doubt whether such excellence at so terrible a cost is altogether desirable. Many a parent has noticed that the daughter or son who has been practicing at the piano for a couple of hours or more a day, complains of great weariness, more or less nervousness, poor sleep, headache, backache, cold feet, aching muscles, and low spirits. When this is noticed, the child should be given Paine's Celery Compound at once, for if there is delay these early symptoms may become more severe, and lead on to the terrible nerve and brain diseases which have been fatal to many a child's body or brain. Fathers, mothers, and all who are entrusted with the great responsibility of a child's well being, ought to know that this purely vegetable remedy is one that cannot harm the most delicate. It is a scientific preparation that effectually removes the results of over-work, whether in the child or adult, and is the only remedy known that will overcome the evil results of long continued piano practice, overstudy, and the many other causes that act directly upon the child's nervous system.

NURSED THE TRAMP AND LOVED HIM.

A Romantic Kentucky Girl Weds a Stranger.

An interesting story comes from Green Ridge in Robertson county, Tennessee, in which a handsome young man and a pretty girl figure as its leading spirits.

Last fall a stalwart youth of about 23 years made his appearance at the home of a farmer in the suburbs of Green Ridge and applied for work. He was a tramp, with his worldly possessions in a bundle slung across his shoulder, and was hungry and footsore and eager for a job. The farmer gave him a trial, and being much pleased with his labor, employed him regularly. In March the young man fell sick with a fever, and for two weeks was very ill.

In the same village resided Eadie Sullivan, who was pretty and attractive, and the daughter of a merchant in good circumstances. She had seen the young fellow a great many times, but had no acquaintance with him, as he was not attentive to the ladies, but remained at home and attended to his duties closely. The young girl had doubtless been attracted by his personal appearance, for when she learned of his sickness, she began sending him flowers and then nice things to eat. At first she went no farther than the door, but was finally induced to enter the sick-room to receive his thanks.

As time wore on she grew bolder and prolonged her visits, and in the kindness of her heart read to the afflicted youth. Life was a pleasant dream to them for several weeks, and the rumor soon spread that they would wed.

This report was confirmed when the young people went to Nashville and were married. The girl left a note behind saying that she had eloped, as she knew her parents would never consent to her wedding a common laborer without a home and unknown, but that she loved him, and would rather share poverty with him than live in ease and comfort without his protecting love and care.

The girl's parents were ignorant of the attachment between their daughter and the stranger, and were taken by surprise. They are much distressed over the affair, and refuse to forgive the girl or to recognize her if she and her husband should return.—Courier Journal.

Important Literature.

The systematic arrangement of topics and their lucid and common sense treatment in the method of massing Scriptural testimony upon each subject is adapted to excite a pleasant and profitable interest in the study of the Bible, even with those who feel little or no interest from the difficulties which they fancy lie in the way of an understanding of its record. Such conditions are met in the new and attractive work which comes to our notice entitled "Bible Readings for the Home Circle."

A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exdous to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. Given a nice camping spot, good water handy, a shady spot to lounge, good canoeing water, plenty to eat and good company the time can be put in fairly easy. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawley Bros., George-st. d148

Another Close Call.

The heavy thunderstorm which passed over the town yesterday afternoon did a little damage, the lightning striking the tall brick chimney on Mr. Walter Paterson's tannery on Aylmer-st. The chimney was cracked in a couple of places and some of the top bricks came to the ground, but to all appearances the structure is as strong as ever it was. The electric current was slightly felt by the man in the engine house.

Brevities.

—The Lock Works picnic goes to Jubilee Point to-morrow.

—The local cricketers go to Toronto this evening to play the Torontos to-morrow.

—Mr. Joseph Brault, until recently proprietor of the Montreal House, died at his residence this morning.

—The Fire Brigade Band turned out on Monday evening and serenaded Mr. Robt. Beech, one of their members, who was married a few days ago.

—The Park Nine baseball team which defeated the local nine here on Monday by a score of 7 to 5 were wiped out at Hastings Tuesday by a score of 25 to 17 in a seven innings game.

Down the River.

The picnics on Otonabee river for the next two weeks per steamer Golden Eye are as follows:—Lock Works to Jubilee, July 4th; Sons of England, July 8th; Market. Sunday school, of Ashburnham, July 9th; Baptist Sunday school, July 10th; St. Luke's Sunday school, July 15th. Several other Sunday schools and societies are also arranging to go down the picturesque river. Jubilee has been much improved, the grounds having been enlarged and new swings, etc., erected on the Point. This resort, under the able management of W. Metcalf, is becoming very popular.

Rathbun & Co.'s logs are just reaching the mouth of the river, and the Dickson Co. logs have started to run into the Little Lake. As this company are only sending the first quality logs to Rice Lake it will take some time before they are let into the river. What a pity to see these fine logs passing our town. Why not have them sawed up here and leave the money that will be paid for the labor in Peterborough. When will our town wake up to their own interests and not let a fine industry like this go by us?

Correspondence of the Review.

THE HOT WAVE.—The hottest wave I am aware of passed over us during the last few days. On Sunday, June 29th, at sunrise the thermometer stood at 64 degrees, at 8 o'clock up to 80 degrees, at 10 to 86 degrees, at 12 noon to 90 degrees, at 2 to 95 degrees, at 4 to 90 degrees, and at sundown to 80 degrees. On Monday, the 30th, at sunrise at 65 degrees, at 8 o'clock up to 85 degrees, at 10 to 92 degrees, at 12 noon to 94 degrees, at 1 to 96 degrees, at 2 to 96 degrees, at 4 to 92 degrees, at 6 to 86 degrees, and at sundown to 80 degrees. With this record in the shade how could people stand working in the roasting sun?

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhea, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

AT TORONTO'S CARNIVAL.

THE RED RANGERS VISIT THE CAPITAL OF ONTARIO.

In the Immense Procession on Dominion Day—Favorable Comments—Two Days in the City.

The 57th Battalion having accepted the invitation to be present at the summer carnival in Toronto, the men gathered at the drill shed at six o'clock on Tuesday morning. There they formed in marching order and proceeded to the Canadian Pacific station. There were a large number of people on the streets at the time and at the station to see them off. Special coaches had been procured for the battalion and the volunteers had nicely time to be seated in them when the train arrived. The train, including the coaches with the red coats, consisted of ten coaches, but the number of civilians who went to Toronto was not large.

The train arrived at the Union station, Toronto, some minutes late. Horses were on hand for the field officers, and the battalion formed at the station and marched through York and King-sts., which were thronged with people, to the City Hall, where the great procession of the day was formed.

THE PROCESSION

was an immense one. The Governor-General's Body Guard led it, followed by the Toronto Field Battery. The first brigade of infantry came next, under the command of Col. J. Z. Rogers, of the 57th. The brigade consisted of the 15th Battalion of Belleville, the 57th of Peterborough, and the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto. The field officers of the 57th, besides the colonel, who was in command of the brigade, were Major Bell, Major Edwards, Capt.-Adjutant Dennistoun, Quartermaster Forbes and Surgeon Halliday. The battalion band and bugle band, consisting of forty-two men, under Bandmaster Miller, headed the battalion, and the battalion was 275 strong. The company officers were:—

No. 1 Company—Capt. Mason.

No. 2 Company—Capt. Langford and Lieut. Schofield.

No. 3 Company—Lieut. Stevenson and Lieut. Hamilton.

No. 4 Company—Capt. Lee and Lieut. Hayes.

No. 5 Company—Capt. Miller and Lieut. Matthews.

No. 6 Company—Capt. Brennan and Lieut. Lech.

The battalion presented a fine appearance, the new uniforms, well polished accoutrements and steady marching attracting attention all along the route. The band played excellently, and as they passed along the street the band and battalion were frequently and LIBERALLY APPLAUDED.

After the first brigade came the 14th Battalion of Kingston, the 38th of Brantford, the Queen's Own of Toronto and army and navy veterans, many societies, citizens, callithumpians, etc., the procession being a very long one. On arriving at the Exhibition grounds the procession marched past the reviewing stand, which was occupied by the mayor, aldermen and others. The battalion then proceeded to its quarters.

TORONTO PRESS OPINIONS.

The Toronto papers all speak in high terms of the visiting volunteers and the 57th is deservedly mentioned in eulogistic terms.

The World speaks familiarly of it as "the Rangers of old Peterborough" and says that "the 57th battalion, Peterborough Rangers, next swung into view, the red uniforms of the men appearing to good advantage. The splendid band of the regiment was in attendance."

The Mail says that "the Peterborough Rangers acquitted themselves in excellent style."

The Globe, speaking of the procession, says:—"The 57th or Peterborough Rangers came next. They made a fine looking body of men, 335 strong, in scarlet uniforms and with a capital band." Speaking of the march past at the review stand it says:—"As to the appearance and bearing of the men it was beyond all praise. Some of them, such as the men of the 57th regiment, who had slept but little and were evidently fatigued, held their heads all the more erect and marched all the better for it, to show that they could stand campaigning."

Speaking at the luncheon on the grounds Col. G. T. Denison said:—"Gentlemen, I have seen the soldiers of all countries of Europe, and I can say that I don't believe that there is a country in the world in which there are men of finer physique or more soldier-like appearance than the militia of this country."

THE RANGERS' QUARTERS.

The men of the 57th were quartered during their stay in Toronto in the carriage building at the exhibition grounds. The building is a large one, and the 57th had half of it, the other half being occupied by the 15th battalion of Belleville. The quarters were large and comfortable and were close to the grounds where the events of the day took place.

The officers' quarters were in the press building, close at hand, and were also quite comfortable.

During Tuesday afternoon the men had the opportunity of viewing the sports, lacrosse match and other events on the grounds and the pyrotechnic display in the evening.

HOME AGAIN.

Yesterday was spent in seeing the sights of the city and carnival, and at 11 o'clock last night a special train was boarded and home reached at an early hour this morning.

The men report having enjoyed themselves throughout and the popular verdict is that it was a good outing.

The band was taken in charge by the Queen's Own band and the latter gave them a royal time. The Queen's Own musicians are first-class in every way as well as in playing music.

The officers of the 57th were given a smoking party by the Queen's Own officers which was a very enjoyable entertainment. The Queen's Own officers are as great in peace as in war and know how to meet friends as well as foes.

Military men had a smile at a Toronto paper that criticized the "march past" on Tuesday because the officers did not salute. It was not necessary to salute on that occasion, but to "carry swords." The criticism is further marred by the statement that the salute "should be done in four paces, or, according to the latest regulations, in two, just on the moment of passing the reviewing officer." An officer who followed these instructions at a review once would scarcely do so a second time.

PETERBOROUGH VICTORIOUS

In the Peterborough vs. Trinity University Match—Scores and Bowling Analysis.

The third home match of the season resulted in a victory for the home team, who were not able to play quite their full strength, Turnbull and Rogers being absentees, nor was the Trinity team as strong as was expected, Cameron having to play against the Manitoba players in Toronto.

Peterborough batted first and scored only 56, the play of some of the men being very disappointing. Burnham and Stratton played good cricket for their runs, and Ray seemed getting set when he was bowled. The bowling of Bedford-Jones was very fine, as he performed the unusual feat of taking all ten wickets, three of them with successive balls.

Trinity could do nothing at all with Attewell's bowling, as he was in great form. He likewise got three wickets with successive balls, and in all 7 for 13 runs. Martin's score of 22 not out was well obtained indeed, but with the exception of Broughall, none of the others did much, there being no fewer than seven ciphers.

Peterborough commenced a second innings, and when time was called had lost five wickets for 72 runs, the last two wickets being lost in the darkness caused by a heavy thunder cloud which made the light as bad as it generally is at eight at night. The two veterans, Ray and Rutherford, made a great stand in this inning, pulling the score from 16 for 3 wickets to 71 for four. Ray's 22 was very carefully got quite up to his old form, while Rutherford's 33 not out showed that "Tom," notwithstanding his lack of practice, retains the vigorous hitting powers which has made him a "terror" to so many bowlers. Two mammoth drives for 4 each and 6 threes, mostly cuts, were his chief hits. At four o'clock the rain came down so heavily that the game was abandoned.

The score was as follows:—

THE NEXT MATCH.

The next cricket match, Manitoba and the Northwest vs. Peterborough, on the 9th and 10th of July, will be beyond doubt the best of a decade. In their Toronto match, as was foreseen, the visitors gave an exhibition of cricket well worth travelling to see. The local team will be made as strong as possible and it is to be hoped that the people will patronize the match. The grand stand will be reserved for ladies and made habitable. In England the fair sex frequent cricket matches in numbers and their ardor is great. There the men explain the game to the ladies, here as much cannot be said, and to this may be laid the small attendance of them.

NORWOOD NEWS.

A Farewell Presentation to Mr. Bewell—A Successful Concert.

Correspondence of the Review.

VACATION.—The schools closed on Monday, June 30th, for the summer vacation.

CONCERT.—The Scotch concert in the hall on Friday evening was fairly well attended. The dancing by Mr. MacKintosh excited considerable interest.

A FAREWELL.—The students of the High School and their friends, comprising the leading people of Norwood and district, gave a very interesting entertainment in the Town Hall on Monday evening. It was gotten up to give Mr. Bewell a farewell send off and the rendering of every part of the programme delighted the very large audience present. A pleasing feature of the evening's proceedings was the presentation of a beautiful wallet and writing case to Mr. Bewell by the pupils, together with the accompanying address:—

DEAR MR. BEWELL,—We, the students of Norwood High School, learn with deep regret that you are about to sever your connections with us. You have labored both long and earnestly in our behalf, not only in training the intellect, but in promoting that love of physical culture so beneficial. Your presence among us has tended to maintain and strengthen that fellow feeling among the pupils and between the pupils and teachers which characterizes this school and adds to the benefit and enjoyment of school life, and while we heartily congratulate you on your promotion, we feel deeply grieved that it is to cause your removal from our midst. We feel sure that your new duties will be discharged satisfactorily and sincerely hope that your efforts will be duly appreciated and that in your new home you will make friends as numerous and as faithful as those you leave behind. Although we would not keep you among us if your own interests demand otherwise, we once more wish to express our sorrow at your departure and beg you to accept this gift as a slight token of our esteem and friendship. Hoping that you will ever look back upon your relation with us with some degree of pleasure, we assure you that you will be remembered by us as a teacher and a friend."

Mr. Bewell gave a very suitable reply, in which he recalled the pleasant hours he had spent in and out of the class room with the pupils. In the course of his address he paid a very high compliment to Mr. Davidson, the Principal of the school, with whom he had worked four and a half years without even the slightest misunderstanding. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Roxburgh, Chairman of the Board, other trustees and the clergymen present, who all expressed their regret at losing Mr. Bewell and testified to his work as a teacher and a citizen. Some of the speakers became quite enthusiastic over the splendid reputation of the High School throughout the province. The concert then closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

THEIR FAREWELL WORDS.

The Pupils of His Division Tender Mr. H. A. Strike a Farewell Address and Presentation.

The pupils of Mr. H. A. Strike's division in the Ashburnham public school, of which Mr. Strike was principal, said farewell to their teacher under most pleasant circumstances yesterday. It was the last day of school before the midsummer vacation and the school closed with a concert and entertainment. The programme was an excellent one, consisting of literary and musical numbers by the children, interspersed with several kindergarten songs conducted by Miss Stephenson. At the close of the programme a kindly-worded address accompanied by four handsomely bound volumes of poems was presented to Mr. Strike, who had sent in his resignation as principal of the school to begin his labors in the Methodist ministry. The pupils had performed a labor of love and the class room was a thing of beauty, being most profusely and tastefully decorated with flowers. The address was read by Master Fred Milliken, while Miss Maude Adams made the presentation. The scholars' farewell words were as follows:—

To Mr. Harvey A. Strike:

DEAR TEACHER,—We have learned with deep regret that you are about to sever your connection with us as Principal of this school and that when we resume our studies after the vacation, to which we are all looking forward so largely, your place will be occupied by a stranger. During the comparatively short time that you have been our teacher we have learned to esteem you very highly. Your genial manner and unfailing kindness, your sympathy with our efforts and unwearied patience with our failures have left an impression which will never be effaced from our memories.

We hope you will accept these volumes of poetry as a memento of this occasion and a slight expression of our good feeling towards you. You have our best wishes for your success in the new sphere of life which you are about to enter, and we feel sure that the same qualities which have made you so successful as a teacher, will render you doubly useful in the noble work to which you have devoted yourself.

It is not probable that we shall ever meet again as teacher and pupils, but some day "when all life's lessons have been learned," we hope to meet you where partings are unknown.

Signed on behalf of the pupils of the 4th grade,

JENNIE LIPSETT,	EDGAR MOWRY,
EDNA THROOP,	SAM. ADAMS,
CARRIE YOUNG,	HODDIE WILSON,
ANNIE ERSKINE,	WILLIE PILKEY,
M. ADAMS,	ANGUS MCMARTIN,

Mr. Strike replied in a few well-chosen and timely sentences, thanking the scholars for the kind gift and referring to their pleasant relations in the past.

This event was a flattering one to Mr. Strike, whose connection with the school has been short, showing that during his brief stay he has won the respect and love of his pupils.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

SIN IN MODERN SOCIETY

TALMAGE DISCOURSES ON THE DISGUISES IT ASSUMES.

All Sorts of Cloaks Worn by Scoundrels to Further their Schemes of Deviltry—A Mere Profession of Religion Not of Much Use.

WINFIELD, Kan., June 29.—Dr. Talmage deals in his sermon to-day in characteristic style with the various garbs in which sin masquerades in modern society, and, in stripping the monster of his disguises, he aims not only to reveal its deformity to the world, but to put his hearers on their guard against self-delusion. His text is John xv., 22: "But now they have no cloak for their sin."

Sin is always disguised. Decked, and glossed, and perfumed, and masked, it gains admittance in places from which it would otherwise be repelled. As silently as when it glided into Eden and as plausible as when it talked to Christ at the top of the temple, it now addresses men. Could people look upon sin as it always is—an exhalation from the pit, the putrefaction of infinite capacities, the ghastly, loathsome, God-smitten monster that uprooted Eden, and killed Christ, and would push the entire race into darkness and pain—the infernal charm would be broken. Before our first parents transgressed, sin appeared to them the sweetness of fruit and as becoming as Gods. To Absalom it was the pleasure of sitting upon a throne. To men now, sin is laughter, and permission to luxurious gratification. Jesus Christ in my text suggests a fact which everybody ought to know, and that is that sin, to hide its deformity and shame, is accustomed to wearing a cloak, and the Saviour also sets forth the truth that God can see straight through all such wrappings and thicknesses. I want now to speak of several kinds of cloaks with which men expect to cover up their iniquities, for the fashion in regard to these garments is constantly changing, and every day beholds some new style of wearing them, and if you will tarry a little while, I will show you five or six of the patterns of cloaks.

First, I remark that there are those who, being honored with official power, expect to make that a successful cloak for their sin. There is a sacredness in office. God Himself is king, and all who hold authority in the world serve under Him. That community has committed a monstrous wrong who has elevated to this dignity persons unqualified either by their ignorance or their immorality. Nations who elevate to posts of authority those not qualified to fill them will feel the reaction. Solomon expressed this thought when he said: "Woe unto thee, O land, when thy king is a child and thy princes drink in the morning." While positions of trust may be disgraced by the character of those who fill them, I believe God would have us respectful to the offices, though we may have no admiration for their occupants. Yet this dignity, which office confers, can be no apology of transgression. Nebuchadnezzar, and Ahab, and Herod, in the day of judgment, must stand on a level with the herdsmen that kept their flocks, and the fisherman of Galilee. Pope, and king, and president, and governor, must give an account to God and be judged by the same law as that which judges the beggar and the slave. Sin is all the more obnoxious when it is imperial and lordly. You cannot make pride, or injustice or cruelty sacred by giving it a throne. Belshazzar's decanters could not keep the mysterious finger from writing on the wall. Ahab's sin literally hurled him from the throne to the dogs. The imperial vestments of wicked Jehoram could not keep Jehu's arrow from striking through his heart. Jezebel's queenly pretension could not save her from being thrown over the wall. No barricade of thrones can arrest God's justice in its unerring march. No splendor or thickness of official robes can be a sufficient cloak of sin. Henry VII., Louis XV., Catharine of Russia, Mary of England—did their crowns save them? No ruler ever sat so high that the King of kings was not above him. All victors shall bow before Him who on the white horse goeth forth conquering and to conquer.

Again: Elegance of manners cannot successfully hide iniquity from the eye of God. That model, gentlemanly apostle, Paul, writes to us: "Be courteous." That man can neither be a respectable worldling nor a consistent Christian who lacks good manners. He is shut out from refined circles, and he certainly ought to be hindered from entering the church. We cannot overlook that in a man which we could hardly excuse in a bear. One of the first effects of the Grace of God upon an individual is to make him a gentleman. Gruffness, awkwardness, implacability, clannishness are fruits of the devil; while gentleness and meekness are fruits of the spirit. But while these excellences of manner are so important, they cannot hide any deformity of moral character. How often it is that we find attractiveness of person, suavity of manners, gracefulness of conversation, gallantry of behavior thrown like wreaths of moral death. The flowers that grow upon the scoriæ of Vesuvius do not make it any less of a volcano. The sepulchers of Christ's time did not exhaust all the whitewash. Some of the biggest scoundrels have been the most fascinating. If there are any depending on outward gracefulness and attractiveness of demeanor with any hope that because of that God will forgive the sin of their soul, let me assure them that the divine majesty cannot be satisfied with smiles and elegant gesticulation. Christ looks deeper than the skin, and such a ragged cloak as the one in which you are trying to cover yourself will be no hiding in the day of his power. God will not in the day of judgment ask how gracefully you walked, nor how politely you bowed, nor how sweetly you smiled, nor how impressively you gestured. The deeds done in the body will be the test, and not the rules of Lord Chesterfield.

Again: Let me say that the mere profession of religion is but a poor wrapping of a naked soul. The importance of making a public profession of religion if the heart be renewed cannot be exaggerated. Christ positively and with the earnestness of the night before His crucifixion commanded it. But it is the result of Christian character, not the cause of it. Our church certificate is a poor title to heaven. We may have the name and not the reality. There are those who seem to throw themselves back with complacency upon their public confession of Christ although they give no signs of renewal. If Satan can induce a man to build on such a rotten foundation as that, he has accomplished his object. We cannot imagine the abhorrence with which God looks upon such a procedure. What would be the feelings of a shepherd if he saw a wolf in the same fold with his flock, however quiet he might seem to be, or a general if among his troops he saw one wearing the appointed uniform who nevertheless really belonged to the opposing host. Thus must the heavenly Shepherd look upon those who though they are not His sheep, have climbed up some other way and thus must the Lord of Hosts look upon those who pretend to be soldiers of the cross while they are His armed enemies. If any of you find yourselves deficient in the great tests of Christian character, do not, I beg of you, look upon your profession of religion as anything consolatory. If you have taken your present position from a view that you have of Christ and your need of Him, rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory and clap your hands for gladness, but the name of life, while dead in trespasses and sins, arouse before the door is shut. That gilded profession—the world may not be able to see through it, but in the day of divine reckoning it will be found that you have no cloak for your sin.

Furthermore: Outward morality will be no covering for the hidden iniquity of the spirit. The gospel of Christ makes no assault upon good works. They are as beautiful in God's eye as in ours. Punctuality, truthfulness, alms-giving, affection and many other excellencies of life that might be mentioned will be admired of God and man, but we take the position that good works cannot be the ground of our salvation. What we do right cannot pay for what we do wrong. Admit that you have all those wrong traits of character that give merely worldly respectability and influence, you must acknowledge at the same time that during the course of your life you have done many things you ought not to have done. How are these difficult matters to be settled. Ah, my friends we must have an atonement. No Christ, no salvation. The great Redeemer comes in and says, "I will pay your indebtedness." So that which was bright enough before is dark enough now. The first stripes that we deserve are fallen upon Christ. On His scourged and bleeding shoulders He carries us up over the mountains of our sins and the hills of our iniquities. Christ's good works accepted are sufficient for us, but they who reject them, depending upon their own, must perish. Traits of character that make us influential on earth will not necessarily open to us the gate of heaven. The plank that will be strong enough for a house floor would not do for a ship's bulk. Mere morality might be enough here, but cannot take you through death's storm into heaven's harbor. Christ has announced for all ages, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." But pitiable in the day of accounts will be the condition of that man, though he may have given all his estate to benevolent purposes and passed his life in the visiting of the distressed, and done much to excite the admiration of the good and the great if he have no intimate relation to Jesus Christ. There is a pride and depravity in his soul that he has never discovered. A brilliant outside will be no apology for a depraved inside. It is no theory of mine but an announcement of God, who cannot lie, "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh living be justified." Open the door of heaven and look in. Howard is there but he did not secure his enterance by the dungeons he illumined and the lazarettos into which he carried the medicines. Paul is there, but he did not earn his way in by the shipwrecks and imprisonments and scourgings. On a throne overtopping all others, except Christ's, the old missionary exclaims: "By the grace of God I am what I am."

Again: Exalted social position will be no cloak for sin. Men look through the wicket door of prisons, and seeing the incarcerated wretches exclaim, "Oh, how much vice there is in the world." And they pass through the degraded streets of a city, and looking into the doors of hovels and the dens of corruption they call them God-forsaken abodes. But you might walk along the avenues in which the opulent roll in their flourishing pomp, and into mansions elegantly adorned and find that even in the admired walks of life Satan works mischief and death. The first temptation Satan wrought in a garden, and he understands yet most easily how to insinuate himself into any door of ease and splendor. Men frequently judge of sin by the places in which it is committed, but iniquity in satin is to God as loathsome as iniquity in rags, and in the day of judgment the sins of Madison avenue and Elm street will all be driven in one herd. Men cannot escape at last for being respectably sinful. You know Dives was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day, but his fine clothes and good dinners did not save him. He might on earth have drunk something as rich as champagne and Cognac, but at last he asked for one drop of water. You cannot trade off your attractive abodes here for a house of many mansions on high, and your elegant shaded groves here will not warrant you a seat under the tree of life. When God drove Adam and Eve out of Eden He showed that merely living in a garden of delights and comforts will never save a man or a woman. By giving you so much earthly luxury and refinement, He intimated that he would have you enjoy yourselves, but He would not have you wrap yourselves up in them as a cloak to hide your sins. God now walks in your garden as He did in Eden, even in the cool of the day, and He stands by your well even as He did by a well in Samaria, and He would make your comfort on earth a type of your rapture in heaven.

Furthermore: Mere soundness of religious belief will not hide our iniquities. There are men whose heads are as sound as Jonathan Edwards' or John Wesley's whose hearts are as rotten as Tom Paine or Charles Guiteau's. It is important that we be theoretical Christians. It is utter folly in this day, for a man to have no preference for any one form of faith, when it is so easy to become conversant with the faith of the different sects. An intoxicated man staggered into my house one night begging for lodging. He made great pretensions to religion. I asked him where he went to church. He said: "Nowhere; I belong to liberal Christianity." But there are those who never become Christians because their obstinacy prevents them from ever taking a fair view of what religion is. They are like a brute beast in the fact that their greatest strength lies in their horns. They are combatant, and all they are ever willing to do for their souls is to enter an ecclesiastical fight. I have met men who would talk all day upon the ninth chapter of Romans who were thoroughly helpless before the fourteenth chapter of John. But there are those who, having escaped from these conditions are now depending entirely upon their soundness of religious theory. The doctrines of man's depravity and Christ's atonement and God's sovereignty are theoretically received by them. But, alas! there they stop. It is only the shell of Christianity containing no evangelical life. They stand looking over into heaven and admire its beauty and its song, and are so pleased with the looks from the outside that they cannot be induced to enter. They could make a better argument for the truth than 10,000 Christians who have in their hearts received it. If syllogisms and dilemmas and sound propositions and logical deductions could save their souls, they would be among the best of Christians. They could correctly define repentance and faith and the atonement, while they have never felt one sorrow for sin nor exercised a moment's confidence in the great sacrifice. They are almost immovable in their position. We cannot present anything about the religion of Christ that they do not know. The Saviour described the fate of such a one in His parable: "And that servant which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes." Theories in religion have a beauty of their own, but if they result in no warmth of Christian life it is the beauty of hornblende and feldspar. Do not call such coldness and hardness religion. The river of life never freezes over. Icicles never hang on the eaves of heaven. Soundness of intellectual belief is a beautiful cloak, well woven and well cut, but in the hour when God shall demand our souls it will not of itself be sufficient to hide our iniquities.

My friends, can it be that I have been unkind, and torn from you some hope upon which you were resting for time and eternity! Verily, I would be unkind, if, having taken away your cloak, I did not offer you something better. This is a cold world and you want something to wrap around your spirit. Christ offers you a robe to-day. He wove it Himself, and He will now with His own hand prepare it just to fit your soul. The righteousness He offers is like the coat He use to wear about Judea, without seam from top to bottom. There is a day of doom. Coward would I be if I did not dare tell you this. It shall be a day of unutterable disappointment to those who have trusted in their official dignity, in their elegant manners, in their outward morality, in their soundness of intellectual belief. But I see a soul standing before God who once was thoroughly defiled. Yet look at him and you cannot find a single transgression anywhere about him. How is this, you ask. Was he not once a Sabbath breaker, a blasphemer, a robber, a perjurer, a thief, a murderer? Yes, but Christ hath cleansed him. Christ hath lifted him up. Christ hath rent off his rags. Christ hath clothed him in a spotless robe of righteousness. That is the reason why you cannot see his former degradation. This glorious hope in Christ's name is proffered to-day. Wandering and wayward soul, is not this salvation worth coming for, worth striving for? Do you wonder that so many with bitter weeping have besought it and with a very enthusiasm of sorrow cried for divine compassion? Do you wonder at the earnestness of those who stand in pulpits beseeching men to be reconciled to God! Nay, do you wonder at the importunity of the Holy Ghost who now striveth with thy soul. In many of the palaces of Europe the walls are mosaic. Fragments of shells and glass are arranged by artists and aggregated into a pictorial splendor. What! made out of broken glass! Oh, yes, God grant that by the transforming power of His Spirit we may all be made a part of the eternal palaces; our broken and fragmentary natures polished and shaped and lifted up to make a part of the everlasting splendors of the heavenly temple!

For sinners, Lord, Thou cam'st to bleed,
And I'm a sinner vile indeed,
Lord, I believe Thy grace is free;
Oh, magnify Thy grace in me.

BOYS AND GUNS MAKE A FATAL COMBINATION.

Little Mabel Bichler of Ottawa, Aged 14, Shot by a 10-Year-Old Lad—A Dominion Day Casualty Reported from Charlottetown.

OTTAWA, July 3.—Mabel Bichler, aged 14, was instantly killed this morning. She had just stepped out of her father's back door when a small rifle in the hands of a lad named Frank Leggat, aged 10, was discharged and the bullet hit the poor girl in the heart. An inquest will be held.

HALIFAX, July 3.—On Dominion Day two lads, Rufus Whittle and George Henderson of Charlottetown, went out in the country. They had a rifle and fired a number of times at trees and gate posts. One of the bullets struck and killed a little daughter of Samuel Gay. The boys did not see the child, nor did they know she had been shot. A woman named Catharine McDonald driving along the road saw the girl lying in a field, as she supposed asleep. She went to awaken her and found her dying. The boys were acquitted by a coroner's jury, who severely condemned the careless use of firearms.

REMARKABLE SAGACITY.

Painful Accident to a West Oxford Man—His Collie's Faithfulness.

WOODSTOCK, July 3.—William Murray of West Oxford left Woodstock late on Saturday night and drove home, says The Sentinel-Review. Having unharnessed his horses, he rode one of them down to a spring, about 400 yards down from the house, for the purpose of watering it, the other horse having started ahead on its own account. When he reached the spring the horse that was loose kicked, striking Mr. Murray in the leg. Mr. Murray knew that he was hurt, but had no idea how badly. He jumped from the horse he was riding to find his leg bend under him. It was broken below the knee. A compound fracture was produced by the kick and the jump from the horse on the broken limb aggravated the nature of the injury in a painful degree.

He called as loudly as he could for assistance, but he was 400 yards from the house and there was no one there but his mother and sister. He tried to drag his body along the ground by pulling on the grass, but soon fainted away from pain and exhaustion. When he recovered he called again, but there was no response. A little collie puppy came down to where Mr. Murray was, and after licking his hands and acting as a dog would do started back for the house. At the house he barked furiously for a little while and then returned to where the injured man was, returning at once to the house to bark again. From the man to the house and the house to the man the dog ran for fully an hour, until finally Mr. Murray's sister got up to see what was the matter. Miss Murray, thinking that perhaps something was wrong, went to her brother's bedroom, but found that he was not there and had not been to bed.

The dog resumed his barking and started off in the direction of the scene of the accident. Miss Murray followed, and was led to the spot where her brother lay. With the assistance of her mother, an old lady, the wounded man was removed to the house, but it was a slow and painful task, and it was 3 o'clock in the morning before he was in his bed. A doctor was summoned and the wound was dressed, but it will be a couple of months before Mr. Murray will be himself again. The dog is only an ordinary one to look at, and was never suspected of any sagacity before.

Burglary at Bennington.

EMBRO, July 3.—On Monday night some one entered the store of Peter Murray, Bennington, northwest of Embro, and stole about $50 worth of tobacco and canned goods. The thieves had a pile of drygoods and groceries piled up beside the window, through which they had effected an entrance, but were surprised and frightened off before they had time to remove them. There were two of them, and they had a buggy waiting outside, in which they drove off. They were followed for some distance, but managed to make their escape. One of them left his hat behind in his hurry.

Pitchfork v. Revolver.

BERLIN, Ont., July 3.—At Preston the other day a blacksmith named Forbes had his horse grazing on the street and came near Casper Jacobs' house. The latter got mad and the bookbinder went to the blacksmith with a revolver and hit him in the arm, whereupon the latter went for the former with a pitchfork and nearly pitched him into eternity. Jacobs at last accounts was very low and may not recover.

Death of Dr. E. H. Horsey.

I am myself an abstainer but I regard complete abstinence as neither desirable nor practicable. I wish we could brew a good light and cheaper beer for the people. It is sinful to give stimulants to children or uncivilized people.

Born With Teeth.

CINCINNATI, July 3.—Yesterday morning Mrs. Carl Kimble of No. 44 Kindel-avenue gave birth to twins. The doctors who were in attendance at the birth of the babes noticed that they were exceptionally large and well developed. Greatly to their surprise upon examining one of the twins it was discovered that it possessed two large lower front teeth, which are at least an eighth of an inch in length and perfectly formed. The teeth are of a pearly whiteness and look as natural as those of a child 6 or 8 years old. This is a rare occurrence, and a similar one has never been recorded before. There have been cases where there was one tooth when a single child was born, but never before when there were twins.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

Stocks of Breadstuffs—Strike Statistics—Bank Clearings.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that the volume of general merchandise while large has decreased perceptibly, as is to be expected at this season, and the week, practically two days short, has further tended to restrict operations.

Iron and steel are steady and anthracite coal is really in better demand at improved prices. At the west hogs are in free movement to interior markets, and prices are weak and lower. Cattle are dull. Products barely hold their own as to prices. Wheat is up 1½c on less encouraging reports from abroad and a heavy decrease of domestic stocks. Corn and oats are fractionally higher. In California the outlook is for a heavy wheat crop. Our Melbourne cable states that wheat stocks in Australia and New Zealand, out of farmers' hands, July 1, equal 4,973,000 bushels against 2,391,000 bushels one year ago.

There were 84 strikes, involving 39,909 strikers, reported to Bradstreet's in June. For the six months there were 691 strikes involving 174,286 strikers, against 349 strikes, involving 96,208 strikers last year, and 436 strikes and 172,483 strikers in 1888.

Bank clearings for June at 51 cities showed a decrease of 13.6 per cent. from the May total, but they are 7.3 per cent. larger than in June, 1889. For the six months they show at 37 cities a gain of 9.2 over last year.

At this, the close of the crop year of 1889-'90, Bradstreet's reports point to 52,000,000 bushels of wheat carried over, against 37,000,000 bushels a year ago. Farmers' stocks are 7,000,000 bushels heavier than on July 1, 1889, and so-called available stocks 8,000,000 bushels. These totals point to the wheat crop of 1889 having been 470,000,000 bushels instead of 490,000,000 bushels. Stocks of Indian corn (available) carried over are 19,261,938 bushels, against 12,861,868 bushels a year ago. Stocks of oats are 7,987,424 bushels, against 7,470,969 bushels, of barley 687,235 bushels, against 454,107 bushels, and of rye 208,702 bushels, against 986,845 bushels. Stocks of wheat flour at leading points of manufacture and accumulation in first and second hands (exclusive of New York City) equal 1,429,378 barrels, against 1,317,800 barrels one year ago.

The Flour Market.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 3.—The Northwestern Miller says: The aggregate flour production of 12 mills last week was 83,833 bbls. A few firms are behind hand with orders and will run on the Fourth. The flour market is constantly improving. There is a very good domestic demand and the export orders received are encouraging. The export shipments for the week were 25,375 bbls. Patents for export are in good demand and one firm reports a sale of 2500 sacks of 280 pounds at a price equal to $5.25 at Boston, an advance of 15 cents over bidding figures. In bakers for export an advance of 6d is noted.

THE TAILORS' STRIKE.

New York Rioters Attack an Employer and His Family.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Abraham Rosenberg and a crowd of 30 other strikers visited the tailoring shop of Samuel Dillet in Eldridge-street to-day and began an indiscriminate attack upon Dillet, his wife and the workmen in the shop. Dillet defended himself with a revolver. He fired into the crowd and shot Rosenberg, inflicting a probably fatal wound.

The Boilermakers' Convention.

NEW YORK, July 3.—At to-day's meeting of the American Boilermakers' Association it was decided to organize local boards in the various cities which will have control of local affairs, such as matters of disturbances and trouble between employer and employe, such local boards to be under the control of the State committee. The report of the Apprenticeship committee was adopted. The next annual meeting will be held at St. Louis.

PAN AMERICAN COMMERCE.

Mr. Blaine Urges Subsidies for Postal and Cable Communication.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President Harrison yesterday sent to Congress a message transmitting a letter from Secretary Blaine upon the reports adopted by the Pan-American Conference respecting postal and cable communication between the United States and the ports of Central and South America, which accompanied the letter. In his letter the Secretary says:

"The report of the Committee on Communication upon the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea shows that Mexico and the republics of Central America, although containing a population and wealth that are but a fraction of our own, and with public revenues that do not compare with those of the United States, are doing more than this Government to maintain a commerce that is of much greater importance and advantage to us than it is to them.

"The representatives of countries bordering on the Pacific also recommend the cooperation of the various countries for the establishment of one or more subsidized steamship lines of the first-class between San Francisco and Valparaiso and intermediate points, each country to pay a share proportionate to its population. Between the United States and ports of Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, it is recommended that a fast subsidized line be established and an auxiliary slower line between the United States and Brazil, to stop at minor ports."

An Opinion Longer than It Is Broad.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—Judge Pennypacker to-day rendered an opinion affirming the conviction in the case of Barber Waldman which came up on appeal from a magistrate's fine for Sabbath shaving. The judge in a long opinion declares Sunday shaving is neither a work of necessity nor of charity.

The McKinley Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Senator Morrill, chairman of the Committee on Finance, said he would ask Monday to have the Tariff Bill taken up, as against the River and Harbor Bill, and expected that the Senate would grant his request. The committee will have several amendments to propose to the bill, none of them, it is said, of any great importance.

They'll all Whoop 'er up To-day.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The House and Senate have voted to adjourn from to-day until Monday. The President left Washington for Cape May this afternoon.

Freight Handlers Stop Work.

CINCINNATI, July 3.—The freight handlers on all the roads here except the Louisville and Nashville have stopped work because their demand for an increase in wages was not immediately granted. It is thought the men's demands will be granted or that some advance will be allowed.

Retaliation Begins in Cuba.

HAVANA, July 3.—The import duty on American flour has been increased from $4.46 to $5.63¾ per barrel. Spanish flour now comes into Cuba free.

KILLED BY MOSQUITOES.

TERRIBLE DEATH OF THE COOK OF A LUMBER CAMP.

So Disfigured by the Bites of Insects as to be Hardly Recognizable—Five Days in a Deserted Camp Without Food a Prey to Tiny Torments.

OTTAWA, July 3.—A terrible occurrence is reported from Pembroke. Last week Thomas Young, aged 23, of Clarke River, who was engaged as cook in one of the lumbering camps above Chapleau, feeling unwell, decided to go home.

On arriving at Chapleau he found that the train that he wished to take had not arrived, and thinking a walk might do him good determined to try it to the next station.

About half way he became so sick that he was obliged to seek refuge at a deserted camp. There he lay five days a prey to mosquitoes and black flies, unable to summon assistance and without anything to eat.

Finally he managed to drag himself two miles to the railway track, where he met the station men, who placed him on the train for home. He died shortly after reaching his destination, so disfigured by the bites of insects as to be hardly recognizable.

PRECOCIOUS CRIMINALS.

The Hamilton Hospital Temporarily Reorganized—Robbed on the Train.

HAMILTON, July 3.—Maria Thornton, a 10-year-old kleptomaniac, received a 4-years' sentence at the Police Court this morning for stealing two tricycles, and 12-year-old Martin Roos was sent to jail for 20 days for larceny of $15.

Dr. Olmsted has taken temporary charge of the Hospital and will reorganize the staff.

Thirty little ones from the Home of the Friendless were this morning taken to Elsinore, Senator Sanford's lakeside retreat for the waifs.

John Thompson, residing at Blackheath, came into the city this morning on the N. & N.W. train from the south minus his pocketbook. He reported to the police that when near Rymal Station the pocketbook was stolen. There was in it a check on the Marchants' Bank for $175 and $15 in cash.

KEPT THE BEST FOR THE LAST.

The Toronto Carnival Winds Up with a Fine Torchlight Procession.

TORONTO, July 4.—The firemen's tournament yesterday was participated in by eight outside brigades in addition to the city force. The tail end of the Carnival by all odds surpassed all preceding features, excellent as some of the latter were. The advance guard of the procession consisted of several hundred bicycles, their wheels being beautifully illuminated, and their journey along King and Yonge-streets was signalized by repeated plaudits from the citizens who lined the thoroughfares. Then followed various uniformed societies and a dozen allegorical floats surrounded by flaring flambeaus and illuminated by calcium lights.

Hon. Edward Blake has written to The Globe denying that he desires to resume the leadership of the Liberal party.

In the Court of Appeal yesterday a petition was lodged against the return of Mr. Sol. White, M.L.A. for North Essex. The petitioner is Thomas Coutts and the usual charges of bribery and corruption are alleged against his return.

F. C. Atwood, the man who was arrested in the Rossin House on June 20, on a charge of offering to buy counterfeit bank notes, and who was caught by a job put up by Provincial Detectives Roger and Greer, got a hearing in the Police Court yesterday and was sent for trial. Atwood met the detectives by appointment at the Rossin, and thinking they were dealers in "green goods" unbosomed himself. He said he had once disposed of $1500 bogus Bank of Hamilton bills which he bought from a dealer in New Orleans and easily passed off. He mentioned having bought that lot in New Orleans at 25 cents in the dollar, but would willingly give 85 cents for good stuff. He said he could take $1000 a month.

This evidence was, the Magistrate thought sufficient to send him over to the Criminal Court.

THEY'D BEEN DRINKING.

Two Montrealers Attempt Suicide While Under the Influence of Whisky.

MONTREAL, July 3.—The other afternoon, Mrs. Hamelin, living in Claude-street, ran into No. 1 station, and excitedly told Sergeant Beauchemin that her husband was going to commit suicide, and asked for help.

Two policemen were sent up to her house, where they saw the husband sitting with a rope around his neck, but it was not tight enough to inconvenience his respiration. He was however brought down to the station house, and at a private examination this morning said that he had been drinking freely, but that he had no intention of committing any such rash act. He was warned not to frighten his wife in that manner again and discharged.

A respectable looking man named James Johnstone, 45 years of age, and formerly of Prescott, attempted suicide at Allan's wharf this morning. He had his coat and vest off and was in the act of jumping into the river when Constable Thomas Robinson caught him just as he was taking what might have been the fatal jump. He was conveyed to the police station on the wharf. He has lately lost his wife and had been drinking.

One More for Mercier.

MONTREAL, July 3.—The election for the Assembly in Chicoutimi to-day has probably resulted in the success of Cote, the Mercier candidate. His majority over Petit with four polls to hear from is 152.

Mr. Ste. Marie's Election Contested.

MONTREAL, July 3.—The election to the Quebec Assembly of Mr. Ste. Marie (Lib.), who resigned his seat in the Commons to contest Napierville in the recent provincial elections, is to be contested on charges of corruption and fraud.

A Fatal Fall.

LEXINGTON, Va., July 3.—This morning at Buena Vista four men entered a cage for the purpose of descending into a mine, when without warning the car fell 140 feet to the bottom of the shaft. Eli Painter, John Montgomery and Lippe Snead were instantly killed. Floyd Marion, one of the party, is still alive.

Alleged Fraudulent Failure.

CHICAGO, July 3.—A creditors' bill has been filed in the Supreme Court which denounces the failure of the great jewelry house of Clapp & Davis as a gigantic fraud, leisurely planned and deliberately carried out for the purpose of defrauding the creditors. The court is asked to appoint a new receiver and order the principal judgment creditors to turn over to him all moneys collected by them on their preferred claims for distribution among the less fortunate unpreferred creditors.

SEWERAGE.

IT is fair to presume that the Town Council has determined to take up in earnest the matter of providing a system of sewerage for the town. If they had not come to the conclusion that sewers were necessary and that the work of construction should be pushed as rapidly as financial arrangements will permit, the Councillors would scarcely have adopted Councillor Langford's motion on Monday evening. It would be child's play to have a survey made, levels taken and plans prepared, and to have a committee appointed to consult a sanitary engineer on those plans as to the best system to adopt, unless there was a determination to proceed further, and the people will conclude that at last the matter has passed out of the "serious consideration" stage and has been seriously taken up.

So far as the necessity for sewers is concerned, it cannot be said that the matter has been taken up too soon. Every town the size of Peterborough requires a system of sewerage and it would be difficult to point out a good reason why this town could get along without them more than others. In fact the character of the soil in the greater part of the town is such that it might be said that sewers are especially necessary, and the need of them was clearly set out in the resolution the Board of Health adopted on motion of Mr. Edg. Pearse and forwarded to the Council. The only question that can arise is the financial one, and as the Councillors were unanimous in passing the resolution on Monday evening that question has no doubt been considered by them.

Having decided to proceed in the matter, the step taken on Monday evening was the proper one. Early in 1889 the Council appointed a committee to consider this question, of which Mr. Andrew McNeil was chairman. Mr. McNeil had communication with a number of the best engineers on the continent in regard to asking for competitive plans, and they all pointed out that the first requisite was an accurate survey of the town and proper plans. They also, it may be said, almost unanimously gave opinions opposed to the idea of asking for competitive plans, on the ground that able engineers, who would be fully employed, would not care to give the time necessary to prepare complete plans when the plans might not be accepted and they might thus lose their time and labor. However this may be, in having the survey made and the levels taken the Council has taken the right initiatory step. When a system has been adopted it may not be found wise to construct it all at once, and if so the work can be done gradually with the satisfaction of knowing that what work is done will be in the direction of a complete system.

YOUNG'S POINT.

The Bridge Needing Attention—Garden Party—Large Drive—Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

THE COUNTY BRIDGE.—It is a disgrace to the county to have the flooring of the iron bridge remain for such a length of time in such a dilapidated state. There are no fewer than five large holes, large enough for a horse to break its leg. The complaints are many from the travelling public about the want of attention to these small matters. None but the best timber should be used.

LARGE DRIVE OF LOGS.—The Dickson Lumber Co. have a very large drive of saw logs passing through here on route to their saw mills at Harwood.

PIANO TUNING.—Professor Waterford was up here last week and did quite a large business tuning pianos and organs in the village and neighborhood.

EXCURSION.—The steamer Cruiser excursion to Lindsay last Thursday was very poorly patronized—not what it should be—but our friend Capt Reynolds must try it again later on and advertise the thing well.

BOATS FOR STILL FISHING.—Mr. McFarlane is having some fishing punts built for the accommodation of his guests at the hotel.

BERRIES.—Owing to the want of rain the wild strawberries are dried up and the other berries will also follow suit if we don't get some rain soon.

GARDEN PARTY.—The North Smith Presbyterian Church had a grand outing on Friday last at the residence of Mr. Ed. Fitzgerald of North Smith. All kinds of amusements were got up for both sexes. The Rev. Mr. McEwen, the pastor, was not present as expected, having been called away on urgent business to Pittsburg, N. B. The Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lakefield, very ably supplied his place. Over fifty dollars was taken on the grounds to be applied for church purposes. The managers intend to hold these social gatherings annually, as it brings both young and old together to spend a pleasant time. The Indian band from Mud Lake was present and played well.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

DON'T WED FOR GOLD.

NOR DO WOMEN MARRY A MAN FOR HIS BIG BANK ACCOUNT.

The Essential of Happiness—Wisely Esteem and Affection Necessary in Happy Married Life—Misery and Folly of Mercenary Marriages.

To marry for money is one of the most unpardonable of blunders. The search for truth and the pursuit of happiness are in the judgment of most wise men, from Moses to Socrates, from Lord Bacon to Emerson, the two most intelligent aims in life. To seek for truth in a marriage which is in itself a mockery and a lie is useless; to pursue happiness in a home which one has sold one's freedom to obtain is quite as fruitless a task. It is stupid, it is ignorant, it is wicked to marry for money.

It is stupid from so many points of view; it is staking the permanent against the evanescent. Money is an uncertain commodity, a fluctuating value, and a man or a woman who exchanges his or her best chances of happiness for that flimsy, slippery coin is exchanging the true for the false, the real for the counterfeit. This is always presupposing that a happy marriage is the highest prize which the life lottery contains. If there be any cynic who doubts this—why, this argument is not for him.

The mistake with us is the great importance which is attached by all classes in this country to money. It is not a very dreadful thing to be poor. Want is grim, but poverty is not the ugliest thing I know in this world. When I shall speak of the poor in this short sermon I must be understood not to speak of the poverty-stricken men and women of our great cities, whose misery is our shame, but of the men and women who lack the luxuries of life, and must suffice themselves with its necessities.

MARRIAGE WITHOUT LOVE.

We sometimes hear of cases of mercenary marriages which the friends of the victim applaud as acts of heroic self-sacrifice. A fair young girl, in order to save her father from bankruptcy or her family from poverty, gives her hand to some rich man, to whom she cannot give her heart. Society pities her and applauds her, and a certain portion of it keeps a sharp lookout for the time when, the hand being already given, the heart is given to another. Oh, what a pitiful bankruptcy is this, worse, a thousand times worse than the darkest financial disaster which can overtake the family.

Or suppose the heart is never given. The woman has the courage and the power to play her part in this mock marriage through to the bitter end; gives up the hope of loving or strangles it in its birth, and lives at the side of her husband an honorable wife, the throne in her heart always empty, the hunger never satisfied; what then? Is there any happiness for husband, wife, or child in that household, think you? None; for the children of these loveless marriages are born without love to their dower, and without the inheritance of love what is life worth? This is no romance. Ask the man whose opinion on these matters you believe in—your clergyman who knows life at its best; your lawyers who see it at its worst; your physician, who sees it as it is, on its finite side—if this is not a living fact.

BITTER FRUIT.

I once knew a man who had sold himself to a rich woman, whom he did not love. He had been misinformed in regard to the amount of her fortune under her own control. The marriage did not please the trustees of the heiress, financial disaster swept away most of her property, and after ten years he found himself bound to a woman he did not love whose property only enabled them to live in the quietest manner in a corner of the great world of fashion to which they belonged. He had dropped out of the profession he had studied and was a mere cypher in the community. I remember no person that I had ever known that inspired me with the profound pity I felt for this spent worldling. I shall never forget the bitterness in his voice as he gave me the following advice:

"When you marry, marry for love, for you may get something worth having. Never marry for money, for you are likely to get as badly fooled as other people."

"WORKING-DAY" LOVE IS BEST.

The greatest thing in the world is love. There is no happiness, there is no content without love. We are born with the precious heritage of the mother love and the father love, but that sacred parental love does not suffice us; in the order of nature, it can shield but for a part of our pilgrimage through this world. In the Springtime of life every human heart yearns for its lover, as the bird calls and cries for its mate. The yearning for love is your birthright. Sell it not for a mess of pottage!

There are some mistaken people who will say to you, Love is not enough; love will not feed you, nor clothe you, nor keep a roof over your head. There is no spur like love, there is no incentive like it. It brings out the best in man and in woman. It makes the timid bold. A sparrow will wrangle with the boy who comes to steal her eggs or molest her young.

There is no better test to love than this very question. You say you love me; is your love holiday or working-day love? If holiday, it is like the false dawn of the Orient Omar tells of, and we will look for better things. It is suitable to the ballroom and to the tennis court; it passes the time of waiting for the sunrise. Working-day love for me—love that will make both of us stronger to work, braver to o'ercome, more patient to endure. If it is this love that your lover offers, be not afraid to take him and it to your heart for it will make the fire in the kitchen and even turn the roast upon the spit. Working-day love is what every woman hungers for, whether she marries a rich man or a poor man.

THE INCONSEQUENCE OF MONEY.

The wife of the young millionaire, if she be a true wife, is as anxious that her husband should work for her sake as is the wife of the poor poet. What our husbands work at is not of so much importance to us as is the spirit they put into their work. If young Crœsus, born with a fortune marries a woman who loves him, you will soon find her urging him to some work—statecraft, art, science, music, literature—it matters not what, but he must satisfy her ambition, he must become more than nature made him, for her sake. He must conquer new worlds of knowledge for her. If he sinks into the indolent material life of the ignorant rich and is satisfied with his fast horses, his famous yacht, his dinners and his wine parties, she is as unhappy as the wife of the poor poet who sees her husband letting slip the golden opportunities of the days that come but once.

I say again, money is of very little consequence. "Give me neither poverty nor riches," said the wisest old philosopher who ever wrote. None of the things best worth having in life cost money. Sunshine, blue sky, blue sea, health, beauty, genius, love, these are not to be bought with coin. Disease may be alleviated, gratitude may be won by wealth, but health and love, God's greatest gifts to man physical and man spiritual, are not to be bought or sold.

TRUE HEARTS AND FREE HANDS.

On the other hand, we must not ignore the necessities of existence. In our day and country two young people who can be satisfied with each other and a home where comfort and neatness are the only jewels, these young people, if they have health, strength and love, can win such a home for themselves.

If you have money, it is a very pleasant thing, but the pleasantest thing that you can do with it, after all, is to give it away.

In a household where the wife is unreasonable about her personal share of expenditure, and the husband ungenerous toward her, while he is too lavish in his own private spending of money, be sure these are but superficial symptoms of a deeper misunderstanding between the pair. The financial friction is not the cause of their coldness, but the result of it. If they truly love one another, the strife is in the other direction. Darby is determined that Joan shall have a new silk dress, while Joan is set upon the money being laid out on a Winter overcoat for Darby. Do not lift your doubting eyebrows, Miss Incredulous or Mr. Scep—— could quote chapter and verse to prove this assertion, not from the history of one, but a dozen happily married folk I have known.

"FAUNTLEROYING" UNDESIRABLE.

No matter what your means may be, bring up your children simply. Take a lesson from the education of Henry IV, the beloved King of France, of whose training an old chronicler saith:

"He was at first very difficult to raise, having had so many as seven or eight nurses. As soon as ever he was weaned the King gave him in charge of Susan de Bourbon, wife of Jean d'Albre, Baron de Moissens, who carried him to the Chateau de Coarasse in Bearn, amid the mountains and the rocks.

"His grandfather would on no account have him brought up with all the delicacy and consideration too often bestowed upon those of his rank. He forbade him either to be becomingly dressed or to be humored with any sort of toys or nonsense, or again to be in any way fawned to or remembered of his rank; for, said he, these things but serve to the puffing up of vanity, and rather to breed arrogance and pretension than noble or generous propensities. In fact, he required him to be clad and to be treated exactly as other children of his years. And he was made to run about and climb all day among the rocks, so as early to inure him to danger and fatigue, the better to impart a tone and vigor to his system, and which was, assuredly, above all things to be looked to in the nurture of a Prince, who was destined to go through and suffer so much for the recovery and for the sake of his country and his rights."

THE TRUE INDEPENDENCE.

Let your sons and daughters grow up truly independent, without those habits of luxury which when once formed, are so hard to break. Then they will be fitted for whatever life awaits them. If they are to find their life way among the rich, they will early learn the method of spending money; and if not they will find nothing painful in a life whose prosperity is not external.

This independence of material conditions is the true American independence, the very foundation of our national existence. If, in certain artificial social circles, it seems to us to be dying or dead, let it not shake our faith in this fundamental principle. It is the heritage of our people, and it behooves us to hand it down to our children even as our fathers bequeathed it to us.—Maud Howe.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

The Monmouth Phosphate Mine—Personal and Other News.

Correspondence of the Review.

WEDDED.—It is our pleasant duty this week to chronicle the nuptials of Mr. Isaac Lean and Mrs. Cameron, both of this place. The happy event was solemnized in St. George's church on Wednesday, June 25th, under the ministration of Rev. Canon Harding.

PROGRESS.—A barber shop is now an established feature of the progress of the northern metropolis. Mr. John Blewett is tonsorial artist and doesn't want to see clean faces till after they have passed through his hands.

MINING.—Two of our citizens paid a visit to the new phosphate mines in Monmouth last week. They report things as looking well for a successful opening. The deposit is large, of easy access and good quality. Nearly every day visitors are to be seen clambering the hill and returning with precious relics, while many come in with pockets loaded with rocks of all kinds, colors and shapes, the product of their own precious "finds." The disgust they show for the ignorance of the miners who pronounce the valuable pyrites, etc., "no good" is often laughable, to those who have no "prospects."

METHODIST.—The lately appointed student in charge of this mission made his entrance on his new field of labor last Sunday. We extend our cordial greeting to Mr. Garbutt and wish for him a successful term of labor.

BIRTH.—Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Kidd on the arrival of a son to shelter beneath the parental roof.

PICNIC.—A very successful picnic was held on Wednesday, June 25th, by the scholars of Clydesdale Sunday school. Mr. Caldwell occupied the chair. Speeches were delivered by the Chairman, Mr. Wm. Campbell and Mr. Rogers and songs and recitations were rendered very efficiently by the children, who were led in their singing by their popular teacher, Miss McConkey.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

RUSKIN'S INSANITY.

How One of the Great Men of the Earth Went Mad.

John Ruskin, who is honored in all civilized countries as the greatest writer upon architecture and art, has become insane; or, rather, his insanity has just been known, for as a matter of fact it may be said that Ruskin has been insane for several years.

His insanity may be attributed to one of two things—taint of heredity, of which there is no evidence, or intense work and application. The investigations of Mr. Ruskin's friends show that the overthrow of his reason and the wearing out of his mind directly resulted from the great amount of work that he did.

Death is a deplorable thing. Far more deplorable is the loss of reason. And yet thousands of people in Canada—probably hundreds in this city—are risking both life and reason without a thought of the terrible results that come from constant work. That headache is the first warning of a brain overworked, that sleepless night admonishes one to work less and rest more. We all know of men and women whose health is shattered simply because they wroked too hard or worried so much. "But I can't leave my business," exclaims one upon whose shoulders rests great responsibility. Ah, then you must use Paine's Celery Compound, that great restorative for the tired body and weary brain. It will build up the wasted tissues, restore vigor and vitality, steady the trembling nerves, clear the clouded brain, give restful and natural sleep, create appetite, tone up digestion, and make the user feel like a new person. Men and women prominent in business and social circles use it freely, and in the words of Mr. A. L. Auchmuty, 16 Lorne Avenue, Montreal, says, "It prevents the feeling of exhaustion and lassitude consequent upon a busy day."

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by Geo. A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

Run Over by the Band.

A young lad by the name of Joe. Sharpe, son of Mr. John Sharpe, had a fortunate escape from serious injury at the garden party at Mrs. W. Dixon's last evening. With some companions he was playing among the trees and bushes and dashed across the roadway just as the 'bus with the band on board was starting away. The lad was knocked down by the horses and the heavy waggon passed over one of his legs. Fortunately no bones were broken, but the little fellow was badly frightened.

The Protestant Home.

The committee of management of the Peterborough Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for June:—Miss Nicholls, black currant preserves; Mrs. Innes, mantle; Baptist S. S., flowers; Mr. Minore, biscuits; Mr. A. Watt, flowers; Mr. E. Pearce, sr., basket of provisions; Mr. D. Moore, milk daily; Miss Wallis, cake; Mr. C. McGill, beans and apples; Mrs. Collins, basket of sundries; Y. M.C.A., papers; a friend, milk daily; Mrs. Ferguson, three lambrequins; a friend, one dozen bread tickets.

Young People of Four Churches.

The lawn social which was held on the beautiful grounds surrounding the residence of Mrs. M. Dixon last night by the Endeavor Union was a great success, financially and socially. The beautiful grounds were gaily lighted with Chinese lanterns while numerous tables where refreshments or flowers were offered to the passer-by dotted the grounds. The young ladies from the Endeavor Societies of St. Paul's, George-st., Charlotte-st. and the Baptist churches were present in good numbers and presided behind the tables. One pleasant result of the union of the societies was noticed last night, in the sociability and friendly intercourse which it encouraged between the people of the different congregations. The Y.M.C.A. band was present and discoursed several pleasing selections during the evening, which were greatly enjoyed by the many who were promenading the beautiful lawn or the young ladies who were sweeping in the shekels behind the tables. Ice cream, strawberries, lemonade, cake and flowers were offered in abundance and found ready purchasers. As a result a goodly sum will be realized by the Union.

A BURGLAR'S LUNCH.

A Bold Burglar Enters the Store of Mr. C. H. Moore, but Carries away Little Booty.

The burglars crossed the Otonabee last night and operated in Peterborough's promising surburb, Ashburnham. Similar to the Muckleston burglars of last week, the nocturnal visitors of last night were not apparently after quantity, but simply wished to "pick up" a few little things. The grocery store of Mr. C. H. Moore, Elizabeth-st., was the scene of their operations. The goods which they carried off do not amount to much in value, but the cool nerve and bold manner in which the job was done makes it of interest.

It was about two o'clock this morning when a crash of breaking glass awoke some of the villagers residing in the vicinity of Mr. Moore's store. The attention of the Messrs. Swanson was attracted by the noise and upon investigating they saw a man in the grocery store. They immediately awakened Mr. George Mitchell, who lives close by, and then instead of bearding the lion in his den they went after Constable Craig. Upon their return the man was gone, having walked away, so it is said, in the direction of town.

The burglar, if there was only one, was a daring fellow. He first attacked the shop from the rear and broke into the window that opened into the back shed. Seeing that he would have to face a door after he got inside the shed, he went around to the side door and succeeded in prying off one of the boards. But this was too much like work, so he left the side and went around to the front and smashed the glass in the front door, pried off an iron bar that was on the inside and crawled through the opening. Having got within he turned a soda biscuit box on end and, opened a couple of boxes of sardines, sat down to lunch. Having finished his meal, the fellow gathered up a few cans of sardines, which were evidently to his taste, selected some tobacco and taking about fifty cents in coppers from the till left the store. A box of red herring was also found on the sidewalk outside, the midnight visitor having found them too burdensome to carry.

It is unfortunate that the thief was not caught when such an opportunity presented itself. There is no clue at present that would lead to his identification.

In the Grounds

A Back Lake's Comfort.

Soon the exodus to the back lakes will begin. A lot of people go up the lakes for comfort. It is to be hoped they find what they are looking for. Given a nice camping spot, good water handy, a shady spot to lounge, good canoeing water, plenty to eat and good company the time can be put in fairly easy. There is one element of comfort that fills the bill—Hawley's teas, just the tea that campers appreciate. Send your outing order to Hawley Bros., George-st. d148

Death of Rev. Richard Clarke.

Rev. Richard Clarke, late Chairman of the Bracebridge District of the Toronto Methodist Conference, died at the residence of his son at Millbrook on July 1st, aged 69 years. Mr. Clarke commenced his ministerial labors in Kingston in 1851, and continued in the active work of the ministry until within a few weeks of his death. He was pastor some years ago of the Norwood Methodist church and was also stationed in Millbrook. The funeral took place yesterday at Lindsay, the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. John Shaw, of Toronto.

What Might Have Resulted in a Serious Crime.

A gentleman who was possessed of means and being in the habit of carrying a large amount of cash was sauntering his way home. He was accosted at the corner of George and Simcoe-sts. (police not present) by a gentleman who hailed him and asked if he were going home, this being between 9.20 and 10 o'clock p.m. He answered "Yes" and walked as far as the Lock Works, placed his hand to his hip pocket, pulled out a list of prices and handed it to him, he being a brother grocer, stating at the same time it would be impossible to live if w j morrow continued selling goods at the prices he was, but after considering he paid cash for his goods, secured discounts, it would be impossible for them to compete. d3

Admission 10c.,

Under the Bright Electric.

There was another happy and successful gathering in the beautiful grove at St. Joseph's last evening, when a social was held in aid of the new hospital. There was a large attendance and a most pleasant evening was enjoyed. The Fire Brigade Band was in attendance and enlivened the evening with several excellent selections. Four electric lights brilliantly illuminated the grounds and enabled games to be carried on the same as in day time. Refreshments tables and booths had been erected and found ready patronage, while the dancing platform was also a popular attraction for the young people. The drawing for the bed room suite came off and Dr. Moher held the lucky number, while Miss Eno, of Ashburnham, secured the gold watch for having sold the greatest number of tickets. A large sum was raised by the picnic and social for the hospital fund.

The Water Was Wet.

Messrs. A. Turner and Bunt, of Hall, Innes & Co., received an involuntary immersion in the cool waters of Little Lake yesterday evening about five o'clock by their canoe accidentally capsizing. They were towing alongside a small steamer at the time when their light bark played them the little trick which fortunately resulted in nothing more than an untimely bath.

The Storm at the Lakes.

Several gentlemen who returned this morning from the back lakes report that the storm of rain and electricity which was experienced here also passed over the lakes. At Clear Lake the rain was accompanied by a regular hurricane, which, had it taken in the cottages in its course, would have made sad havoc and destruction of the summer resorts. Fortunately the sweep of the wind storm was comparatively limited. At Clear Lake the roof of a settlers' house near the lake shore was lifted off the walls and literally carried on the gale and dropped into the water of the lake. Large boulders and rocks were also lifted on the wings of the tempest and thrown into the lake, while the saw logs were raised from the water and mixed like match wood. Among the cottages no particular damage was done by the rain or lightning, although at Boschink a man on Mr. Graham Weir's island was stunned by the lightning which struck a cross-cut saw which laid on the rock near him. He recovered, however, and no serious results followed.

Another Letter from Mr. J. G. Weir.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to defend myself against the attacks of the Examiner and its lieutenant, Mr. J. B. McWilliams.

The Examiner in last Wednesday's issue stated that I personally promised Mr. Biezard my support, and also promised Mr. D. H. Moore and Mr. J. B. McWilliams that I would support Mr. Biezzard, and that I frequently visited Mr. McWilliams' office and expressed my anxiety for Mr. Biezzard's election. Now, I have only been in Mr. McWilliams' office on two occasions since last February, and by his request both times. About three weeks before the election he met me on the street and requested me to call at his office before I went home. I did so. While I was there he said to me:—"Well, Graham, how is the election going down your way?" I replied, not so much excitement as you have here, and that at this season of the year I am very busy and have not been at any of the meetings. Mr. Biezard is a man I respect very much, and I have always been pleased that we have two members of Parliament in Otonabee, but you know that at all of our primary, district and County Orange Lodge meetings we all pledged ourselves to support the Equal Rights party, and of course I will do so. Mr. McWilliams replied; "Oh, I don't know as that makes much difference. I think we have a right to support who ever we like." He then commenced to abuse Mr. Kidd, when I replied I do not know Mr. Kidd, as yet, but for many years he has had the confidence and respect of the Reform party and it is strange how he became so bad all at once. However, I must and will support the Equal Rights party, for I have confidence that their choice will do all right. When I was leaving, he said to me, "Well, think it over and if you can change your mind and come out and support Mr. Biezard we will make it worth your while." But I did not want his offer. A few days after the County Orange Lodge meeting at Lakefield, and just before the District Orange Lodge meeting at Nassau, I met Mr. W. A. Stratton at the post office, and he told me Mr. McWilliams requested me to call at his office. I went to his office; Mr. Hazlitt was there; and after he left Mr. McWilliams says to me: "I was thinking over what passed at the Lakefield meeting about Alexander Hamilton and I think if I was you I would not allow any discussion on it at the District meeting next Tuesday evening at Nassau, now that the election is over it won't do any good." This is all the conversation I had with Mr. McWilliams, and as the Examiner and Mr. McWilliams have introduced matters entirely foreign to the subject I think I might be excused for here stating why Mr. McWilliams wishes to injure me and falsify my statements. He finds he can neither coax nor coerce me to assist him out of the troubles his ungentlemanly conduct has placed him in. He is dissatisfied because I did not assist him to influence the jurors in his trial with Mr. Colbeck. When in the Orange Hall he showed me a list of the names of both Grand and Petit jurors and wished me to be at the Court and endeavor to influence as many as I could in his favor; but I did not do so and therefore gained his illwill with a vengeance. As to Mr. D. H. Moore, I am surprised that he would lend himself to so unworthy a cause as to prop up the false and injurious statements of either the Examiner or Mr. J. B. McWilliams. I had a short argument with Mr. Moore at the post office the day Mr. Hardy addressed the electors in Peterborough, but Mr. Biezard's name was not once mentioned, and this was the only time I spoke to Mr. Moore during the whole contest. As to Mr. Biezard, I cannot believe the statement of the Examiner unless I see it over Mr. Biezard's own signature.

Thanking you for space,
I remain yours truly,
J. GRAHAM WEIR.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must not think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

BUFFALO, July 3.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon Murderer William Kemmler was brought into the Supreme Court for re-sentence. Judge Childs said:

"Kemmler, the courts of last resort, both in the state and nation, have decided against all appeals in your case."

Kemmler (interrupting): "Yes, sir."

"But little remains to be said," continued Judge Childs. "I hope you have had time to consider the enormity of your offence, and to recognize the justice of your conviction."

Kemmler: "Yes, sir."

And, continued the court: "It is also trusted that you will use the remaining time in preparations for your death. It is the judgment of the court that sentence in your case will be carried out at Auburn prison in the manner provided by law during the week beginning August 4, and may God have mercy on your soul."

Kemmler was taken back to Auburn tonight.

Entertaining the Cabinet Ministers—Scottney's Body Found.

HALIFAX, July 3.—The Junior Liberal-Conservatives will entertain Ministers Tupper, Colby, Haggart and Dewdney with an excursion on the harbor to-morrow.

The body of Frances Scottney was found in the Northwest Arm to-day.

Wm. McCarthy, a young man, was arrested to-day. He wanted to commit suicide by jumping into the moat of the citadel.

Ten blue jackets deserted from the warship Comus to-day.

Ellen Day of Jedore will sue James Wood of Port Medway, mate of the schooner Spartan, for breach of promise of marriage.

Passage of the Lottery Bill.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 3.—The Lottery bill came up in the House to-day with the Senate amendment adding $250,000 to the amount of the yearly license fee. The amendment was concurred in by a vote of 68 to 25, two of the anti-lottery men voting for concurrence and the others against it. This fixes the yearly license fee at $1,250,000. The bill now goes to the Governor, the lottery people having decided that to be the proper course in order to prevent any question hereafter. They expect Governor Nicholls to veto it, but are confident that both houses will over-ride the veto. The Governor must return this bill by Monday next. The session ends July 12.

A SOUTHERN CLOUDBURST.

Traffic on the Texas Pacific Railway Interrupted—A Remarkable Flood.

VAN HORN, Tex., July 3.—A remarkable cloudburst on the mountains has stopped traffic temporarily on the Texas Pacific Railway to-day. The noon train out of El Paso eastward bound had three coaches, a sleeper and the special palace car Mayflower, containing the Frank Leslie's Weekly Newspaper party, including Russell Harrison. It was moving along about 8 to-night at high speed when at this point it suddenly ran into an enormous flood of water spreading for over eight miles along the valley and inundating the entire town. The train was instantly slowed, but the flood from the mountains increased so rapidly that the ties were washed out from under the track and the train stopped to await developments. The extraordinary nature of the cloudburst is shown by the fact that 15 minutes before the train approached Van Horn the track was perfectly dry. Before this there had been no rain at Van Horn for many months, though there had been occasional smaller cloudbursts. The Leslie party remains on the car, as the track is cut off from the mainland by the water, the roaring of which can be [illegible] miles.

Had a Right to Interfere.

SARNIA, July 3.—Those who were in the neighborhood of the Grand Trunk Station when the excursion train was leaving on Wednesday evening last, were treated to a bit of romance in real life. A family party, consisting of father, brother and daughter, the latter about 16, had come in from Petrolea on the excursion. When the time came to return the girl refused to start, saying that her relatives did not treat her well and that she would not go back home. While the dispute was going on a good-looking young colored man joined the party and took the girl's side of the question, saying that she should not be forced to go with her relatives if she did not wish to do so. When asked by the father what business he had to interfere, the mulatto pulled out a marriage certificate which showed that John Holland of Petrolea had that morning been joined in the bonds of matrimony to Carrie Webb of the same place. The disgusted father and brother gave up the discussion and entered the train, while the newly-wedded husband started up town with his bride.

A New Star.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—In signing the bill admitting Idaho as a state to-day the President agreeably disappointed a number of people in that State. The President found that the law ordained that a new star should be placed upon the American flag for each new State on the Fourth of July succeeding its admission to the Union. Forty-three stars are therefore due upon the flag tomorrow. The bill admitting Wyoming to statehood has not yet reached the President.

A 'Frisco Fraud.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—The Examiner to-day devoted 13 columns to an exposure of alleged fraudulent methods in furnishing Government supplies to the Mare Island Navy-yard. Secretary Tracy has ordered the payment of the fraudulent bills stopped pending further investigation.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.

WHAT MEN OF BRAINS HAVE ACCOMPLISHED SINCE 1800.

The Principal Discoveries and Inventions of the Present Century—Will the Next Hundred Years Witness as Many? A Wonderful Record.

The following is a chronological resume of the principal discoveries and inventions of our century:

Electricity especially has been put under contribution by the inventive genius of our investigators. At the moment that we were entering upon the nineteenth century, Volta had just invented the electric pile (1799). In 1820, Oersted, the Dane, discovered magnetic electricity, the law of which were soon determined by Ampere, and, in the same year, Arago discovered the principal of electric telegraphy, which was afterward improved by Morse, in 1838, and by Breguet, in 1845, etc.

In 1843, Bunsen a German, invented a new electric battery, and two years afterward Elkampton and Ruolz discovered electro-metallurgy.

Along about 1832, Faraday discovered electrical induction, upon the principles of which Rhumkorff, the German, established the coil that bears his name.

In 1854, Boursenl discovered the principle of the telephone, which was improved by Reiss in 1860, and afterward by Bell, and especially, since 1876 by Edison, who also, at about the same epoch, improved the phonograph, the first idea of which belongs to Leon Scott, a Parisian proofreader, who suggested it in 1856.

Between 1841 and 1878 are embraced the discovery of and improvements in electric lightning, and along about 1881 the French engineer Deprez conceived the idea of transmitting any sort of motive force to any distance by means of an electric wire.

While waiting, then, until the fairy shall have dethroned steam, let us register what has been accomplished through the latter: The establishment of railways after the manufacture of powerful locomotives had been rendered possible (1832) by the invention of the tubular boiler by the French engineer Sequin (1828), and then the establishment of steamers, to which, so long ago as 1838, was applied the screw invented by Dallery, of Amiens, in 1803.

While we are on the subject of the methods of locomotion, let us say that aerostation likewise has made great progress, although the last word will not have been said in regard to this until the question of the steering of balloons, which has taken a long step in advance through the experiments of Messrs. Krebs and Renard, has been absolutely solved.

Cork jackets have been improved, and, at at the present time, there is a great deal being said about submarine boats, like that of the inventor Goubet, whose wonderful experiments a short time ago astonished the spectators assembled at the roadstead of Cherbourg.

In an absolutely different line of ideas, let us mention the silk loom invented by Jacquard between 1790 and 1801; the Davy lamp, which dates back to 1815, and which has rendered mine accidents less frequent: the sewing machine, for which Thimmonier, of Amplepuis (Rhone), took out a patent in 1830, and which, since improved by the American inventors, Walter, Hunt, Howe, Singer, Seymour, etc., and by the Frenchmen Maquaire, Hurter, and Hantin, etc., and, to some extent also by the mechanics of all countries has come into so common use; and finally, the rotary cylinder press, invented by Marinoni in 1867, and which prints 40,000 copies of a newspaper per hour.

In optics, Fresnel, along about 1820, improved lighthouses through the use of lenses that now bear his name, and in 1839 Niepce and Daguerre invented photography. We shall some day return to the history of this admirable discovery and the chronological series of improvements that have been introduced, but for the present let us recall that one of the last of these in date is instantaneous photography, that is to say, the possibility of obtaining an image in 1-700 and in 1-1500 of a second even, according to a report ready by Mr. Marey to the Academy of Sciences in 1882.

In agriculture, Dombasle, in 1822, improved the plow, in recent years the English, and especially the Americans, have conceived the idea of applying steam to the operation of all agricultural machines—plows, seed planters, mowers, etc.; finally, Messrs. Remy and Gehin, taking up an idea that Jacobi, a German monk, conceived during the last century, developed the science of pisciculture, which Mr. Coste has succeeded in extending along our coasts.

A certain number of discoveries have been made in the line of chemistry: In 1811, Gay Lussac discovered iodine, in 1826 Balard discovered bromine, and in the following year Wohler obtained aluminum, which, later on, Sainte-Claire-Deville succeeded in manufacturing in a purer state and at a lower cost. Finally, we may mention Chevreul's and Berthelot's discoveries in organic chemistry, and those of Boussingault and Payen, who created organic chemistry, and then the labors of Claude Bernard in physiology and those of Pasteur on ferments, microbes, and viruses.

Thus, while certain savants endeavor, through science, if not to diminish the number of troubles that afflict poor mankind, at least to lessen the effects of them, other men seek methods of destroying people in the most rapid manner, when occasion occurs. Diplomats and politicians justify the researches of these men by constantly repeating that in time of peace it is necessary to prepare for war. Let us accept their dictum, and since, even in our country, savants and artisans can attend to their labors only under the protection of guns, let us record the improvements in modern artillery by the German Krupp and the Frenchmen Reffye and De Bange, and the improvements in the rifle by Dreyse, Mauser, Remington, and Lebel. Let us not forget the invention of smokeless powder nor the use of new explosive substances (such as gun-cotton, dynamite, panclastite, roburite, etc., each more terrible than the other) in the manufacture of frightfully destructive weapons, such as bombs, shells, and the torpedo of more recent invention.

All these discoveries have an importance which, it is true, varies in degree, but it seems to us very difficult to classify them according to importance; at all events, it is not we who shall endeavor to do it.

Our readers already suspect us of having a marked predilection for certain of these discoveries, and if, in such a classification, we should chance to place photography, for example, upon a par with telegraphy and telephony, railways and submarine boats, phonography and vaccine virus, they would perhaps accuse us of taking sides.—La Science en Famille.

A Heart Wanted.

"Give you my word," a lover said,
"You make my pulses leap!"
"Oh!" said the maid, "you're very kind;
But I prefer, if you don't mind,
That you would give what you don't find
So very hard to keep."

Prof. Brooks' Comet.

GENEVA, N.Y., July 3.—Prof. Brooks' comet is now in favorable position for telescopic observation in the evening. Its discoverer states that the comet now forms a triangle with the stars Zeta and Eta in the Big Dipper, is moving slowly westward and on July 18 will be midway between the above stars. The comet has a bright nucleus and a short tail and remains above the horizon the [illegible] night.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

'Tis An Old Saying

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak to-day. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. We are going to quote prices that are lower than asked by any other dealer. If you are wanting or will want in this line this year, you cannot afford to ignore this opportunity.

THE BOLD GIRL-ENTICERS.

A WICKEDNESS THAT EMANATES FROM NEW YORK CITY.

Connecticut Towns Ravaged by Vile New York Agents—Is Blanche Douglas Alive? Amelia Glave and Ten Other Girls Decoyed from Their Homes.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Amelia Glave, the 13-year-old daughter of Merchant Tailor Charles Glave of Southington, Conn., is lost in New York, and Fuller's detective agency has several men in the search. Little Amelia is supposed to have been abducted from her home, and the residents of Southington are excited over her disappearance to such a pitch that if those who are responsible for her absence are caught it will certainly go hard with them. What particularly arouses the feelings of Connecticut people is the fact that of late it has been discovered that the suburban towns of the Nutmeg State are being overrun by vile characters from the metropolis who seek to entice innocent girls from their humble rural homes.

Amelia Glave was the youngest daughter of Merchant Glave of Southington, and up to June 11 was at her home the pet of her family. The girl wore her brown hair in bangs and being well developed and intelligent for her age, in her attire of terra-cotta fabric presented an attractive appearance. On May 11 the girl disappeared and two days afterward her parents learned that she was seen in company with a strange man and a flashily-dressed woman going toward the railroad depot. The police were asked to search for little Amelia, and from the description of the man given as last seen with the girl they traced an Italian tailor named Kutchnelli of No. 83 Elizabeth-street, this city. Kutchnelli was arrested and taken to the Tombs Police Court, but was discharged for the lack of evidence. The Italian admitted he had seen Amelia while working in Southington, but declared he knew nothing of her disappearance from home. At this stage Mr. Glave decided to push the search for his daughter to the utmost, and six men and one woman have been following every clue. At present it is believed the child is concealed in this city.

Chief Fuller has also been called upon to solve the mysterious disappearance of two other Connecticut girls. Both of these are said to be the daughters of prominent families. One girl, described as about 17 year of age, left her home in Meriden a week ago, and was last seen in company with a young man of the town. This party, however, it was ascertained, was only in the girl's company about half an hour, when she left him to keep an appointment, as she said.

The other missing one is a precocious and handsome girl, only 16 years of age, and the daughter of well-to-do people in Norwalk. She left her home about 9 o'clock on June 2, and was last seen drinking a glass of soda water in company with a well-dressed young woman she met at the railroad station of the New Haven line. In both the latter cases the descriptions given of the well-dressed young woman seen in company with the missing ones, curiously enough, turns out to be identical. Then to render matters the more remarkable it has been declared that the well dressed woman was recognised as none other than the notorious Blanche Douglass, the woman accused as having been an accessory in the death of Jenny Cramer. There may be some error in the identity of the woman figuring in the present cases, as the papers some time ago published the death of Blanche Douglass, of Jenny Cramer murder notoriety.

That an infamous traffic had been in operation of late, particularly along the manufacturing towns of Connecticut, Chief Fuller is satisfied from the developments he has unearthed in working on the present cases in his hands. He said to a reporter yesterday: "I have found since working on the case of little Amelia Glave and the other two missing girls that undoubtedly agents of disreputable dens in this city have been operating among the suburban towns of Connecticut for victims. I already have learned enough to show at least 10 girls whose ages average from 14 to 18 years have been enticed here. Formerly these agents depended upon their traffic in young girls between Brooklyn, Jersey City and Boston, but the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has driven them to Connecticut. In the case of the Glave girl I am pretty certain I shall recover her before many days. She was traced to New Haven and to this city and her youth will no doubt keep her abductors from immediately using her for their purpose, fearing detection. The claim that the woman who was seen last with the girls we are now in search of is Blanche Douglass I am myself dubious about, as I read of her death. But the people who saw this woman also had a good look at Blanche when she was in Connecticut in the trial of the Malley boys for the murder of Jennie Cramer and they claim there is no mistake."

Pugilist Brennan Dead.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Wm. Brennan, the pugilist who was injured in a sparring match last night with Frank Girard, died at 4 o'clock this morning. Brennan was matched to meet Jack Hanley at Buffalo in a finish fight which was to have occurred this week. Besides Girard the police also arrested Reddy Gallagher, the referee, Sailor Brown, Brennan's second, and Frank Whitaker, Girard's second.

An autopsy showed death was caused by hemorrhage of the brain, superinduced by shock. Girard when he heard of Brennan's death broke down completely and cried.

Salt Lake's Opera House Burned.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 4.—The Grand Opera House was burned here last night. Loss $80,000. Adjacent property was threatened and for a time a big fire was feared. Thousands of people thronged the streets.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND PETITION PRESENTED TO PARLIAMENT.

Lord Salisbury Announces that the Anglo-German Agreement was Signed Tuesday—The Paris Nihilists' Defence—A British Steamer Sunk.

LONDON, July 4.—Lord Salisbury announced in the House of Lords to-day that the Anglo-German agreement was signed Tuesday. He tabled a bill affirming the cession of Heligoland. He said the agreement made the inhabitants of Heligoland subject to German laws, a special exception being made in the case of those now living who would not be subject to conscription. The bill passed the first reading and the second reading was fixed for Thursday next.

Mr. Bryce presented in the House of Commons to-day a petition from 15,000 inhabitants of Newfoundland asking Parliament to remedy the grievances of the Newfoundland fishermen.

In reply to a question Sir James Fergusson said the Government did not recognize the alleged treaty rights of the French to catch lobsters and to establish lobster factories in Newfoundland.

Replying to another question Sir James said the Government could not confirm the report that Russian troops were moving toward the Armenian frontier to compel the payment of the Turkish war indemnity.

The British steamer Regina, bound for London, has been sunk by a collision with a local steamer, the Main, near Calcutta. The Main was slightly damaged.

PARIS, July 4.—The Temps says the British Government has accepted the principle of compensation to France for the British protectorate of Zanzibar. The nature of the compensation is not fixed.

The trial of the Nihilists arrested here some time ago was opened to-day. The prisoners maintained they were solely engaged in the study of chemistry and that they were the victims of an agent provocateur who has disappeared.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 4.—A serious conflict between Turks and Montenegrins has just occurred on the shores of the Lake of Soutari. The Turks were the agressors.

The British charge d'affaires has protested against the danger of allowing the reign of anarchy in Armenia to continue.

BERLIN, July 4.—Prince Bismarck has declined to contest Kaiserslauten for the Reichstag.

CRACOW, July 4.—The remains of the Polish poet Mickiewiecz, which had been removed from their resting-place at Montmorenci, France, were interred here to-day. The ceremony was witnessed by deputations representing the whole of Europe and one deputation from America. Count Tarnowski delivered a touching oration. In the funeral procession were numerous bands, the members of which were dressed in Polish national costumes. The crypt where the remains were placed was filled with wreaths. The occasion was unmarred by any unpleasant incident.

BANKERS WEARY OF LIFE.

Strange Suicides of Three Men of Money in the States.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 4.—Reuben McComber, a wealthy banker aged about 60, committed suicide Monday night at Three Rivers. He retired about 8 o'clock, and rising about 9 told his wife he was going out. Half an hour later his body was found hanging in an outhouse, where he strangled himself with a piece of common twine. Mr. McComber was a director in the Three Rivers National Bank and worth perhaps $50,000. No reason is known for his suicide.

PITTSBURG, July 3.—Nicholas Grattan von Bonnhorst, Secretary and Treasurer of the People's Savings Bank in this city, shot himself through the right temple at 4 o'clock this morning at his home at Ingram Station. The cause of the suicide is not known, but it is believed to have been fear that a new Board of Directors just elected intended making a general change of officers. The bank officials say his accounts are straight. Von Bonnhorst was 35 years of age and single. He was a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in this section.

TACOMA, Wash., July 3.—H. H. Passmore, cashier of the Security Savings Bank of Tacoma, committed suicide this morning. He was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Milwaukee.

MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE.

Colorado Murderers Go Free, Owing to a Legislative Blunder.

DENVER, July 4.—James Medley and James Savage, the latter colored and both of them cold-blooded murderers, were set free yesterday. After they had been convicted, sentenced and the scaffold erected for their execution it was discovered that through a blunder of the last legislature there was at the time the crimes were committed no law in Colorado against murder. The State attorney argued that inasmuch as this was true the prisoners had never been in jeopardy of their lives and could be tried again. Judge Rising failed to take this view and the prisoners were released. Upon the advice of their lawyers both started for the State line.

A Trunk Mystery at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, July 4.—Another trunk mystery has developed in the Grand Island murder. Last January a farmer drove up to a hotel in Niagara street kept by Jacob Roesch and left a trunk and a pair of boots, saying they would be called for by a man who worked for him on Grand Island. This trunk was never called for. Last fall a young man stayed a few days at the hotel. He gave his name as Chapman, and on leaving said he was going to work for a widow on a farm on Grand Island. He wore a pin and a masonic emblem similar to one worked on the trunk. Late last night Detective Lyon took away the trunk. It was found to contain articles of wearing apparel and letters addressed to Chapman. The question now is whether Chapman and Meisner are not the same persons.

Life Saved by a Silver Dollar.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 4.—When Edward Schottman, drunk and deranged, shot and fatally wounded Michael Milgrum last night, he turned before killing himself and fired directly at Mrs. Johanna Elsner, who happened to be on the street. Milgrum will die, but an examination of Mrs. Elsner's injury showed that her life had been saved in a peculiar manner. She had a silver dollar in a thin pocket-book in her dress pocket. The ball, a 32 caliber, struck this piece and split it in two, barking the skin at the edge of the dollar. The [illegible] of the coin was found by the doctor directly over the femoral artery. Had it not been for the dollar the wound would have been fatal.

Shut Up for Seven Years.

PAW PAW, Mich., July 4.—James A. Jacobs, a prosperous farmer living near Lawrence, seven years ago became provoked at a pair of fine Norman colts and shut them up on a hard floor of his stable, vowing that they should never be allowed to run out again. All these years he has kept them tied up, never once allowing them outdoor exercise. The matter has become common talk among the people, but none of the neighbors dared to interfere on account of Jacobs' violent temper. Yesterday, however, the sheriff and his deputy visited the place and found the animals in the stalls. Their feet are grown out and their hair is long and grown grey. Jacobs promised to liberate the animals.

A Fatal Saloon Quarrel.

BUFFALO, July 4.—Thomas Wilson was shot and fatally wounded by an Italian named Giallelli. It was the result of a saloon quarrel. Giallelli has fled.

ANOTHER FRENCH OUTRAGE.

A French Naval Force Destroys Nets, Robs Lobster Pots, Etc.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 4.—Trustworthy news reached here of further French outrages at Port au-Port on June 23. The facts, telegraphed by Mr. Morrison, Mr. Baird's lawyer, state that two French fishing vessels were there and forty Newfoundlanders were seining. The captain of a French warship came, seized and carried away one seine, destroyed another, and drove all the Newfoundland vessels out of the harbor. The French fishermen cut the lobster trawls and robbed the traps. The indignation of the Newfoundlanders is great. Prince George is expected here on July 19 in the Thrush with the Bellerophon and Buzzard

TORONTO TOPICS.

Three More Election Contests — Police Magistrate Denison's Salary.

TORONTO, July 5.—Petitions were filed in the Court of Appeal yesterday against the return of three more members of the Assembly. R. C. Sears of Grover, Frontenac, shoemaker, protests the election of Hugh Smith (Opposition) in that riding, on the ground that he is not a British subject and that his election was secured by personal bribery and corruption. The election of W. A. Charlton (Government), South Norfolk, is protested by Benjamin Birdsell, of Haughton, Norfolk, farmer, on the ground of bribery and corruption. Similar reasons are advanced in the petition of Thomas Moffatt, Pembroke, in Renfrew, against the election of Arunah Dunlop, in the north riding.

At the Reform Club yesterday W. T. R. Preston was presented with a gold watch and chain and a purse of $1000.

The Toronto Incandescent Electric Light Company have sent notice to the Mayor that they will proceed to lay underground wires in ten days.

Police Magistrate Denison has been refused payment of his June salary.

LOWEST OF CRIMINALITY.

Ohio has a Bad Man in the Person of Wash Roly.

LOGAN, O., July 5.—Court convened here to-day for the purpose of trying Wash Roly indicted for incest. After some trouble the jury was filled and the case commenced with the daughter, a pretty little lady of 20 years, on the stand as prosecuting witness. Her testimony was given in a plain, straightforward manner. She said the act of criminal intimacy commenced when she was 15½ years of age and continued at divers times until she became pregnant in September, 1888, the child being born in June, the year following, and is now one year old. She swore positively that she had never been intimate with any man except her father. The counsel for the defence did not shake her testimony in the cross-examination in the least.

A FAKE AT THE FALLS.

Smith Backs Out and Soules Takes an Exciting Swim.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 4.—Samuel Smith, the Lewiston (N.Y.) boatman who was to go through the whirlpool rapids to-day in a row boat with John L. Soules of North Muskegon, Mich., had an involuntary spasm of good sense and backed out at the last minute. Soules undertook to swim through and at 3.18 entered the water on the Canada side about 75 feet above the cantilever bridge. When near the whirlpool rapids incline railway a large wave washed him into an eddy near the shore and he scrambled out. His left knee and his foot were badly cut by contact with a rock.

Quebec Jottings.

QUEBEC, July 4.—A sturgeon weighing 84 pounds was brought to port yesterday morning by the steamer Peterin, Captain Baker.

A young child of T. Robitaille of St. Thomas, only 20 months old, died in great agony the other day after swallowing a solution of potash, which had been left in a bowl on a table.

The writs have been issued for the new election in the county of Montmorenci, rendered necessary by Hon. Charles Langelier's acceptance of office as President of the Council. Nominations on July 12, voting July 19.

Notes from the Capital.

OTTAWA, July 4.—Henry Meadows, a wealthy hardware merchant, died here last night, aged 40 years.

Flags are flying from the American Consulate to-day in honor of the anniversary of independence. Eight hundred *excursionists left here to-*day by special train for Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Sir Fred Middleton will shortly dispose of his household effects and horses by auction before going to England.

THE EX-HAMS TO DISBAND.

The Season was a Succession of Disasters There—The Game Died.

HAMILTON, July 4.—There was little interest taken in the meeting at the St. Nicholas hotel tonight. The season has been one of disaster. It is expected the team will disband to-morrow after the game in Saginaw. The aggregation is now run by Manager Powell, as the Hamilton directors have freed themselves from its ravages. It was a rank failure locating in Montreal. The feeling here is of mourning for the International stiff. No representative will go to Detroit to-morrow.

Two-year-olds at Kempton Park.

LONDON, July 4.—At the summer meeting at Kampton Park to-day the race for the Kempton Park 2-year-old stakes of 2000 sovs., distance ⅝ mile, was won by Sir F. Johnstone's Fux, Mr. Baird's Siphonia second, Mr. Leigh's The Deemster third.

Ford's Record Beaten.

FREEPORT, L.I., July 4.—At the athletic games here to-day J. W. Rich won the standing hop, skip and jump, making 29 feet 11 inches. This beats by 1⅛ inches the world's record made by M. W. Ford.

VISUAL TELEGRAPHY.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED BY TWO ENGLISH INVENTORS.

At Least They Claim to Have Done the Trick; But an American Correspondent Says That it is a Hoax—But He May be Entirely in the Wrong.

LONDON, July 5.—The English scientific world is very much exercised over an invention purporting to be a remarkable instrument solving the problem of telegraphy. It is the joint invention of Professor Hughes and W. H. Price. On the occasion of the postoffice jubilee reception at South Kensington museum the instrument was exhibited before a number of scientists and newspaper men, all of whom are most cordial in its praise.

The inventors said they had discovered a machine by which the sender of a message from a distance could, with the assistance of a telephone, not only speak with the receiver at the other end of the wire, but appear in reflection before him, and in effect this is exactly what happened last evening. The facts, however, are startling. Electricity has nothing to do with the matter. The friction of the telephone was not reproduced by means of the telegraph wire, but a series of mirrors had been cunningly arranged on the principle of the old optical illusion business, which reproduced the visage of a person standing behind a brick wall for instance. By means of similar mirrors the senders appeared before the receiver and the newspaper men and scientists were fooled.

That such an imposition should have been played upon the scientific world and the British public by the authorities of South Kensington museum is a disgrace to British science, and when the deception is discovered there will probably be a row. The inventors, knowing that Edison and other American electricians have for years past been expending all their energies and much money in the direction of solving the problem of visual telegraphy, had announced that they had solved it. London journals and scientists eagerly swallowed the bait. When the truth is revealed about the invention Hughes and Price will doubtless be severely handled, especially as increased interest is now taken in Edison's treatment of the subject.

Last evening the machine was exhibited to the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the mystery being well maintained. To show how completely the audience was taken in, all the unscientific and most of the scientific departed declaring that the electro-phonoscope was the most marvelous discovery of the age.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

A New York Hungarian Shoots His Wife and Then Commits Suicide.

NEW YORK, July 4.—John Lutz, a Hungarian, this morning while in his cups entered the apartments in Clinton-street of his second wife, who left him some time ago, and who had been supporting herself and her 13-year-old daughter by her first husband. Lutz four weeks ago threatened to kill his wife, but she drove him away, and they did not meet again until this morning. Lutz found his wife this morning in bed nursing a baby five days old. There was also present a midwife. Lutz at once began calling his wife names, and upon her refusing to allow him to kiss the baby he drew a revolver, and told his wife he was going to kill her. She arose from bed clasping the baby over her right breast. The little daughter threw her arms around her mother to protect her. The midwife ran out of the room. Then Lutz fired three shots. Each entered the woman's body, but she escaped from the room with the baby and reached a neighbor's apartments. Lutz then fired two shots into his left breast, killing himself instantly. Mrs. Lutz's wounds are dangerous, but she may recover.

Another Gotham Tragedy.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Mrs. Hester Loppy, aged 40, was found dead to-night in her apartments on the top floor of No. 287 Christie-street. She had been stabbed through the heart with a pair of shears and her husband, Martin, is under arrest charged with the murder. A year ago Loppy had a fight with a woman and was struck on the head with an iron kettle. He lost the sight of his left eye and his mind became affected. For the last year he has done no work and his wife supported him by working in a tailor shop. Loppy drank heavily. This afternoon Thomas Weir called to see Loppy, but heard the latter and his wife quarrelling and went away. Afterwards he returned and had to knock ten minutes before being admitted. Weir then saw Mrs. Loppy's body and accused Loppy of killing her. Weir hurried out into the street to get away and Loppy followed and told a neighbor that his wife was dead. The neighbor called a policeman and Loppy and Weir were arrested.

This was an "Accident."

NEW YORK, July 4.—A boss truckman, David Dillon, was shot through the heart and killed this evening by Edward Citterton. Citterton claimed the shooting was accidental. He had stepped up to Dillon to prevent him from striking his (Citterton's) brother Frank. Citterton held a revolver in his hand which had been used in the Fourth celebration, and it went off. Dillon and Frank Citterton were drunk. Edward Citterton was sober. All were young men.

PRETTY MISS CLARK.

And Her Wicked Pen—She Secured $6000 by Forgery.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Miss Nettie Clark of Providence, R.I., was arrested as she stepped from the Boston express at the Grand Central Station last night on a charge of forging the name of J. L. Tourtellot to a note for $6000, on which she procured the money at the Mechanics' Savings Bank in that city. When taken to police headquarters she broke down and confessed her guilt. She said that she had borrowed $6000 from a gentleman some three months before, and had taken a visit to the South, where she had spent it. When she returned she found that her note, upon which she had borrowed the money, was almost due, and she knew of no way to meet it. In her desperation she had forged Mr. Tourtellot's name.

Miss Clark moved in the most fashionable circles of the exclusive Rhode Island semi-capital. She is an accomplished pianist, having received a European musical education. On account of her beauty, taste in dress, social position and education she was a general favorite. She sang in a leading choir. Her father, Hollis K. Clark, is wealthy. He is president of the Rhode Island Butchers' and Marketmen's Association. He has been the Prohibitionist candidate for Mayor of Providence and for Governor of the State.

The mother claims that the girl was deranged when she conceived the idea of raising the money fraudulently. Mrs. Clark says that her daughter's mind has been greatly disturbed for some time, although it was not noticed by her intimate friends.

The real secret of the forgery is believed to be found in the fact that Miss Clark is completely fascinated with a medical student named Simon Smith and sought to advance him money. It is now thought that the various sums which Miss Clark has borrowed have gone to Smith.

The Glorious Fourth.

EAST SAGINAW, July 4.—The Kinney Hotel, a two-story brick building, was set on fire to-day by the igniting of a firecracker in a bedroom. The house was in flames almost immediately and James Benham was burned to death. John Miller was terribly burned about the face and head. Thomas Lynch was badly burned on the left hand, William Reagan badly burned on the hand and arm; Archie Kinney, the proprietor, was badly burned on the head, neck and arms.

AUBURN, N.Y., July 4.—By the premature discharge of an over-heated cannon this evening Thomas Dilton was fatally injured.

OIL CITY, PA., July 4.—While Sylvester Shockey, son of a widow, was celebrating the day a cannon exploded, killing him instantly.

STANLEY'S BRIDE.

Eugene Field's Description of Miss Dorothy Tennant.

A tall, robust, handsome woman, rather inclined to embonpoint, with fair hair, deep blue eyes, a straight, well-developed nose, a lovely complexion, white teeth, full mouth, small dimply hands, and pretty feet, about describe the young lady who will become Mrs. Henry M. Stanley next month. Miss Dorothy Tennant is nearly 24 years of age, and first came into prominent literary notice by her clever illustrations of Mrs. W. K. Clifford's popular book "Anyhow Stories," which appeared some years ago, and still enjoys an enormous sale, writes Eugene Field to the Chicago News. Miss Tennant's name is on the title-page.

AS AN ARTIST.

Then she began to exhibit a series of delightful pictures of naked children, her style showing clearly the teachings of her celebrated master, Henner, of Paris. Her "The Baby" was one of the sensations of the year. With her sister, now Mrs. Frederick Myers, a pronounced brunette, she sat for Millais' twin pictures now called "Yes" and "No." At the time they were exhibited in the Royal Academy they were referred to as "The Blue Girl" and "The Red Girl," Miss Dorothy being "the blue." Mr. Frederick Myers, the husband of Miss Dorothy Tennant's sister, is the author of "St. Paul" and one of the leaders in the esthetic poetry. He was a great friend of the late Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, who was godfather to Mrs. Myers' first baby.

MISS TENNANT IN SOCIETY.

From a society point of view, few young ladies in London are better known than Mr. Stanley's betrothed. Not a festival of the year, from a flower show, or a "first night" at the opera, to a garden party at Marlborough house, but Miss Dorothy Tennant's name appears in the list of guests. She has acquired a distinct fame in London for the quiet elegance of her gowns and the number and variety of her parasols, which is apparently a hobby with her, and she never appears in the park, either riding or driving, without a cavalcade of admirers en suite, which has not been lessened by the announcement of her engagement to the famous explorer. A clever article, generally illustrated, in one of the magazines, or a striking picture in one of the galleries, keeps her always in front in literary and art circles; in fact, as the Princess of Wales remarked when congratulating Mr. Stanley: "You marry not only a very pretty and charming girl, but a woman brimful of genius."

HOW THE WOOING WAS DONE.

The story of Stanley's wooing is gradually being disclosed. He first met Miss Tennant when last in England, and for a while was received with the same coolness which has notably characterized the lady's reception of attentions from gentlemen. But the indomitable courage, energy and wonderful powers of description possessed by the explorer gradually won the heart of one who possessed similar traits in so marked a degree, and when Stanley managed to pluck up sufficient courage to propose she fainted with mingled delight and excitement. She promised to wait until he returned from his next African trip, and insisted that their engagement should be kept secret.

The letters which have passed between "Stanley Africanus" and his fiancee, if they ever see the light of publication—love-letters of eminent persons are now included in the printer's prey—will be truly curious stories, for no doubt the explorer told more to his lady love than he will ever confess elsewhere of the awful tribulations of his march through the African swamps and forests. His brother explorers were aware of their commander's love story, and many a tree in the strange lands visited, has "Dolly" deeply cut into the bark. The natives used to think it the sign of the white chief's fetish and often prostrated themselves before it. In one of his letters Stanley wrote such a harrowing account of the sufferings of his band, and gave such a vivid picture of the death of a gigantic negro slowly swallowed by a huge serpent that Miss Tennant swooned after reading it.

Stanley has brought a most extraordinary collection of curios home for Miss Tennant, many of them being now on exhibition at the African Society's show. He declares that he will never permit his wife to share the dangers of exploration, and that if he goes again to Africa she must remain at home or in Egypt until he returns.

He Played the Car.

He entered a Broadway car at Canal street, says the New York Sun, and as every seat was taken, he stood up and hung to a strap. On his left hand, which hung by his side, was a large ring, and everybody at once noticed that the stone was gone. The ring seemed to be valuable enough for the stone to have been a diamond, and presently a man leaned forward and said:

"Excuse me, sir, but you have met with a loss. The stone is gone from your ring."

"What! So it is!" exclaimed the man as he lifted his hand.

He dropped his eyes to the floor, and in five seconds every other eye in the car followed suit. Heads were bent down, words of condolence began to be uttered, and two or three men got down on their hands and knees and looked under the seats. After a five minutes' search one of them finally asked:

"When did you miss it?"

"Just now."

"Think you lost it in the car?"

"Dunno."

"Was it very valuable?"

"Well, I prized it highly as a keepsake."

Another hunt was made, but with no better success. Then the owner of the ring began to feel in his pockets, and presently he took out a shirt button, with a bit of wire to it, which somehow fitted into the ring, and after placing it in he held up the ring and said:

"Thanks for your interest, good people. 'Tis a button from the shirt of my brother George."

He stepped off the car with a bow and a smile, and nothing was said for a couple of minutes. Then a man with a deep bass voice called out:

"And who is —— is his brother George, I'd like to know!"

But no one could say. All were busy in wondering how they had let a smart Aleck make fools of them.

A Case of Somnolence.

On March 8 last I was asked to see an old lady in Minneapolis, 80 years of age, who had enjoyed good health.

She was comfortable, lying in bed, pulse 90, tongue clean, and temperature normal. The following day when I made my visit to her she was sleeping, and as this was quite late in the day, and she had slept all the time since I had seen her the day before, I feared she had been taking some narcotic, but of this there was no other evidence save sleep. I saw her day after day for three weeks, during which time she continued to sleep day and night, constantly, only when awakened to take some liquid nourishment, and then she would, perhaps, partly answer a question and fall into a sweet and apparently a pleasant sleep. No abnormal condition appeared present otherwise. When the second week came on I thought she could be aroused more readily, and at the end of the third week she could be kept awake by talking with her for perhaps an hour at a time, in the afternoon only. From this time on she gradually slept less and soon gained strength, her appetite returned, and she was, in a short time, around the house as usual.

During this time of sleep the pulse and temperature remained normal. When she came out of her sleep she was impressed that she was in an hospital, and could not reconcile her surroundings with what she was accustomed to while she had occupied the room in which she had slept for a long time in the house of her daughter.—Medical Record.

Mr. Moore's Reply to Mr. Weir.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—With reference to Mr. J. Graham Weir's letter published in the REVIEW of July 4th, I wish to say a few words. First, I regret that my name has been brought before the public in connection with this matter, but since such is the case, I have simply to say, and most decidedly, that Mr. Weir did say to me that he would oppose Mr. Stratton's candidature but would support Mr. Blezard. This took place at the post office on the day Hon. Mr. Hardy addressed a meeting of the electors in Peterborough. Mr. Weir voluntarily, and without any suggestion or solicitation on my part, assured me of his determination to support Mr. Blezard in the East Riding. There can be, and is, no mistake about this. With reference to the portions of his letter relating to others, I have only to say that these parties are fully competent to protect their own interests in the matters in question, which Mr. Weir will doubtless find out to his cost.

Yours, etc.,
D. H. MOORE.

July 5th, 1890.

Mr. McWilliams Replies.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—In the REVIEW and Examiner I have seen three letters from Mr. John Graham Weir respecting the late election in the County, and as Mr. Weir has introduced my name in his last letter I consider it my duty to reply. I never was more surprised than when I learned that Mr. Weir had written a letter denying that he had supported Mr. Blezard, and would not believe the statement until I went to the Examiner office and saw the letter in Mr. Weir's hand writing. It is a mystery to me why he should make that statement, for during the campaign I saw Mr. Weir several times, both in my office and on the street, and in all our conversations he professed to be a warm supporter of Mr. Blezard and anxious for his re-election. In our first conversation he told me that he had voted against Mr. Blezard at the last election, that he would do all he could for him this time, but that he would do everything that was in his power to defeat Mr. Stratton. I remember the day Mr. Blezard went to that section of Otonabee where Mr. Weir resides to canvass, and the next time I saw Mr. Blezard he told me that he met Mr. Weir and he (Mr. Weir) told him he would support him without even being asked. Mr. Moore also told me the conversation he had with Mr. Weir in which he told him he was supporting Mr. Blezard and opposing Mr. Stratton. Mr. Weir was in my office some time after the election and expressed his regret that Mr. Blezard had not a larger majority. If Mr. Weir's conversation with me that day was printed side by side with his last letter it would show that he was one of the most inconsistent men on the face of the earth. Had Mr. Weir told me in confidence that he was supporting Mr. Blezard and did not wish it known I never would have mentioned it, but when he was outspoken and had told so many that he was supporting Mr. Blezard I did not consider it a secret. I cannot understand why a man in Mr. Weir's position would want to play double, and notwithstanding that now in his excitement he denies he voted for Mr. Blezard, yet I prefer to take his word when in his sober senses, and believe that he voted for Mr. Blezard than to believe he was a Judas. I feel half inclined in this letter to lay the lash on Mr. Weir a little lively for all the falsehoods he told in his letter, as it might do him good in the future, but for two reasons I will refrain. One is that after the severe thrashing he has received at the hands of the Examiner he must feel rather sore and I might be indicted for cruelty if I was too severe on him. Another is that I see his letter is dated from Stony Lake. If Mr. Weir was at home in Otonabee where he could obtain cold spring water he might not be likely to write such letters, and I have often seen men who are strong supporters of one of the leading questions of the day get a little off and not act like rational beings when they had to drink Stony Lake water. Hoping Mr. Weir will have courage enough in future elections to let it be known publicly on which side he is—for every man admires a manly and honest opponent, when he has only contempt for the man who attempts to play a double game.

Yours truly,
J. B. McWILLIAMS.

Wedded at Orangeville.

Mr. George Sanderson, clerk in the boot and shoe store of Mr. R. J. Kidd, was united in marriage at Orangeville on Wednesday evening last to Miss Varnell, of that place. Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson arrived in Peterborough on Thursday evening and will be the recipients of many well wishes and congratulations on the happy occasion.

As They Saw Him.

The Dominion Oddfellow has the following regarding Grand Master Dr. Bell:—"Grand Master Dr. R. W. Bell, Senior Major, was in command of the 'Peterborough Rangers,' at the great military parade on Tuesday, and, in the gorgeous scarlet uniform of his rank, looked every inch a soldier, as on his prancing steed he led his men through Toronto's streets."

Next Week's Match.

The people of Peterborough who are desirous of seeing good cricket will have an opportunity next Wednesday and Thursday. The Northwesterners are a magnificent team. The play each day is from 12 to 6. The grand stand is to be reserved for ladies and their escorts. Members must produce their tickets. The Winnipeggers get the gate money instead of the large guarantee given by the cities.

A Fire at Mid-day.

A few minutes before one o'clock to-day a fire was discovered in the old bake shop on Aylmer-st. which was formerly occupied by Mr. Lund. The shop has been occupied for the past few weeks by Mr. David Casey, who has just recently started in the baking business. He was baking this morning, but had left the shop some time before the fire was discovered. The bakery is in one end of an old wooden building, the other part of which is used as a stable by Mr. Albert Cooney, an ashman who lives in one of the houses in front. The fire started in the bake shop and spread to the stable where it got into the hay which was spread in the loft. The fire brigade turned out with remarkable promptness and in a few minutes had the fire under control. The loss will be between two and three hundred dollars.

DEFEATED BY THREE RUNS.

The Peterborough Cricketers Lose Their Game With the Torontos.

The cricketers arrived home from Toronto last night, after having been defeated by the Toronto club in a one innings game by three runs. The game was an exciting one, the Peterborough men only wanting five runs to win with four wickets to go down. They failed to raise the quintette, however, before the last wicket fell, the "tail enders" not being able to play the splendid bowling the Torontos had yesterday. An old and prominent player said today when speaking of the defeat:—"The ground being very dead was the cause of the small scoring, while Peterborough's fielding was very slack at times and not what it should be. If the players would take the trouble to practice it would do away with an exhibition such as they made yesterday. One of our players also failed to put in an appearance on the field after promising to be on hand sure and we had to get a sub, who was vouched for as having come from the North of Ireland, but the boys made up their minds that he came from back of north."

Nevertheless the Torontos had on their strongest team and their victory was such a shallow one that nothing can be gloated over.

As already said Toronto's bowling was exceptionally fine, while for Peterborough Attewell also did well. The Empire in its report says:—"However, the visitors, notwithstanding then made a good start, only managed to get 56, or 3 behind the Toronto club's total. Ray, Rogers and Attewell all played well for their respective contributions, but the Toronto bowling and fielding was far too good for the 'tail' of the Peterborough eleven and the innings closed as above stated. Boyd claimed 4 wickets for 8 runs and Goodwin 4 for 15. Dickey bowled 6 overs for 6 and 1 wicket. In the second innings the Toronto men knocked up 84 when time put an end to the encounter. Senkler, Cameron add Boyd all claimed double figures and Attewell again bowled well."

The following is the score:—

What Might Have Resulted in a Serious Crime.

A gentleman who was possessed of means and being in the habit of carrying a large amount of cash was sauntering his way home. He was accosted at the corner of George and Simcoe-sts. (police not present) by a gentleman who hailed him and asked if he were going home, this being between 9.30 and 10 o'clock p.m. He answered "Yes" and walked as far as the Lock Works, placed his hand to his hip pocket, pulled out a list of prices and handed it to him, he being a brother grocer, stating at the same time it would be impossible to live if w j morrow continued selling goods at the prices he was, but after considering be paid cash for his goods, secured discounts, it would be impossible for them to compete. d3

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

Wor. Bro. D. Spence the Recipient of an Address on his Leaving to Visit his Old Home in England.

The brethren of Peterborough Lodge No. 155, A.F.&A.M., G.R.C., having learned of Wor. Bro. Spence's intention of visiting his native land desired to place on record their appreciation of his services rendered to the craft, and at the regular communication held on Friday evening the following address was read by Rt. Wor. Bro. Shortly on behalf of the brethren:—

Wor. Bro. D. Spence, I. P. M., of Peterborough Lodge No. 155, A. F. and A. M.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—

Your brethren of Peterborough Lodge, learning that you were about leaving them for a brief holiday visit to the home of your happy boyhood days in old England, desire to avail themselves of the opportunity for uniting in wishing you a safe voyage and a pleasant reunion among relatives and friends at home. We also desire to convey to you our congratulations on the marked unanimity of kind feeling and fraternal regard which prevails for you in the hearts of every one of your brethren in the mystic tie, without exception. Almost continually is the tongue of good report being heard in your favor.

We desire on this occasion, therefore, to emphasize the individual esteem of your brethren, by this united testimony to your sterling worth as a man and a Freemason. The constant regularity of your attendance on your Masonic duties; the undiminished ardor you have manifested in discharging those duties, and the faithful devotion you have shown for the Craft in general, and this Lodge in particular, has furnished a theme for admiration to all your brethren.

Yet, while it gives us unalloyed pleasure to put on record your unswerving faithfulness in the discharge of the duties appertaining to the numerous positions of rank and honor in the gift of your Masonic brethren, it is none the less pleasing to remember the modest bearing and singular unconsciousness of your own abilities with which your Masonic career has been characterized.

Be pleased, therefore, to take with you, in your journey across the ocean, this spontaneous token of the friendship and good-will of your Peterborough brethren, as they wish you adieu for a brief interval, and "May God be with you till we meet again."

Signed on behalf of the members of Peterborough Lodge.

MASONIC HALL, Peterborough,
July 4th, 1890.

Wor. Bro. Spence, who was taken entirely by surprise, made a suitable reply, thanking the brethren for their kindness and the good will expressed in the address.

At the close of the work the brethren proceeded to the refreshment room where a pleasant hour was spent, Wor. Bro. W. Brundrette, Wor. Bro. Walter Paterson, V. Wor. Bro. C. Cameron, and other of the brethren attesting to the sterling qualities of Wor. Bro. Spence, and to the zealous manner in which he had performed his duties. The company was dispersed with the Junior Warden's toast and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. Spence leaves on the Monday evening C. P. R. express for Montreal, where he will take ship for Glasgow, thence direct to his home in Newcastle. He will be absent about two months, and will visit the principal cities in England and Scotland.

The company will be a pleasant one, you'll have a jolly outing, you'll be treated hospitably and you'll enjoy it immensely. Boat leaves the wharf at 7.30 a.m. Grand programme of spots to be run off. The Lock Works Outing.

The Lock Works picnic to Jubilee Point yesterday was a grand success. The Golden Eye left here at eight o'clock in the morning with about three hundred and fifty persons on board. The sail down the river was delightful and fully enjoyed, while good music was furnished for dancers on the palace barge. Jubilee was reached about 11.30 and the pleasure-seekers proceeded to spend the day in picnic fashion, while those who were so inclined tripped the light fantastic in the pavilion. The point was left about five o'clock and home was reached without accident, a very pleasant outing having been enjoyed.

The Market Building Tower.

A flag was floating from the tower of the new market building yesterday afternoon, proclaiming to the citizens that the brick work on the building is completed. The last brick on the tower was laid yesterday, by Mr. Webb, who had charge of that work. The tower, however, will go several feet skywards yet before the top is reached. The remainder will be of ornamental wood and galvanized iron and will rise about twenty-eight or thirty feet above the present brick work. The clock dials will be about twenty feet above the brick work as it now stands.

An Evening on the Lawn.

A very successful and enjoyable Lawn Social was held last evening on the large and beautiful grounds at the residence of Mr. A. L. Davis. The event was held under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Charlotte-st. church. There was a good attendance, and the crowd seemed to enjoy themselves promenading through the brilliantly illuminated grounds. The ladies of the church were presiding at tables scattered over the grounds where flowers, ice cream, coffee and refreshments were offered for sale. These lawn fetes are apparently very popular with the young people.

Oddfellows' Decoration.

The Joint Committee of Oddfellows who have in charge the arrangements for Decoration Day, which has been fixed for Friday next, the 11th inst., met last evening in Otonabee Lodge room and advanced the preliminaries. The hour for the gathering of Oddfellows was fixed as usual at 1 30 in the afternoon. The brethren will meet in their respective lodges at that hour and march to the Central Park, where the procession will be formed, headed by the Fire Brigade Band. All the friends of the Order who intend contributing flowers for the occasion are kindly requested to leave them at the store of Mr. A. Mercer or Mr. H. Long on Thursday evening. The object in having the flowers sent in the evening before is to allow the bouquets to be arranged early Friday and avoid delay in the afternoon. As in other years it is expected that there will be a liberal contribution of flowers, as a large quantity is required for visiting brothers. Invitations have been issued to Lindsay, Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood and Port Hope lodges to be present and participate in the proceedings.

THE NORTHERN A. C. A. MEET.

Extract From a Letter From One of the Committee—The Camp Site and Prospects.

As the time of the annual meet of the A. C. A. and Northern Division approaches canoeists are bestirring themselves in the interests of the sport. The Northern meet will be held this year at Lake of Two Mountains, near Montreal. The following extract from a letter will interest canoeists in this vicinity:—

"I should have written to you some time ago about our camp site for the Northern Division meet from the 25th July to 8th August. I dare say, however, that you saw the account in the Gazette a few days ago. It is one of the prettiest places on the Lake of the Two Mountains, and is called "Pointe aux Cailloux." It is on an island, and I think a most desirable camp ground. It is dry, and there is a good view of the lake on the rising ground on which the camp will be fixed. On one side of the island there is a wide stretch of open water suitable for sailing, and on the other there is sheltered water down to Vaudreuil. The fishing is said to be very good and there are several interesting places to be visited in the neighborhood. We made a picnic to the camp site on the 1st July, leaving Lachine on a steam yacht about 9.30, reaching the camp a little before 1 p.m. We spent the afternoon there and got back to Lachine in the evening. The party were delighted with the spot, and I feel satisfied that we can make the camp a success.

"Scott, of Ottawa, was here a few days ago, and he tells me that they will bring down a large party from there, probably twenty-five or thirty. I am writing to other places in the West to-day to find out what they are doing. I heard some time ago that Peterborough was talking of taking a special car down to the general meet, but have heard nothing recently. I hope you will not go back on the Northern Division as there is every prospect of a first-rate meet here.

"I had a circular from the Commodore yesterday saying that it had been proposed to postpone the general meet for a week as they had discovered that there would be no moonlight from the 8th to the 25th of August. The decision will be arrived at on the 7th inst. The boys in this neighborhood are enthusiastic, and will, I think, turn out in good numbers. There will also be a number of ladies at the camp."

Runaway Horses on the Railway.

A runaway which placed a team of horses owned by Mr. D. Storey, of Emily, in a most perilous position, occurred just about noon to day. The team took fright on the southern end of George-st. and came up the street at full speed. At the bridge over Spaulding's Bay they became detached from the wagon. When the C. P. R. railway crossing was reached the engine of the gravel train frightened the galloping animals and they turned along the track to the east. When they came to the spur line they took the track and dashed up the railroad until they reached the trestle work behind the bridge works. They only went a short distance on this trestle work when their legs went down between the timbers and they were held securely. Their position was a dangerous one, but fortunately their legs were not broken. Several men immediately went to their assistance and after some difficulty succeeded in extricating them. The animals legs were badly bruised but no serious injuries, it is believed, were inflicted.

—The mail carrier missed the Grand Junction train at Belleville this morning and the mail from that city was left behind.

—The village at Indian River station is growing. Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald has taken a contract to build a two-storey brick dwelling there for Mr. James Devlin.

—Part of the large willow tree on Hunter-st. opposite Belleghem's furniture establishment fell across the street this afternoon. The gigantic willow had rotted until its own weight brought it to the ground.

Personal.

Rev. Mr. Locke, the new pastor of the George-st. Methodist Church, is expected to arrive here this evening and will occupy the pulpit in that church at both services to-morrow.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

WHAT WILL "SELL,"
—NOT—
WHAT WILL "WASH,"

Is, unfortunately, the policy to often adopted in the soap trade. Much of this evil is due to the want of knowledge among purchasing consumers, who have poor and adulterated soaps offered to them, and who buy them because they appear to be cheap. "Sunlight" Soap is not offered to the public on the score of Cheapness, but as an article which has No Equal for its washing and cleansing properties, for its purity, its labor-saving qualities, and its general excellence. The Value is in "Sunlight," besides which no washing powders or boiling of clothes is necessary when using this Soap. "Sunlight" Soap has obtained 5 Gold Medals. Ask you grocer for a One Cent Trial Tablet, and test the "Sunlight" Soap for yourselves. 1d4

SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1890.

ALMOST A LYNCHING.

Citizens of an Ohio Town After an Inhuman Brute.

ALLIANCE, July 5.—The other night Leonidas L. Arny enticed Edita Ringer, a five-year-old girl, the daughter of a widow, into a wagon, gave her candy, took her to a vacant house, locked himself and her in an upstairs room and outraged her person in a beastly manner. Cautioning the terrified girl to silence on pain of death, and promising her a new dress if she returned the following night, he released her. The little victim, reaching home, became deadly sick and nearly died, at last telling her mother the cause. The relatives at first shrank from publicity, but on Saturday a rumor reached the police, who investigated, and the city became aroused. On Sunday Humane Officer Dr. James Bates, by desire of Mayor Stillwell, made an examination of the little victim and swore out a warrant. Arny was arrested at home and committed for examination without bail. An excited crowd gathered and threats of lynching and tar and feathers were rife. He was hustled by three stalwart officers from the Police Court to the city prison, through a throng that constantly yelled, "Hang him, hang him!" and until late at night the prison was surrounded by a howling mob.

Arny is a man of 55 years, long a notorious character. He has terrorized his neighbors for many years. Many acts of inhuman brutality have been laid at his door.

LAKE MICHIGAN ON A TEAR.

Much Damage Done to Shipping—Several Lives Lost.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Lake Michigan was rocked from surface to bottom last night and to-day by a gale that damaged shipping and upset the program of aquatic sports arranged here for the Fourth. Old tarsmen pronounce it the severest storm for this season of the year within their memory. The vessels that braved the threatening indications during the evening and put out to sea labored outside the breakwater trying to make port. Some were successful. Others tried to save themselves by dropping anchor. One vessel capsized and her captain was lost. About midnight the steamer City of Chicago with 1000 passengers aboard lay on her beam ends outside the breakwater. She left Chicago a few hours before for Grand Haven. She was 15 miles on her course when her captain was obliged to put her about and run for Chicago. After a terrific experience in the heavy sea rolling and plunging, and at times shipping some water. She finally reached her dock without accident.

The schooner Gladiator, loaded to the rails with wood, labored terribly in the trough of the sea seven miles off Gross Point. Soon she sprang a leak and took water rapidly. A portion of her deckload went by the board and her waterlogged condition was eased for awhile. But the leak enlarged and she was caught by a wave and turned keel up. Captain Torton and his crew were carried by the waves some distance from the schooner. The captain was drowned. The crew caught the wreckage and managed to float until the life-saving crew at Evanston came to their assistance.

The schooner Naiad was caught in the blow some miles out to sea and after a hard struggle arrived just outside the breakwater, where a number of vessels were anchored. The Naiad was suffering badly from her encounter with the wind and waves. She had lost a man, Harry Berkley, and her forward rigging was carried away. She dropped anchor but the soft bottom refused it a place and the vessel drifted with a crash against the schooners Surprise and White Cloud. These vessels had barely resisted the force of the sea and when they received the Naiad they pulled their anchors and the flotilla drifted out to sea. Signals of distress were displayed by the Naiad and the crew of the life-saving station put out to her assistance. Before they could reach her a tug steamed out and took the Naiad in tow. The collision cost the White Cloud her jibboom, fore-topmast and cathead, and the Surprise was but little less fortunate. The Naiad was damaged forward. The propeller Wissahickon and a number of other staunch vessels were also among those more or less damaged by the storm.

AFTER A LONG CHASE.

The Would-be Slayer of Ex-Warden J. W. Jardine is Captured.

HAMILTON, July 4.—Constable A. C. Springstead of Stoney Creek and Constable Harper of Winona brought to this city last evening John Mullen, the man who stabbed Mr. J. W. Jardine of Saltfleet last week. The prisoner gave the officers of the law a great chase. He was captured about three miles southwest of St. Catharines. The prisoner was in one of his old haunts. Constable Harper locked him up in a room at the Exchange Hotel and stayed with him. When Constables Springstead and Harper were removing him from the hotel to a wagon they had great difficulty in keeping the crowd back. They tried hard to get at the prisoner and such cries as "Here's the murderer," "Here he comes," "Where's the rope," "Here's a string," and the like could be heard throughout the crowd. When the handcuffed prisoner was hoisted into a conveyance the officers lost no time in getting him to this city. On arriving here the prisoner acted as he did at Stoney Creek—trying to avoid being seen. He was taken before the Police Magistrate and by him remanded until July 10. The prisoner told his captors that the officers had been within 100 yards of him more than once several days before his capture. The search for Mullen was made under the direction of Government Detective John Murray.

This was the verdict in the Copetown accident on the Grand Trunk: "That the accident was probably due to the expansion of the rails and the great heat of the sun on a portion of the roadbed under repairs, which condition of the roadbed we think may have probably contributed to the accident."

Seven teams and 15 men are at work on the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway in the Caroline-street gully and will be through probably on Saturday night. The company expect to secure the Kent property and continue work there on Monday. The offices are decorated with American flags to-day in honor of Independence day. Director Latham and Projector Helm are here.

Sawmill at Sundridge Burnt.

SUNDRIDGE, July 4.—W. E. Anderson's sawmill with all the machinery was burned to the ground last night. No insurance. Loss about [illegible]

Victoria's Steamers to China.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 4.—President Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific Railway is here with a party that includes G. A. Drummond, vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, and R. B. Angus and H. Abbott of the railroad. Mr. Drummond will probably establish a branch of his bank here. Mr. Van Horne said that the company was waiting to receive reports of surveying engineers now out in the country before anything definite would be undertaken with reference to building branch lines from the western terminal section. He expects the first new steamer for the direct China trade to be put on at Hong Kong some time next February, and all the steamers will in future stop at Victoria.

Steamer Chairs and "Tips."

The steamer-chair swindle has set in with the transatlantic travel, as usual. Last Saturday it is reported that 2,000 persons, nearly all Americans, left their native land for the more (to them) delightful continent of Europe. There is no accounting for tastes. Let that be as it may, the steamer-chair question is the one under discussion. Why should a passenger provide a chair for the deck any more than for the table? One thousand chairs is no small portion of the furnishing of the City of Paris. And pray, what have the travelling public to do with furnishing a transatlantic steamer with anything but the passage money? The 2,000 chairs that left New-York last Saturday, as the property of 2,000 passengers, means 2,000 tips to English flunkeys. Not only are these necessary comforts subject to tips for their care on shipboard, but they are again taxed for storage on the other side, and tips on the return voyage, a swindle which originated with "free-ship" England and one which the American people allow to be practiced upon them every time they cross the Atlantic, while if they were asked to furnish their own deck-chairs on the Pacific Mail, Brazil, or any of our coastwise lines, the chances are they would become indignant enough to travel by rail.

There is no danger of this, however. An American passenger steam vessel always has and always will provide all the comforts possible for the passage-money asked, and comforts in every particular, far superior to those provided on foreign waters. Of course, we have nothing with which to compete in the transatlantic trade. But when that tonnage bill, now so carefully nursed by Mr. Farquhar in the House of Representatives, shall have passed, contracts for transatlantic steamers will be given out, and when ready for use they will be completely furnished, even to the best-approved deck-chairs, and "The Marine Journal" will guarantee every comfort, free from tips.—Marine Journal.

A Mushroom Manufacturer.

A "Mushroom manufacturer" is the latest thing in novelties, even in these days when commercial license is often carried to the utmost possible length. An individual living in the Department of the Aveyron, struck by the high price at which mushrooms were being sold in his district, conceived the idea of fabricating the delicacy out of turnips. He cut the turnips into rounds, dried them, and after giving them a dab of the paint-brush, disposed of them to unsuspecting customers as the genuine article.

For some time he drove a thriving trade, but unluckily for him he one day sold a batch to a gourmet who was not so easily to be taken in. Indignant at the trick played on him, the gourmet brought an action, which has just resulted in the condemnation of the mushroom manufacturer to two months' imprisonment. It was in vain that he pleaded that he had enabled his fellow-citizens to regale themselves on a vegetable which they regarded as a good specimen of the mushroom at a cost far below that commanded by the real article. Vain, too, were his efforts to demonstrate that his mushrooms could be consumed without entailing disastrous consequences on lovers of the delicacy. The court turned a deaf ear to his specious arguments, and has allowed him two months' leisure to meditate on the error of substituting dried turnips for honest mushrooms.—London Telegraph.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot no larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

A STORM IMPENDING.

LIKELY TO BURST FORTH IN THE BALKANS AT ANY MOMENT.

Holiday Vacations of Berlin Foreign Office Officials Cut Short by the Gravity of the Situation—A Momentous Change in Germany's Policy.

BERLIN, July 5.—There are growing signs of an impending storm in the Balkans. The situation is so grave that the holiday vacations of the leading officials of the foreign office here have been stopped. Herr von Radowitz, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, who was about to start for Kissingen, has been requested to remain at his post. Sir W. A. White, the British Ambassador to the Porte, who was just beginning at Gastein a furlough to last several months, hurried back to Constantinople, after having a long interview with the Emperor of Austria. The Czar has also countermanded the congé of M. Nelidoff, the Russian Ambassador.

A momentous change appears to have occurred in Germany's policy in the Balkans. Instead of pursuing the semi-neutral diplomacy of Prince Bismarck the Emperor has directed Herr Radowitz to take the initiative in advising the Porte how to meet the contending claims of Bulgaria. The Emperor's scheme of settlement, according to the accepted report in diplomatic circles, involves the displacing of Prince Ferdinand, and the substitution of Prince Karl of Sweden as ruler of Bulgaria in his stead, and also an arrangement of the Russian indemnity by capitalizing the amount through the international council of administration which now controls the Turkish loans.

A general explosion in the Balkans may occur before the powers have time to consider Emperor William's proposal.

Greece and Servia have added to the general imbroglio by each presenting notes to the Porte, stating that any concessions to Bulgaria would require similar concessions to the Greek and Servian nationalities.

Bow-Street Cops on Strike.

LONDON, July 6.—Last night the policemen of the Bow street station refused to go out on duty, because a constable who had taken a prominent part in the agitation for the improvement of the condition of the police force had been removed to another district. Eventually this constable was re-instated and the Bow-street men returned to duty. To day 49 of the recalcitrant policemen were suspended. The others went on duty to-night. As the men left the station house for their respective posts they were hooted at by a crowd which had gathered outside.

At the Trade Centres.

LONDON, July 6.—On the Stock Exchange the past week business was very dull. Syndicates possessing masses of new securities kept offering them to an unresponsive market, thus adding to the general depression. Central American bonds closed very heavy yesterday over reports of troubles in Costa Rica. American railway securities were stagnant, yet prices were fairly maintained. The Paris Bourse was irregular and weak, that at Frankfort quiet. Only a limited amount of business was done at Berlin, realizations being the prominent feature.

A MISSIONARY MURDERED.

Persia the Scene of the Crime and the Victim a Woman.

ROCKVILLE, Ind., July 5.—Letters received here from Persia give details of the murder of Mrs. John L. Wright, an American Presbyterian missionary, at Salmas, Western Persia, in April. A native school teacher, half American and half Syrian, killed her with a dagger in her own home in revenge for her discharge from her employer. Mrs. Wright was a historian and was beautiful, well educated and accomplished. Her father was a teacher of Ancient Syriac in American colleges. She was married to Mr. Wright four years ago. They were in this country last year. Wright was a native of Ohio. The murderess is in custody.

The Continent's Wealthiest City.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The books of the commissioners of taxes and assessments just completed show the total assessed value of real and personal estate in this city is $1,696,978,390 for 1890, an increase over last year of $99,189,277.

BRITAIN AND THE STATES

UNCLE SAM MAY GO TOO FAR IN BEHRING SEA.

Our Rights Will Be Maintained by Force if Necessary — An Eminent Military Authority Talks—Indignation in England Over the McKinley Tariff.

LONDON, July 5.—That important instructions have been sent to the British naval squadron in the Pacific is a matter of well authenticated report, but the nature of the instructions cannot definitely be ascertained. It is understood that the flagship Warspite has been ordered to the Pacific coast of British-America, and that a formidable array of men-of-war is to be gathered there to defend vessels sailing under the English flag against American attack. How far the English may be prepared to go is not stated, but American cruisers conveying prizes to San Francisco will be very likely to encounter English ships of war on the voyage, and probably be asked for explanations. It is stated that the American naval force on the Pacific is insignificant compared with the British squadron and that the English will have no difficulty in asserting England's rights, as they are called, in those waters. A hostile encounter between British and American warships would not of necessity involve war, but would certainly tend to provoke it.

In this connection Lieut.-Gen. Henry Brackenbury of the British Army, Director of Military Intelligence and brother of the late eminent Maj.-Gen. Brackenbury, is quoted as commenting on the recent assertions of certain American Senators that Canada would fall a ready prey in the event of a war between the United States and Great Britain. "It took the Northern States," General Brackenbury says, "four years to conquer the States of the South, and that with every advantage in the way of climate and knowledge of the country invaded, as well as the great and unusual advantage of the presence of several millions of a slave population in sympathy with the invaders, and from whom many valuable recruits were obtained for the Northern army. The United States would find the invasion and conquest of Canada even a more formidable task. Winter campaigning, which was far from difficult in the warm climate of the Confederacy, would be impossible there, and an army caught in the winter snows would either be hemmed in, with imminent risk of destruction by an energetic and tireless enemy, or would have to retreat under circumstances not dissimilar as to weather from Napoleon's disastrous retreat from Moscow amid the snows and piercing gales of a Russian winter. Besides, the ports of Canada would not be blockaded, as were the ports of the South during the war, and the supply of men and material would be abundant. The Americans of British and Irish stock are undoubtedly, with proper discipline, soldiers equal to any in the world but it is to be remembered that of emigrants from the continent of Europe a very large portion are fugitives from military service."

The General added that war between Great Britain and the United states was a calamity not to be contemplated without the most serious provocation; but that in the event of such a war an invasion of Canada would not be a holiday campaign.

The aggressive action in regard to Behring Sea is somewhat complicated in popular opinion here with the rising indignation on the subject of the American tariff. Thousands of skilled English workingmen will be thrown out of employment, should the tariff be adopted, in Sheffield alone from 2000 to 2500 persons being employed solely on American work. The manufacturers in certain lines regard the proposed tariff as prohibitory, and are casting about for some method of relief. Their action takes the form of petitions to Parliament and personal appeals to members of that body. Just now the Tories are looking around for a new issue that may be popular enough to divert attention from a series of pitiful legislative failures, and the Conservative cheers which greeted the proposal of Col. Howard Vincent, that the House should consider "whether a free market should be longer given to the competing productions of a foreign State putting prohibitive duties upon British goods," are significant of the growing feeling in the Government ranks.

Col. Vincent is regarded with high respect among all parties. His social position is excellent, and he has the ear of royalty and its representatives, as well as of eminent statesmen on the Opposition benches. He is in enthusiastic favor, not of absolute protection, but of reciprocity, and he holds that only those nations should be admitted to unrestricted commerce with England which extend equal facilities to the trade and commerce of Great Britain. His sentiments are spreading rapidly, not only in Parliament, but among the working people of the country, many of whom find themselves threatened with loss of employment by the American Tariff bill, while many others are out of employment through the free competition of Germany and other countries, who pour their products into Great Britain, while presenting a tariff barrier to British manufacturers.

TO SHUT OUT AMERICAN CORN.

The French Senate Votes in Favor of a Prohibitory Duty.

PARIS, July 5.—The Senate this week has shown its hand plainly in regard to American questions. After a long debate it finally voted in favor of a duty of three francs on corn, and supplemented this by imposing a duty of six francs on cornmeal. During the closing debate it was distinctly avowed that the duty on corn was to be considered only a continuation of the nine-year-old policy toward American pork. Comte Foucher de Careil declared that the importation of American pork was only another mode of importing American corn, and French farmers could not maintain themselves against it. The prohibition of pork was right and ought to be maintained, and the duty on corn should also be made prohibitory. M. Milland called attention to the fact that American pork is only prohibited on the ground of its alleged unhealthfulness. He declared that this was merely a pretext. Other members replied that it was all right and that the prohibition ought to be maintained. An article published in The Temps, which is thought to reflect the views of the Government, suggests that there might be circumstances under which it might be desirable to withdraw the prohibition against pork.

Left the Gas Burners Open.

NEWPORT, R.I., July 5. This morning D. Tindall of Canada, and his grandson, Edward Baker, the latter 13 years of age, of Fall River, were found in a room which they occupied together last night at the Groves House, in Bath-road, with the gas burners open. The boy was dead and at noon the condition of the man was precarious, although he had roused somewhat from his stupor.

BULLETS WILL FLY.

And Something Will Drop if the Gang is Ever Overtaken.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., July 5.—Horse thieves have made a grand round-up in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho during the past few days. The method of their operations indicates that they have regularly organized bands with a leader and numbers sufficient to cover a large area of country. Saturday and Sunday they rendezvoused near this city and hastened away with 500 horses towards the British Columbia line through the Flathead Indian country in Northwestern Montana. A. L. Smith's ranch was visited Sunday night and several fine animals were stolen, including a valuable roadster owned by Dr. C. S. Penfield, city physician. A Walla Walla farmer reports the loss of 50 head which were traced to within a few miles of Spokane Falls. William Lewis of Cheney lost a stallion for which he recently paid $1200.

A large number of ranchers are here organizing for pursuit of the thieves, but with little hope of success, as the villains have several hundred miles start and doubtless are thoroughly acquainted with the country, which is very rugged and little traveled. Some of the thieves are known to the police as desperadoes who would not halt at the sacrifice of human life rather than submit to capture. A small posse started out Thursday night under Deputy United States Marshal Warren, and telegrams have been forwarded to various points in Montana requesting reinforcements. A battle is sure to occur if the pursuers overtake the thieves.

DOLLY IN HARD LUCK.

To be Re-Arrested on the Completion of Her Term in Brantford Jail.

BRANTFORD, July 5.—Miss Mary S. Beeley, who is now in jail serving a sentence for defrauding Rev. Dr. Cochrane, will be released on Monday, only to be re-arrested by an officer from Belleville, who has a similar charge to prefer against her. She has been ill during the greater portion of the time she has been in prison, but she is better to-day and little dreams of the Belleville surprise in store for her. She has put on sackcloth and ashes evidently, judging from this letter sent to Rev. Dr. Cochrane:

BRANTFORD, July 3, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I wish to ask your forgiveness for the wrong I did you, and also Mrs. Cochrane's. If it is ever in my power I will repay you. I have been very ill and perhaps I may never get well, and I should like to feel that you do forgive me, not only the loss, but the trouble and anxiety as well. Please excuse this scrawl.

M. S. BEELEY.

Dr. Cochrane says he has not a particle of faith in her repentance. When the doctor was in Ottawa two weeks ago he was told by Dr. Warden of Montreal that she had got Miss Crawford, the head of the ladies' college in Ottawa, to become security for a bill of goods and that in Montreal she succeeded in getting $20 from Miss Watson.

LOOKS LIKE A FARCE.

Pugilist Girard Exonerated By the Jury—No More Sparring in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The coroner's inquest into the cause of death of Billy Brennan, the pugilist who was killed in a sparring match with Frank Girard Thursday night, was held to-day. Police Captain Louis testified as to the facts of the sparring match. In the fifth round Brennan clinched Girard and they fell together, Brennan underneath and his head striking the floor.

The jury returned a verdict that Brennan came to his death from shock and injuries received from falling while sparring with Girard. The prisoners were released from custody.

Mayor Cregier has announced that no more sparring matches will be allowed in this city.

That Alaska Boundary.

OTTAWA, July 5.—The report that the United States surveyors have established the boundary line between Canada and Alaska 28 miles further east than it was supposed to be, is not regarded as important at the Geological Survey Department here, as the fixing of the boundary is an international matter to be determined to the satisfaction of both countries—or failing in that, by arbitration—and has been under consideration by both countries. Against the conclusions of the United States survey, Canada has the observations of William Ogilvie of the Canadian survey party which explored the Yukon district in 1888. Ogilvie spent the winter in making astronomical observations for the purpose of ascertaining the position of the 141st degree of longitude, which he finally placed about 90 miles from the boundary line as run on United States maps.

Died From Sunstroke.

BERLIN, Ont., July 6.—Word has been received from a coroner at Lake City, Ind., of the death by sunstroke of Charles Votier, formerly bookkeeper at Nelson's foundry. He left town suddenly some two months ago and his whereabouts were unknown until this message was received. His disappearance from Berlin is a mystery as his books all showed to be in correct condition. He leaves a wife and family, one a baby about five days old. He was up to the time of his departure a member of the I. O. F. of this town and insured for $200), lately suspended on account of non-payment. An effort will be made to grant his family a portion of it.

Old "Joe Bones" in Trouble.

CORNWALL, July 6.—Joe Lebeau, commonly dubbed "Old Joe Bones," a Cornwall rag picker and bone collector, is threatened with trouble by a Montreal woman who arrived in town yesterday noon and claims to be his legal wife. She says she left him fifteen years ago, but that she is willing to return to him if he will forsake the woman who now passes as his wife. He does not incline to do so and she has threatened him with legal proceedings.

Counterfeit $2's at Exeter.

EXETER, July 6.—Some counterfeit $2 bills on the Dominion Bank are afloat, one of which was exhibited on Saturday. One of the easiest points of difference to detect is that in the genuine the figures are printed in blue ink—that is, the number of the bill—and on the counterfeit it is done in black ink, and a poor black at that. The vignette of Lord Dufferin in the centre is somewhat blurred, and there are other differences which it would take a bank clerk to detect.

Those 24 Chinese Must Go.

TUCSON, Ariz., July 6.—Commissioner Hughes yesterday gave judgment in the case of 24 Chinese charged with violating the Exclusion Act and ordered that the United States Marshal deliver them to the collector at San Francisco to be returned to China. Counsel for the Chinese urged that they be returned to Sonora, Mexico, they having entered the United States from Sonora. He has applied for a writ of habeas corpus.

Kalakaua Has a New Cabinet.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Honolulu advices state that owing to a tie vote in the Legislature June 13 on a resolution impeaching Attorney-General Ashford the Cabinet resigned. June 17 the King appointed a new Cabinet with John Adams Cummins as Minister of Foreign Affairs and Arthur P. Peterson as Attorney-General. During the proceedings of the Legislature previous to the resignation of the Ministry, it was charged that a conspiracy was on foot to depose Kalakaua and erect a republic.

CANADIAN NEWS NOTES.

THREE MORE ELECTION PROTESTS FILED SATURDAY.

The Minister of Education's Seat Attacked—Attempted Suicide at Toronto—Looking for a Buffalo Assassin—Kidnapped a Senator.

TORONTO, July 7.—Three more election protests were entered on Saturday in the Court of Appeal, making a total to date of seven. Mr. W. R. Meredith, Q.C., acting on behalf of John Raymond of Strathroy, filed a petition against Hon. G. W. Ross, M.L.A. for West Middlesex. Mr. Ross defeated John Morgan, Conservative. The charges against the Minister of Education were procuring people to vote who were not entitled to the franchise, bribery and corruption and treating and giving away liquor.

Johnston & Ross, acting on behalf of James M. Nestor, St. Catharines, filed a petition against the return of James Hiscott, Conservative, for Lincoln. Mr. Hiscott is accused of bribery, treating and polling illegal votes. He defeated William Garson, Reformer.

James S. Fullerton, Q.C., acting on behalf of Albert F. Stevenson, West Toronto Junction, filed a petition against the return of John T. Gilmour, Reformer, who defeated Mr. Clendenan, Equal Righter. The charges are of a similar nature to those pressed against Mr. Ross.

In the case of each protest the $1000 guarantee for costs was paid into court.

The protests to date now stand:

North Essex—Ind. Conservative.
Frontenac—Opposition.
South Norfolk—Government.
North Renfrew—Opposition.
West Middlesex—Government.
Lincoln—Opposition.
West York—Government.

A. F. Wood, M.L.A. North Hastings, has been appointed by the Dominion Government a commissioner to enquire into alleged irregularities in the management of the Grenville canal.

Baker Bartholomew Fowler attempted to commit suicide Saturday night by taking strychnine. He was pumped out and may recover. Domestic troubles, his wife having separated from him, are assigned as the cause of his act.

The Toronto police are looking out for Vito Gialelli, who shot Thomas Wilson in a Buffalo saloon July 4, and is now supposed to be in Canada.

FIRED ON THE FLAG.

A Casus Belli at Mount Hope—Another Lucky Hamiltonian.

HAMILTON, July 5.—Undertaker Joel Smith of Mount Hope hoisted the Stars and Stripes over his residence yesterday in honor of the "glorious." A deputation of the neighboring farmers requested its removal, but Smith declined, whereupon the flag was riddled with bullets and divided among the crowd. A second flag raised by Mr. Smith met a similar fate.

At 1 p.m. to-day Constable Watson arrested three boys named John Slaughtery, Leo Slaughtery and Robert Young on the charge of being sneak thieves. The boys were dressed in new clothing from head to foot and were at the ticket office purchasing tickets for Buffalo when arrested. It is alleged that they entered Mr. R. Daw's wood office in Main-street west yesterday morning and extracted $60 from the safe, also that they stole $12 from the safe in Mr. George Luxton's flour and feed store in York-street on Monday last. The police found $23 on them when arrested.

George Harvey and Stanley McNider, two students at Hamilton Art School last year, have returned to the city from Cornell University, Ithaca, for the vacation. Mr. Harvey took first place with 95 per cent. of marks obtainable for mechanical drawing, and Mr. McNider second place with 90 per cent. These are exceptionally high averages.

Edward Mitchell, formerly of the Bank of Commerce, held one-twentieth of ticket No 50843, which drew the first capital prize of $600,000 in the drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery Company on June 17. Mr. Mitchell has gone to Europe to escape his numerous friends.

KIDNAPPED A SENATOR.

Twenty-five Residents of Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere Arrested.

QUEBEC, July 5.—Judge Murray and High Constable Gale returned to town last evening from Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere. The result of the preliminary inquiry into the charge of kidnapping Senator Pelletier has been the issuing of warrants for the arrest of 25 residents of the parish, including a merchant and a professor of agriculture, for having illegally detained in custody for seven hours Hon. C. A. P. Pelletier, C.M.G., on June 16. The hearing of witnesses and further proceedings in the case have been adjourned till Thursday next.

An Infected Bark at Grosse Isle.

QUEBEC, July 6.—The bark Saratoga, from Marseilles for this port May 7, is detained at Grosse Isle with smallpox on board. She was towed as far as Grosse Isle by the tug Beaver. Two of the Saratoga's crew died of the disease on the passage out and were buried at sea. Another is still down with the disease. The Beaver was permitted to return to port, but not until after all her crew had been vaccinated.

Accidental and Foolish.

OTTAWA, July 5.—The inquest on the girl Mabel Biehler, who was shot by young Leggatt on Thursday morning, was finished to-day. The verdict was one of accidental shooting, coupled with a comment on the folly of allowing such youths to handle loaded firearms.

Leggatt was subsequently rearrested on a warrant issued by the County Crown Attorney, who considers that the verdict of the coroner's jury does not absolve the boy from blame.

Orillia's Preparations for the 12th.

ORILLIA, July 5.—Preparations are being made here for celebrating July 12 on a larger scale than ever before. It is expected that there will be between 7000 and 10,000 Orangemen in Orillia that day. Several are expected from the Old Country.

Fickle Mrs. Emory.

BELLEVILLE, July 5.—Mrs. Emory, who was tried with Peter Davis for the murder of her husband but escaped conviction, Davis being hanged June 20 for the crime, was married to a farmer named Gray, living near Roxboro, just eight days after Davis' execution. Davis and she became infatuated with each other and the woman's husband was subsequently found shot in a field. When Davis was arrested Mrs. Emory declared she could not live without him and followed Davis to Belleville. While he was in jail, however, she met and fell in love with the Roxboro man and allowed Davis to die without a sigh.

PARIS, July 5.—The trial of the Nihilists here resulted in the conviction of Reinstein, Makachidse, Katchintseff, Laurentius, Levoff and Orlowski, each of whom was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 200 francs. Anna, the wife of Reinstein, and a female physician named Fromberg were acquitted.

THE LIBERAL PROGRAMME.

THE speeches at the Liberal or Nationalist banquet in Montreal have a deep interest for the people of the Dominion. Although the banquet was intended to celebrate Mr. Mercier's victory, Mr. Laurier was present and the union of the Liberals of the other Provinces with Mr. Mercier's party was proclaimed and was further shown by the letters from Mr. Mowat and others congratulating Mr. Mercier on his success. And although the speech of Mr. Mercier was intended to outline the policy of his Government the programme sketched was one that effects the whole Dominion.

Provincial autonomy was the theme of the addresses. Mr. Laurier dwelt upon that subject and referred to the result of the elections in the Provinces as a victory for that policy as understood by them. He also touched upon the Riel question, and had a dig at the Equal Rights Association. He had nothing to say as to commercial union or the tariff policy of his party, but while he did not advocate a fiscal combination with the United States against Great Britain he made this significant declaration:—

> "We could not always remain a colony. The time must come when we would have to take our proper position in the world and for one he waited independence."

This is an important declaration, as it shows that the Liberal leader desires the complete severance of the connection with Great Britain, and it is scarcely probable that Mr. Laurier would have made a declaration of such importance unless he knew it would not be obnoxious to his Parliamentary colleagues.

Mr. Mercier's speech was almost entirely devoted to what he termed Provincial autonomy, and he was good enough to explain to some extent what he meant by the term. Divested of detail he claims that the Provinces should have greater powers and more funds, the funds to come, of course, from the Dominion treasury. One of the first things he wishes to see accomplished is the abolition of the veto power now possessed by the Dominion, and with that an enlargement of the legislative powers and patronage of the Provinces. Some years ago Mr. Mercier proposed that the Dominion should hand over to the Provinces the control of the excise and the revenue arising therefrom. The absurdity of that proposal has apparently become plain to him, for he does not repeat it, but he wishes the Dominion to recompense Quebec for money expended on railways—to assume the debt of the Province in order that it may be in a position to increase its expenditures.

Taking these utterances of the Liberal leaders, together with the trade policy advocated at other times, their policy or desire is seen to be to sever the connection with Great Britain, to form a tariff combine with the United States against Great Britain, to weaken Confederation by making the Provinces more independent of the central authority, and to enlarge the Provincial revenues at the expense of the Dominion treasury.

EVEN Toronto papers admit that the carnival in that city was a failure. But it drew a large crowd and plenty of money and Toronto will go on advertising its fall show for the same purpose.

The Right Man in the Right Place.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I am sure that when I say that Councillor Langford is the right man in the right place I express the sentiments of nearly every citizen. The prompt way in which he took up the question of the Council adopting a proper system of sewerage is worthy of all praise.

I sincerely hope that the action taken in this matter by the Council at its last meeting may be continued to a successful issue, as nothing they can do is more likely to promote the prosperity of the town than a thorough system of sewerage, and no time should be more opportune than the present, as there are a great many laborers out of employment.

Yours, &c.,
CITIZEN.

Peterborough, July 7, 1890.

Mr. Blezard and Mr. J. G. Weir.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—In a recent issue of the REVIEW there appeared a letter over the signature of J. G. Weir, in which he says:—"I cannot believe the statement of the Examiner (that Mr. Weir had promised Mr. Blezard his (Mr. Weir's) support in the East Riding election) unless I see it over Mr. Blezard's own signature." To satisfy the public in connection with the matter I will here supply the confirmation that Mr. Weir demands. I did say that Mr. Weir was supporting me, and my authority for saying so was the assurance of Mr. J. Graham Weir himself. About three weeks before the election I met Mr. Weir on the Keene Road, and without any solicitation on my part, he told me he would support me. From my acquaintance with Mr. Weir I had no reason to doubt his word. I expected from what he then said, and from what I had heard from other quarters, that I should have Mr. Weir's support. If men making the profession of Mr. Weir are not to be believed, then I should like to know whose word can be depended upon.

Yours very truly,
THOS. BLEZARD.

NOT DEAD YET.

Vice-President Hobbs Says the International Will Stick.

DETROIT, July 6.—While the Londons were being trounced by the Detroits yesterday the directors of the International League were having a meeting in the directors' box at Recreation Park. There were present: Vice-President T. S. Hobbs of London, W. A. Pettapiece of Saginaw-Bay City, H. W. Beecher, Grand Rapids, and President Mills and Director Chittenden of Detroit. It was generally thought the meeting would wind up the affairs of the league, but to the surprise of all the directors came out smiling and determined.

"Yes, sir, we intend to stick," said Vice-President Hobbs. "There is a general understanding that expenses are to be cut. Detroit has shown the way in which to do it. Selling high salaried players, their places have been filled by lower salaried men, who have, nevertheless, played just as good ball. The other clubs will follow suit.

"If Hamilton gives up it is likely the team representing that city will be transferred to Port Huron, which had the promise of the first vacancy in the International. The question of disbanding the League was not discussed. There is no such intention."

The Detroits were scheduled to play in London Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, but have decided to stay in Detroit and play on those days.

United States Crops.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The weather the past week in Minnesota and Dakota has favored the growing crops, although localities in South Dakota need rain, and occasional reports of rust come from Southern Minnesota. Wheat, oats and barley are heading and corn is reported in good condition. Throughout the principal corn-producing States, including the States of the Ohio, Central Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, the weather was especially favorable for harvesting, which is well advanced. The condition of corn is generally reported as excellent, but small grains have been somewhat injured by drought. Reports from the entire cotton region indicate that this crop continues to improve, although other crops, especially corn, in the south Atlantic and Gulf states need rain. The weather was generally favorable in the middle Atlantic states and New England. Harvesting is progressing with a prospect of a large hay crop throughout these districts. The oat crop is poor, but has improved slightly in the middle Atlantic States. New York reports apples not half a crop, while corn and hops were improved and potatoes good. All crops are growing finely in New England except oats, which are rusting badly, and potatoes and corn show signs of blight; in the southern sections the fruit crop will be short.

An Awful Country.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 5.—The fourth destructive storm of the week passed over this locality yesterday, flooding cellars, damaging streets and sweeping away crops. The sudden heavy rainfall deluged the Kanawha and Muskingum Valleys. An unofficial estimate places the damage in the Muskingum Valley at $500,000. Much of this is to the Government works for the improvement of navigation.

To Honor Their Dead Heroes.

LIMA, Peru, July 5.—Great preparations are being made here to receive the remains of the Peruvian heroes who lost their lives during the late war with Chili. They are being brought from different points by Peruvian men-of-war and will be re-interred here. The Peruvian man-of-war Lima brought to Iquique yesterday the remains of Vice-Admiral Grau and others. She was escorted from Valparaiso by the Chilian man-of-war Esmeralda.

Why He Resigned.

MONTREAL, July 6.—Mr. R. N. King, Inspector of the Ontario Bank here, has been appointed local manager in place of Mr. W. A. Chipman, who has resigned. It is stated that Mr. Chipman's resignation was due to the unfair way in which he considered himself treated by the head office at Toronto in the preparation of the annual report, which stated that $200,000 had to be taken from the rest account during the year to meet losses incurred in the Montreal and Toronto offices. As the losses sustained in the Montreal office did not exceed $10,000, the balance being sustained at Toronto, Mr. Chipman thought that if the Montreal office was mentioned at all there should have been a specification of the losses in each place.

His Friends Have Arrived.

WINNIPEG, July 6.—The friends of the late J. J. Hocken, who committed suicide, have arrived from Toronto for the purpose of looking after the affairs of the deceased. Hocken was a bookkeeper and was a native of Chatham, N.B. It is understood that he is worth a good deal of money inherited through his grandmother, Mrs. Samuel of Richibucto. He went from here to Chatham and thence to Montreal.

The Abandoned Benguella.

LONDON, July 5.—Captain Spratly of the British steamer Biela, at Liverpool from New York, reports that he boarded the abandoned steamer Benguella on June 24 in lat. 40 north long. 49 west, and found twelve feet of water in her hold. Some of her sails were set. The yards were adrift and the hatches off. The passengers' luggage was on the deck. Breakfast was on the table in the saloon. Capt. Spratly would not risk towing the vessel.

Freak of Lightning.

COLUMBUS, S.C., July 5.—A negro woman was sitting in her house at Martin's Point Thursday with a 2-year-old child in her lap. Her husband was standing on the opposite side of the room. A thunderstorm was in progress and a stroke of lightning descended upon the house. The child was instantly killed, its father fatally shocked and the mother was not injured or even shocked by the stroke. The same bolt of lightning killed a workman in a field.

Queen Victoria's Old Age.

Queen Victoria at the age of seventy-one is a very plain old lady, and she was by no means good-looking some thirty years ago, while she was still in the prime of life. She suffered a great deal from attacks of erysipelas, which reddened and coarsened her skin. She lost her teeth very early in life, owing to the use of a camphorated dentrifice to which she took a great fancy and which proved most pernicious. But from her accession at the age of eighteen till she was twenty-five or twenty-six the Queen was a very pretty young woman, fresh and fair with soft blue eyes, small, rosy mouth and the loveliest arms and shoulders imaginable. Her lack of height was always a great drawback, and was the cause of her delighting in giving grand fancy costume balls, at which she was wont to appear in a court toilet of the eighteenth century, the high-heeled shoes which must perforce be worn with such a dress lending a becoming addition to her stature.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

A Plague of Locusts.

TRIPOLI, June 28.—This country is being devastated by locusts. The decomposed bodies of the insects fill the wells, infecting the water and rendering it unfit for use.

What Mrs. Grundy Says.

That a great many wealthy people do not appreciate a luxurious life.

That other people's money goes into the bets incident to the racing season.

That society's interest in a variety hall dancer is confined to a few.

That a fresh lot of immoral novels has just been placed on sale.

That the multiplicity of comic papers very much adulterates the wit.

That the fashionable mother keeps her daughters young as long as possible.

That less athletics and more study would be a good thing at some colleges.

That the acme of happiness with some people is when they are talked about.

That women were created for something better than everlasting devotion to dogs.

That there are a great many Jekyll-Hyde men among our "best citizens."

That the happiest people are those not dependent upon the society of their neighbors.

That every man who makes a will that does not please the heirs is, of course, crazy.

That the snobs are looking about to see how they can have a notorious summer.

That wise ocean travelers never go to Europe in the fastest or the most crowded steamer.

That sometimes people who "don't know anybody" are the ones really desirable to know.

That it is sad, but true, that the girl of the period is by no means "well educated."

That gentility is never assertive and its representatives mind their own business.

That often women in search of bargains would knock down an elephant to get to the counter.

Cooking a Trout.

The successful angler, on returning to camp, should clean a few trout in the crystal water of the stream he had but a few moments before hurried them from. A fire is built. The trout are buttered and seasoned with salt and pepper, then wrapped in paper leaves and buried in the hot ashes, where they steam in their own fragrant vapor.

As the angler removes the wrappings and the delicate aroma ascends, his sensitive nostrils quiver, his palate rouses into self-consciousness, and in a tone of emotion he murmurs: "Ye gods! N'yum—n'yum—n'yum."

The next best mode of cooking small trout is to clean them, rinse them quickly in cold spring water, dry with a towel and rub a little salt on the inside along the bone. Then cut into dice half a pound of the sweetest pork obtainable, fry it out in the frying pan, and into the pork fat, actively boiling, plunge the delicate fish.

Large brook trout, salmon and lake trout are delicious steamed. Butter the trout and season with salt and pepper; wrap the fish in muslin, put them in the old-fashioned steamer, place it over a pot of boiling water and the ascending steam will do the rest.

Costly Courting in Philadelphia.

"I issued a warrant this afternoon for the arrest of a man on a very peculiar charge," said an up-town police magistrate last evening, "and as there is no likelihood of his being captured, I violate no ethics in telling you about it.

"This man, who has heretofore been looked upon as a hard-working, honest mechanic, is the father of two daughters, both of whom received young gentleman callers at their home. During the winter these young men, when they started to go home one evening, found their overcoats missing from the rack in the hallway. The theft was reported to the police, who blamed it on sneak thieves. One of these young men had no less than three overcoats stolen during the winter, and the other lost two, besides his hat. Five other young men, who had made informal calls, also missed their coats. The father of the girls was the most active in denouncing the thief when the theft was discovered.

"Two weeks ago all of the coats were found at a down-town pawnbroker's office, and the description of the man who pawned them tallies exactly with that of the father of the girl. Whether he got wind of the discovery I do not know, but for some reason he moved away very suddenly while the young men were deliberating whether they should secure his arrest or not. The young ladies are estimable in every way, and for their sake I do not believe any special effort will be put forth to apprehend their father. It is one of the strangest cases that ever came before me."—Philadelphia Record.

"Forging the Fetters" is a new novel by Mrs. Alexander published by Wm. Bryce, of Toronto, in his popular Canadian copyright series.

From John Brintnell, Toronto, has been received a pamphlet by S. Horatio Hodges, late Major in the Salvation Army, which is a criticism of the leaders or commanders of the Army.

The Canadian Pacific railway has issued a new time table dated June 30th. There are no changes in the arrival or departure of trains at this station.

Struck It This Time.

The report comes booming along—somehow reports always boom—that a York County editor has been granted a government office on the plea that his health had been ruined by hard party work and indigestion. He probably neglected one of the plain rules; that followed, leads to perfect health, to buy your teas at Hawley Bros'., George-st., where the quantity and genuineness of the article sold is a first consideration. d5

An Aged Prisoner.

George O'Brien, an old man from Ashburnham, whose grey hairs and trembling gait bespoke the weight of years which hung heavy on his shoulders, was locked up on Saturday night charged with drunkenness. He spent Sunday at the gaol and appeared at the Police Court this morning pleading for "pardon." He admitted that he had one drink of beer when he was arrested. He had a quantity of clothing with him when arrested that he was trying to dispose of. The Magistrate remanded him for one week.

Canada's Summer.

A good summer number has been published by Saturday Night, of Toronto. A large number of Christmas and carnival publications, many of them of merit, have been published in Canada, but they represented the Dominion in her winter garb and were apt to confirm the notion of ignorant foreigners that this was a frozen land. "Canada's Summer" would dispel that idea. It contains a number of good engravings of summer scenes—camping, fishing and boating scenes, including picturesque bits of scenery, all admirably executed. Saturday Night knew where to obtain scenes that would favorably represent Canada's summer, for in several of the illustrations will be recognized familiar islands and places on Stony Lake, one of Peterborough's popular summer resorts. The number also contains a quantity of pleasant reading.

A Cheeky Tramp.

A young lady in the First Ward received a fright on Friday last, and not without reason. She went into a room in her home and, as young ladies occasionally do, looked into a mirror. She was startled to see in it a man's visage, and turning round beheld a rather rough looking man standing in the door of the wardrobe. She made a rush to get out, but the uninvited guest got to the door first and closed it. She then made good use of her voice, and her cries brought her mother, but the intruder bolted out of a window and disappeared.

Mr. Joseph H. Deutcher, of Rochester, an old Peterborough boy, is in town after many years absence, visiting relatives and old friends.

What Might Have Resulted in a Serious Crime.

A gentleman who was possessed of means and being in the habit of carrying a large amount of cash was sauntering his way home. He was accosted at the corner of George and Simcoe-sts. (police not present) by a gentleman who hailed him and asked if he were going home, this being between 9.30 and 10 o'clock p.m. He answered "Yes" and walked as far as the Lock Works, placed his hand to his hip pocket, pulled out a list of prices and handed it to him, he being a brother grocer, stating at the same time it would be impossible to live if w j morrow continued selling goods at the prices he was, but after considering he paid cash for his goods, secured discounts, it would be impossible for them to compete. d3

Death of Mrs. Ambrose.

The following reference to the death and funeral of the late Mrs. Ambrose, daughter of Mr. W. Cluxton, of town, is taken from the Essex (Eng.) Standard of June 21st:—We are sorry to announce the death of Ada, the beloved wife of Mr. Thomas Hitchcock Ambrose, owner of Copford Lodge, which took place at Liverpool on June 9. Mr. Ambrose with his wife and child were returning from New York, and two days after embarking, Mrs. Ambrose was seized with an illness, which completely prostrated her during the rest of the voyage. On landing at Liverpool, Dr. Edward Liveing was immediately summoned by telegram, and upon his arrival found Mrs. Ambrose suffering from typhoid fever. He pronounced her case as hopeless, and the unfortunate lady died on Monday night. The body was brought to London, and interred in Kensal Green Cemetery (the resting place of Mr. Ambrose's parents), on Saturday last. The mourners comprised Mr. Thos. H. Ambrose (the widower), Mr. Geo. W. Bawtree and F. C. Cosens (brothers-in-law), Dr. Edward Liveing, Mr. Edwin Worts, of Colchester (the family medical attendant), Mr. Oliver John Williams, and Mr. Edgar Lingwood (who represented the tenantry of the estate). The coffin was covered with handsome wreaths, sent by Major Ambrose (whose official duties precluded his personal attendance), Mr. Geo. Bawtree, Mr. Cosens, Dr. Liveing, and Mr. Worts, and a very handsome one from Mr. Courtney Thorpe (the celebrated actor), who was a fellow passenger on board the steamer with the family. The deceased lady, who was universally beloved, and was only 35 years of age, leaves one son, aged 10 years, who is presumptive heir to the Copford Lodge Estates, and who was being brought home to England by his parents for an English education.

ORANGEMEN AT CHURCH.

THE MEMBERS OF THE ORDER ATTEND TWO SERVICES.

A Large Turnout in the Afternoon to Hear Rev. Mr. Houck at Bridgenorth—A Most Creditable Procession in Town in the Evening—Rev. Mr. Locke, the new Pastor of George-st. Church, Preaches to the Order in the Evening—A Vast Congregation—The new Pastor a Pleasing Pulpit Speaker.

Yesterday was a rallying day for the Orangemen of Peterborough and this immediate vicinity. The members of the Order listened to two discourses preached, as is the custom, in honor of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. In the afternoon the brethren of the Peterborough lodges of Orangemen, 'Prentice Boys and True Blues attended service at Bridgenorth with the members of Smith Lodge, No. 178, and Nassau Lodge, No. 457. Rev. Mr. Houck preached an excellent and appropriate sermon in the new Methodist church at Bridgenorth and his discourse fell on most attentive ears.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

In the evening the brethren assembled at the Orange Hall, corner of George and Simcoe-sts., formed into procession and marched to the George-st. Church where Rev. J. H. Locke, the new pastor of that church, delivered a very able discourse which was listened to with interest. There was a large turnout of the Order headed by the Fire Brigade Band. The procession was composed as follows:—

Fire Brigade Band.
Alex. Hamilton, County Master, J. G. Weir, District Master and John McClelland, Master of Ceremonies.
Marshall.
Jubilee Lodge True Blues.
King William Lodge True Blues.
Jubilee Lodge 'Prentice Boys.
L.O. Lodges Nos. 49 and 58.
Nassau L.O. Lodge No. 457.
Smith L.O. Lodge, No. 178.
Preceptory of Black Knights.

It was the first appearance in public of Jubilee Lodge of True Blues, which is composed of boys, who marched with as much manliness as any of the venerable grey-haired sires who have paraded in Orange processions for many and many a year. The boys looked well and conducted themselves admirably. The line of march was straight up George-st. to the church and the sidewalks were lined with people to see the parade. The appearance of the different lodges was very favorably commented upon and deservedly so. At the church the centre pews had been reserved for the members of the Order while the remainder of the church and gallery was filled beyond its seating capacity with members of the congregation and friends of the Order. It was a grand congregation that had to face upon his first Sunday in Peterborough. In the morning the rev. gentleman preached his first sermon as pastor in his new charge to a good congregation and the first impressions were most favorable. He choose for his text the words:

"Knowing therefore, the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."—II Cor. v, ii.

The rev. gentleman is a pleasing pulpit speaker, possessing a beauty of diction and a calm, earnest delivery. He speaks rapidly but distinctly, having a voice which is characterized more by its clearness of utterance and earnestness than its power of tone. While speaking low his words can be heard any place in the large edifice and are uttered in a manner which bespeaks a heart which is full of earnest zeal for the work of which he is a minister. He comes here under the most pleasing auspices and the entire community will wish him and his congregation success and prosperity under his ministrations. He took occasion at both services to impress upon the members of his congregation the necessity of their assistance in forming the ties of friendship which must essentially exist between pastor and people. He said it would take three years for him to become acquainted with all of them without their assistance, but it would not require three months to accomplish that if they gave him their co-operation and took advantage of every opportunity to speak to him and make his acquaintance.

THE EVENING SERMON.

In the evening the discourse the Rev. Mr. Locke delivered was an exceptionally able one, but was not specially prepared for the occasion and therefore was not couched in thought and theme particularly for the organization to which it was delivered. However, the vast congregation were most interested auditors and were pleased with the sermon which was based on the words:—

"And when the Day of Pentecost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from Heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance.—Acts ii 1-4.

The rev. gentleman commenced by referring to the authorship of the Book of Acts and its connection with St. Luke's gospel. He said it was generally agreed that St. Luke wrote this gospel of Acts. In the opening verse he referred to a former treatise and this other treatise was St. Luke's gospel. In St. Luke's gospel St. Luke told what Christ had done in and through Himself and in Acts he gave them what He had done through others. He began the Book of Acts just where he ended St. Luke. The minister then took up the text and asked the congregation to look at the manner in which the blessing came to those in the upper chamber. First it came suddenly, which showed the presence of the supernatural. So it was with religion, many revivals and conversions of souls had been brought about suddenly. The rev. gentleman pointed to the works of Wesley, Wycliffe, Jonathan Edwards in the Western States, and the early ministers of the church, and said on many occasions the Spirit came down suddenly, people trembled, the change came and there was a mighty conversion. The minister then pointed out that the blessing came audibly, symbolizing the testimony that was to go throughout the land and the whole world. It came as a rushing wind, a type of the Spirit which was everywhere, was diversified in its operations, and filled the whole heart. He then dwelt upon the fact that the blessing came visibly—"There appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire and it sat upon each one of them"—and referred to the workings of the Spirit in men. There was no difference in the Spirit, but a difference in the degree in which men received it. One it might leave in obscurity and in another it might fill the whole heart and make all things light. He impressed upon them the importance of being imbued with His Spirit and said it should be the object of their desires and theme of their prayers. They should sing:

> "Fill me radiancy Divine
> Scatter all my unbelief,
> More and more Thyself display
> Shine unto the perfect day."

He said they only had to renew the pleadings of Pentecost and the seeds and results of Pentecost would be repeated and this would be the brightest and best year in the history of the church. In conclusion he said on behalf of the trustees of the church he bid the members of the Order before him a hearty welcome. He regretted at not having given a special and appropriate sermon, but he had not been aware of the character of the service until nine o'clock Saturday night. He regretted this, but if at some future time they desired he would deliver a sermon either at their November or July anniversary. He knew the principles of their Order and knew they were good and if carried out they would make loyal subjects, distinguished patriots and good citizens. He was aware of the obligation which Protestantism throughout the world owed to the Orange order and it was only right for Christian churches to open their doors and in every way aid the extension of those principles which were in the interest of the great Protestant reformation and religion.

Mr. Bowman sang a solo in good voice while the collection was being taken up and the choir rendered an excellent anthem during the service. The musical part of the service was exceedingly good.

After the service the procession was reformed and the brethren marched back to the lodge room.

Among the Other Churches.

At St. Paul's Church yesterday morning it was announced that Rev. P. Clifton Parker was to deliver a special sermon to the Orange Order in that church at four o'clock in the afternoon. Accordingly quite a number went to St. Paul's in the afternoon, but no Orangemen appeared and no service was held. The mistake occurred through a misunderstanding.

Rev. Dr. King, of the Manitoba Presbyterian College, occupied the pulpit at St. Paul's Church at both services yesterday. The rev. gentleman took occasion to present the claims of his college for financial aid to the congregation.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw preached a very able and forcible discourse at the evening service at St. John's Church last evening.

Man, Woman and Knife.

There is trouble among the natives of Italy who reside on Aylmer-st. and the pea nut vendors who do business on the corner of George and Hunter-sts. were seeking the police this afternoon, each with a different story. Frank Antony is the name of one of the Italians and has the reputation of being a quiet, law-abiding citizen. He has another native of the country of blue sky working with him, and this foreigner is fortunate or unfortunate enough to be married. At noon to-day Anthony, who lives with his brother Italian, went home to dinner and in some way quarreled with his partner's wife. The row resulted in the woman receiving a cut on one of her fingers. Anthony says the woman attacked him with the knife, while the woman says Anthony assaulted her and cut her finger. The trouble will probably be laid before the Police Magistrate at the Police Court.

REVIEWS.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The July St. Nicholas has several reminders of Revolutionary days and the glorious Fourth. In The Baby a Prisoner of War Margaret Foster Owen relates the capture and return of a grandniece of Washington. The story is amusing and cleverly told and gracefully illustrated. The sports of summer are prominent. Mrs. Parnell writes charmingly of cycling, Mr. Parnell furnishing the illustrations; F. W. Pangborn tells How to Sail a Boat, and Edward Burgess, the distinguished designer of the great prize-winners, the Puritan, Mayflower, Volunteer, and others hardly less famous, has made for St. Nicholas readers complete working-drawings of a boy's sail-boat; Camp's invaluable base-ball series is continued, and no ball-player can afford not to read these articles. Simple enough to instruct the novice, they are so comprehensive as to be of aid even to the expert. H. W. Henshaw contributes a study of the commoner American hawks, which are described and pictured in such a way as to leave no excuse for the ignorant slaughter of useful varieties, which is denounced by the writer. A most natural and amusing little story is that by H. H. Ewing, describing How Hugh Went to the Party, which could not but be true in all respects. No reader could fail to find articles to his taste in a list of features so various in character and so excellent in quality.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Points & Pointers

Some of our customers seem surprised that people as polite as we are never raise our hats to them. It is against our principles to do so. We do not raise our hats to any one. They are two dollars each; one price to all.

People who try on our Summer Suits seem to have very pleasant reflections. They can't help it when they stand in front of one of our mirrors.

If you should enter our store some day and see a sign, "Keep to the Right and Keep Moving," you must'nt think it is addressed to you. That is our motto. We go ahead when we're sure we're right, and then we keep to the right and keep moving. But we havn't put up that sign yet, and we do not know that we shall, for it is against our principles to put up anything. We keep things down. We don't even allow our customers to put up very much. Ten dollars for a Nobby Suit. Think of it.

Speaking of mottoes one of our steamed competitors (we say "steamed," because he's gone up the spout now) had for his motto, "Watch and Wait." He gave a watch with every suit, and then waited for the customer to come back and kick. It is said that patient waiting suffers no loss, but it wasn't so in this man's case by a good deal or a bad deal, to be more accurate.

Some clothing dealers give away a base-ball and bat with every purchase, but we don't because we are not up to any games.

There's no ball to every suit at our store but there are some of our suits at every ball if we mistake not.

No, we do not give away watches, but we do give to every purchaser first-class value for his money.

Call and see us if you do not see what you want ask for it, and if you don't get it then you'll have to whistle for it, it isn't in the market.

GIRLS IN THE WATER.

AQUARELLE PICTURES OF MAIDEN AND MATRON BEAUTIES.

Swimming a Means of Grace—The Art as Taught With the Sanction of Fashion—Marine Costumes—London Bathing Parties.

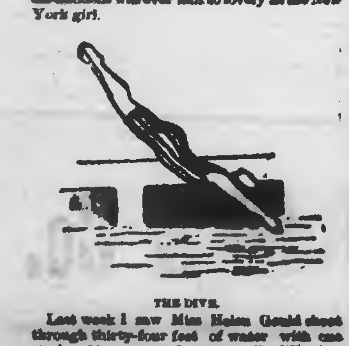
THE ladies of the present day in New York society are no longer the dainty things that novelists and poets have loved to make them.

The girl of the period is a lithe, clean limbed, red-lipped creature, who can walk ten miles if need be, or she will do it just for fun. More than this, she has an athletic training that would put a Grecian gladiator to shame.

If she chooses to fence, even two Richmonds in the field will not daunt her. When she takes it into her head to organize a boat club—as she is sure to do some day—the Harvard crew will hunt for holes in which to hide their wilted laurels. What wonder, then, that she can swim like a mermaid!

THE NEW YORK GIRL.

But I'll wager that not one of these mythical mermaidens was ever half so lovely as the New York girl.



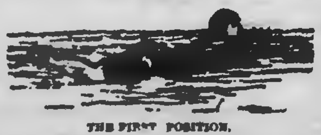
THE DIVE.

Last week I saw Miss Helen Gould shoot through thirty-four feet of water with one stroke of her arms. I also saw Ella Wheeler-Wilcox stand upon a springing board many feet above the water, throw her pretty white arms above her head and sail downward head-first into water seven feet deep. She came up twenty feet from where she went down, shaking her head like a water spaniel and smiling as a sea nymph. Miss Florence Schieffelin was there, too. "Taking my last dip," she said, "I go to the country to-morrow." I have seen Miss Florence at many society affairs in many pretty gowns, but she never looked so pretty in her life as she did in her swimming costume of red and blue. Where were all these ladies? They were at Professor Gebhard's Swimming School, or "Natatorium."

But the girls don't call it that. They say "the tank," or "the tub," or "the plunge," or any other good English word that they happen to think of. And that's another thing about the New York girl. She doesn't ape foreign words or foreign airs. She leaves all that to the dudes. English, or even plain every-day American, is good enough for her.

IN THE SWIMMING SCHOOL.

The plunge is 53 feet long and 34 feet wide, while the depth varies from three to seven feet. The day that I was there more than forty ladies and children were in the water at once, and didn't they have fun! Jolly Mrs. Hudnut jumped up and down and round about like a little girl. After one particularly big splash she said:—"I don't wonder the children like to play in the water."

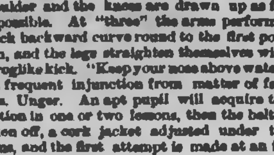


THE FIRST POSITION.

Mrs. Dr. Loomis and her daughter, Miss Hecht, Miss Hayes and Mrs. Judge Howel are among the many well known ladies who have learned to swim in this school. Mrs. Cleveland, too, has taken a course of lessons and is a strong swimmer. A pretty young girl, with a brown curly head, was just learning, and Mrs. Unger, the teacher, had her hands full, for the young lady was sure she was going to drown and persistently refused to straighten herself out in the water as she was told to do. For beginners there is a broad belt which goes round the body, with a ring in the back. This is fastened to a rope and pulley wheel which runs on a little iron track above. Mrs. Unger stands on the platform with a long pole, which she uses either to pull her pupil in or push her out to sea, as she sees fit.

NATATORIAL A B C.

The first position is to lie flat on the stomach in the water, with the arms straight out in front and the palms of the hands together. The legs also must be perfectly straight, with the soles upward and heels together. This is "one." When the teacher counts "two" the arms are thrown straight out from the shoulder and the knees are drawn up as far as possible. At "three" the arms perform a quick backward curve round to the first position, and the legs straighten themselves with a froglike kick. "Keep your nose above water" is a frequent injunction from matter of fact Mrs. Unger. An apt pupil will acquire the motion in one or two lessons, then the belt is taken off, a cork jacket adjusted under the arms, and the first attempt is made at an independent swim.



THE SECOND POSITION.

But the hard part of it all is when this buoy is removed, and Mrs. Unger's long stick pokes one out into deep water and won't allow any coming back, while she inexorably counts, "One, two, three; not so fast. One, two, three; put your arms out straight. One, two, three; hold up your head, you don't want to swallow the water, it's there to swim in. One, two, three; no, you can't come in, stay where you are, and if you can't keep afloat after all the trouble I've had with you you ought to be ashamed."

Sometimes the victim gets desperate and makes a bold plunge for shore, but she the long stick every time.

MARINE COSTUMES.

The suit that is worn is all in one piece—a low cut, sleeveless waist and a pair of trunks reaching half way to the knee. The suit is made of flannel and fits closely, so that the movement is not at all impeded.

Some of the costumes are of contrasting colors, elaborately braided, so that the bathers with their fanciful rubber caps present a very picturesque appearance.

Miss Helen Gould is a member of the "Ladies' Athletic Club," at Berkeley Lyceum, and her form is as supple as a willow. Her round, white arms, while being very shapely, are as firm and strong as a baseball player's. She propels her body through the water with wonderful strength, and is the only swimmer who can go across the big tank with one stroke.

Several of the trained swimmers are practising to accomplish this feat, and one young girl cried out in triumph the other day, "I made it in five strokes!" "Well, if you did," said Mrs. Unger, "you can't have the place until you make it in four."

There is an advanced class who are trained so that they will be equal to any emergency. They float upon their backs, tread water and jump from heights of from five to twenty feet. Some of the ladies can jump from the balcony into the water with all their clothes on and swim or dive.

One of the exercises is for a lady to spring into the water handicapped in this way and rescue another who is out in the middle of the basin, pretending that she is drowning. The rescuer tows the drowning one, who supposedly cannot swim, to the platform, where she lands her high and—well, not exactly dry. Tests of endurance are also given. The pupil is trained to swim long distances under water and to keep afloat for hours.

INDOOR BATHING PARTIES.

Out of this proficiency on the part of the ladies has grown a new idea—that of giving bathing parties. A young lady who has recently given one grew quite enthusiastic when the subject was mentioned.

"I don't see any more objection," she said "to ladies and gentlemen bathing together in the house than down on the beach. It is too hot to dance, and one doesn't want to dance all the time, any way. Games of all sorts are stupid, and so we have thought of this plan. Usually we have the bathing party after playing tennis. We have dinner, sit around and chat for an hour or two and then we retire to put our bathing suits on and go into the plunge."—N. Y. Herald.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

Mirrors on the Wane—Yellow or Golden the Prevailing Tint for Wall Paper.

Some important alterations in styles of furnishing are noted lately. Mirrors are not so plenteous and there is lamentation among many women thereat. An English authority on decorative matters says yellow walls rage everywhere, and this prevalence of yellow has knocked out the Indian carpet and orientalism in rugs. English Axminsters have a better chance now. They are made in subdued shades so as not to clash with the yellow walls. One, for instance, was of pale terra cotta with a cream border, patterned with cornucopias and flowers. A good many walls however, are paneled out. Silk cord is substituted for molding in some instances. But yellow, or, as it is called golden, to vary the style, is undoubtedly the prevailing tint for wall paper and hangings.

China matting, varied with rugs, is largely used for drawing rooms during the summer. It is very cool and delightfully clean and simple. China matting is generally plain, but there is some patterned with fans, tattoo marks, Japanese umbrellas and figures. It looks rather pretty. Antique Persian rugs on which perhaps a thousand prayers have been said, have fallen heavily in price.

A Quick Way to Get Rid of Moths.

When once moths get into a room it is difficult to extirpate them. Harper's Bazar gives however, the following process for destroying them, which is easy and worthy of trial. Close all the windows and all doors leading from the room about to undergo treatment; open wide each drawer and closet and hang the contents over chairs or upon a clothes horse brought into the room for the occasion. Take a piece of gum camphor as large as a hazelnut for an ordinary room (as large as a walnut for a room 20 by 16), put it in an iron pot and place the latter within another iron pot or upon an iron stand. Set fire to the camphor. It burns very fiercely, so set it at a safe distance from furniture or hangings—the middle of the room is the best place for it unless this be directly under a chandelier, in which case it can be placed more towards the side, as the heat is apt to injure the gilding or bronze.

The dense smoke soon permeates every nook and corner and suffocates every insect that inhales it. Canary birds or goldfish are to be carried from the room before beginning operations, and as soon as the camphor begins to burn the operator may leave the room, as provided she has taken the precautions, there will be no danger of the fire spreading. The camphor will burn from a quarter to half an hour, but it can be extinguished at any moment by placing over it a stove lid or the cover of the pot. Let the smoke remain in the room about half an hour, then open the windows wide, leaving them so all day. All the rooms can be treated thus in succession or all at once, a care being taken to guard against fire.

A New Disinfectant.

A new disinfectant has made its appearance, says American Analyst, under the name of thiocamph. It is a combination of camphor with sulphurous acid, containing over sixty times its volume of sulphurous acid gas, which upon its exposure in a warm room is gradually evolved. The property of camphor to absorb sulphurous acid with the formation of a new chemical compound was pointed out some time ago by H. M. Schultze. Thiocamph is a liquid, and may be employed in a pure condition or dissolved in alcohol, in which it is readily soluble. It is well known that sulphurous acid is an efficient disinfectant, but owing to its gaseous condition its employment has been attended with many objectionable features. It is manufactured on a large scale.

Give the Baby Water to Drink.

It is a mistake to suppose that because milk is a liquid food it is at the same time a drink which is capable of satisfying the thirst of infants. The Pacific Health Journal asserts that although milk appeases hunger it makes thirst more intense after it has remained some time in the stomach and digestion of it has begun. It is thirst which causes healthy breast nourished infants to cry for long periods of time in many instances. There are many cases of indigestion due to weakness or insufficiency of the child's gastric juice which would be greatly benefited, or even cured, if the child were allowed an occasional drink of water.

Queen Cakes.

Work a quarter of a pound of butter to a cream, dredge to it half a pound of flour, add a quarter of a pound of sifted sugar and a quarter of a pound of currants; whisk two eggs and mix with half a teacupful of thin cream and a few drops of lemon essence; stir this to the flour and then add a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat the paste well for ten minutes, then bake in small, buttered tins, for from a quarter to half an hour. The mixture should be stiff and doughy. This amount is enough to make a dozen cakes.

Softening Hard Water.

For softening hard water, where wood ashes can be obtained, the lye made by boiling some in water, and straining off the liquor when the ashes have settled and left it clear, is perhaps the best way. Otherwise use the concentrated ammonia for the purpose, preferring the purest attainable, and diluting it yourself. Borax dissolved in boiling water, and added to the washing water, will soften it, and is particularly good when linen articles are to be cleaned.

THE DOCTORS DISAGREE.

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN THE M'GILLIVRAY STORY.

Dr. Alice Re-Abducts Little Gladys and Her Husband Causes Her Arrest—Some Hamilton Experiences of an Unhappy Medical Family.

HAMILTON, July 7.—To the long story of the unhappy conjugal relations of Dr. T. Shannon McGillivray and Dr. Alice McGillivray, his wife, two interesting chapters were added yesterday and to-day.

The Doctors McGillivray separated some time ago, Dr. Alice going to Chicago and engaging in the practice of her profession in the Windy City with a view, it is said, of acquiring a residence in Illinois, which is an essential preliminary to a Sucker State divorce. Four-year-old Gladys, the only visible remnant of the affection which once made these two medical hearts to throb as one, was left in the care of her grandmother, Mrs. Skimin, who resides in this city. Dr. T. Shannon McGillivray last Wednesday by a clever ruse obtained possession of the little girl, and Dr. Alice hastened to the village under the hill with all the speed of the Grand Trunk to regain the custody of her offspring.

At 9 o'clock last night King-street west was thronged with people returning from church who were startled on hearing sounds of strife issuing from 155. This unsabbatic behavior caused a crowd to hover around the place. The spectators saw Dr. Alice rush out with a child in her arms and hand it through the window of an adjoining house; then she went in by the door, and Detective Littlehales walked quietly away from No. 155. For a few minutes there was much excitement, the police were telephoned, the patrol wagon dashed up, and constables came in due course.

The affair was the result of a scheme on the part of the mother to get possession of her child.

Dr. Alice came at 8½, bringing Miss Nell Skimin with her. They went upstairs and Mrs. McGillivray took the child in her arms and walked up and down the room with it. The door bell rang and a man came in to see the doctor. He gave his name as John Thomas and was ushered in to the consulting room, where he engaged Dr. McGillivray in conversation. A gentleman named Fox recognized the "patient" as Detective Littlehales, and told the doctor, who thereupon had an altercation with him. While they were thus engaged Dr. Alice attempted to steal downstairs with the child, but two or three women in the house intercepted her and a scuffle for the possession of the child occurred on the stairs. The husband rushed out of the consulting-room, bolted the front door and put his back against it. Littlehales followed him out, and going to the foot of the stairs he drew what appeared to be a pistol (he says it was only a pipecase) from his pocket, and pointing it at the men threatened to shoot if they did not let the mother and child pass. The women were alarmed and beat a speedy retreat. Then Littlehales rushed at Dr. McGillivray, flung him aside and unbolted the door; the mother skipped out, and the detective covered her retreat while she ran to Mrs. King's house, next door, and handed the child through the window to people who were waiting for it.

At an early hour this morning Dr. Alice and Detective Littlehales were arrested on a charge of abduction. When the case was called later at the Police Court it was agreed between counsel that the hearing be postponed until Wednesday in the hope of an agreement being reached, bail in $100 each for the prisoners being accepted.

Dr. Alice McGillivray was formerly a Miss Skimin of this city and taught school here. She subsequently studied medicine, and has attained considerable eminence as a specialist. She is 28 years of age and of prepossessing appearance.

Dr. T. Shannon McGillivray is a practitioner of considerable ability. They were in practice in Kingston when they separated. Dr. Alice was sub-dean in the Women's Medical College

Dr. Alice was seen by a reporter this morning. She said: "I would not accept a United States divorce. What I allege, and am prepared to prove, took place in Canada, and I will have a Canadian divorce. We are both Protestants. There is no question of religion in the case. I regret the proceedings exceedingly, but must vindicate my honor. My husband must be responsible for his own misdoings. We first met in Ottawa when I was 16 years of age and at school. We were married at Brantford and lived happily together and practised our profession in Kingston. I don't think," she added, "there is any chance of a reconciliation. The law courts must decide."

DROWNED FOR SPORT.

A Brutal Affair at Parry Sound—A Verdict of Manslaughter.

PARRY SOUND, July 7.—William O'Donall, a sailor from the schooner L. W. Drake, was drowned here at noon Saturday. He went in bathing with two other sailors belonging to the same vessel, and it is stated that the two men kept pushing O'Donall off the plank until he appeared to be exhausted and called to them to stop, but they went on until the poor fellow sank to the bottom. The men departed on the schooner very shortly afterwards for Tonawanda.

The harbor was dragged and the body of the drowned man was found some hours afterwards. An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against the two sailors, whose names are unknown.

THAT VICTORIA STORY.

IT IS NOW SAID TO BE A PURE FABRICATION.

No Privateers Fitting Out in the Pacific Province for Behring Sea—The Sealing Schooners Carry Only Their Usual Hunting Outfit of Rifles.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The World's Victoria (B.C.) special says: The sensational reports published through the Eastern press asserting that privateers are fitting out in this province for Behring Sea, with the object of bringing on a conflict, are fabrications pure and simple, without the faintest semblance of truth in them. They are manufactured out of whole cloth by some sensational correspondent outside of Victoria. Those of our citizens who are interested in the sealing industry are highly indignant over the circulation of such untruthful reports. They declare that it is done to injure their cause. There are no sealing schooners here now, all being by this time in Behring Sea, or entering that disputed body of water.

The schooners have orders to hunt for seals and to keep out of the way of cutters if possible. If they are captured, unless there is a sufficient prize crew put aboard to overmaster the old crew, the vessels will repeat last year's performances and return to Victoria. Nowhere can I find anybody interested who anticipates an armed resistance by sealers, though it is quite possible that some exasperated captain may fire upon the boarders. The talk of schooners being fitted out with swivel and other guns is arrant rubbish. The schooners merely have their regular hunting outfit, consisting of rifles.

Developments in Behring Sea are anxiously awaited here, and news will be had of seizures, if any be made, by about the 1st of August. A fleet of five war ships lies in Esquimalt refitting. Admiral Hotham, on his flagship the Warspite, will reach here in a few days. On his arrival H.M.S. Amphion, and probably some of the others, will depart. Their destiny is but conjecture. If it is Behring Sea they will be just about too late to protect British schooners from seizure. The British Naval officers are as silent as clams and news is hard to get from them: yet it is known that the general opinion on the Amphion is that she will proceed to Behring Sea. In the meantime the American public can rely upon one thing, and that is that the reports of privateers fitting out in this province for Behring Sea are downright falsehoods.

KNIGHTS IN PERIL.

A Smashup on the Illinois Central—Only One Person Killed.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The Journal's Kankakee (Ill.) special says: The most serious wreck that the Illinois Central has experienced for several years occurred at Manteno at 8 o'clock this morning. A special excursion train of 14 cars, carrying 600 Knights of Pythias and ladies to the biennial Supreme Lodge at Milwaukee, was derailed at the switch while entering the village at a speed of 35 miles an hour. The accident was caused by a loop switch bolt being shaken out of its place by the passage of the train. The four forward cars kept the main track, and the remainder of the train ran upon a siding. When the train broke a chair car occupied by the St. Louis contingent turned upon its side and the occupants numbering 50 were hurled with great violence against the side of the car. The sudden stoppage of the train prevented a long list of casualties. J. P. Crowler of Waco, Tex., aged 30, was standing on the platform of one of the cars and was killed. Five others were seriously injured.

An Electric Railway in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 7.—The special civic committee to-day decided to recommend to the City Council the offer made by Mr. W. H. Howland of Toronto to build an electric railway. Citizens will retain one-fifth interest in the company, which will be stocked at $250,000.

The City Council to-night, by a vote of 9 to 13, decided to submit to a vote of the ratepayers the scheme.

Has He $50 About Him?

BUFFALO, July 7.—Duk See, the Chinaman arrested at Ferry-street Saturday night for the importation of his own valuable self into the United States without having previously resided in the country, was this evening escorted back into Her Majesty's Dominions by Deputy Marshal Watts. Duk See says he has been living in Toronto. He came from Hong Kong.

Freddie Fortner Dies.

LONDON, Ont., July 7.—Freddie Fortner, the youth who was so mysteriously shot at Woodland cemetery on the Queen's Birthday, has succumbed to the effects of the same. He was thought some three weeks since to have recovered from the shock, but on Thursday last was again taken seriously ill and died on Friday night. No additional light has been thrown on the identity of the person who fired the shot, but presumably it was done quite unintentionally.

Betrayed and in Jail.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Miss Nettie Clarke, whose arrest for a $5000 forgery was reported the other day, is now in Jefferson Market prison. Dr. S. A. Smith, for whose benefit she committed the crime and with whom she was in love, was married July 1 to Miss Nellie Clark King of this city and they are now on their wedding tour. On the morning of the wedding Smith received a telegraphic money order for $1000 from Miss Clarke, part of the proceeds of her forgery.

Two Americans Murdered in Bolivia.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The Department of State is informed by the Minister of the United States to Bolivia that two Americans, Leonard Thompson from Ohio and Mr. Kedman from Illinois, on their way to the mining regions, were murdered May 10 last by Revolutionists. Every effort is being made to apprehend the murderers.

The South American Panic.

BUENOS AYRES, July 7.—The Monte-Video Bourse is closed. The crisis there has caused increased anxiety here.

Serious rioting is reported at Iquique, growing out of a strike. Commercial and shipping operations have been suspended there.

Merely Postponed.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The Senate to-day refused to take up the Tariff Bill. This means merely a postponement for the purpose of considering the River and Harbor Bill this week.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Protest Against Mr. Stinson's Election to be Filed To-Day.

TORONTO, July 8.—The protest against the election of Mr. Stinson, M.L.A., was sent down last night and will be filed to-day.

The 3-year-old son of R. Smith, 15 Hamburg-avenue, east of Dufferin-street, obtained possession of some matches Saturday and set fire to a pile of shavings on the boulevard in front of his father's house. The flames ignited the dress of the little one and before two men who witnessed the accident could extinguish the blaze the victim's legs and body were so frightfully burned that he died twenty-four hours afterwards.

The 6-year-old daughter of George Hagin, Dundas-street, ran along Claremont-street Sunday afternoon with her clothing ablaze and screaming for help. A man whose attention was attracted by the outcries smothered the flames with his coat. The victim stated that she was playing with a number of other little girls when a couple of boys came along, one of whom threw a quantity of coal oil on her and his companion set fire to it. The police are investigating the story of the child, who was not badly burned.

IT'S HOUR HAS COME.

The International League Smashed Into the Original Fragments.

EAST SAGINAW, July 7.—Saginaw-Bay City to-day dropped out of the International League. A league meeting was held in Detroit, at which it was claimed Grand Rapids and Saginaw-Bay City were not treated fairly. Toronto, Detroit and London lost a large amount of money on the Buffalo Club, and it is believed that they are trying to bleed the rest of the clubs to meet this loss. The management of the Hypens has in the two months of its existence been assessed $720, which is far in excess of the requirements. The outstanding indebtedness has all been paid and the players received their salaries to-night. This team is anxious to stay in the League, but believing that they cannot get a fair show want to disband. Stein, as did Clarkson, will go hence to Anson's Chicago Club. It is thought the rest of the players are well provided for. The Grand Rapids Club arrived here to-day to play as per schedule, but no game was contested. The two clubs may play exhibition games to-morrow to secure personal funds.

The Cockneys Collapse.

LONDON, July 7.—The directors of the Tecumseh Baseball Club have withdrawn from the International League. The players will arrive from Detroit in the morning, be paid off and the club disbanded. This means the collapse of the league. The directors evidently have reached the conclusion that the longer they keep the team together the heavier will be their loss. As it is they are several thousand dollars out of pocket. It is reported that most of the players took advantage of Manager Fessenden's absence and had a grand old time with themselves in Detroit. They will likely know what this conduct costs on pay day.

Clockmaker Gilbert's Will.

WINSTED, Conn., July 6.—The will of William L. Gilbert, Winsted's millionaire philanthropist, who died the other day near Toronto, Ont., gives $400,000 to the Gilbert Home for the Friendless at Winsted. Mr. Gilbert founded this home three years ago, upon which he has spent $100,000. He also bequeathed $40,000 to the Gilbert School for colored girls at Winsted, La.; $500,000 to establish and maintain a public school of high order in the eastern portion of the town of Winchester, now East Winsted. A clause in the will provides that each of his nineteen nieces and nephews receive $1000 and another provides that the town of Winchester have $48,600 for the purpose of tunnelling the mountains at the west end in order to obtain a better water supply from the lakes. Should the town for five years fail to perform their share of the necessary work on this improvement, which will cost the town $90,000, the money is to be added to a fund for a public school.

The Lottery Bill Vetoed.

BATON ROUGE, July 7.—Gov. Nichols to-day vetoed the Lottery Bill.

THE LONDON BOBBIES.

A STRIKE THREATENED BUT IT FALLS THROUGH.

Crowds of Toughs Gather in Bow-street in Anticipation of Trouble—A Wineshop Sacked by the Mob—The Prince of Wales on the Scene.

LONDON, July 7.—The agitation among the police force is increasing. The constable attached to the Bow-street station who was transferred to another division attempted to make a farewell address to his comrades in the station house to-day, but was ordered to desist by an inspector. A disorderly scene followed and the assembled constables ejected the inspector from the room. He was then seized by some of the men and thrown over a balustrade and narrowly escaped being killed. While Inspector Hanson was parading a number of men in the yard a heavy spittoon was thrown at him from a window. The missile narrowly missed his head.

This afternoon Chief of Police Bradford had a conference with the Bow-street officials. He afterwards summoned before him singly men who had refused to do duty Saturday and instantly dismissed each of them from the force. The men of the Bow-street station house were indignant. They alleged that only a portion of the number of men who refused to do duty were dismissed. They all went to the street and the news of the dismissals spread rapidly. Policemen in uniform and civilian clothing assembled and special messages were telegraphed to all the other police divisions.

Delegates from the other divisions reached Bow-street later in the day and it was declared by those present that a strike of the entire Metropolitan police force would occur to-night. The constables telegraphed to Home Secretary Matthews as follows:

"At a meeting held on Saturday it was resolved that you be respectfully asked to reply to-day to the moderate demands of our petition. If the answer is in the affirmative a disastrous strike will be avoided. All the divisions await your reply and trust that all the men who have been suspended will be reinstated."

This dispatch was signed by delegates from 21 divisions. It is stated that Sir Edward Bradford, the new Chief of Police, has adopted an unusual mode of procedure. Ordinarily reports of offences against discipline are submitted to the Scotland Yard authorities and the men implicated appear when their cases are to be settled. But now it is alleged such cases are handled hastily and the men are not given a fair opportunity to make explanations. The Scotland Yard people are making vigorous efforts to meet the emergency, but it looks as if nothing but an immediate reply from the Home Secretary will avert a most serious strike.

The men, it is said, propose to follow the course pursued by the dock strikers. The leaders will go to their respective stations at 9¼ p.m. When three-quarters of the night force have arrived the men will form three deep and await the appearance of the men inside the station houses. When the latter come out they will be called upon to join the movement. This process it is expected will induce all who may be doubtful to cast their fortunes with the strikers and the night men will then await the arrival of the morning reliefs and endeavor to persuade them also to join the strikers' ranks. Afterwards all the various contingents will hold a mass meeting in Bow-street. There is much uneasiness among merchants in the Strand and West End streets. Tradesmen are guarding their shops and in the banks clerks will remain all night to protect the property of their employers.

In anticipation of a strike a riotous mob of roughs blocked up Bow-street and vicinity this evening, preventing the constables from reaching the station. The crowd becoming turbulent mounted officers endeavored to clear a passage and were received with hoots and pelted with bags of flour, sticks, etc. In one instance the constables had to rescue a fellow-officer who was attacked by the crowd. At 9 o'clock the Prince of Wales escorted by the Life Guards arrived at the Opera House. The crowd thickened and the turbulence continued until a late hour. A few persons were injured. The majority of the police returned to duty as usual.

The Strand and other thoroughfares were better policed than usual owing to the drafting of men from suburban divisions to meet an emergency. The Prince and Princess of Wales and daughters left the theatre at 11¼ o'clock and were loudly cheered, the crowd singing: "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Further drafts of Life Guards arrived to preserve order.

A tavern which was closed in consequence of the excitement was wrecked by the mob and the windows of the tavern were broken. At midnight the crowd was undiminished and the hooting unabated. A steady rain was falling. Reports from all the suburbs state that all of the night police are on duty.

LONDON, July 8, 1 a.m.—The Home Secretary, the Chief of Police and other high officials met at the Bow-street station last night to discuss the situation. It is reported that the constables evinced much repugnance to going on duty, but yielded to the pressure of their officers.

At this hour the streets are quiet and the military have been withdrawn.

[The Metropolitan Police Force has a total of 14,257 men and 860 horses. There are 30 superintendents, 838 inspectors, 1,369 sergeants and 12,020 constables on the rolls. Col. Sir Edward Bradford, who succeeded Commissioner Monro the other day as the head of the force, was the political and secret secretary of the India office. He acquired some reputation as a commander of men in India.]

That Anglo-German Agreement.

LONDON, July 7.—The Foreign Office has issued the text of the Anglo-German agreement and the official correspondence on the subject. There is nothing new in regard to East Africa. The Walfisch Bay matter will be submitted to arbitration if the question remains unsettled at the expiration of two years.

THE BRITISH MARKET.

In considering the question of markets for the produce of Canadian farms it should never be forgotten that the principal market is the home market—that in Canada the greater part of the produce is consumed. For that reason and in other ways the interests of the farmers and the townspeople are interwoven. But outside of the home market where is the best opening for the disposal of the surplus agricultural produce? The Liberals, or a section of them, say the United States and that Canada should secure entrance to that market even if it had to sacrifice all others. But that would be extreme folly. It is a well known fact that the United States grows more agricultural produce than it consumes, and the market there is necessarily limited to a few things and limited in its receptive capacity even of these few. Across the ocean, however, in Great Britain there is an almost unlimited market for agricultural produce, and although Canada now exports a considerable quantity to that market the trade could be greatly enlarged. Of the cattle imported by Great Britain the United States supplies 23 per cent. and Canada 16 per cent.; and of salted meat and fresh beef the United States sends 94 and 23 per cent. respectively and the Dominion only 5 and .61 per cent. Similarly the Republic's exports of pork to Great Britain are 20.61 per cent. of its imports to Canada's .67 per cent.; of bacon 76.20 to our 4.80 per cent.; and of lard 94 to our 4.30 per cent. In cheese, peas and apples the comparison is more favorable to Canada, yet neither country supplies as much as 2 per cent of the importation. It will be seen from these facts that the United States is a rival of Canada in the great markets for agricultural products and not a place where Canadian farmers should look for a profitable market. The following table of the total importations of Great Britain and the quantity that Canada supplies, which is taken from the Empire, will be of interest:—

In view of the probable passage of the McKinley bill in the United States Congress these facts are of special interest, as they show that in the mother land there is a wide market in which the trade in Canadian agricultural exports can be greatly extended. The Agricultural Department, under Mr. Carling's administration, has made efforts with promises of success to introduce the cultivation of barley suitable for the old country market, and in a recent speech the Minister of Agriculture called attention to the opportunities for exportation that the British markets offered. The demand there may be said to be steady, as in no year does that country produce all it requires, and the development of the trade would open up great possibilities for Canadian agriculture.

The people look to leaders who profess Liberal principles for a Liberal policy.—Toronto Globe.

Although addressed to Mr. Mercier, Mr. Mowat should take this sentence into his serious consideration.

The Lindsay Post contained an editorial article last week on the Liberal leadership. In the copy of the Post that came to this office the first two lines were readable, but the remainder of the article was a blank. It might appear witty to say that the article was improved by the accident, but the truth cannot be sacrificed for humor.

NECESSITY MADE A TONGUE.

The Story of the Invention of the Ephemeral Chinook Language.

Out of the necessity of a universal language for commercial transaction has been evolved the harsh, discordant Volapuk, yet not generally accepted. Its only charm, if it possesses any, is in the simplicity of its grammer. It has no horrible irregular verbs, like the terrible aller which is the bete noir of all students of French; nor has it that awful subjunctive mood of our own languages which the average Kansan and Missourian, instead of letting severely alone, has laboriously wrestled with until they have constructed one or two veritable provincialisms and which sound, when heard by the cultivated ear, like an epitaph in a Yorkshire country churchyard.

But years ago, in the early part of the century, the traders of the Hudson Bay, the Northwest, and other fur companies manufactured a jargon out of the English, Indian and French languages as a means of communication between themselves and the various Indian tribes whose tongue dialects were like a sealed book. The Chinook enabled them to converse with the white man, and, conversely, also among themselves. It is not a language, because it has no grammar; it is more euphonius than Volapuk, but that is admitting little in favor of its euphony. One word, like the French va or faire has a dozen different meanings, depending upon its relation to another word, easily guessed at in Chinook, but not so easily in French if one adheres to the irrevocable fiat of the "Academy." Although I have had no use for Chinook these twenty-five years, I have not forgotten it, and presume I could carry on the ordinary conversation without difficulty. To give a specimen of its character I here present the little nursery prayer of "Now I lay me down to sleep:"

"Al-ta-ni-ka moosum, ni-ka tick-ey Sah-a-leyee, close nan-age ni-ka tum-tum. Spose nika mant-e-koos-elip ni-ka mit-whit to-molla ni-ka tick-ey Sah-a-le-yee qual-isum is-cum, ni-ka tum-tum."

Literally: "Now I sleep, I want the great Spirit to watch my soul. If I should die before I get up tomorrow I want the great Spirit to forever keep my soul."

During the early days of the Peninsular campaign a certain officer of high position and rank sent a telegram to another officer stationed in Washington, who, like himself, had been "hived in" one of the posts on the Upper Pacific for years and understood Chinook, in which jargon the message was written. Of course, it was intercepted, as were all suspiciously worded, and brought to the great War Secretary's office, where cipher experts perspired and grew desperate over it, but could make nothing out of it. Its capture created a terrible emotion; and awful was the mystery surrounding it; a plot against the Government it must be, and no effort was spared to trace it to the sender. At last this was accomplished, and its harmlessness clearly established; the weary officer before Yorktown had simply asked his old comrade to send down by first opportunity some bottles of good whiskey. Stanton overlooked it, but warned the principals not to indulge in such dangerous pleasantries again.

Untidiness and Ruin in Shops.

Whether it is that untidiness leads to ruin or that a manufacturer who is losing money has not the moral stamina to keep things in trim, thrifty shape is a hard matter to determine, but true it is that untidiness in the shop and office and ruin are such close friends that they are ordinarily seen together, and the sight of one suggests the other. We have often seen men of rare industry, judged by their hustling manner, who would spend time each day looking for tools they had forgotten where they left, stumbling over piles of stray castings left under the lathe or piled on or under the bench, or pawing those castings over for a piece somewhere in this pile or that, when it ought to be in a place by itself, going from tool to tool or bench to bench to find or borrow a drill or wrench or hammer or block, where there should be just one place to find the desired article. And when the articles are found, he never thinks of returning them to their proper place. In fact, there will be no "proper place" for tools in such a shop, and the next man who wants them will go on the same hunting expedition about the shop. Such a shop will always have black and dirty walls and ceiling, with windows splattered with dirt and decorated with cobwebs, notwithstanding that the light is so bad that careful work is rendered impossible or tedious of accomplishment, when a few pence worth of lime and a brush would whiten the walls and ceiling, and greatly improve the light, and so expedite and improve the work. Money and time are lost and ruin invited by a neglect of these things.
